'Then you knew by that I had loved—at least had never forgotten you,' said Jack, a little confused.

'Yes; and if my woman's sense had not told me, your talk in delirium would have proved it.'

Jack mentally thanked heaven he had been crazy.

'But, Jack, why didn't you answer my letter? It was cruel of you.'

'Your letter?'

'Yes, the one I sent by post to apprise you of my present. Mr. Staples took it to the office.'

'And I never received it! Do you suppose that fellow was mean enough—'

'No, dear Jack, don't get excited. Let us suppose nothing. 'All's well that ends well."

The little red mitten is a treasured relic in the Horton family, and it has been a wondering question to several cherubs that gladden the household, why mamma has never knit a mate for it.

'The trouble with these days,' says Uncle Millet, 'is that people won't begin modest. Now, there's my friend John ——, had a fine start in life, but he's petered out. It reminds me of what Squire N—— of Minot used to say about his daughters—that 'they flew high, but lit amazin' low.''—Lewiston Journal.

Truth, like consistency, is a jewel. This is why some people are so penurious in the use of that virtue; they think jewels are too precious to be used lavishly.

'I shall follow her soon,' said a sad-eyed man at the grave of his wife. Within a month he was following another woman.

Cheery and Easy.

Who so cheery as the farmer,
Gathering in his ripened sheaths
When Autumnal winds are sighing
Softly 'mong the falling leaves?
All the gorgeous Indian Summer,
Whistling at his daily toil—
Who so happy at his labor,
As the man who tills the soil?

Who so easy as the farmer,
When the sullen north winds roar?
He has not a fear that famine
Will be knocking at his door—
O, the farmer's horn and cellar
Have a good supply on hand,
For our God sends rain and sunshine
On the farmer's fruitful land.

A GAME OF BASE BALL.

'Here comes a Yale ball-tosser,' a young man with a yellow and black token jestingly remarked to several friends who were waiting for the commencement of a game between the rival nines of Yale and Princeton in New York. The person referred to certainly wore the Yale blue, but he was an old man, somewhat bent, wearing a linen duster and a straw hat. He was followed by a big poodle, clipped so that an anchor appeared in hairy bas-relief on its back. Dog and master wore a dejected air, and as they passed the grand stand, heading for the fifty-cent seats, the facetious young man, with much gravity, asked the wearer of the linen coat if he was a ball-tosser—one of Yale's.

The old man stopped, looked up at the speaker and his smiling friends, and then, putting his long arm down into a shining pair of trousers, pulled out a roll of bills and said: 'Young man, you talk like a ball player. Now, I'll bet you ten to five my dog here will beat you catching, I to throw for you, and you for the dog.'

The facetious young man was somewhat abashed, but amid the laughter of the crowd he accepted the offer, and the party withdrew to one side of the field. Each was to have three trials. The young man drew off his yellow gloves and stood ready to catch. The old man drew off a base, the duster quivered, the straw hat flew off, and a ball went smoking into the young man's hands and beyond. The next ball went up, and the young man, seemingly losing sight of it, ran wildly, slipped and missed it. The dog with the emblem of hope then stepped to the front. His dejected air had disappeared, and he seemed to be on springs. The young man with the yellow and black token drew off, and sent what is known in the profession as a 'red-hot, knee-high ball.' The dog's mouth opened, and with a slosh the ball struck and was held, and wagging his whole body instead of the tail it did not possess, the animal carried the ball to its master. Then the young man threw a flyer, but the dog watched it rise, and as it came down, steadied himself and caught it in his mouth as before. Another hard running catch was made, and as the old man pocketed the money and took a seat on a camp stool, he remarked: 'Yes, I am somewhat of a ball-tosser. Don't look like it, eh? Well, young man, you can't judge by appearances. Now, this dog of mine knows more about ball than any one in the country. You wouldn't think it to look at him. I'm not much of a player, but I'm fond of the game on general principles.'

GOOD COOKING.

The plainest food can be made to taste very good simply by selecting, preparing and preserving it. Those who eat food selected and prepared with chief reference to its nourishing qualities, eating moderately to gratify a natural appetite, instead of a morbid craving, really enjoy eating more than the gourmand or glutton, whose chief pleasure is in eating, and who must have everything fixed up 'good,' with condiments or hot sauces, and washed down with stimulants. He becomes incapable of detecting and appreciating delicate flavors, and so wears out the sense of taste that it is hard work to find anything that he can relish; while a dish of good bread and good unskimmed milk seems very delicious to people of undepraved appetites. Recently I heard a little girl who does not like bread and milk say of a piece of bread and butter, that 'no cake could taste better!' The bread was made of good whole wheat flour, stirred up with nothing but water, and baked in gem irons. It was spread with creamy butter, and I think any one is to be pitied who would not like the taste of such gems and such butter. Thorough chewing adds to the pleasure of the sense of taste; this taste resides in the tongue and in the soft palate and its arches. One common way of abusing the sense of taste is by eating fast with very little chewing, so that the food is not retained in the mouth long enough to give the nerves of taste a chance to fairly taste the quality of the food eaten. But for this rapid eating and washing down with agreeably flavored drinks much that is usually eaten would be rejected as either bitter or tasteless.—American Agriculturist.

CONDITIONS OF HEALTH.—The conditions of health are few but imperative.

1. Pure air.
2. Pure and nutritious food.
3. Proper exercise.
4. Undisturbed sleep.
5. Regularity.
6. Temperance in all things.
7. Pleasant and active mental, moral, and social conditions.
8. Right bodily positions.
9. Cleanliness.
10. Sunlight.—Herald of Health.

Heard on a farm: 'Yes, wife, the old cow has served us faithfully for twenty year, and that yoke of oxen have worked hard for nigh unto forty year, but they will have to go now. We can't afford to say 'no' to butchers when beef is selling in the city for thirty cents a pound.'

Prehistoric joke: 'Did you present your account to the defendant?' inquired a lawyer of his clerk. 'I did, sir.' 'What did he say?' 'He told me to go to the devil, sir.' 'Well, and what did you do after that?' 'Why I came to you, sir.'

Physician—'And is that all you are going to give me—twenty marks for forty visits?' Miser—'I should think that was enough. You must consider that if I hadn't been sick you wouldn't have had anything.'—Fligende Blatter.

'Do you think I have a good face for the stage?' asked a young lady with histrionic aspirations. 'I don't know about the stage,' replied her gallant companion, 'but you have a lovely face for a 'bus.

A GOOD PRECEDENT.

In 1841, sixteen days after the inauguration of President Harrison, Mr. Webster, as Secretary of State, sent a circular to the heads of departments, expressed in the very spirit of President Hayes' executive order on the subject of office-holding politicians. It is excellent reading, and a good precedent for to-day. These are ringing words for reform:

The President is of the opinion that it is a great abuse to bring the patronage of the general government into conflict with the freedom of elections, and that this abuse ought to be corrected wherever it may have been permitted to exist, and to be prevented for the future.

He therefore directs that information be given to all officers and agents in your department of the public service that partisan interference in the popular elections, whether of State officers or of officers of the (federal) government and for whomsoever and against whomsoever it may be exercised, or the payment of any contribution or assessment on salaries or official compensation for party or election purposes, will be regarded by him as cause for removal.

It is not intended that any officer shall be restrained in the free and proper expression and maintenance of his opinions respecting public men or public measures, or in the exercise to the fullest degree of the constitutional right of suffrage. But persons employed under the government, and paid for their services out of the public treasury, are not expected to take an active or officious part in attempts to influence the minds or votes of others, such conduct being deemed inconsistent with the spirit of the Constitution and the duty of public agents acting under it, and the President is resolved, so far as depends upon him, that while the exercise of the elective franchise by the people shall be free from undue influence of official station and authority, opinion shall also be free among the officers and agents of the government.

EATING BEFORE SLEEPING.

Man can train himself to the habit of sleeping without a preceding meal, but only after long years of practice. As he comes into the world nature is too strong for him, and he must be fed before he will sleep. A child's stomach is small, and when perfectly filled, if no sickness disturbs it, sleep follows naturally and inevitably. As digestion goes on, the stomach begins to empty. A single fold in it will make the little sleeper restless; two will waken it; and if it is hushed again to repose the nap is short, and three folds put an end to the slumber. Paregoric, or other narcotic, may close its eyes again, but without either food or some stupefying drug it will not sleep, no matter how healthy it may be. Not even an angel who learned the art of minstrelsy in a celestial choir can sing a babe to sleep on an empty stomach.

We use the oft-quoted illustration, 'sleeping as sweetly as an infant,' because this slumber of a child follows immediately after its stomach is completely filled with wholesome food. The sleep which comes to adults long hours after partaking of food, and when the stomach is nearly or quite empty, is not after the type of infantile repose. There is all the difference in the world between the sleep of refreshment and the sleep of exhaustion.

To sleep well the blood that swells the veins in our head during our busy hours must flow back, leaving a greatly diminished volume behind the brow that lately throbbed with such vehemence. To digest well this blood is needed at the stomach and nearer the fountains of life. It is a fact established beyond the possibility of contradiction that sleep aids digestion, and that the process of digestion is conducive to sleep. It needs no argument to convince us of this mutual relation. The drowsiness which always follows the well-ordered meal is itself a testimony of nature to this inter-dependence.—Journal of Commerce.

FULL OF TENDER MEMORIES.

Mrs. Arthur's room in her beautiful New York mansion, in which she died, has never been disturbed; her needle is still threaded and sticking in a bit of delicate embroidery in her work-basket, undisturbed; nor will her husband allow any one to change the room or its furniture arrangements. There is the little rocker beside the standard workbasket, and the little neglige crotcheted slippers. There stands her desk, with the ink dried on her pearl-handled pen, which she had hastily put aside from some interruption never to use again on earth. Her favorite books are placed in a tiny case, with a marker in one of them just as she left it. On the tables are placed each morning, by orders from the President, a bunch of her favorite flowers. Even her favorite perfumes are in the toilet bottles at her dressing case, and in her wardrobe hang her dresses. This room is bright and sunny, her former maid keeping it neat, and arranging the flowers in vases, and attending the canaries in the window, but never altering the places of the furniture, the books, etc. This room is a place where the President takes much comfort in reading and meditation, and they who know say that the bit of needle-work has been many times wet with tears by the husband.—Chicago News.

An extract from a recent negro sermon: 'Beware, my hearers, how you fall asleep, like that young woman in the third gallery while Paul was preaching and was smashed all to smashes. And they took her up twelve basketfuls! And brethren, whose wife shall she be in the resurrection?'

'Promise me, Ethelbert,' said she, as she fastened a rose in his buttonhole, 'that you will wear this until it withers and dies.' 'I will, indeed,' was the cheerful reply; 'I will wear this rose if I don't wear anything else.' Somehow they both blushed and went their respective ways.

Observe the mill-girls of Lowell; for they toil, also do they spin, but I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these—when she gets out on the streets one of these summer evenings. —Lowell Citizen.

Friend—'Hello, Jim, you aren't out of work again, are you?' Unfaithful Employe—'Well, yes; fact is, I'm not able to work; been injured by a premature discharge.'

'Women are so contrary,' said Blobbs; 'I thought when I got married my wife would darn my socks and let me alone; instead of that she lets my socks alone and darns me.'

Impoliteness is derived from just two sources—indifference to the divine and contempt for the human.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1882.

There is clearly but one way for the British government to get rid of Arabi. Let Gladstone present him with a toy pistol.

It is observed that the civil service reformers are in a state of agonizing perturbation. We cannot tell a lie, Jay Hubbell did it with his little circular.

One more aspiring youth, with a black skin has distanced all competitors and will soon be installed among the embryo warriors at West Point. Trouble begins as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed.

Congress has passed the river and harbor bill over the President's veto by a strong affirmative vote, in which both our Massachusetts senators enrolled themselves on the side of the majority. The country at large will not applaud the President any the less for his courageous act by reason of the fact that the monstrous grab was not thereby prevented. The obligations which rested upon him have been fully met.

The proprietor of the Worcester skating rink employed the city band last Sunday to give a sacred concert, and has now been summoned before the district court at the instigation of the city marshal, to answer to the charge of violating the sanctities of the Lord's day. That is right; Sunday worshippers who are used to having their cultivated ears charmed by the delightful harmonies of operatic singing should not be compelled to tamely submit to the antiquated vulgarities of a sacred concert—even when given by a brass band.

There is not much resemblance, between Springfield and the garden of Eden, to be sure. But if that modern paradise had been founded at the creation of the world and had been selected as the abode of our first parents (which is not improbable) there is no reason to believe that any restriction would have been put upon the use of fruit as an article of diet. Undoubtedly the loving pair would have been cautioned about the use of Ludlow water and might have been told that the day they drank thereof they should surely die. In that event we doubt if any serpent could have been found with sufficient audacity to contradict a statement so obviously true.

Whatever ambitious and deserving functionary may be left afloat by the State convention in the choice of United States senator, there is but one right course for the Legislature to pursue—Senator Hoar should be his own successor. In point of actual ability, as well as in all the attainments which should be reckoned among the essential qualifications for this position, Senator Hoar stands head and shoulders above any possible competitor. We say this with no desire to disparage the qualifications of Gov. Long, who is now prominently mentioned in connection with this place. Gov. Long is not only young in years, but he is young in statesmanship and in political experience. Whatever he is called upon to do is always done well, and with the years of growth which yet lie before him he is destined to rank, at no distant day, among the ablest of our public men. But for the present emergency Senator Hoar is most assuredly the wisest choice. His natural endowments are unquestionably great. He is ripe in scholarship and thoroughly equipped in all the expedients of parliamentary debate. With such a man in the highest council of the nation, the hopes and aspirations, as well as the traditions of the old Commonwealth, are sure to be worthily represented.

About the Next Governor.

Dearly beloved co-workers in the editorial calling, you must keep cool. Here it is early in the month of August, more than six weeks before the State convention meets, and yet you persist in fighting like cats and dogs over the question of Gov. Long's successor. What will the world think of you? Can't you be made to realize that this is the season when everybody requires rest and recreation? Keep a little more quiet, and your friends may imagine that you are enjoying the cool breezes and the clams at Long Branch or Newport. Let us look after these little political differences for the present. We've had our vacation and can attend to them just as well as not. And besides, we can dispose of the whole business in a few words. In fact we will dispose of it. John D. Long will be the next governor. He has said the people can have him if they want him, and almost nine men out of every ten will tell you they want him. So that matter would seem to be settled. Bishop is a very clever fellow. He has made an excellent presiding officer in the State senate. But what reason in the world can there be for making him governor, except that some of his senatorial friends are disposed to push him, and one or two at least are ambitious to become his successor. It is nonsense to talk about Bishop's superior qualifications. He is a clean, honest and conscientious man, is possessed of average abilities and would make a very respectable governor. But there are scores of available men in the State to-day who have the capacity for a more brilliant and efficient service than Robert R. Bishop could every expect to render. Crapo appears to be the superior of Bishop, and a man of more varied political experience; but he has no advantage over Long. The people have tried Gov. Long and they are satisfied with the result. He has grown stronger year by year, and has now reached a point which the people cannot expect to easily improve upon. Let us try Long a little longer.

Hecker's flour mill and other buildings on Cherry street, New York, were burned Monday forenoon; loss about $1,000,000.

True Reform.

The Springfield Republican, that zealous exponent of a theology which saves everybody and a politics which condemns all but the elect, has always held a high rank as an expounder of the pure gospel of civil service reform. Its attitude in relation to this subject is sufficiently straight-laced and strict to meet the demands of the most exacting disciple. The weights and measures by which it gauges the capacity of every candidate for office are kept carefully sealed according to the recognized standard among the apostles of this particular reform. How does the candidate stand in relation to this matter of reform in the civil service? Has he mastered its principles? and can he be trusted everywhere and on all occasions to advocate its measures and promote its doctrines? This is essentially the beginning and the end of all investigation. If sound on these points, questions relating to his capacity for genuine statesmanship, to his ability to comprehend and discuss the great measures which have a direct and important bearing upon the material interests of the country, are of little moment.

We submit there is danger of carrying this principle too far. No effort at true reform can be too earnestly commended. But practical reform is one thing, and theoretical or ideal reform is quite another. From the former only can we reasonably anticipate substantial results. Nothing so injures a good cause or tends so much to bring it into disrepute as the over-advocacy of its too zealous supporters. That our system of civil service has been greatly improved, and is subject to still further improvement, there can be no doubt. Nor can there be any doubt that public sentiment will at all times enforce attention to such reforms as are obviously demanded. We do not believe that these reforms represent the sum total of all the good that remains to be accomplished, nor that our nation is the famed Utopia, where ideal perfection is at all times to be enjoyed. There are men to be found eminently fitted for the public service and well qualified to respond to its most exacting requirements, who have never attained to the full stature of a professional civil service reformer, and probably never will.

If James M. Barker of Pittsfield really desires to be attorney general, there is really no reason why his ambition should not be gratified. He is a decidedly level-headed man, a first-class lawyer, and has a capacity for public service which the State cannot do better than to utilize. It is true Berkshire county already has one representative in the State government, and cannot with propriety extend her claims in this direction. But why should our lieutenant governor insist upon standing in Mr. Barker's way? At the end of his present term he will have given the State three years of very creditable service. This is the usual period allotted to this office. In the present case nothing further can be asked by reason of strength. Whether or not Gov. Long stands for another term is a matter of no importance, so far as the second place is concerned. There are abundant grounds for a change here, and we have a man, near at hand, exactly fitted to discharge the duties of the office. Hon. R. D. Woods, of Enfield, with his two years of efficient service in the executive department, is clearly in the line of promotion. Advance him to the second place, and the coast will then be clear for Mr. Barker and his friends.

Nothing of importance has occurred during the past week at the seat of war. A little skirmish was reported early Tuesday morning, in which a company of British rifles became badly scared, but it had no particular significance, and since then everything has remained comparatively quiet. Preparations for war and diplomacy for peace are still going on, but there is no ground for a safe conjecture as to the manner in which the problem will finally be solved. Arabi is proving himself a wily foe, and appears to have a backing among his countrymen which will enable him to wage a disastrous warfare if the negotiations for a peaceful settlement which are now in progress should ultimately fail of success.

A number of physicians and other citizens of Boston have united in a circular addressed to the teachers of that city, urging them to suppress the use of tobacco among the children in their schools. There is no doubt that this habit is becoming more and more prevalent among children, to whom it is equally certain to be injurious. The makers of cheap cigarettes are largely responsible for this unfortunate condition of affaire.

Dr. Sweet, the noted physician of Springfield, and grandson of the original Dr. Sweet of Connecticut, will spend three days of his vacation at the Nassowano House in this village. The reputation which the Sweet family has maintained for 250 years is well known throughout the country.

Michael Murphy, a lad about 11 years old, had his hand caught in a belt and carried around a pulley at the Carpet Mill last Saturday, tearing it some, and necessitating its being sewed up, but the wound was nothing serious. Fortunately the belt broke, or he would not have escaped so easily.

We were shown this week the sword and tail of a sword-fish, caught off Block Island by H. P. Simonds and party from this village. The fish weighed 410 pounds, the sword was 3 feet long, and the tail measured 2 feet and 8 inches from point to point. They report excellent fishing and a good time.

William Nelson has a hen which seems to understand how things are being done throughout the country, for after laying two large eggs, one of which measured 8 by 6½ inches, she apparently struck on the third day. At any rate, the egg was about as large as a robin's, measuring only 4 by 3½ inches.

At an adjourned term of the probate court held in Springfield Aug. 1st, C. L. Gardner was appointed guardian of Mrs. H. D. Packard of this town. The commissioner's report in insolvent estate of Harriet Shearer, late of Three Rivers, was allowed, and Mrs. C. A. Puffer of Monson was granted an allowance.

H. P. Longley of Westboro, and W. A. Weld of this place have bought out the stock and fixtures of W. P. French & Co. in Wales Hall block, and will open about the 12th of the month with an entire new stock of everything in the grocery line. Mr. Longley is a stranger among us, but Mr. Weld has long been known here, and his name is sufficient to recommend the firm to our readers.

B. Frank Bigelow, a son of Dr. John P. Bigelow, well known and formerly residing in this town, receiving teller of the National Bank of the Republic, Washington, was arrested last week Friday at Port Huron. He absconded June 23, and is alleged to be short in his accounts $25,000. A reward of $1000 had been offered for his capture. He was in Canada, and virtually gave himself up, saying he was tired of being hunted from place to place.

E. D. Metcalf of Springfield has purchased of Trustee Chaffee of the bankrupt estate of the Rhode Island Spragues, the water power on the Chicopee river just below Three Rivers. The price is supposed to be about $500. It is not yet known what use it will be put to, but it is too valuable a power to remain long undeveloped. The remains of the dam built a number of years ago to afford power for a small saw and grist mill, are still there. It is understood that a new dam will be built and the power utilized for some manufacturing purposes which will greatly increase the business interest of the village and town.

Last week a young man with a Derby hat and a freshly tinted pair of box-toed boots, enveloped in an odor which mildly suggested the cinnamon-scented breezes of Ceylon, politely requested one of our village magistrates to reduce him and the blushing damsel whom he said was waiting at the station, to that rapturous state of oneness which so multiplies our joys and makes even the sternest realities of life appear so like heavenly visions. It turned out, however, that both parties resided in Boston, and that in their haste to reach Palmer they had failed to attend to the little formalities about which the law is so strenuous, therefore the nuptials had to be postponed.

The pleasant moonlight evenings we have had for a week or two past have been taken advantage of by the young people, who have whiled away many a pleasant hour in carriage riding or some other innocent pastime. Last Sunday evening a young couple might be seen on the road from Blanchardville to this village, the lady driving and the "fellar" holding on to her, fearing she might tumble out. They were apparently having a splendid time, till opposite the agricultural park the young man's hat rolled out for some unaccountable reason, and to his dismay he was obliged to release his hold and alight. Moral (to young ladies)—Don't wear large hats when carriage riding with affectionate young men.

A man calling himself G. L. Barton, who formerly worked at Monson for W. N. Flynt & Co., and afterwards removed to Brookfield, where he was for a time engaged as keeper of the town farm, has recently been arrested and bound over to the superior court in Worcester county for being the proprietor of more wives than the law allows. For some time past he has resided at West Warren, having re-engaged his services to the Messrs. Flynt. During his stay in this vicinity he has lived with a woman whom he has called his wife, but last week a woman from Jewett City, Ct., who claimed to hold that relation to him put in an unexpected appearance, having got track of her unfaithful lord after a vain search of more than two years. She secured the arrest of both the guilty parties, and they are now languishing in jail, awaiting the disposal of their case by the grand jury.

The town meeting held last Monday to provide means of warming the new school house at Three Rivers was not largely attended, but transacted the business which it was called to consider with neatness and dispatch. In the absence of James B. Shaw, J. W. Mason was chosen town clerk pro tem., and Geo. A. Murdock of Thorndike was assigned to the position of moderator. The building committee reported that they had about $500 remaining of the original appropriation, which would not be needed to complete the improvements they were ordered to make. They therefore recommended the town to appropriate $500 more, and expend a sum not exceeding $1000 in providing a heating apparatus in place of the stoves by which the building has heretofore been warmed. After some discussion the town adopted the recommendation, and Col. H. R. Stoughton and Geo. B. Kenerson were added to the old committee, which has the matter in charge.

Leslie Douglass, a freight conductor on the N. L. N. Railroad, was the victim of a fatal accident at South Vernon Wednesday morning. In attempting to pass down from a box car to a platform car he somehow lost his hold and fell between the cars, and was so badly crushed and mangled beneath the moving train that he died almost instantly. A disabled arm, the result of a mishap occuring some weeks ago, is supposed to have contributed to the accident. Mr. Douglass commenced his business career as a newsboy on the New London road, and by faithful service worked his way up to the position which he held at the time of his death. He was well known in this vicinity, and was deservedly popular with the officials and employes of the road. His funeral, which occurred at Monson Thursday afternoon, was largely attended, a special train being run from this place. He was 27 years of age, and leaves a wife, who is the daughter of D. G. Potter of Monson.

The agricultural society constructed a substantial fence in front of its grounds last fall, and has now nearly completed a new fence along the side bordering on the railroad. This will leave the two ends to be attended to at some future day. These are much-needed improvements, but the good work should not be allowed to stop here. The unsightly and dilapidated judges' stand, which has followed the fortunes of the society from one place to another, and gives evidence of having been constructed at a period when the rudest forms of architecture were wholly unknown, is a disgrace to the society, as well as to our citizens, who have tolerated it so long. And what is said of this will apply with equal force to what is known as the grand stand. Considering the frequency of the exhibitions upon the park, including the annual fair and the various "trots" provided by our sporting men, there ought to be enterprise enough to erect structures which, if not attractive, shall at least be respectable in their outward appearance. If the society has not the funds or the disposition to make these improvements, will not some one start a subscription paper and see what can be accomplished in that way?

On Thursday last the Millers River and Eastern Hampden Medical Associations held their annual meeting at Lake Pleasant, the former being the guests of the latter. Members from this section passed over the New London Northern Railroad, a special parlor car being placed at their disposal by officials of the road. Arriving at the grounds, a committee composed of the bachelors of the Eastern Hampden Association was appointed to meet the Millers River society at the depot, after which the company, consisting of about fifty ladies and gentlemen, repaired to the shores of the lake, and an hour was passed in social intercourse. At 12 o'clock a grand banquet was enjoyed at the hotel. The address of welcome by Dr. Ballard, president of the Eastern Hampden Society, was responded to by Dr. Wright, president of the Millers River Society. Excellent papers were read by members of the respective societies, and were followed by interesting remarks upon important medical subjects by all the members, particularly instructive and practical observations being made by Drs. Goddard of Amherst, Ballard of Hampden, Fuller of Monson, and Lynes of Athol, the latter being the author of a paper upon "Infant Feeding," recently read before the State Medical Society, which has attracted much attention in medical circles. At 4.30 p. m. the meeting was adjourned and the members, rejoining the ladies, enjoyed the short time remaining by a stroll about the beautiful grounds. The utmost good feeling prevailed. At 5.30 the party departed for their homes, long to remember the most important, the pleasantist and largest meeting of the associations ever held. The Eastern Hampden Society meet next month with Dr. Newton at Stafford Springs, Conn.

C. L. Carter, for simple drunk, was heard to-day.

A warrant against A. H. Tanner for a dangerous assault on his father is in the hands of the officer. At present Tanner is not able to be brought before the court.

MONSON.

Dr. Smith of this town experienced a severe paralytic shock Wednesday afternoon which has occasioned considerable anxiety among his friends. The disease manifested itself by his suddenly falling on the ground while engaged in a game of croquet. He is one of the oldest practioners in this section. His condition has somewhat improved, and his recovery is considered probable.

BONDSVILLE.

Agent O. B. Smith and family start to-day for Block Island for a week or ten days' absence.

The county commissioners will visit this village Sept. 7, to consider a couple of road petitions.

The Methodist society had a lawn party Wednesday evening at the grounds of M. D. L. Towne. Music was furnished by the Boston Duck Cornet Band, and the net proceeds were about $25.

WALES.

Charles A. Royce and family from Boston have been spending a week at the old homestead in Wales.

A snug little party went to Mashapaug last week Friday and report a delightful trip.

Through the generosity of one of our most public spirited men, the Methodist Society received the gift of the fancy enamelled glass in the windows of the audience room in place of the colored glass taken out.

Frank A. Royce takes the cake on raising tomatoes, he having a ripe one on his vines that measures eleven inches around.

WEST WARREN.

The East Brookfields play the Rockets on the home grounds to-day.

The Methodists give their pastor, G. A. Viets, a month's vacation. The next two Sundays, Rev. Mr. Sanderson of Warren will preach, and the other two are yet to be supplied.

The ball game of the season came off last Saturday between nines from No. 1 and No. 3 weaving rooms. No. 1 men were the stronger and when, during the eighth inning, the game was called, on account of the darkness, the score stood 21 to 13 in No. 1's favor. Another game will soon be played, and No. 3 think they can win, if the hat trick is not played.

WARREN.

Dry weather and poor crops are our greatest trouble at present.

Dr. Buck and family and D. G. Hitchcock and wife left for the seashore Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Carter, of Chicopee Falls, preached at the Congregational church Sunday.

The addition to the parsonage is finished and adds to its looks as well as the convenience. All the houses in process of erection are rapidly approaching completion.

Rev. Mr. Canfield preaches to the Universalists in the town hall Sunday afternoons in the town hall Sunday afternoons. Mr. Canfield is a very able speaker and his discourses are listened to by a very attentive audience.

Our summer visitors speak very enthusiastically of the manifold beauties of our town, and say furthermore that a large and pleasantly situated hotel would ensure us plenty of summer visitors. Now that the ball of public enterprise is started we hope it will continue to roll until we have a good hotel. Will not some of our public-spirited citizens give it a good substantial push.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Reports on the supply of water from the springs in this vicinity are good.

Geo. Lane has purchased of Henry Cutler the barn at the Bennett house. He will move it at once to his place.

Dr. A. O. Squire has returned from Dakota, and taken the practice of Dr. Hammin of Ludlow while he is away on his vacation.

Charles Waite has sold out his business to Charles Whiting. He goes to Bridgeport, Conn., to live with his daughter Mrs. Colton.

M. F. Munsell's grandson, Charlie Ricker, fell from a wagon and broke his arm Tuesday afternoon. He was attended by Dr. Foskit and is going nicely.

Mr. Charles Shepard purchased a pound package of coffee of Messrs. Stone & Co., and secured a $50 sewing machine as a prize. The machine is on exhibition at Stone & Co.'s store.

In the game of last Saturday at Holyoke with the Albion Paper nine, the North Wilbraham's won with a score of 9 to 6. They play the third game with the Whiting Paper nine on the old field in this place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

THREE RIVERS.

Miss Fannie Beauregard is visiting friends near Philadelphia.

J. H. Thayer and family are spending their vacation at Block Island.

Anthony Chambuth has purchased of Dr. Ruggles a building lot on the Thorndike road for $250.

Although there are usually large quantities of huckleberries picked in this vicinity there will be but few this season, on account of the long drouth.

The Three Rivers base ball club went to Belchertown one day last week and played a game with the Belchertown club. Score—Three Rivers 29, Belchertowns 0.

On Saturday last, the Rockets of Jenksville, assisted by some hired players from Springfield and other places, defeated the Three Rivers club, 12 to 4, in this village.

There will be no preaching service in the Union church the next two Sundays, as the pastor, Rev. W. L. Noyes, is at Old Orchard, Maine, on his vacation. The Sunday School will be held at the usual hour.

The telephone connection between this village, Thorndike and Palmer is completed, but the patrons of the line should study the different "calls" more carefully, that "medicine" and "beef" may not get so badly mixed.

The addition to the school house and the repairs in the old part are nearly completed, and the building is now receiving a new coat of paint at the hands of H. T. Huntington of Palmer. Apparatus for heating by steam will be put in before the fall term of school commences.

HAMPDEN.

The Tuttle grist mill is closed until fall, but Thompson's mill is running as usual when there is water.

One of A. H. Thompson's Jersey cows last week gave birth to twin heifers, and with the assistance of Dr. Geo. N. Walker all are doing finely.

O. A. Thresher cut one piece of herds grass last week, the stalks of which measured five feet four inches. It would average four tons to the acre.

The base ball club of this village is now in good condition, and ready to receive challenges from any neighboring club, and will play return games. Address Daniel Troy.

Some people are joking because the weather is so hot and dry, and say it is because the citizens last spring voted no license. Be that as it may, druggist Hitchcock will dispense the best of soda-water to the thirsty in place of the more fiery liquid.

These are times that try men's souls. There has been no rain in the south part of the town for so long that the potato tops which looked so nicely two weeks ago are dried and yellow, and the potatoes are small, blighted and bitter. The land where grass has been taken off is yellow and crisp, and is injured so much that there will not be much fall feed on the uplands. We have mostly got through haying, and our barns look much as they do in March.

Constable Chaffee, with a posse of citizens, had a lively chase last Sabbath after one John Kimball, whom he arrested some four weeks ago, but who escaped his grasp and ran over the line into Connecticut, and is still in the land of wooden nutmegs. Sheriff Thresher arrested John's wife last Monday for an assault on Albert Lee, and took her before Judge Wells, who fined her about $8 for the fun she had in pounding Albert. She thinks it cheap, and threatens to make it lively for him as soon as she can lay hands on him again.

According to an English contributor to Bradstreet's, the wealth of the United States now exceeds that of either Great Britain or France, but the average wealth per capita is less here than in those countries. The wealth of the United States is $49,800,000,000 or $990, per capita; of Great Britain, $44,100,000,000, which is $1260 per head; France, $37,200,000,000, or $1045 per capita. In 1840 Great Britain's wealth was five times as great as ours.

It seems that even a lawyer is not allowed to "sass" his mother-in-law down South. John W. Stephenson, a lawyer at Galveston Texas, returned to his home in an intoxicated condition, and cursed and abused his wife and her father and mother. He was finally shot in the neck and dangerously wounded by Mrs. Vechten, his mother-in-law.

The American Lumber Company has purchased from the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad Company, the standing pine on its entire land grant, comprising 500,000 acres besides large amounts in Chippewa county, on the Ontanago river, and will erect a mill of 100,000 feet per day capacity at Newburg.

A well-known student of and participator in Irish affairs, estimates that from the western counties of the Emerald Isle, which have a population of 400,000 to 500,000 at least 75,000 persons should emigrate in order that those who remain may maintain themselves on the soil.

Great excitement has been caused by the discovery of new deposits of extraordinarily rich silver ore at Lake Valley near Nutt, N. M., in the Black Range. In one shaft in the Sierra mines a vein of chlorides and horn silver forty-feet thick has been discovered this week.

A barefooted Georgia farmer while hoeing potatoes a few days ago, saw what he thought was a snake's head peering from the ground directly in front of him. He struck savagely with his hoe, and cut off his own big toe, which he had mistaken for a reptile.

It is suggested that the wire fences which bound a multitude of Western farms might be turned into telephonic connections at small cost, to the great social advantage of lonely wives whose husbands are away from morning until night.

It is estimated that Ohio brewers make 690,000,000 mugs of beer annually for which consumers pay $34,000,000, that half of this is gross profit to the retailers, and that the makers get 33 per cent on their capital of 30,000,000.

The five-cent sponges sold by peddlers are said to be picked up in the streets of New York after being used in the hospitals, and then bleached and disinfected with chloride of lime.

Walter Lea and Henry Livermore, carpenters, while working on Nims's mill at Montague fell 20 feet by the breaking of a staging and both were seriously injured.

Deacon John G. Craft, cashier of the Exchange Bank of Franklin, Pa., is alleged to have speculated with the bank's funds to the amount of $50,000 or more.

The Ohio papers have discovered a woman forty years old who saw strawberries for the first time in her life the other day, and had to be told what they were.

The New York authorities have decided to prevent a repetition of the brutal exhibition in Madison Square Garden between Sullivan and Wilson.

The Minnesota wheat harvest will begin in about a week, and the crop having had a fine growth, a yield of 40,000,000 bushels is expected.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1882.

There is clearly but one way for the British government to get rid of Arabi. Let Gladstone present him with a toy pistol.

It is observed that the civil service reformers are in a state of agonizing perturbation. We cannot tell a lie, Jay Hubbell did it with his little circular.

One more aspiring youth, with a black skin has distanced all competitors and will soon be installed among the embryo warriors at West Point. Trouble begins as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed.

Congress has passed the river and harbor bill over the President's veto by a strong affirmative vote, in which both our Massachusetts senators enrolled themselves on the side of the majority. The country at large will not applaud the President any the less for his courageous act by reason of the fact that the monstrous grab was not thereby prevented. The obligations which rested upon him have been fully met.

The proprietor of the Worcester skating rink employed the city band last Sunday to give a sacred concert, and has now been summoned before the district court at the instigation of the city marshal, to answer to the charge of violating the sanctities of the Lord's day. That is right; Sunday worshippers who are used to having their cultivated ears charmed by the delightful harmonies of operatic singing should not be compelled to tamely submit to the antiquated vulgarities of a sacred concert—even when given by a brass band.

There is not much resemblance, between Springfield and the garden of Eden, to be sure. But if that modern paradise had been founded at the creation of the world and had been selected as the abode of our first parents (which is not improbable) there is no reason to believe that any restriction would have been put upon the use of fruit as an article of diet. Undoubtedly the loving pair would have been cautioned about the use of Ludlow water and might have been told that the day they drank thereof they should surely die. In that event we doubt if any serpent could have been found with sufficient audacity to contradict a statement so obviously true.

Whatever ambitious and deserving functionary may be left afloat by the State convention in the choice of United States senator, there is but one right course for the Legislature to pursue—Senator Hoar should be his own successor. In point of actual ability, as well as in all the attainments which should be reckoned among the essential qualifications for this position, Senator Hoar stands head and shoulders above any possible competitor. We say this with no desire to disparage the qualifications of Gov. Long, who is now prominently mentioned in connection with this place. Gov. Long is not only young in years, but he is young in statesmanship and in political experience. Whatever he is called upon to do is always done well, and with the years of growth which yet lie before him he is destined to rank, at no distant day, among the ablest of our public men. But for the present emergency Senator Hoar is most assuredly the wisest choice. His natural endowments are unquestionably great. He is ripe in scholarship and thoroughly equipped in all the expedients of parliamentary debate. With such a man in the highest council of the nation, the hopes and aspirations, as well as the traditions of the old Commonwealth, are sure to be worthily represented.

About the Next Governor.

Dearly beloved co-workers in the editorial calling, you must keep cool. Here it is early in the month of August, more than six weeks before the State convention meets, and yet you persist in fighting like cats and dogs over the question of Gov. Long's successor. What will the world think of you? Can't you be made to realize that this is the season when everybody requires rest and recreation? Keep a little more quiet, and your friends may imagine that you are enjoying the cool breezes and the clams at Long Branch or Newport. Let us look after these little political differences for the present. We've had our vacation and can attend to them just as well as not. And besides, we can dispose of the whole business in a few words. In fact we will dispose of it. John D. Long will be the next governor. He has said the people can have him if they want him, and almost nine men out of every ten will tell you they want him. So that matter would seem to be settled. Bishop is a very clever fellow. He has made an excellent presiding officer in the State senate. But what reason in the world can there be for making him governor, except that some of his senatorial friends are disposed to push him, and one or two at least are ambitious to become his successor. It is nonsense to talk about Bishop's superior qualifications. He is a clean, honest and conscientious man, is possessed of average abilities and would make a very respectable governor. But there are scores of available men in the State to-day who have the capacity for a more brilliant and efficient service than Robert R. Bishop could every expect to render. Crapo appears to be the superior of Bishop, and a man of more varied political experience; but he has no advantage over Long. The people have tried Gov. Long and they are satisfied with the result. He has grown stronger year by year, and has now reached a point which the people cannot expect to easily improve upon. Let us try Long a little longer.

Hecker's flour mill and other buildings on Cherry street, New York, were burned Monday forenoon; loss about $1,000,000.

True Reform.

The Springfield Republican, that zealous exponent of a theology which saves everybody and a politics which condemns all but the elect, has always held a high rank as an expounder of the pure gospel of civil service reform. Its attitude in relation to this subject is sufficiently straight-laced and strict to meet the demands of the most exacting disciple. The weights and measures by which it gauges the capacity of every candidate for office are kept carefully sealed according to the recognized standard among the apostles of this particular reform. How does the candidate stand in relation to this matter of reform in the civil service? Has he mastered its principles? and can he be trusted everywhere and on all occasions to advocate its measures and promote its doctrines? This is essentially the beginning and the end of all investigation. If sound on these points, questions relating to his capacity for genuine statesmanship, to his ability to comprehend and discuss the great measures which have a direct and important bearing upon the material interests of the country, are of little moment.

We submit there is danger of carrying this principle too far. No effort at true reform can be too earnestly commended. But practical reform is one thing, and theoretical or ideal reform is quite another. From the former only can we reasonably anticipate substantial results. Nothing so injures a good cause or tends so much to bring it into disrepute as the over-advocacy of its too zealous supporters. That our system of civil service has been greatly improved, and is subject to still further improvement, there can be no doubt. Nor can there be any doubt that public sentiment will at all times enforce attention to such reforms as are obviously demanded. We do not believe that these reforms represent the sum total of all the good that remains to be accomplished, nor that our nation is the famed Utopia, where ideal perfection is at all times to be enjoyed. There are men to be found eminently fitted for the public service and well qualified to respond to its most exacting requirements, who have never attained to the full stature of a professional civil service reformer, and probably never will.

If James M. Barker of Pittsfield really desires to be attorney general, there is really no reason why his ambition should not be gratified. He is a decidedly level-headed man, a first-class lawyer, and has a capacity for public service which the State cannot do better than to utilize. It is true Berkshire county already has one representative in the State government, and cannot with propriety extend her claims in this direction. But why should our lieutenant governor insist upon standing in Mr. Barker's way? At the end of his present term he will have given the State three years of very creditable service. This is the usual period allotted to this office. In the present case nothing further can be asked by reason of strength. Whether or not Gov. Long stands for another term is a matter of no importance, so far as the second place is concerned. There are abundant grounds for a change here, and we have a man, near at hand, exactly fitted to discharge the duties of the office. Hon. R. D. Woods, of Enfield, with his two years of efficient service in the executive department, is clearly in the line of promotion. Advance him to the second place, and the coast will then be clear for Mr. Barker and his friends.

Nothing of importance has occurred during the past week at the seat of war. A little skirmish was reported early Tuesday morning, in which a company of British rifles became badly scared, but it had no particular significance, and since then everything has remained comparatively quiet. Preparations for war and diplomacy for peace are still going on, but there is no ground for a safe conjecture as to the manner in which the problem will finally be solved. Arabi is proving himself a wily foe, and appears to have a backing among his countrymen which will enable him to wage a disastrous warfare if the negotiations for a peaceful settlement which are now in progress should ultimately fail of success.

A number of physicians and other citizens of Boston have united in a circular addressed to the teachers of that city, urging them to suppress the use of tobacco among the children in their schools. There is no doubt that this habit is becoming more and more prevalent among children, to whom it is equally certain to be injurious. The makers of cheap cigarettes are largely responsible for this unfortunate condition of affairs.

John L. Sullivan, the pubilist, surrendered himself to the police on old charges of assault and battery, and profanity, standing against him. He was convicted and ordered pay a small fine. He was refused a jury trial probably on the ground that he might challenge the whole panel.

Archibald Forbes has been lecturing in Melbourne, Australia, for two weeks, and it is said that he spends a good deal of his time in saying mean things about the United States.

Mr. Charles A. Reed, a well-known leather merchant, and a member of the Boston school committee, fell down a hatchway in his store Monday and was instantly killed.

The Governor of Iowa has issued a proclamation announcing the adoption of the prohibitory amendment to the Constitution by a majority of 29,759 votes.

The Prince of Wales was desirous of accompanying the expeditionary force to Egypt, but in deference to the wishes of the Queen, abandoned the project.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Woodcock have now become outlaws, and may be shot at sight.

There is to be no preaching at the Universalist church to-morrow.

The salary of our genial postmaster has recently been fixed at $1500.

The Palmer base ball club would like to hear from the Thorndike nine.

The Congregational pulpit will be filled tomorrow by Rev. W. A. Lamb of Andover.

Lawyer Strong and Mrs. L. C. Strong have been spending a few days at Block Island.

A new platform has been put in at the New London Northern passenger depot this week.

Mrs. H. H. Sanders and Mrs. J. S. Holden are at Watch Hill for a couple of weeks.

M. W. French has enlarged his tenement house on the Hastings farm by the addition of an ell.

J. F. Holbrook and family go to Block Island to-day. They will be absent about two weeks.

Rev. James L. Hill of Lynn preached two able sermons at the Congregational church last Sabbath.

The ladies of St. Paul's parish held an ice cream social at the Nassowanno House Wednesday evening.

Superintendent Leland of the wire mill has purchased of Weston Dickinson the place formerly owned by Dr. Higgins. Price about $2300.

The business men of this village and Three Rivers have made arrangements for a game of ball on the park next Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

The wire mills are being supplied with water from the Quaboag river. The mills are rapidly approaching completion, and will soon be in operation.

A Frenchman in one of our villages recently applied to the chairman of the school committee for a "stiff ticket" to enable his boy to work in the mill.

A much-needed improvement has been made this week in the shape of a cross-walk from the Main street bridge to the sidewalk at Lawrence's corner.

Several parties from this village have been camping out this week at Newell's Pond, and more are to follow. "Jim" is said to be boss of the culinary department.

A prominent horse dealer in this village recently sold a valuable animal which he warranted free from fault, except that it would not stand in front of a saloon.

Wm. A. Barnes, wife and daughter, and Miss Carrie Fox, are at Osprey Beach. H. W. Smith and family will spend a portion of the season in New Hampshire.

There was a lively double-hitch, go-as-you-please race on Main street early in the week, but as the horses broke badly no time was called, and all bets were declared off.

John Wright, living on the Three Rivers road, had his cow badly poisoned the other day from eating Paris green purposely or carelessly set by a neighbor within her reach.

Barney Galleher is home from a short vacation spent at Block Island. He complains that the potatoes at that famous resort taste too much like pears to be relishable with meat and gravy.

Dr. Irving Watson, of the Herald, at Narragansett Pier, R. I., and formerly of the Mt. Pleasant Institute at Amherst, made us a call on Thursday, while on a vacation trip to the White Mountains.

Personally we stand by our convictions, but from actual observation made during the past two weeks we are compelled to admit that nine-tenths of the people of this village have come to believe in sprinkling.

Barnum has been sued for $25,000 by F. M. Bardwell of Springfield (formerly a manufacturer at "Skeeterville") whose son was badly injured by a tent pole falling upon him while the circus was exhibiting in that city.

A youth of this village went into one of our barber shops one day this week and asked to have his moustache dyed. But the barber advised him to save his money, as it would die soon enough of its own accord if let alone.

We are conscious of being susceptible to the charms of music, but when a jerky hand-organ strikes up "In the Sweet By and By" in front of our door, we could wish that the playing might be delayed until that blissful day arrives.

You are almost sure to find some low, miserable rascal in every town, and ours turns up this time in the shape of a graveyard thief, who has of late been stealing bouquets and other articles of value from the graves in the cemetery in this village.

Dr. Sweet, the noted physician of Springfield, and grandson of the original Dr. Sweet of Connecticut, will spend three days of his vacation at the Nassowano House in this village. The reputation which the Sweet family has maintained for 250 years is well known throughout the country.

Michael Murphy, a lad about 11 years old, had his hand caught in a belt and carried around a pulley at the Carpet Mill last Saturday, tearing it some, and necessitating its being sewed up, but the wound was nothing serious. Fortunately the belt broke, or he would not have escaped so easily.

We were shown this week the sword and tail of a sword-fish, caught off Block Island by H. P. Simonds and party from this village. The fish weighed 410 pounds, the sword was 3 feet long, and the tail measured 2 feet and 8 inches from point to point. They report excellent fishing and a good time.

William Nelson has a hen which seems to understand how things are being done throughout the country, for after laying two large eggs, one of which measured 8 by 6½ inches, she apparently struck on the third day. At any rate, the egg was about as large as a robin's, measuring only 4 by 3½ inches.

At an adjourned term of the probate court held in Springfield Aug. 1st, C. L. Gardner was appointed guardian of Mrs. H. D. Packard of this town. The commissioner's report in insolvent estate of Harriet Shearer, late of Three Rivers, was allowed, and Mrs. C. A. Puffer of Monson was granted an allowance.

H. P. Longley of Westboro, and W. A. Weld of this place have bought out the stock and fixtures of W. P. French & Co. in Wales Hall block, and will open about the 12th of the month with an entire new stock of everything in the grocery line. Mr. Longley is a stranger among us, but Mr. Weld has long been known here, and his name is sufficient to recommend the firm to our readers.

B. Frank Bigelow, a son of Dr. John P. Bigelow, well known and formerly residing in this town, receiving teller of the National Bank of the Republic, Washington, was arrested last week Friday at Port Huron. He absconded June 23, and is alleged to be short in his accounts $25,000. A reward of $1000 had been offered for his capture. He was in Canada, and virtually gave himself up, saying he was tired of being hunted from place to place.

E. D. Metcalf of Springfield has purchased of Trustee Chaffee of the bankrupt estate of the Rhode Island Sprague, the water power on the Chicopee river just below Three Rivers. The price is supposed to be about $500. It is not yet known what use it will be put to, but it is too valuable a power to remain long undeveloped. The remains of the dam built a number of years ago to afford power for a small saw and grist mill, are still there. It is understood that a new dam will be built and the power utilized for some manufacturing purposes which will greatly increase the business interest of the village and town.

Last week a young man with a Derby hat and a freshly tinted pair of box-toed boots, enveloped in an odor which mildly suggested the cinnamon-scented breezes of Ceylon, politely requested one of our village magistrates to reduce him and the blushing damsel whom he said was waiting at the station, to that rapturous state of oneness which so multiplies our joys and makes even the sternest realities of life appear so like heavenly visions. It turned out, however, that both parties resided in Boston, and that in their haste to reach Palmer they had failed to attend to the little formalities about which the law is so strenuous, therefore the nuptials had to be postponed.

The pleasant moonlight evenings we have had for a week or two past have been taken advantage of by the young people, who have whiled away many a pleasant hour in carriage riding or some other innocent pastime. Last Sunday evening a young couple might be seen on the road from Blanchardville to this village, the lady driving and the "fellar" holding on to her, fearing she might tumble out. They were apparently having a splendid time, till opposite the agricultural park the young man's hat rolled out for some unaccountable reason, and to his dismay he was obliged to release his hold and alight. Moral (to young ladies)—Don't wear large hats when carriage riding with affectionate young men.

A man calling himself G. L. Barton, who formerly worked at Monson for W. N. Flynt & Co., and afterwards removed to Brookfield, where he was for a time engaged as keeper of the town farm, has recently been arrested and bound over to the superior court in Worcester county for being the proprietor of more wives than the law allows. For some time past he has resided at West Warren, having re-engaged his services to the Messrs. Flynt. During his stay in this vicinity he has lived with a woman whom he has called his wife, but last week a woman from Jewett City, Ct., who claimed to hold that relation to him put in an unexpected appearance, having got track of her unfaithful lord after a vain search of more than two years. She secured the arrest of both the guilty parties, and they are now languishing in jail, awaiting the disposal of their case by the grand jury.

The town meeting held last Monday to provide means of warming the new school house at Three Rivers was not largely attended, but transacted the business which it was called to consider with neatness and dispatch. In the absence of James B. Shaw, J. W. Mason was chosen town clerk pro tem., and Geo. A. Murdock of Thorndike was assigned to the position of moderator. The building committee reported that they had about $500 remaining of the original appropriation, which would not be needed to complete the improvements they were ordered to make. They therefore recommended the town to appropriate $500 more, and expend a sum not exceeding $1000 in providing a heating apparatus in place of the stoves by which the building has heretofore been warmed. After some discussion the town adopted the recommendation, and Col. H. R. Stoughton and Geo. B. Kenerson were added to the old committee, which has the matter in charge.

Leslie Douglass, a freight conductor on the N. L. N. Railroad, was the victim of a fatal accident at South Vernon Wednesday morning. In attempting to pass down from a box car to a platform car he somehow lost his hold and fell between the cars, and was so badly crushed and mangled beneath the moving train that he died almost instantly. A disabled arm, the result of a mishap occuring some weeks ago, is supposed to have contributed to the accident. Mr. Douglass commenced his business career as a newsboy on the New London road, and by faithful service worked his way up to the position which he held at the time of his death. He was well known in this vicinity, and was deservedly popular with the officials and employes of the road. His funeral, which occurred at Monson Thursday afternoon, was largely attended, a special train being run from this place. He was 27 years of age, and leaves a wife, who is the daughter of D. G. Potter of Monson.

The agricultural society constructed a substantial fence in front of its grounds last fall, and has now nearly completed a new fence along the side bordering on the railroad. This will leave the two ends to be attended to at some future day. These are much-needed improvements, but the good work should not be allowed to stop here. The unsightly and dilapidated judges' stand, which has followed the fortunes of the society from one place to another, and gives evidence of having been constructed at a period when the rudest forms of architecture were wholly unknown, is a disgrace to the society, as well as to our citizens, who have tolerated it so long. And what is said of this will apply with equal force to what is known as the grand stand. Considering the frequency of the exhibitions upon the park, including the annual fair and the various "trots" provided by our sporting men, there ought to be enterprise enough to erect structures which, if not attractive, shall at least be respectable in their outward appearance. If the society has not the funds or the disposition to make these improvements, will not some one start a subscription paper and see what can be accomplished in that way?

On Thursday last the Millers River and Eastern Hampden Medical Associations held their annual meeting at Lake Pleasant, the former being the guests of the latter. Members from this section passed over the New London Northern Railroad, a special parlor car being placed at their disposal by officials of the road. Arriving at the grounds, a committee composed of the bachelors of the Eastern Hampden Association was appointed to meet the Millers River society at the depot, after which the company, consisting of about fifty ladies and gentlemen, repaired to the shores of the lake, and an hour was passed in social intercourse. At 12 o'clock a grand banquet was enjoyed at the hotel. The address of welcome by Dr. Ballard, president of the Eastern Hampden Society, was responded to by Dr. Wright, president of the Millers River Society. Excellent papers were read by members of the respective societies, and were followed by interesting remarks upon important medical subjects by all the members, particularly instructive and practical observations being made by Drs. Goddard of Amherst, Ballard of Hampden, Fuller of Monson, and Lynes of Athol, the latter being the author of a paper upon "Infant Feeding," recently read before the State Medical Society, which has attracted much attention in medical circles. At 4.30 p. m. the meeting was adjourned and the members, rejoining the ladies, enjoyed the short time remaining by a stroll about the beautiful grounds. The utmost good feeling prevailed. At 5.30 the party departed for their homes, long to remember the most important, the pleasantist and largest meeting of the associations ever held. The Eastern Hampden Society meet next month with Dr. Newton at Stafford Springs, Conn.

C. L. Carter, for simple drunk, was heard to-day.

A warrant against A. H. Tanner for a dangerous assault on his father is in the hands of the officer. At present Tanner is not able to be brought before the court.

MONSON.

Dr. Smith of this town experienced a severe paralytic shock Wednesday afternoon which has occasioned considerable anxiety among his friends. The disease manifested itself by his suddenly falling on the ground while engaged in a game of croquet. He is one of the oldest practioners in this section. His condition has somewhat improved, and his recovery is considered probable.

BONDSVILLE.

Agent O. B. Smith and family start to-day for Block Island for a week or ten days' absence.

The county commissioners will visit this village Sept. 7, to consider a couple of road petitions.

The Methodist society had a lawn party Wednesday evening at the grounds of M. D. L. Towne. Music was furnished by the Boston Duck Cornet Band, and the net proceeds were about $25.

WALES.

Charles A. Royce and family from Boston have been spending a week at the old homestead in Wales.

A snug little party went to Mashapaug last week Friday and report a delightful trip.

Through the generosity of one of our most public spirited men, the Methodist Society received the gift of the fancy enamelled glass in the windows of the audience room in place of the colored glass taken out.

Frank A. Royce takes the cake on raising tomatoes, he having a ripe one on his vines that measures eleven inches around.

WEST WARREN.

The East Brookfields play the Rockets on the home grounds to-day.

The Methodists give their pastor, G. A. Viets, a month's vacation. The next two Sundays, Rev. Mr. Sanderson of Warren will preach, and the other two are yet to be supplied.

The ball game of the season came off last Saturday between nines from No. 1 and No. 3 weaving rooms. No. 1 men were the stronger and when, during the eighth inning, the game was called, on account of the darkness, the score stood 21 to 13 in No. 1's favor. Another game will soon be played, and No. 3 think they can win, if the hat trick is not played.

WARREN.

Dry weather and poor crops are our greatest trouble at present.

Dr. Buck and family and D. G. Hitchcock and wife left for the seashore Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Carter, of Chicopee Falls, preached at the Congregational church Sunday.

The addition to the parsonage is finished and adds to its looks as well as the convenience. All the houses in process of erection are rapidly approaching completion.

Rev. Mr. Canfield preaches to the Universalists in the town hall Sunday afternoons in the town hall Sunday afternoons. Mr. Canfield is a very able speaker and his discourses are listened to by a very attentive audience.

Our summer visitors speak very enthusiastically of the manifold beauties of our town, and say furthermore that a large and pleasantly situated hotel would ensure us plenty of summer visitors. Now that the ball of public enterprise is started we hope it will continue to roll until we have a good hotel. Will not some of our public-spirited citizens give it a good substantial push.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Reports on the supply of water from the springs in this vicinity are good.

Geo. Lane has purchased of Henry Cutler the barn at the Bennett house. He will move it at once to his place.

Dr. A. O. Squire has returned from Dakota, and taken the practice of Dr. Hammin of Ludlow while he is away on his vacation.

Charles Waite has sold out his business to Charles Whiting. He goes to Bridgeport, Conn., to live with his daughter Mrs. Colton.

M. F. Munsell's grandson, Charlie Ricker, fell from a wagon and broke his arm Tuesday afternoon. He was attended by Dr. Foskit and is going nicely.

Mr. Charles Shepard purchased a pound package of coffee of Messrs. Stone & Co., and secured a $50 sewing machine as a prize. The machine is on exhibition at Stone & Co.'s store.

In the game of last Saturday at Holyoke with the Albion Paper nine, the North Wilbraham's won with a score of 9 to 6. They play the third game with the Whiting Paper nine on the old field in this place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

THREE RIVERS.

Miss Fannie Beauregard is visiting friends near Philadelphia.

J. H. Thayer and family are spending their vacation at Block Island.

Anthony Chambuth has purchased of Dr. Ruggles a building lot on the Thorndike road for $250.

Although there are usually large quantities of huckleberries picked in this vicinity there will be but few this season, on account of the long drouth.

The Three Rivers base ball club went to Belchertown one day last week and played a game with the Belchertown club. Score—Three Rivers 29, Belchertowns 0.

On Saturday last, the Rockets of Jenksville, assisted by some hired players from Springfield and other places, defeated the Three Rivers club, 12 to 4, in this village.

There will be no preaching service in the Union church the next two Sundays, as the pastor, Rev. W. L. Noyes, is at Old Orchard, Maine, on his vacation. The Sunday School will be held at the usual hour.

The telephone connection between this village, Thorndike and Palmer is completed, but the patrons of the line should study the different "calls" more carefully, that "medicine" and "beef" may not get so badly mixed.

The addition to the school house and the repairs in the old part are nearly completed, and the building is now receiving a new coat of paint at the hands of H. T. Huntington of Palmer. Apparatus for heating by steam will be put in before the fall term of school commences.

HAMPDEN.

The Tuttle grist mill is closed until fall, but Thompson's mill is running as usual when there is water.

One of A. H. Thompson's Jersey cows last week gave birth to twin heifers, and with the assistance of Dr. Geo. N. Walker all are doing finely.

O. A. Thresher cut one piece of herds grass last week, the stalks of which measured five feet four inches. It would average four tons to the acre.

The base ball club of this village is now in good condition, and ready to receive challenges from any neighboring club, and will play return games. Address Daniel Troy.

Some people are joking because the weather is so hot and dry, and say it is because the citizens last spring voted no license. Be that as it may, druggist Hitchcock will dispense the best of soda-water to the thirsty in place of the more fiery liquid.

These are times that try men's souls. There has been no rain in the south part of the town for so long that the potato tops which looked so nicely two weeks ago are dried and yellow, and the potatoes are small, blighted and bitter. The land where grass has been taken off is yellow and crisp, and is injured so much that there will not be much fall feed on the uplands. We have mostly got through haying, and our barns look much as they do in March.

Constable Chaffee, with a posse of citizens, had a lively chase last Sabbath after one John Kimball, whom he arrested some four weeks ago, but who escaped his grasp and ran over the line into Connecticut, and is still in the land of wooden nutmegs. Sheriff Thresher arrested John's wife last Monday for an assault on Albert Lee, and took her before Judge Wells, who fined her about $8 for the fun she had in pounding Albert. She thinks it cheap, and threatens to make it lively for him as soon as she can lay hands on him again.

According to an English contributor to Bradstreet's, the wealth of the United States now exceeds that of either Great Britain or France, but the average wealth per capita is less here than in those countries. The wealth of the United States is $49,800,000,000 or $990, per capita; of Great Britain, $44,100,000,000, which is $1260 per head; France, $37,200,000,000, or $1045 per capita. In 1840 Great Britain's wealth was five times as great as ours.

It seems that even a lawyer is not allowed to "sass" his mother-in-law down South. John W. Stephenson, a lawyer at Galveston Texas, returned to his home in an intoxicated condition, and cursed and abused his wife and her father and mother. He was finally shot in the neck and dangerously wounded by Mrs. Vechten, his mother-in-law.

The American Lumber Company has purchased from the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad Company, the standing pine on its entire land grant, comprising 500,000 acres besides large amounts in Chippewa county, on the Ontanago river, and will erect a mill of 100,000 feet per day capacity at Newburg.

A well-known student of and participator in Irish affairs, estimates that from the western counties of the Emerald Isle, which have a population of 400,000 to 500,000 at least 75,000 persons should emigrate in order that those who remain may maintain themselves on the soil.

Great excitement has been caused by the discovery of new deposits of extraordinarily rich silver ore at Lake Valley near Nutt, N. M., in the Black Range. In one shaft in the Sierra mines a vein of chlorides and horn silver forty-feet thick has been discovered this week.

A barefooted Georgia farmer while hoeing potatoes a few days ago, saw what he thought was a snake's head peering from the ground directly in front of him. He struck savagely with his hoe, and cut off his own big toe, which he had mistaken for a reptile.

It is suggested that the wire fences which bound a multitude of Western farms might be turned into telephonic connections at small cost, to the great social advantage of lonely wives whose husbands are away from morning until night.

It is estimated that Ohio brewers make 690,000,000 mugs of beer annually for which consumers pay $34,000,000, that half of this is gross profit to the retailers, and that the makers get 33 per cent on their capital of 30,000,000.

The five-cent sponges sold by peddlers are said to be picked up in the streets of New York after being used in the hospitals, and then bleached and disinfected with chloride of lime.

Walter Lea and Henry Livermore, carpenters, while working on Nims's mill at Montague fell 20 feet by the breaking of a staging and both were seriously injured.

Deacon John G. Craft, cashier of the Exchange Bank of Franklin, Pa., is alleged to have speculated with the bank's funds to the amount of $50,000 or more.

The Ohio papers have discovered a woman forty years old who saw strawberries for the first time in her life the other day, and had to be told what they were.

The New York authorities have decided to prevent a repetition of the brutal exhibition in Madison Square Garden between Sullivan and Wilson.

The Minnesota wheat harvest will begin in about a week, and the crop having had a fine growth, a yield of 40,000,000 bushels is expected.

The mystery surrounding "Dr." Levi Wilson of Uxbridge, who during the past few years has acquired great wealth, and is now defendant in a $100,000 breach of promise and seduction suit, has probably been solved by a newspaper representative who worked up the case. Eight years ago Wilson, then an operative in a cotton mill at Uxbridge, left there and started on a tramp for Worcester. In passing through a heavy tract of woods he discovered the hut of a sick hermit, whom he cared for. This hermit is alleged to be the son of a wealthy Worcester minister, a fugitive from justice, who was reported to be dead. During his hiding he curiously coiled a piece of wire, which was transferred to Wilson and taken to Washburn & Moen of Worcester, from which originated the famous barbed wire fence. The hermit soon went to Europe with the aid of Wilson, where he now resides, and has since been visited by Wilson. In addition to some $300,000 received from one of the partners of the Worcester firm, it is alleged that Wilson has been paid fat sums for the care of the hermit.

Telma, Ala., has a blind negro gardener and hostler, who does his work without help as well as anybody could. He can guess within five minutes of the time of day whenever asked.

There were 31 cases of sunstroke in New York and vicinity on Saturday last, of which 16 proved fatal.

New Music.

"Remember now thy Creator in the Days of thy Youth" is the title of a good sacred quartette for male voices, published by Oliver Ditson & Co. It has a picture title page and costs 50 cents. They also send us a specimen of their last week's printing of sheet music, the following eight pieces: "Polonaise for small hands," (25 cents) by Oscar Weil; "Lily and Sunflower Polka," picture title, (40 cents), by Christie; "Thou Art Gone Forever," ballad, (30 cents), by Dobson; "Night has a Thousand Eyes," (30 cents), by Cowen; "Gray Mare's the Better Horse," (40 cents), by Roeckel; "The Fog Bell," (50 cents), by Pontet; "We Parted by the River; "Coquelicot Quickstep," (35 cents), by Varney. Ditson & Co. will send any of the above pieces for the prices marked, and will do the same thing with any book in their store. Any one in the most remote village, by sending for lists, and then for music, can "shop" in Boston as easily as if it was the next town.

DR. SWEET

OF SPRINGFIELD,

IN PALMER,

FOR THREE DAYS—MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY,

AUGUST 7, 8 AND 9.

DR. SWEET,

The noted Natural Physician and Surgeon of Springfield, Mass., would respectfully give notice that in compliance with numerous urgent requests from friends and patients residing in this section of the country, he will spend a few days of his Vacation Tour in this place, at

THE NASSOWANNO HOUSE,

Where he will receive a limited number of patients for treatment. None but long-standing difficult cases treated. Local physicians cordially invited to call and examine his methods.

REMEDIES purely herbal, most of them the discovery of some member of the family during the past two hundred and fifty years.

Doubtless the time may come when these wonderful discoveries may be made known, as has been their method of bone-setting, but the future will take care of that.

☞ Every patient taken is supplied until cured with these healing agents, by Dr. Sweet himself, from his Springfield office.

Invalids should apply for examination the first day, when, if accepted, they may enjoy the benefits of special personal treatment each day during Dr. Sweet's sojourn. Moreover, his rooms are always crowded the last day of his stay.

Dr. Sweet's well-known reputation is sufficient guaranty that no case will be received for treatment unless it presents to him every prospect of cure, or of great improvement. Dr. Sweet's reputation is his capital; to preserve it, only one course remains open—truthfulness so far as human judgment extends.

THE SWEETONIAN SYSTEM OF HEALING,

Of which the grandfather of the present writer, Dr. Nathaniel Sweet of Rhode Island was the humble inventor, comprises not only bone-setting and bone diseases, but those obstinate and deep-seated fatal diseases, among which are those of the Head, Throat and Lungs; Liver, Kidney and Heart Complaints; Inveterate Diseases of the Stomach (that have defied all other methods); those fearful diseases of the nervous system, scrofula, dropsy, paralysis, fits, fever sores, contracted cords, enlarged and stiff joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, diseased bone deformities, salt rheum, erysipelas, scald head, ill-conditioned ulcers, varicose veins, nasal polypus, catarrhal deafness, asthma, hay fever, rose cold, winter cough, diarrhœa, diabetes—all may be cured, if not too far advanced, by these wonderful methods.

BONE DISEASES AND DEFORMITIES ALWAYS A SPECIALTY.

SOME HOMES.

A married man with a large family, and a poor manager for a wife, may have a house, but not a home. Home implies a place of rest. Rest involves not only sleeping, but during waking hours pleasant sights, sounds, surroundings and occupations. Half of the eight thousand saloons in New York are kept by men who have houses, or rooms in houses, but no restful homes. The barrenness of thousands of lives in this city may be a fit subject for the contemplation and study of ultra-temperance friends, who are always crying for prohibition or total abstinence, without ever giving a thought to the possibility that men drink in their leisure moments because they have neither the inclination nor power to interest themselves in ought save tippling conviviality. The so-called home of thousands among us means a wretched hole to sleep in and a seat at some crowded table, from both of which they hurry into the street. Contrast this with the home of a person who has room and opportunity to cultivate plants and flowers; who has about him domestic animals, in whose rearing he takes a lively interest; who has some chosen pursuit to occupy his leisure moments and rest his brain from the occupation which gives him bread. Interest in a variety of subjects is of itself a healthy stimulation, and there is a reason for believing that the only cure for tippling must lie in substituting this healthy stimulation for that artificial and unhealthy excitement found in public houses.—N. Y. Graphic.

To Make New Rope Pliable.—Many of our readers have experienced great difficulty in handling new ropes. Every farmer knows how unmanageable a new, stiff rope halter is, and his patience is severely tried when he tries to tie up his cattle with it, as the rope will coil itself into almost every shape but the one desired. Often he finds his horses and cattle rampaging about the barn, having loosened the knots of the new halters. By simply boiling the rope in water for two hours, all this trouble can be avoided and the rope made as soft and pliable as if used for months. Its strength is not diminished, but its stiffness is gone. It must hang in a warm room until thoroughly dried, and not allowed to kink. This easy remedy will secure horses and cattle from many kicks and blows, and prevent much profanity.

'Father,' asked Johnny, 'what is a log?' 'A log, my son,' replied Brown, stealing a hasty glance at Mrs. B. to see if she was listening for his answer, 'a log, my son, is a big piece of wood or timber. Why do you ask, Johnny?' 'It tells in this story about heaving the log, and it says the ship went fourteen knots an hour. What does it mean by knots, father?' 'Knots, Johnny, knots? Why, you have seen a log—almost covered with knots—haven't you? Well, that's what it means—fourteen of them—the ship got by fourteen of them in an hour. That's all, Johnny,' said Brown with a sigh of relief that he had got out of it so easily.

'And so you are married?' said one old acquaintance to another, at the Markham House. 'Quite so,' was the reply; 'I have been married more than a year.' 'As long as that?' 'Yes, indeed; quite as long. I am now first walking gentleman to a double-jointed boy baby. Come down and see me.'—Atlanta Constitution.

A colored student at the Hampton Normal School being asked to illustrate the difference between the prefixes 'pro' and 'con' gravely offered the two words 'progress' and 'congress.' Who now dares say that the colored people know nothing of what is going on?

It was a man from the great State of Ohio who unpinned the tidy from a chair in a Washington parlor and wiped his nose on it. The Post is mighty glad to hear of a man who knows what to do with a tidy.

Said his prudent friend: 'Why, $3 for a carriage is extravagance. Go in a horse car or take a Herdic.' And the extravagant man replied: 'I can't. You see the lady I'm going to take isn't my wife.'

A good conscience is an excellent thing, and so, too, is a winsome manner. It should be carefully cultivated. When frankness becomes rudeness it should be properly checked.

THE SEAT WAS ENGAGED.

'Are you traveling alone?' asked a tall, agricultural-looking gentleman, approaching a lady who occupied two seats in a crowded car.

'No, sir,' she replied.

'May I ask who's with you?' asked the man, looking around vainly for some other place to store himself.

'My husband,' snapped the lady, with flashing eyes. 'My husband is traveling with me.'

'Oh! ah! excuse me,' and the tall man straightened up and prepared to take a standing ride.

'Is this seat engaged?' asked a dashing, well-dressed young fellow of the lady five minutes later.

'No, sir,' she replied, and down he plumped.

'I say, ma'am!' protested the tall man, 'is that your husband?'

'No, it isn't, and you needn't ask any more questions,' retorted the woman.

'But you said you were traveling with him,' persisted the tall man.

'So I am,' snorted the lady.

'Where is he?' insisted the tall man.

'He's in the baggage car in a coffin,' replied the lady.

'I beg your pardon, ma'am,' said the tall man, humbly; 'I honestly beg pardon. I won't ask if he's dead, but you will excuse me for thinking that if you and he have been married long he is deuced smart to travel around screwed up in a box, if you are on the same trip and it's likely to last long.'

The Lowell Mail has the following: 'A gentleman of this city tells a good story of a couple that he once knew in Rutland, Vt. They had differences sometimes, which usually settled without difficulty. On one occasion, however, the old man threatened to commit suicide by hanging himself. Tying one end of a rope about his neck, he crawled out on the lower branch of an old apple tree that grew in the yard, and secured the other end. Then he called the old woman to see him jump into eternity. The old lady seized a heavy horse whip that was in the house, ran out into the yard, and vigorously applying the lash about his legs, shouted, 'Jump, you old fool, jump.' He quickly sued for mercy, and never threatened suicide afterward.'

A certain young man brought his affianced down from the country to see the sights. One day while they were passing the confectioner's the swain noticed in the window a placard bearing the announcement 'Ice cream, $1 per gal.' 'Well,' said the young man, as he went into the saloon, 'that's a pretty steep price to charge for one gal; but, Maria, I'll see you through, no matter what it costs. Here's a dollar, waiter; ice cream for this gal.'—The Drummer.

Expressive and forcible, if slightly mixed: Some Germans were recently talking over the subject of an elopement which occurred hereabouts, when one asked another if he would be offended if his wife was to elope. 'I bade you,' said Hans, striking the beer table with his fist, 'of my vife should run avay mit annoder man's vife, I vould shirk him out of her breeches, if she vas mine own fader.'—Albany Express.

'Vy, Adolph,' says Mrs. Felderstelderberger, at Long Branch, 'you hef been helped tree dimes to dot sherry pies, und you vill be sick!' 'Neffer mind,' says Mr. Felderstelderberger, 'I bay four toller mit a tay, und Adolph is entitled to a whole pie, anyhow.'—N. Y. Mail.

'C-o-l-o-r-s,' said a Sunday school boy, slowly spelling it out—'coat of many collars—why did it have so many collars, teacher? So they could lift him out of the well easy?'

As frost, raised to its utmost intensity, produces the sensation of fire, so any good quality, over-wrought and pushed to excess, turns into its own contrary.—William Matthews.

Lying is like trying to hide in a fog. If you move about you are in danger of bumping your head against the truth; as soon as the fog blows up, you are gone anyhow.

Every human being has a work to carry on within, duties to perform abroad, influences to exert, which are peculiarly his, and which no conscience but his own can teach.

When a man says, apologetically, 'May I have just one word with you in private, sir?' you may be quite sure that that one word is 'Greenbacks.'—N. Y. Herald.

And so Darwin is dead? Well, he was the first one who had the nerve to look in a mirror and openly assert that man is descended from the ape.—The Judge.

He who courts and goes away, may live to court another day; but he who weds and courts girls still, may get in court against his will.

Cast forth thy act, thy word, into the ever-living, ever-working universe; it is a seed-grain that cannot die.—Carlyle.

Why ought your crockery to know when it is going to be broken?—Because, don't you see, it must be a-ware.

Out of free religion has grown free irreligion; and out of infidel liberality, immorality.—Joseph Cook.

The righteous need no monument, their deeds are their monument.—Rabbinical.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER,

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq.,
Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me, so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. LEN. M. FRAILEY,
64 South Street, Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and blood diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

NOTHING SHORT OF UNMISTAKABLE BENEFITS

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick.

FOUNDED BY GORDON M. FISK.

A BRAVE LADY.

SHE ENDURES THE PAIN OF A SEVERE SURGICAL OPERATION WITHOUT TAKING CHLOROFORM.

(From the Courier.)

Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creek Locks, Ulster Co., New York, had the misfortune to entirely lose the sight of one of her eyes, through an accident, and endured painful inflammatory action therein for two long years; the other eye finally becoming sympathetically affected, her general health seriously suffering; indeed, she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. In this terrible strait she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. She quietly but firmly said, "All right Doctor, but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband sit by my side during the operation, and I will neither cry out nor stir." The work was done, and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of soldierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To restore her general health and give tone and strength to the system, Dr. Kennedy then gave the "Favorite Remedy," which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long suffering woman. She rapidly gained health and strength, and is now well. The "Favorite Remedy" is a priceless blessing to women. No family should be without it Your druggist has it. If not, send to Dr. Davi, Kennedy, Rondout, New York. 4w17

Entering In.

The church was dim and silent,
With the hush before the prayer;
Only the solemn trembling
Of the organ filled the air.
Without, the sweet, still sunshine,
Within, the holy calm,
Where priest and people waited
For the swelling of the psalm.

Slowly the door swung open,
And a little baby girl,
Brown-eyed, with brown hair falling
In many a wavy curl,
With soft cheeks flushing hotly,
Sly glances downward thrown,
And small hands clasped before her,
Stood in the aisle alone—

Stood half-abashed, half-frightened,
Unknowing where to go,
While like a wind-rocked flower,
The form swung to and fro;
And the changing color fluttered
In the little troubled face,
As from side to side she wavered
With a mute imploring face.

It was but for a moment—
What wonder that we smiled,
By such a strange, sweet picture
From holy thoughts beguiled—
When up rose some one softly,
And many an eye grew dim,
As through the tender silence,
He bore the child with him.

And I—I wondered (losing
The sermon and the prayer)
If, when some time I enter
The "many mansions" fair,
And stand abashed and drooping
In the portal's golden glow,
Our God will send an angel
To show me where to go!

LOVE ON A FARM.

'Are you my Aunt Dorcas?'

Mrs. Torrance had been entertaining a quilting bee that afternoon, and she had just got the frame out of the way, the dishes washed up, and the apartment generally 'tidied,' when there came a meek tap at the door, and there in the yellow April twilight stood a small figure in a gray traveling shawl, and holding a bag.

'Sakes alive!' said Mrs. Torrance, 'who be you?'

'I am Emily,' said the girl. 'Please let me in, for I am tired and cold. I've walked all the way from the station, and I've had nothing to eat since noon.'

'Well, I never!' said Mrs. Torrance. 'You are the city schoolma'am, ain't you, as went out to live with Cousin Shadrach? And he's dead, and the money has all gone to the Baptist Widow and Orphan Fund! You didn't make much by that move, did you? And you have come to us now, though we wasn't stylish enough for you before. Well, come in, come in!'

And Mrs. Torrance, who was essentially a kind-hearted woman, albeit she could not repress the sneer that rose to her lips, moved the low rocker to the fire, and flung another log on the andirons.

Cousin Shadrach had been the family apple of discord ever since they could remember. He was rich, he was eccentric, he was crabbed. He shut the door in the faces of all his relations, until, toward the last, sick and feeble, he had signified his desire that Emily Alden should come and take care of him. And Emily had gone.

There had been a spice of jealousy in the family as regarded Emily, for a long time. Emily had been looked upon as 'proud' and 'stuck up,' because, instead of entering a factory, or learning the dressmaker's trade, she had elected to be a teacher. She had never visited Job Torrance's family until now—now that Cousin Shadrach had willed his money to the Baptist Widows and Orphans—her own mother was dead, and her step-father, a pompous old wholesale grocer, objected to stepchildren, so that there seemed to be no other haven of refuge left to her.

Who could blame Mrs. Torrance for a momentary feeling of triumph, when Emily Alden came thus to her doorstone in the twilight of that April day?

But she helped her off with her things, made a cup of tea for her, and finally escorted her to a little room under the roof-tree, where the floor was covered by a home made rag-carpet, and the bed decorated with a rainbow 'Job's troubles' quilt, and you could look out of the window into a greening meadow where a whip-poor-will plainted its melancholy refrain.

'I hope you'll sleep well,' said Mrs. Torrance. 'We eat breakfast at five.'

And then she went away.

Early as was the breakfast hour, Emily was awake at least an hour before it. As if the tumultuous glee of the robins and bluebirds in the orchard would permit anyone to sleep.

And as she lay with her cheek against the pillow, watching the rosy dawnlight creep up the wall, she heard the sound of voices in the meadow below her casement.

'What is she like, mother?' said Job, junior, who was milking.

'Oh, she looks well enough,' Mrs. Torrance carelessly responded. 'Little and dark, with big shady eyes, and a real Torrance mouth. Doesn't talk a great deal, and is dressed shabby, as one might expect.

'Poor thing,' said Job pityingly.

'Well,' said Mrs. Torrance, sharply, 'I can't say but what I think she deserves all she has got. Them Aldens always were as proud as Lucifer.'

'You'll keep her, mother, of course?'

'I suppose so,' said Mrs. Torrance. 'I don't suppose she has got anywhere else to go.'

There was no more delicious dozing for Emily now. She rose hurriedly, dressed herself and came down stairs.

'Aunt Dorcas,' she said, as she encountered that lady frying ham and eggs over the kitchen fire, 'what is there in this neighborhood for a woman to do?'

'Eh!' said Mrs. Torrance in surprise.

'To earn my living I mean,' explained Emily. 'Is the district school supplied with a teacher?'

Mrs. Torrance nodded as she placed the slices of frizzling ham on a blue-edged plate, and arranged the eggs in golden spheres above.

'Is there no factory heareabouts?' pursued Emily.

'Used to be,' said Mrs. Torrance. 'But they failed, and it's been shut up for more than ten months.'

'Do you know any one who wants a girl?' pursued the city cousin.

Mrs. Torrance set the coffee pot on the table, blew the horn for Job, and then responded to her niece's query with a counter-question.

'Why don't you stay here?'

'Because,' said Emily, with spirit, 'I want to earn my own living.'

'Well, you can earn it here, can't you? I was calculating to hire a girl this spring. And if you'll work honestly for it, I'll give you the six dollars a month I was going to pay the hired help.'

Emily's pale face brightened.

'I should like that,' said she. And then Job came in, tall, handsome and flushed, his curls yet wet from the spring into which he had dipped them, and a sprig of trailing arbutus pinned into his coat, and he spoke a frank welcome to the young cousin whom he had never before seen.

'So Cousin Shadrach Seely is dead,' he said.

'Yes,' said Emily, quietly.

'Did you like him.'

'No,' confessed the girl. 'He was cross and surly, and had no sympathy with anybody. But I tried to be kind to him. And he kissed me once before he died, and said I had been a 'good girl.''

'And then went and left his money to the Refuge of Baptist Widows and Orphans!' said Mrs. Torrance. 'That's Cousin Shadrach all over.'

'He had a right to do as he pleased with his money,' said Emily, a faint glow rising to her cheeks.

'Well, it's all over and gone,' said Mrs. Torrance. 'There's no use talking about it now.'

And she sighed softly to think how many of life's hard angles might have been avoided in the future, if only Cousin Shadrach had been less interested in the Baptist Widows and Orphans.

At the end of a month, Mrs. Torrance was forced to acknowledge that Emily had well earned her six dollars a month and board. The girl certainly had about her that wonderful magnetic power which philosophers dub 'executive ability,' and New England housekeepers call 'faculty.' She was a natural cook—she did things without seeming to take any trouble at all.

'I do not understand it,' said Mrs. Torrance. 'A little dark, slim thing that was always brought up to sit with her hands folded.'

And one sultry day in July when Job and Emily came in from strawberrying, with crimsoned fingers, laughing faces, and baskets heaped high with the the fragrant fruit, Mrs. Torrance started in the solitude of the dairy where she was making 'cottage cheese.'

'I declare,' she cried, 'I never thought of that. Oh, dear! oh, dear! I never can consent to it in the living world.'

Job came to her that same evening.

'Mother,' said he, 'Emily has promised to be my wife.'

Mrs. Torrance burst into tears.

'You're only six-and-twenty years old, Job,' she faltered.

'Just two years older than when my father married you, mother. Now don't turn your face away; but tell me plainly,—have you any fault to find with my choice?'

'N—no,' confessed Mrs. Torrance.

'Do you think I could possibly win a sweeter girl than Emily Alden?'

'No, I don't suppose you could,' answered the mother-in-law elect; 'but it's natural, Job, to feel a little jealous when you see some one else taking the first place in your child's heart.'

But when Job brought Emily in to receive her kiss of greeting Mrs. Torrance had sufficiently conquered herself to bid her new daughter welcome.

'Though I s'posed, Emily,' said she, a little bitterly, 'you looked higher than a farmer once.'

'I never looked higher than one of nature's noblemen,' said Emily, with a smile that fairly won the old lady's heart.

That same evening, as they sat together in the orange twilight, with the scent of tall white lilies in the air, Emily suddenly broke the silence.

'Job,' said she, 'would you like to be rich?'

'Well, yes,' said Job. 'I'd like money enough to keep my wife in luxury.'

'Would you, Aunt Dorcas?' said Emily, turning to her.

'Of course I should,' said that matron, vigorously plying her knitting needles; 'but I do not expect it.'

'But you are rich,' said Emily, with a little tremor in her voice. 'Job is rich—we are all rich together, with Cousin Shadrach Seely's money.'

'But,' cried Mrs. Torrance, 'I thought he left it all to the Baptist Widows and Orphans.'

'Not all,' said Emily, 'It's a secret, but I may tell you now. Half was left to the Refuge—the other thirty thousand is mine, to be paid over to me on the day on which I marry a man who, ignorant of Cousin Shadrach's bequest, has loved me loyally and well. It was the old man's whim, and I have respected it. Oh, Aunt Dorcas, I came to you because, in my loneliness and bewilderment, I knew not where else to go—but I little dreamed that I was entering directly into the kingdom of a noble heart.'

It was true. Shadrach Seeley, eccentric in life, had been equally eccentric in his death—and when Mr. Mustybill the lawyer paid over the legacy, he said, chuckling:

'It's all right! It's exactly as my poor client would have had it! I congratulate you, Mrs. Job Torrance.'

And Mrs. Torrance, the elder, has a higher opinion than ever of her daughter-in-law's attractions, now that they are set in a background of gold.

ONIONS AS MEDICINE.—If there were any way of avoiding the long continuance of the odor of onions after eating them, the consumption of this vegetable would be vastly increased, great as it is at present. In addition to the almost universal fondness for them (which in some European nations has become a sort of passion) they have always been highly esteemed for their medicinal properties. There is not, in the whole vegetable world, a more effective anti-scorbutic. Sailors at sea are protected against scurvy when having plenty of onions, and scurvy is driven away when they come upon them. One who ought to know, says: 'Taken regularly, they promote the health of the lungs and the digestive organs. An extract, made by boiling down the juice of onions to a syrup, and taken as a medicine, answers the purpose very well; but fried, roasted or boiled onions are better.' But, oh! if we could only obtain some antidote to the odor when our neighbors see fit to indulge in them!

Alphonose Karr said: 'You can prove nothing to women. They believe only with their hearts or their imaginations.' Alphonose had evidently been trying to make his wife believe that the billiard chalk on his coat was whitewash from the office wall.

A shirt has two arms, the same as pantaloons have two legs. Yet one is called a pair and the other is only one. Isn't it time that we let up on astronomy and paid more attention to the every-day trifles that vex the clearest minds?

MODELS FOR ARTISTS.

A slight figure flitted in at the door of the Academy of Design the other day and disappeared into an inner room. She had a rosy face and bright eyes.

'That is one of our models,' said the professor, rolling his eyes at the door. 'A great change has taken place in public opinion concerning the use of living models,' continued the professor, willing to talk. 'Ten years ago there was an outcry against it. People said it was scandalous. Posing being a new thing, it was hard to get a model of either sex. Now you can get hundreds, and engagements are made weeks in advance.'

'What pay do they get?'

'When the life class was first established we had to pay $1.50 an hour; now the regular price is 50 cents an hour. Models pose from twelve to twenty hours per week. They are changed every two weeks so as to give the students a change of subject. Men are better models than women, as they are less easily fatigued.'

'How long does the model stand without resting?'

'An inexperienced one only twenty minutes at first. Stand in one position five minutes without moving a muscle and you will get some idea of how tiresome it is.'

'Do they show much embarrassment?'

'So much that the muscles are as rigid as iron, and they become drenched with perspiration. But after posing two or three times the embarrassment wears off. It becomes merely routine business.'

'Do many make it a profession?'

'There are several men who do nothing else. They pose here at the Academy, at the Art Students' League, and in private studios. Most of our female models are young women who work in workshops and factories. They receive small wages, and think it a great piece of fortune if they can earn $10 a week extra by posing. They invariably give fictitious names.

'Some curious bits of romance have come under my observation,' the professor resumed, after a pause. 'A pretty little brunette came in one day and asked for an engagement. She was in straightened circumstances, but did not disclose her history. She was so sweet-tempered that she became a great favorite. I have never seen anyone so ambitious to earn money. She would pose eight hours a day. It made her grow pale with fatigue, but she wouldn't give up. Well, it turned out that she was a married woman. She belonged to a good family in New Jersey, and was a mere girl when she married a Japanese, the son of an ex-minister from Japan. The husband spent all his money, was thriftless and earned nothing. She had to keep him. She frequently posed for artists in their studios. A richly-dressed woman came in one morning and inquired for her. The model, she said, was her niece, and she intended to make her the heiress to her property if she could be found. After a two-days' search the model was traced to a private studio, where she was posing for an artist and his wife. That was the last I heard of the pet model.

'It is always the whip of necessity that drives people into posing. One day a woman of refinement made an application. She was handsomely dressed, wearing a sealskin sacque and a silk dress. Her face was pale and careworn, and she said she had not had enough to eat. Her story was that she had married well, her husband having an income of $6000 a year. When he died the fortune they possessed took wings. She said she had tried copying and other methods of earning a living, but she had not met with success. Her figure had always been admired for its grace of outline. Why should she not pose?'

'Do you have any boys for models?'

'One of the best subjects we have ever had was a young boy. He had a form like Apollo. His father was a down-town banker, who was ruined by the panic of 1873. This model, whom I met in the street yesterday, has now a responsible position as a bank clerk. One of our students posed last winter. He was from Maine, and had to depend entirely on his earnings. This young man is one of the most promising students in the Academy. All kinds of people drift in—people you would never dream of. One of our handsomest models is an itinerant Methodits preacher. He has the form of a gladiator.'—New York Tribune.

A WONDERFUL EAR.

Willie Lester lives with his father on the West Plains. His right ear is as large as a palm leaf fan, while the other is no larger than that of an ordinary sized wax doll. With his small ear he can hear the faintest buzzing of the smallest bugs and insects, and even detect sounds uttered by the minutest animalcule—so small that they are not visible to the naked eye. A fly running along a window-pane, a caterpillar crawling across a sheet of paper makes sufficient noise to attract his attention, even when his back is turned. The sense of hearing is so acute in this ear that it is absolutely painful to him, and he is compelled to wear a cork in it at all times. The right and large ear is quite the reverse of its little companion in both its powers and properties. To it those minute and near sounds so plainly discernible to the other, are lost, but distant noises are readily heard.

Although residing fifteen and one-quarter miles from any railroad—Lafayette being the nearest point—yet Willie can distinctly hear the train and mills blowing their whistles, and can easily distinguish between the engine bells and the city bells. He can hear the coming of a storm long before there are any signs of it in the air, and even long before the weather bureau gives notice of its approach.

At the suggestion of a neighbor, Mr. Lester had a wire gauze lid with a tin rim made to fit over Willie's ear. It consists of two thicknesses of gauze, the outer one being of larger mesh than the inner one; between the two there is an intervening thickness of loose flannel to soften sounds. Willie wears it continually, and this, with the cork in the small ear, has the effect of reducing his hearing to a normal condition. — Lafayette (Ind.) Courier.

Similia similibus curantur. Like cures like. Unfortunately this is very frequently the case. For instance, two people of different sexes like each other very much—so much, in fact, that they get married; and then in a few months they are completely cured.—Judy.

Small boy—'Say, pa, can't I go and see the show?' Hard-hearted father—'No, my son, but if you want to see as fierce-looking animals to-night as ever showed their teeth, just eat a piece of mince pie and a couple of cucumbers before going to bed.'

Three Kisses.

I kiss the dainty fingers
And wish them good success;
May comfort sweet and order
Their skill and cunning bless.

I kiss the feet so tiny,
Unskilled to walk our ways,
And wish them patient courage
To tread life's tangled maze.

I kiss the little eyelids;
O, Father, guide her sight
Until, all dimness over,
She sees thy perfect light!

STRANGE BUT COMMON FACTS.

That an occasional meal away from one's own house and at another's table relishes better than any at home.

That a man will travel miles agonizing at every step from a bit of gravel or obtrusive peg in his shoe before he will stop to take it out.

That a man never knows what a weak, fickle and uncertain master he has in himself until he is at liberty to govern his own life and do as he pleases.

That some men get more fun and comfort out of a $5000 income per annum than others can get out of $50,000.

That when men cease to believe in the divine, or think they do, they begin to bow down before something human—or else inhuman.

That when a philosopher puts forth some new idea, all the wool gathering, the guesses, and his maunderings afterwards written by him about, around or concerning that idea or truth, or semi-truth, as the truth may be, are often by his admirers regarded as most important and sacred words.

That so many people forget the weather they experienced last year and declare they 'never saw such a spring as this before.' No, never. What, never? No, never.

That when a poet or a philosopher dies a dozen men and women try to kitetail themselves to his name and write themselves into fame by telling all they know of him.

That people should ask to be delivered from 'sudden death' and never pray to be spared a lingering die-by-inches exit.

That histories written fifty years ago assert how the people at that time were living 'at the apex of knowledge and enlightenment,' which remark is sometimes repeated to-day. —New York Graphic.

HATS OFF.

Dio Lewis accounts for the baldness of men in a simple way—their habit of keeping the head constantly covered. He says you never see a man lose hair below where the hat touches his skull. It will take off as clean as you can shave it down to exactly that line, but never a hair below, if he has been bald fifty years. The common black stiff hat, as impervious as sheet iron, retains the heat and perspiration. The little hair glands, which bear the same relation to the hair that the seed wheat does to the plant above the ground, become weak from the moisture and heat, and finally become too weak to sustain the hair. It falls out, and baldness exists. A man with a good head of hair needs very little protection where the hair grows. 'And yet,' he says, 'we men wear immensely thick fur caps, and what amounts to sheet iron hats, and do not dare step out in a chilly atmosphere a moment lest we take cold. It is silly, weak, and really a serious error. The creator knew what he was about when he covered a man's head with hair. It has a very important function in protecting the brain. Baldness is a serious misfortune. It will never occur in any man who wears such a hat as I do, a common high silk hat with five hundred holes in the top, so that there will be more holes than hat. This costs nothing; the hatter will do it when you purchase your hat. If the nap be combed back the wrong way, and after the holes are made it be combed the right way, no one will observe the peculiarity. The hat will wear quite as long—the hatters say considerably longer—because it is dry instead of moist; in brief, there is not a single objection to it, while it will certainly prevent baldness, keep the top of the head cool, and prevent much headache.'

THE BOYS.

Though we venture to cleave to the opinion that the average school-boy, when at school, is literally a young barbarian, it is fair to discriminate. The small boy, before his term at school, is often an imaginative fellow, fond of reading and even of poetry. He soon gets that knocked out of him, and enters the grubby stage, abjuring sentiment and living chiefly on chestnuts, oranges, taffy, tarts and "sock" in general. In this stage he is a good deal bullied, and is initiated by painful ceremonies into the mysteries of the tribe. His hand is against masters and monitors, and every man's hand is against him. When he reads, he reads penny novels about boy pirates. This grubby state gradually alters as the boy takes to the use of scent, and to decorate his person with gorgeous neckties in the the holidays. Soon after this he either becomes an athlete, a student (very rarely), or a mere ornament of society, or man about school, so to speak, looking down upon football. These characteristics abide with him until he gets into the sixth and the eleven, or gets a scholarship, or takes to writing poetry, or to reading about evolution, or to collecting china wherewith to furnish his study. And so he ceases to be a boy, and becomes an undergraduate, forgetting his grubby ways and barberous rules of conduct. But in all stages he is loyal to the unwritten laws of his tribe, and will endure all things rather than reveal anything to a master or a pastor.—Saturday Review.

'Papa,' remarked the enfant terrible, who was mounted on the back of the old man's chair, engaged in making crayon sketches on his bald head, 'it wouldn't do for you to fall asleep in the desert, would it?' 'Why not, my darling?' 'Oh, the ostriches might sit down on your head and hatch it out.'

Lost patience is never found again. You may be patient next time, but the spoken word cannot be called back—not with prayers and tears.

The firmest friendships have been formed in mutual adversity, as iron is most strongly united by the fiercest flames.

A disposition to preserve, and an ability to improve, taken together, should be the standard of a statesman.

RAISING CHILDREN.

Children should be set out in the nursery at as early a period in married life as is consistent with good taste.

When very young they should be kept quiet, not much exposed to the light. It is usual to engage some old and experienced expert to attend to this, and the direction in which the 'twig is inclined' at this stage is generally the ruin of the parents' peace of mind for two years.

Milk is said to be good for babies, but there are so many 'patent foods' now sold at the drug store that milk may as well be done away with. Give the child something that you don't know anything about, and it will thrive—possibly.

Don't cross the child when it is small. It will take so kindly to having its own way that it is really cruel to insist on paternal rights in the matter.

Learn the little coots to 'crow' as early as possible. Take them in your hands and toss them up as high as you can and jounce their digestive organs all out of place. This is a genuine 'raise' of children.

It is a good plan to hurry up a child in the matter of walking. The sooner a child walks the more bow-legged and irrepressible he will be when he grows up.

Just the moment the child lets go its mother's apron strings plant it in your neighbor's front yard. This will save your own lawn, while the little fellow digs up the turf and carries away the lawn of the neighbor in his little wheelbarrow.

Train the child to appear in company. Urge him forward. There is nothing like it. Visitors so much admire to have children climb and crawl all over them in their gentle prankish way.

A good share of dirt makes a child grow. Soap and water are useful, however, once a week, to enable parents to recognize their own children when they call them in to dinner.

Let them have their own way always. They will retaliate in the future by not letting you have yours; but what matters that?

Never allow the neighbors' children on your premises. The hateful things will influence your own children for bad. Allowing your children to play with the neighbors' children on their premises, however, has a salutary effect on those benighted little frauds, and it is your Christian duty to see that your children mingle in this way as much as possible. —New Haven Register.

A CHICAGO BOUNCE.

'Do you love me, Rupert?'

The soft rays of the evening sun were limning the rocking treetops with a halo of golden splendor; the zephyrs of the night were kissing into somnolence the flowers that by day had smiled in the meadows; the doves nestled their downy heads under their wings, little wotting that the halcyon days of pot-pies would soon be present; while the old man had the bull-dog out in the barn putting a wire edge on his teeth. Such is the chromo that presents itself to the reader. Esmeralda W. Pike was not handsome, but her manner had that blythe naivette about it peculiar to boarding-house gravy. As she stood there underneath the lindens, dressed in a flimsy costume of fly-on-the-butter silk, her lily-white hand toying with Rupert Simpson's moustache, one must needs to look twice to see what it was.

'Do you love me?' the girl aked again, choking back a sob that was welling up from the last glass of soda water she had taken.

Rupert did not speak for some time. He was trying to frame a reply, but could not find a frame to suit him. After a moment his answer came in slow, dactylic cadence, with accent on the ante-penult:

'How can you ask me this question, Esmeralda? My whole life, as you know, is a bright tin pan which reflects your every humor. My very existence depends on eating liberally, sleeping prodigally, and seeing you between meals. Without you what am I?'

The girl gave it up.

'Yes, darling,' continued Rupert; 'if we can only put up a job on the old man, we will speed away to parts unknown. Once in the open country—'

A correspondent from Boston writes us to know what the word Nihilists is derived from. We are surprised that such ignorance should exist in such a town as Boston. The Russian assassins are called Nihilists from the river Nile. They are dirty, like the water of the Nile, and have sudden uprisings. Like the Nile, their sources are unknown. Nobody knows where their head is, and it is not healthy to try to find out. If you do not think this is the right answer, you had better hunt up a Nihilist and make him tell you all he knows.—Independent.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1882.

SPEAKER KEIFER was not accorded the usual honor of a vote of thanks before the House adjourned at Washington on Tuesday —a pretty sharp reminder of his failings as a presiding officer.

THERE was a little scrimmage between the English forces near Alexandria and Arabi's outposts last Saturday, in which both sides lost several men. Nothing else of importance has occurred since.

WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS has reason to feel gratified with the attitude of its representatives in Congress toward the river and harbor bill. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Norcross both voted against the grab. Let it be remembered to their lasting credit.

THE Massachusetts Prohibitionists renominated their old State ticket at Boston on Wednesday, headed by Charles Almy of New Bedford for governor. The convention was a quiet one, which is not strange in view of the fact that the prohibitory vote has dwindled from 17,000 in 1878 to less than 1700 last year.

GEN. GRANT and W. H. Trescott have been appointed commissioners to negotiate a commercial treaty with Mexico. This appointment is a peculiarly happy one, as Gen. Grant is better posted in Mexican affairs, probably, than any other man in the country, and knows just what is needed to promote commercial intercourse between the two countries.

CONGRESS succeeded in adjourning on Tuesday, having stretched out the session to a much greater length than was warranted by the amount of work it has accomplished. The river and harbor bill which was passed over the President's veto was the worst grab of the kind in a long time, and many members will have hard work to so explain their favorable votes as to secure a re-election.

SPEAKER NOYES is an accommodating man. He would like to be Governor—oh, so much! but the people seem strangely bent on ignoring his yearnings in this direction, and so he is putting himself in readiness to accept the second place on the ticket. Failing there, as we very much suspect that he will, he will doubtless be ready to return gracefully to the Speaker's chair, or even some more modest position. "Hope against hope, and ask till ye receive."

THE vacation season is now at its height, and everybody who can be is off to the shore or mountains in search of rest and comfort. In spite of the great number of pleasure seekers, however, some of the big hotels are looking in vain for the expected rush of guests. The fact is, the majority of people do not care for the four-dollars-a-day style and music of these caravanseries, but prefer less pretentious quarters, where they can be quite as comfortable, with a much smaller drain on their pocket books and less time and money on their toilets. If some of these big, half-empty hotels would cut down their prices a third, or even more, they would find it a profitable venture in the long run.

GEN. BUTLER has kept uncommonly quiet of late, but he has been heard from at last. He started on a cruise in his yacht the other day, but before setting sail he told the Democratic managers they had better delay their State Convention until the Independents had met and nominated him for Governor. Then they could come together and ratify the nomination. Some of the Democrats don't fancy playing second fiddle to the Independents in this fashion, but they are too well broken to balk if Butler reins them in that direction. By the way, we are glad to find that Uncle Ben has not retired permanently from politics. A political campaign in this State is not half a campaign with him left out.

The total value of our foreign commerce for the fiscal year ending June 30, embracing both imports and exports of and merchandise and specie, was $1,566,859,456, a falling off from the previous year of $108,-164,862. The value of domestic merchandise exported was $733,073,938, a falling off of $150,852,010. The value of imports during the last fiscal year was larger than for any previous year in the history of the country. The excess of value of exports over imports was smaller than for any previous year since 1875.

The proprietor of Bigelow's Garden at Worcester, who was fined the other day for giving Sunday concerts, does not want to be alone in the business, and so has filed complaints against the proprietors and editor of the Spy, the Worcester & Shrewsbury Railroad, and a boatman on one of the city parks, for doing business on the Lord's day. The judge has refused to receive his complaint.

Frank L. Gould of Portland, Me., 22, died last week of starvation. He had a mother and three brothers and sisters to support, and as he could get no work, went without food to keep them from starving. The sad case was discovered too late to save Gould, for he was attacked by gastric fever and died in great suffering.

A strike of telegraph operators throughout the Union is among the possibilities of the near future. The telegraphers' union numbers 18,000 operators, with a steadily increasing membership, and there is said to be considerable discontent over the grading and petty regulations of the Western Union company.

Peter Crow of Montville, Ct., lost his wife by death July 29. Last week Friday he got married again. On that night a number of citizens took him from bed and tarred and feathered him.

Huckleberries are selling for 12 cents a quart, but are scarce even at that price. The crop promises to be a small one this year, on account of the drouth.

Mrs. J. M. Converse, Mrs. A. Burleigh and Henry D. Converse are at Block Island. Dr. W. H. Stowe has also been spending a few days at that popular resort.

Palmer is gradually assuming metropolitan airs, the latest acquisition in this line being quite a "tony" fruit and peanut stand at the corner of Central and Main streets.

Mrs. L. E. Child is going to Marblehead next week, for two or three weeks' enjoyment of the sea-breezes and surf, in company with P. P. Kellogg and family of Springfield.

A. H. Tanner, who made an assault on his hired man last week while under the influence of liquor, left home as soon as he was able, and is reported to be in New Brunswick.

Conductor Sanders's train made the 15-mile run from Stafford Springs to this place the other afternoon in 25 minutes, making four stops and climbing the State line grade.

Two fine new mogul locomotives, the "Palmer" and the "Yantic," from the Rhode Island Locomotive Works, have been placed on the New London Northern Railroad the past week.

Dea. James Cowles started on Thursday for Chicago, and after spending a few weeks at his former home in Rockford, Ill., and with friends in Iowa, he will go to California for the winter.

Mrs. S. A. Fisk and Mrs. A. E. Hills of this place, with Mrs. A. W. Green of Three Rivers, have gone to Eastern Point, near New London, for a few days' enjoyment of the sea breezes.

Collector Northrop publishes a notice in our advertising columns which will be of interest to taxpayers. Only one week more remains in which to secure the discount of 5 per cent on taxes.

Have you seen the meteors this week? There was quite a good display on Wednesday evening. The clouds cut off the exhibition Thursday, but last evening promised well for another fine display.

There are frequent trials of speed on the park now-a-days between some of the fast horses owned in town, and it wouldn't be surprising if they should result in arrangements for one or more races before long.

Walter Chilson, for some time a clerk in White, Hellyar & Co.'s store, has resigned, and is going into a wholesale house in New York. Miss Chapman has also resigned her position in the store, and is succeeded by Miss Hattie Ham.

A couple of bold fellows got another man's trunk checked to this place at Springfield on Tuesday, but their game was discovered just as the train left, and it is supposed they scented trouble, as the trunk was not called for after its arrival here.

C. A. Brown and wife, Miss Anna Brown and Miss Emma Weller have been at Littleton, N. H., for a week past, enjoying the mountain air and scenery. The latter is fine, but the former isn't much superior to the home article just now.

It is about time for the Boston & Albany road to give its patrons another chance to take a cheap excursion to Boston, as has been done for two or three summers past, and it is probable that one or more opportunities of this kind will be given before long.

The Pullman parlor cars which are now run on the New London Northern boat train are proving quite a popular institution. The extra charge is only 25 cents between Palmer and New London or Brattleboro, while the through rate from New London to Montreal is $1.50.

M. W. Newton, who has for some time been baggage master on Conductor Warner's Ware River road train, has been appointed baggage master at the Boston & Albany depot in this place, succeeding A. A. Gamwell, who has been obliged to resign on account of ill-health, after a service of many years.

Last Sunday was the cap-sheaf in the way of hot weather, the mercury going up to 99 in the shade, and remaining uncomfortably near there all day. Church-goers were not overnumerous, many choosing to do their sweltering in the coolest attainable spot at home, minus collars and other starched apparel.

The committee appointed at the late town meeting to procure a heating apparatus for the remodeled school house at Three Rivers has contracted with C. L. Mowry & Co. of Springfield for a Page steam heater, which with piping and everything complete will cost $1000. It has already arrived, and will be placed in position at once.

The game between the Thorndikes and Palmers, on Agricultural Park last Saturday afternoon, started out with the prospect of being rather a close one, as the score stood 0 to 0 at the end of four innings. In the first half of the fifth, with the Thorndikes at the bat, the umpire declared a man out for not touching the home plate. This, however, the Thorndikes would not allow, and refusing to play longer, the game was given to the Palmers, 9 to 0.

The backbone of the dry spell was not broken by Tuesday's shower, it is feared, though it shows some symptoms of a fracture. The welcome rain was swallowed greedily by the thirsty earth, but it was only a partial relief from the extreme drouth which has prevailed. All nature, and humanity as well, cries out for more. Corn is curling, and potato tops are turning brown, and unless they are helped by copious rains very soon these crops will be ruined in many fields. There was another shower Thursday evening, and now that the spell is broken it is hoped that others will follow soon.

Mary Bond, a Monson resident of Indian descent, was brought before the district court for an assault on a white boy, Henry Tatro, on Monday, and was fined $3 and costs $9.90. Her financial resources proving unequal to the demand upon them, she was forwarded to the cool interior of the State street retreat in Springfield. On Thursday Thomas Hall was arraigned to answer to the charge of evading railroad fare. He bought a ticket at North Adams for Springfield, but got asleep, he says, and when the conductor came around this side of that city he claimed to have given him his ticket, and said he had no money. He was therefore turned over to the tender mercies of the law, and now languishes behind the bars in Springfield, in default of a fine and costs amounting to $19.80.

The New London Northern Railroad advertises an excursion to Block Island to-day, from Palmer and points as far north as Brattleboro. The train leaves Brattleboro at 5 a. m., Amherst at 6.20, Belchertown 6.38, Three Rivers 6.53 and Palmer at 7.15. Below here the train will run express both ways. At New London connection will be made with the fine new steamer "Block Island," which will convey the party to the island of the same name, where they can spend two hours and a quarter. The fare for the round trip is placed at the low figure of $1.50 from Palmer, $1.60 from Three Rivers, Belchertown $1.70, Amherst $1.75, Brattleboro $2—figures which will doubtless induce a large number to embrace the opportunity for a nice sail on the Sound and ocean, with its invigorating breezes.

Various kinds of game are found in the vicinity of Fosket's Mills, and hunters for miles around go there to try their luck. But hereafter they are warned to steer clear of that locality, or they will be apt to get into trouble. A hunter not a hundred miles from Palmer went there the other day, taking with him an old pair of pants to put on for use in scouring the woods, leaving his better pair in the mill. On returning he tried to put his other pants on, but it was no go; they had evidently shrunk in his absence, even to the pockets. A thorough examination revealed the fact that some mischievous person, in order to Win fame in this Free country, had sewed up both legs of the pants through the center, also the pockets, with a nice fine stitch, and then hid to watch the astonishment of the hunter in his vain attempt to get into the garment. But it was "kinder mean," he thought.

General Passenger Agent Gallup of the Boston & Albany Railroad figures out that the fast evening express between Boston and New York is well up with the fastest trains in England, in its rate of speed. The five fastest trains in England are as follows: Irish mail, London and Northwestern R. R., 40 miles an hour; Scotch express, Midland Line, London to Glasgow, 40¼ miles per hour; Morning express, Great Northern R. R., London to Edinburg, 44 per hour; Flying Dutchman, Great Western R. R., 46 per hour; Leeds express, Great Northern R. R., 47 per hour. The actual speed of the Boston & Albany's fast express, making allowance for stops, is 45 miles per hour—a close approach to the Leeds express, the fastest English train. We venture to say that the Boston & Albany managers will not be content until they not only equal, but go ahead of the fastest time made in England.

A Ludlow farmer drove into town bright and early the other morning with a disabled churn, which he was anxious to have repaired so as to finish up his butter-making. Driving up to the Central street hardware store he found the doors locked, so he hitched his horse and, with his churn beside him, sat down on the steps to await the arrival of somebody to let him in. He "sot and sot" until his patience was well-nigh exhausted, and finally spying a citizen passing by he hailed him with the inquiry whether anybody had "shut up this store." He was informed that nothing of the kind had occurred, and then wanted to know why in the world the proprietors or clerks were not around to open in something like a seasonable hour. "Well," was the answer, "I don't think they make a practice of opening their store on Sunday." "Sunday!" he exclaimed, with open eyes and mouth, "why this ain't Sunday?" He was assured that it certainly was the Sabbath, according to all reliable almanacs and the aforesaid citizen's best knowledge and belief. "Well, I vum!" he finally exclaimed, as the truth dawned upon him, "I thought it was Saturday;" and returning the churn to his wagon he unhitched, and, looking sheepishly up and down the street to see if he was observed, started for home as quietly as possible, though it seemed to him his wagon was never so noisy as then, in driving through the streets.

Last Tuesday quite a number of editors and newspaper representatives from Massachusetts and Vermont were, through the kindness of the managers of the railroad and steamboat lines, treated to an excursion to Block Island. Leaving Palmer at 6.40 a. m., the train connected at New London with the steamer "Block Island," which was to carry the party the rest of the way. The "Block Island" is a new boat, this being its first season, and is finished up in a thoroughly staunch and tasteful manner, and fully equipped with everything belonging to a first-class steamer. A pleasant sail of three hours brought the party to the Island, and at the invitation of the managers of the Ocean View Hotel, they proceeded there to dinner. This is the largest hotel on the Island, has been enlarged and improved since last season, and has now between 400 and 500 boarders. The large dining-room, 72 by 84 feet, is cool and comfortable, and an almost endless variety of edibles is to be found on its tables. A pleasanter place than the Island to spend a few days or weeks could not be easily found, as it is out 15 miles at sea, and any one in search of a place to enjoy the sea breezes and escape the heat of the cities will be sure to find it there, as the thermometer averages only about 75° through the hottest weather. The Island has never been so easily accessible as it is this season, via the New London Northern Railroad and the comfortable new "Block Island" steamer, which makes the trip much quicker than any of the other boats, and this line has already become deservedly popular with the traveling public.

BRIMFIELD.

The new principal of the Hitchcock Free High School is to be F. E. Burnett, late principal of the high school at Putnam, Ct.

THREE RIVERS.

The game of ball between the merchants' nine of Palmer and the merchants' nine of Three Rivers resulted in a victory for Three Rivers. Score 36 to 11.

THORNDIKE.

Capt. H. E. W. Clark and family have gone to Block Island for a little rest and invigoration.

Kane, the runner from this place who won the recent land league foot race at Indian Orchard, had a race of 150 yards the other day with J. H. Losee of Indian Orchard, which he won in 16¾ seconds, this being within 1¾ seconds of the best time on record.

BONDSVILLE.

Chas. Page has taken charge of Bond's new tin shop, which is a very neat affair, and it ought to be liberally patronized.

E. H. Dickinson has opened a news stand at his confectionery store, and will have the JOURNAL and other leading newspapers and periodicals for sale.

A beautiful new altar is in process of erection in Father McKeany's church, purchased by the ladies of this parish, and is being decorated by Mr. Ryther of this village.

WEST WARREN.

The Congregationalists have given their pastor, F. I. Nute, a month's vacation, and there will be no preaching in their church this month.

The Rockets were defeated by the East Brookfields last Saturday, 2 to 0, in a finely contested game. The boys think if the umpire had been a little more accurate in his decisions the score would have been different. They have the East Brookfields on the home grounds to-day, and hope to turn the tables.

WARREN.

A wet shower refreshed the dry earth Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. H. Hitchcock and daughter are visiting in Palmer.

A. L. Converse has broken ground for a house on his new plantation.

E. Fairbanks and family have returned from a week's fishing cruise.

J. W. Chadsey and wife have enjoyed the cooling breezes of the seaside the past week.

A large number of our citizens and their families are away this summer, supposed to be enjoying themselves at the seaside or the mountains. Who have the most comfortable time after all, those that stay or those who go?

WALES.

Willis White and David Shepardson, with some others, have gone to Delaware, picking peaches.

Whortleberries are ten cents a quart, and scarce at that. The dry weather has about ruined them.

E. Shaw's veteran "Charley" horse broke his leg in crossing a ditch in the meadow the other day, and had to be killed.

Mrs. Elijah Shaw's night blooming cereus blossomed Monday night. This is the first one ever seen here, and it was visited by scores of people.

Rev. A. N. Woodruff, pastor of the Baptist church, will be absent at his old home in Vermont for two Sabbaths, during which time his desk will be supplied by the pastor of the Methodist church.

Many people are visiting their friends and old homes here now, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. Martin of Chester, Vt., Mrs. D. Johnson and her daughter Anna of Whitesboro, N. Y., Rogers Bros. of Rochester, N. Y., Abbie and Fordis Parker of Springfield, and Mary Gass of Boston.

BELCHERTOWN.

The town is filled with city boarders and there are many more who would be glad to come here for the summer months if the town had accomodations for them. It seems a pity that a hotel could not be placed on the ground formerly occupied by R. A. White, for the benefit of the public, as it seems one is much needed at the south end of the park.

During the shower last Tuesday p. m. lightning struck a large tree near the town house, splitting it to the roots. It also struck the town house, breaking three windows and destroying more than half the glass. It tore the corner off the roof, and the boards flew in all directions. Damage over $50. It struck a barn belonging to the Clapp brothers, a little south of Dr. Thompson's, destroying the roof, besides doing other damage. The storm was the most terrific for many years.

A lawn party was given at the summer residence of B. Butler and wife last week, and we do not hesitate to say it was one of the most enjoyable gatherings held for a long time in this place. Some seventy-five of his friends and acquaintances were present and partook of a bountiful repast on the grounds in his yard, covered by a nice booth prepared for the occasion. The lawn was brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and wax tapers, and music and dancing were indulged in until the small hours. Mr. and Mrs. B. well understand the art of pleasantly entertaining their guests.

MONSON.

It's dry for news, as well as otherwise.

G. H. Newton returned on Tuesday from a short inland whaling voyage.

Horace Moulton has a new dwelling house raised on the new street easterly of Bills' store.

Tuesday evening's rain was very welcome, but the pastures and brooks are suffering for the want of more.

Fred W. King and William K. Stebbins have bought out a fruit and confectionery store on State street, Springfield.

Miss Hattie Wood, daughter of Henry Wood, and formerly of Monson, died at Lincolnville, Pa., the 5th ult., having been sick only four days. The Meadville Republican says: "Services were held in the Baptist church on Friday p. m. by Rev. C. Stewart of Lyona. Beautiful indeed were the tokens of respect shown the departed one. Flowers were very numerous; on top of the casket were two beautiful wreaths of green and purest white, and a bunch of white water lilies, while on the organ, pulpit, etc., were beautiful bouquets and vases of flowers of many kinds. At the grave one could almost envy the deceased her soft resting place. The grave was literally filled with evergreen, flowers and ferns. Many bouquets were strewn on the covered casket ere it was hidden from sight. The parents have a consolation which is not given to all, for their daughter realized she was going from the first, and did not fear death, but rather looked forward to a meeting in a happier land." The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wood in this locality tender them their sympathy in this irreparable loss.

Dr. Alvan Smith, who was suddenly stricken with paralysis last week Wednesday, died at his home in this place on Sunday. Dr. Smith was a native of Palmer, where he was born in 1808. He was educated at Monson and Amherst, studied medicine with the late Dr. Aaron King of Palmer, attended medical lectures at Dartmouth and Harvard, and graduated at the latter medical college in 1837. Dr. Smith first located at Brimfield as junior partner of the late Dr. Ebenezer Knight, and remained a year. Then he set up for himself at Sturbridge, and built up a good practice. When Drs. Carpenter and Heywood fell victims to a malignant epidemic of typhoid fever at Monson he moved here, where he has been a leading practitioner for 45 years. He has been for many years a trustee of Monson Academy, a fellow of the Massachusetts medical and Hampden district societies and a member of the Monson Congregational church. He was an active Christian, energetic, and a man of warm sympathies, who will be widely missed. In 1839 he married Abbie G. Homer of Brimfield, who survives him with four children. One of his sons is a doctor at Bondsville and another at Stafford, Ct. One daughter married Dr. F. D. Morse of Lawrence, Kan., and another Charles F. Orcutt of Monson.

WARE AND VICINITY.

The Misses Robinson are camping out at Thetford, Vt.

The salary of J. W. Cummings, post master, has been raised to $1800.

The Ware Cornet Band has reorganized with J. H. Cummings as leader.

The milkmen will all raise the price of milk to 6 cents a quart on Monday next.

W. C. Carrick, for a long time employed in J. B. Green's stove store, has removed to Thorndike.

The Gilbertville Cornet Band are to hold a picnic at the grove in Gilbertville on Saturday, the 19th.

Jonathan Webb is building a four-tenement block in the rear of his other property on North street.

C. W. Eddy is to exhibit his stereopticon at the Sons of Temperance lawn party at Warren, the 17th.

E. H. Vaughan has given up the insurance business, and is to enter the Boston Law University this fall term.

There were three individuals before the district court last week for drunkenness, who paid fines and costs to the amount of $14.

Herbert Demond is in town. He has been in the 5th United States Infantry for the past three years, and has been discharged on account of ill health.

The Congregational Sunday school picnic which was to have been held at Hoyt's Grove on Thursday of this week, has been postponed on account of the extremely dry weather.

David Barlow, of Ragged Hill, celebrated his 89th birthday on Thursday of last week. A party of friends from the village made him a visit, and the affair was pronounced an enjoyable one.

F. D. Richards, now he is rid of the rabble and consequent dirt attendant upon holding court in his office, is thoroughly remodeling it, making it more cozy and convenient, as well as having an additional room for consultation.

No delegates from Ware to the State Prohibitory Convention at Boston this week. The strong temperance element does not seem to be very active, but is quite willing to let the temperance work be done by others, when it is being so well done and to the satisfaction of all.

The picnic at Hoyt's Grove on Tuesday, to which the inhabitants of Ware and Hardwick were invited, was well attended. The grove is a pleasant place to spend a day of quiet enjoyment, while the trip around the pond in the steamer, nearly two miles, is most delightful.

The continued dry weather has completely ruined the lawns and some of the crops. We understand that large quantities of corn have been cut up and put in for fodder, as the only means to get any good out of it. The shower of Tuesday evening was refreshing, but not of sufficient duration to be of any lasting benefit.

On Wednesday evening Rescue Degree, Temple No. 4, I. O. of G. T., elected and installed J. L. Fairbank, W. D. T.; Miss Nellie Bond, W. D. V. T.; H. L. Fairbank, W. D. S.; H. P. Billings, W. D. F. S.; L. N. Fairbank, W. D. Treasurer; Geo. D. Marland, Chap.; R. J. Sullivan, Marshal; Miss Nellie Spear, Guard; William Clemments, Sentinel; Arthur Dexter, D. L. H. S.; Mrs. H. P. Billings, Organist.

Joseph Sandford, one of our old residents, was found drowned Tuesday morning in Stump cove, about a mile north of the village. Mr. Sandford had been for some time suffering severely from sciatica, and had for several days been somewhat deranged. He left home Monday, but was supposed to be visiting friends, but not returning search was commenced with the above result. His hat and coat, nicely folded, were found upon the bank, and the tracks showed that he had walked into the river. Mr. Sandford was a man of much natural ability, and he had in years past occupied positions of trust in town, and at one time held a good position in the custom house in Boston.

Rufus Hatch, with Lawrence Jerome and a London syndicate, have purchased 750,000 acres of grazing land on the Yellowstone river, Dakota, at $1 an acre. Fifty thousand head of young cattle will be placed on the immense range, and fifty thousand will be laid out on the river. The Northern Pacific will run within twenty miles of the ranche.

The steamer Mosel, of the North German Lloyds Line, from Bremen for New York, with over six hundred passengers, went aground under Lizard Point, off the English coast, Wednesday, and will probably prove a total loss. The passengers were all landed in safety.

The village of Feltville, N. J., known as the "Deserted Village," was sold Wednesday under foreclosure for $11,450. A quarter of a million dollars was once offered for this property.

Stanley Brown, private secretary to the late President Garfield, has been obliged to abandon his business pursuits and seek health in travel.

The boiler of the steamboat Gold Dust exploded at Hickman, Ky., on Monday, killing 24 persons and injuring 50 others.

A CARD.—I desire to express my sincere gratitude to all—the railroad friends particularly—for their kindness and sympathy in my recent affliction. MRS. LESLIE DOUGLAS.

Monson, Mass., Aug. 10, 1882.

The meat production of Great Britain and Ireland has fallen off. In 1868 there were for every head of the population 30 cows, 116 sheep, 11 pigs, or 157 of all cattle. In 1882 the total was only 115. While this decline has taken place the consumption of meat has increased to £16 9s. 6d, in 1881, from £10 2s. in 1850.

The wheat crop of Minnesota is estimated at not less than 38,000,000 bushels. Oats will far exceed in quality and quantity any previous yield, and corn alone, of all grains, is not a first-class crop. The wheat and oat crops in Indiana promise the largest yield in the history of the State.

The New York freight handlers have lost $100,000 and the iron workers in the Pittsburg district $4,000,000 by their strike, while the iron workers in other parts of the country have lost as much more. They have gained —nothing. This is the way strikes usually pay.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

ADVANTAGES
—OF—
HORSFORD'S
BREAD PREPARATION
Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

Palmer, March 1st, 1882.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN, STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS: The undersigned, citizens and legal voters of the town of Palmer, county of Hampden, and State of Massachusetts, respectfully represent that the public necessity and convenience require that a highway be laid out at Bond's Village, in said Palmer, as follows, viz: Beginning at a pine stump in the northerly side and at the southern terminus of a town way leading from house of Timothy Lynes to Humphrey Sullivan's, and running south 77° east, 565 ft. in land of Humphrey Sullivan to a maple tree in line of land of John Cavin, thence south 87¾° east, 160 ft. to land of Daniel Sullivan, thence same course south 50° 20′ east, 336 ft. to a point in the westerly side of Daniel Sullivan's wood-shed and 3 ft. southerly of its northwest corner, above being northerly line of highway asked for. And we pray that your honorable board will view the premises, lay out such way and take such other action as you may deem fit. J. B. CARMODY AND OTHERS.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—HAMPDEN SS. At a meeting of the County Commissioners holden at Springfield, within and for said county, on the first day of August, in the year of our Lord 1882.
And now upon the petition aforesaid, the county commissioners, deeming a view of the premises expedient and proper, give notice that they will meet for the purpose of said view at the depot of the Springfield & Athol R. R. Co., in Bondsville, Palmer, on Thursday, the seventh day of September next, at eight o'clock a. m.; and it is ordered by the county commissioners that a copy of said petition be served by the sheriff of said county or his deputy, upon the clerk of the town of Palmer, in said county, thirty days at least before the said seventh day of September, and that all other persons and corporations interested therein be notified, by publishing a copy of said petition and this order thereon, once a week, in the Palmer Journal, a public newspaper printed in said county, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time of said view. And it is further ordered by the commissioners that copies of said petition, or abstracts containing the substance thereof and this order, be posted by said sheriff or deputy, in two public places in the town of Palmer, fourteen days before said seventh day of September, and that notice be given in manner aforesaid to all persons and corporations interested, that the county commissioners deem a view of the premises expedient and proper, and that a view of the same will be taken by them at the time and place aforesaid.

TO THE HONORABLE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN, STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS: We, the undersigned, citizens and legal voters of the town of Palmer, would respectfully represent that the exact bounds on that portion of the county road leading from Ware to Belchertown, as lies between the residence of John Carmody and the road leading from Enfield to Palmer in the village of Bondsville, cannot readily be ascertained. In view of this fact, we would pray your honorable board to view said premises, establish bounds on same, and take such other action in the matter as may to you seem meet and proper.

The Smack Out of School.

The sun had shone in through waving boughs
  Of elm trees by the door,
Across the row of feet that toed
  The chalk-mark on the floor.
Down at the foot of that long line
  Of spellers, standing there,
Was Allan Dane, with quiet face
  Framed round with stiff tow hair.

The fair young teacher called this boy
  "The dunce of Wheaton school;"
But Allan's wits, though slow, were keen,
  And since to Lawyer Poole
The same fair teacher gave a kiss,
  So slyly as she thought,
The boy, with mischievous delight,
  A cunning plan had wrought.

Next morning Allan charged his class
  To learn their lessons well,
For young 'Squire Poole that afternoon
  Would come to hear them spell.
And this was all; they never knew
  What else was on his mind,
Until the teacher gave out "smack,"
  To be spelled and defined.

'Twas Allan's turn; he raised his eyes
  To watch the lawyer's face,
And slowly spelled the short word through
  With calm and steady grace.
"Define it, sir," the mistress said,
For, courage to acquire,
  The boy had paused—"Why, ma'am," said he,
"It's what you gave the 'squire."

PREPARE NOW FOR WINTER FLOWERS.

Those who have small green-houses or cultivated flowers in their windows, have set out their geraniums and other quick-growing plants for the summer. Many make the mistake of taking up these plants in autumn, after they have grown all the season in the open ground, and potting them to be replaced in the window or green-house. The result will always be 'long-legged,' mis-shapen plants, which, instead of blooming satisfactorily during the winter, will take a long time to recover, and never be worth as much as new plants from the cuttings. Such plants may be prepared for, this month and next, and with very little trouble. Of course those who have green-houses with appliances for propagating need no directions, but many lovers of flowers have to content themselves with such plants as may be grown in the windows of the living rooms. These become attached to their plants, and when one is set out in the bed they expect it back again. When such a plant goes out, consider it thrown away, for it may as well be, and set about replacing it. The following method will give a few plants with little trouble. Take a common store box, such as a starch or soap-box, knock off both cover and bottom, and if need be strengthen it with extra nails. Tack over this a piece of cotton cloth and the frame will be ready. Select a place where the soil is light and sandy, or if the ground is at all stiff, spade in some sand or coal dust to make it light and open, and place the frame over it. If cuttings of geraniums, cupheas, verbenas, or other such plants are placed in the soil and covered with the frame they will soon take root and form nice specimens, which, when they begin to grow, may be potted and be ready for winter. If the frame is where it will be shaded at mid-day, all the better; if not, tilt it a little when the sun is very hot, to give ventilation and prevent overheating. —American Agriculturist for July.

DON'T SCOLD.

The judicious giving of reproof for faults committed is necessary in every family; but in all cases violent scolding should be avoided. It only produces irritability, and is seldom efficacious. Its most frequent form of expression is a sort of generalization which is usually false, from some difficulty which is irremediable except by specific action. 'You children are the most disorderly creatures I have seen; you leave your hats in one place and your books in another, and keep me forever picking up after you,' says the petulant mother. 'If you don't pick up your things better I will—' and here follow the ineffectual threats of the scolding mood. The words are worse than thrown away; they do positive harm. The child who is at fault on the occasion escapes conviction through the general accusation and blame thrown upon all, while the children who are not at fault are irritated and resent the injustice. It would be wiser to single out the offender and quietly administer the necessary reproof, with tone and manner free from personal irritation. So of the scores and hundreds of occasions in family life which try the temper of the mistress.

If the cook is careless and sets the meals on the table improperly prepared, how useless, how disagreeble for the mistress of the house to utter a general tirade against cooks during the meal. How worse than useless afterward for her to tell the cook that as a class they are worthless, wasteful and incompetent; that they don't earn their wages, and to indulge in harsh epithets and threats. There is no quicker way to lose the respect of servants and to demoralize them than to scold at them in a general way when irritated. All faults charged should be specifically named and the requirement made positive that such faults must be remedied.

There are fewer out of employment now than has been known for several years, which is a clear indication of the general prosperity of the country.

London girls don't like the electric light. It does not make the powder and rouge on their complexions look well.

A disposition to preserve, and an ability to improve, taken together, should be the standard of a statesman.

It is reported that a paint mine, comprising five different colors, has been discovered near Los Angelos, Cal.

Action will not always bring happiness; but there is no happiness without action.—Beaconsfield.

THE CARPENTER.

The carpenter, children, is one of the strangest subjects that you ever saw. It grows in interest the mortise studied.

When hungry, the carpenter can dine off one of his joints, take rabbit plane for entree, his plumb for dessert.

The carpenter never deserts his friends. He does everything on the square.

Though a strong man the carpenter cannot raise his frame without assistance.

Here is another funny thing about the carpenter. His finest work is his plane work.

The carpenter does everything by rule. It is rule or ruin with him.

With some men, if you give them an inch they will take an ell. The carpenter on the contrary, will not give you an L until he has taken a good many inches.

The carpenter never deals in fiction. His stories always have a foundation.

When a carpenter sells a house he sells the cellar with it. The buyer is also frequently sold.

The most celebrated carpenter I ever heard of was the Carpenter of Ruen. You never saw him, but you have seen the ruin of the carpenter perhaps.

The carpenter's voice is not first-rate for singing. He wants timber. However, he is accurate in his measure, and, if a boss, is careful to keep good time.

The carpenter is not much of a fisherman, but is very fond of the angle.

It is a mistake to suppose that a carpenter ties his frame together with the knots in the timber.

The carpenter is a pillar of society, and though coping with all sorts of difficulties, is seldom floored. He writes no political articles for the columns of the press, excepting now and then something relating to cabinet work.

Let us hope that the carpenter may continue to build up in good character, and if at last he should fall from his scaffold may a rope prevent his falling too far.

NO MORE SALT FISH.

'The day was Friday, yer Honor, an' the ould lady gave me a briled mack'rel for breakfist, salt cod for dinner, and fish balls for tay, an'—'

'What has that to do with this charge of intoxication?' Justice Ford asked of a jolly-looking, respectably-dressed man named Owen O'Connor in the Jefferson Market police court.

'Well, yer Honor, I dhrank so much ice water that me stomach got sick, an' to aise it I tuk a whiff or two of sperrets.'

'How much did you drink?'

'Plase, yer Honor, I dhrank it out o' the bottle, and I didn't gauge the quantity.'

'Was he disorderly?' the Justice asked of the policeman who made the arrest.

'No, sir; I found him asleep on the stoop. He came willingly, and insisted on opening a bottle of wine before I brought him in.'

'Well, O'Connor, I guess I will let you go this time, but in future avoid drinking out of the bottle,' Justice Ford said.

'Bedad, I will, yer Honor, an' I'll ate no more salt fish, aither,' were O'Connor's last words in court.—New York Herald.

A young man who thinks he can lead a reckless and profligate existence until he reaches the middle term of life and then repent and make a good, steady citizen, is deluded. He thinks that people are fools, destitute of memory. He concludes that if he repents, everybody will forget that he was a dissipated fellow. This is not the case; people are apt to remember the bad deeds and forget the good ones. Besides, it is no easy thing to break off in middle life, bad habits formed in youth.

The famous big trees of California, 350 to 400 feet high and proportionately thick, are on public land, subject to entry at $1.25 an acre, and may be bought up and destroyed by whoever wishes to make such use of them. The bark has already been peeled from the butt of one for a showman, who sets it up at fairs as an exhibition, and another has been cut down in order to make a dancing platform of the stump.

A colored witness was asked if he knew and used the Bible. He replied in the affirmative. It afterward appeared that the man could not read. 'Now, sir,' thundered the attorney on the other side, 'did not you swear that you used your Bible?' 'Yes, sah,' faltered the witness, 'I done stropped my razor on it. The court decided that this was equal to the general knowledge of the Bible and was sufficient.

As he took his seat in the barber's chair, he asked the barber if he had the same razor he had used on him two days before. Being answered affirmatively, the patient man said: 'Then give me chloroform.'

Spiders have been seen as small as a grain of sand, and these spin a thread so fine that it takes four thousand of them put together to equal in size a single hair.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER,

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq.,
Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me, so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and blood diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

CAREFULLY PREPARED,
THOROUGHLY TESTED,
ACCEPTABLE & RELIABLE

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuble food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to

BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation, but by solution, and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

Sold by druggists, $1.00 per bottle.

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checke , and a new growth will be produced in all c ses where the follices are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

MALARIA!

THE ONLY REMEDY KNOWN

TO DESTROY THIS DEADLY PEST.

The most alarming fact, in our sanitary conditions, is the prevalence of MALARIAL POISON not only in marshy, low-lying districts, but in the cities and upon elevated ground where, a few years since, it was unheard of. Frequently fatal disorders of the digestive functions, wasted and enfeebled body and even insanity are the dire effects of malarial poisoning, the sure precursors of death if the poison is not neutralized. The boatmen on the Del. & Hudson Canal, as well as the inhabitants of the adjoining country, have been great sufferers from MALARIA. Not until a few years past did they find a reliable remedy. Now thousands testify that there is but one real and speedy cure for malarial poisoning, and that is DR. KENNEDY'S "FAVORITE REMEDY," which by its action upon the blood purifies it and restores a healtny tone to the entire system. As a preventive in localities where this danger lurks, it is invaluable. The "FAVORITE REMEDY" also cures the worst liver and kidney complaints and all diseases caused by vitiated blood. For sale by all druggists: price $1.00 per bottle. It is an absolutely safe, purely vegetable remedy, the greatest alterative medicine in the world. Address the proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N.Y.

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quieted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

BLADDER AND KIDNEYS.

Most of the diseases of the bladder originate from those of the kidneys; restore the action of the Liver fully, and both the kidneys and bladder will be restored.

Autumn and Summer.

Gorgeous leaves are whirling down,
Homeward comes the scented hay,
O'er the stubble, sere and brown,
Flaunt the autumn flowers gay;
Ah, alas!
Summers pass—
Like our joys they pass away.

Fanned by many a balmy breeze,
In the spring I love to lie
'Neath the newly budded trees,
Gazing upwards to the sky;
But, alas!
Time will pass,
And the flowers of spring must die!

Oft my maiden sat with me,
Listening to the thrush's tone,
Warbled forth from every tree
Ere the meadow hay was mown;
But, alas!
Summers pass—
Now, I wander all alone.

Love, like summer time, is fair,
Decked with buds and blossoms gay;
But upon this autumn air
Floats a voice which seems to say,
"Loves, alas!
Also pass,
As the summers pass away!"

A LITTLE COWARD.

That was what Miss Merivale had called her that morning when she trembled and turned pale because the black mare reared with her. She begged Sir Robert to take her off, and stood in ignominious safety while Agatha Merivale mounted Stella and rode off triumphantly down the avenue.

She was a coward. She did not deny it, and was sometimes very much ashamed of it. But no one had seemed to mind it till Agatha Merivale came, with her bold, dark eyes and her dashing ways, her riding and hunting and shooting; and everybody admired Agatha so much, even Sir Robert!

She almost hated Agatha. You see, until Agatha came they had been so happy at De Rosset. Little orphan Madelaine Leigh had never been so happy in her life as here at the Hall with sweet Lady de Rosset, who was her guardian, and her son, Sir Robert. They were so kind and good to her. They petted her, and loved her so. And now Agatha had come, and for two weeks had monopolized Sir Robert and kept the house in a turmoil of gaiety, and laughed at Lina, and made her life wretched.

Lina's maid reported that everybody said Sir Robert was to marry Miss Merivale. Lina made a stern resolve that she would run away from the Hall when that event took place. Run away! She would run away now! Not far, though—she was too much of a coward to venture far into the world alone; but she would go away across the fields to 'Aunt Margaret's,' as she called Lady de Rosset's widowed sister-in-law, who lived in a quiet, comfortable house a mile away from the Hall.

Mrs. Harrington was an invalid, paralyzed and confined to her bed. She was rather a grim old lady, and most people were inclined to shun her; but sweet, bright little Lina had won her way into the old lady's heart, and she was always welcome at the Lodge.

Yes, she would run away to Aunt Margaret's, and, perhaps when she was missed, Sir Robert might feel a moment's uneasiness about her. Seizing her hat and a light shawl she flew off across the park, calling Leo, Sir Robert's pretty collie, to follow her. Lina did not like to cross the fields alone, being possessed by a great terror of bulls; but with Leo she would not mind it so much.

Leo was calmly taking a nap on the front portico, but he started up and raced after her with a joyous bark. But at the little gate that led from the park into the fields Lina was greatly disconcerted by an unexpected encounter with Sir Robert and Miss Merivale, who came laughing and talking along the path, both looking bright and handsome in the golden rays of the setting sun.

She brushed past them with a hasty 'Good evening,' but Sir Robert turned back to speak to her.

'Where are you going, Lina?' he asked.

'To Aunt Margaret's' she answered, not looking at him.

'Alone, Lina? Are you not afraid? If you will wait a little while, I will go with you,' Sir Robert said, looking down kindly at the girl's flushed cheeks and averted eyes.

'No, thanks,' Lina answered hastily. 'I will not trouble you. And you would be late for dinner if you went with me.'

'May I come for you, then, after dinner?' Sir Robert asked.

'Thanks, I am not coming back. I shall stay all night,' was the hurried answer, and Lina turned to go.

But Sir Robert detained her for a moment.

'Lina,' he said, in a low tone, 'what makes you avoid me so lately? What have I done to offend you?'

Lina raised her blue eyes hastily to his, one moment, and then dropped them again.

'I have not avoided you,' she said coldly. 'You have been very much occupied with —other people. There, I will not detain you.'

She waved her little hand haughtily, and walked away from him. He watched the pretty white-robed figure for a moment, and then Leo came and fawned on him.

'Leo, Leo,' called Lina's voice.

'Go, Leo,' said his master, and the obedient dog trotted off down the narrow path after the girl.

It was rather dreary at the 'Lodge' that evening. Mrs. Harrington was out of humor, because her agent had failed to call that day, to receive a thousand pounds that she wished him to deposit for her. And Parkins, her nurse and housemaid, let the maid-servants all go off to a fair in the village, 'where they will certainly get into mischief,' Mrs. Harrington said.

But when Lina had talked to her and made her laugh a little, she forgot her grievances, and chatted away very pleasantly. At ten o'clock she declared she had laughed till she was tired, and Lina must give her her drops and let her go to sleep.

'There! the spoon is gone. Where can Parkins have put it! Child, would you mind running down into the pantry and bringing me a spoon? I would ring for Parkins, but she told me she wanted to get up some muslins this evening, and would come up as soon as she had finished.'

Lina did not altogether like to pass down the long stairs and silent entries leading to the pantry, but she went, and Leo trotted after her. As she stood in the pantry, looking around for the spoons with no light but the faint gleam from a hall lamp, a sound of low voices caught her ear.

The pantry was on the ground floor, its iron-barred shuttered window looking into the garden. The sound was outside the window, and Lina paused to listen. The first word that caught her ear startled her.

'A thousand pounds and all the old woman's jewelry and plate!' said a man's voice, in a husky undertone.

'Yes,' was the reply, in a woman's voice—the voice Lina knew, of Parkins, Mrs. Harrington's model, soft-voiced, lady-like nurse —'and there won't be any trouble about it, because I have let the women go away to stay all night, and sent the gardener on a fool's errand to Missis' brother's 20 miles off.'

'But this girl that came to-night—what about her?' asked the man.

'Oh, she will go to her room presently, and stay there if she is wise. She'd be no hindrance anyway—a silly, timid little thing. But it's as well to let her get out of the way,' said Parkins, coolly.

'But see here, Molly, why not do it now? Then we'll have more time to get away before daylight,' said the man.

'I tell you it's not safe before 11 o'clock,' Parkins said positively. 'People may come in. Sir Robert don't like her out of his sight for long, and that idiotic young Marsden may come mooning in. Wait till half-past eleven, and the west door will be open. And, Jim, look here. When you get this swag, you are to take me with you—your wife, now, you mind.'

The voices grew fainter. Evidently the speakers were moving away from the house. But Lina had heard enough. Sick with terror, she leaned against the pantry wall for a moment and tried to think. What did it all mean? Robbery, murder! And no help near. Her first instinct was to fly out of the house and across the field to the Hall. But her absence would be instantly discovered, she knew, and then poor Aunt Margaret would be alone with those wretches. No, she must not go. But to stand there idle would do no good. She flew like a bird along the halls and up stairs, Leo racing by her side. At Aunt Margaret's door she paused and a sudden thought came to her. She would send Leo home for help.

'Where is the spoon, child? How long you staid! Good heavens! what is the matter?' cried the old lady, as she saw the girl's white, terrified face.

Lina began some evasive answer, but instantly remembered that Aunt Margaret must be told the whole story, or nothing could be done to save her. She did tell it, and Aunt Margaret listened in silent consternation, and then burst out impetuously with:

'Good heavens, child! Why don't you run right home?'

'Because I knew Parkins would be up here in a few minutes and find I was gone, and then—'

'Ah, well. So you staid to save the old woman if you could! What are you doing, child? Why don't you lock the door and pile things against it? Good God! If I was just able to rise out of this bed!'

But Lina did not speak for a moment. She had found a pencil and paper and was rapidly writing a few words. When she had finished—

'Now,' she said, 'when Parkins comes tell her I am to sleep on her couch here in your room, and she must go somewhere else. I will be back in a moment. Leo.'

Out of the room she darted, and down to the hall door, which she unbarred and passed through. Then, kneeling in the shadow of a pillar on the portico, she tied the note tightly in her handkerchief, and knotted the handkerchief around Leo's neck.

She put her arms around his neck after that, kissed his forehead, and a half sob escaped her.

'Is that you, Miss?' said a smooth voice rom the hall. 'Why, whatever are you doing in the dark there?'

Lina sprang up as if she had been shot.

'I am sending the dog home,' she said, speaking quietly, though the throbs of her heart shook her whole frame. 'He is restless here without his master. Go home, Leo—straight home, sir!'

The dog, with one farewell lick of her hand bounded down the steps and vanished in the dewy darkness of the summer night.

'Oh, God! let him go safely and swiftly!" prayed the girl in her heart.

Then she went in and helped Parkins bar the door, and they went together up stairs.

Aunt Margaret lay very quietly on her pillow, but with her black eyes gleaming.

'Parkins,' she said, steadily, as they entered, 'Miss Leigh is kind enough to offer to stay with me here to-night. She will sleep on your couch, and you, my poor soul, can go and get a good night's rest in another room.'

Parkins was silent for one instant, and then began a series of smooth, polite expostulations, which no one would heed, and finally the civil nurse prepared the couch for Lina and took herself off, observing, sweetly:

'If Miss Leigh will leave the door ajar, I can hear a call from this room, and will come instantly."

'Thanks, Parkins, but I hope I shall not have to call you,' said Lina, speaking as sweet as Parkins herself.

Then as she glided to the door as soon as it was closed, she turned with a face of dismay, and whispered:

'The key is gone! She took it when she was fidgeting in and out with the sheets and pillows.'

'There is a bolt besides,' Aunt Margaret answered.

Lina gave a sigh of relief as she slipped the bolt into the groove, and felt that she had some little protection against the enemy.

'Now, child,' Aunt Margaret said, 'can you use a pistol?'

'I never touched one in my life,' said the 'little coward.' 'But if I had one now I would try.'

'Very well. Take my safe-key—it is under my pillow—and unlock the safe. There are two pistols there, loaded. They are just as my husband left them a year ago, but Robert looked at them a few days ago, and said they were all right. That is it. Put one of them on the foot of the bed, and if those wretches come, try, my dear, to use it. Now put the other here, by my left hand. Thank God! I can use that a little. Now, what are you doing? Oh, yes, pile up all you can against the door. There, you can't move anything else. Now, come here, little girl; kneel down by me and let's say our prayers together.'

With the old lady's thin, pallid hand clasped tight in her two cold, trembling little ones, Lina knelt down there, and burying her face in the pillow, tried to pray.

Her petition was not a very coherent one; it was only a wild passionate cry for pity and help, and meantime she was listening, with every nerve strained, for sounds from the outside. A lamp burned in the room. On the mantel-piece a softly ticking clock marked the slow minutes. No other sound broke the stillness.

Presently a sob shook the girl's figure. She was thinking of Sir Robert and his tender care over her.

Oh, if she had only not been so wayward and proud this evening, all would have been well! He would have come for her and they would have been safe.

But, surely, surely he would come yet!

He could not fail to find the note, and she knew he would come to save her. But yet horrible doubts came to her as to whether the note would reach him! It might be lost, or Leo might wander about and not get home until it was too late.

Too late! Lina shuddered and sobbed again as she thought what that might mean. Oh, it was hard to think of dying so helplessly, so horribly, with help so near.

The long minutes crept on, and no sound came until 11 o'clock had passed. The little clock softly chimed the half-hour. Then, in a few moments, came a sound of stealing footsteps in the passage, and the knob of the door was softly turned.

Breathless silence in the room! Then a gentle tap at the door. Lina clasped Aunt Margaret's hand convulsively, and the old lady spoke.

'What is that?' she asked, steadily.

'It is me, Parkins, ma'am. Would you ask Miss Leigh if she will kindly open the door? I have the toothache, and want some laudanum.'

'What a devil it is!' whispered Aunt Margaret. Then aloud: 'Go down stairs and get something, Parkins. I cannot trouble Miss Leigh.'

Lina hoped that Parkins would urge the point a little. Anything to prolong the parley and gain time.

But a whisper in the passage followed, and then a man's voice:

'Ladies, there's no use making a row. Just open the door peacefully and you shan't be hurt. We'll break it down if you don't.'

'What do you want?' Lina asked, hoping still to gain a little time. A new and gruff voice answered, insolently:

'You knows well enough what we wants, miss. We wants the thousand pounds and the di'monds, and we mean to have them. So don't be a fool, but just open the door peacefully, or you'll be sorry.'

Lina sprang to her feet and seized the pistol. A flood of color rushed to her cheek and brow. She had been insulted and threatened, and indignation overpowered terror. She went toward the door and called out, quickly and clearly:

'You're not coming in. I have sent for help, and Sir Robert and his men will be here directly. I am armed, and if you do break the door down I will shoot you like a dog.'

A moment's silence followed, then a coarse laugh, and—

'All gammon. She hadn't no one to send. Break the door down,' in Parkins's voice; and heavy blows began to fall upon the door. It trembled and cracked beneath the battery. A panel broke, and a man's hand was thrust in; the whole door seemed about to fall, when—bang! bang! came two reports from Lina's pistol, and a couple of bullets crushed through the panels, and the besiegers paused abruptly.

'Go away instantly,' called the girl's clear voice, 'or I will fire again.'

'One more rush, mate, and we are in,' yelled the gruff voice outside.

What followed was wild tumult and confusion; the crash of breaking panels and bolts, the fall of the door and of the furniture Lina had piled against it, shot after shot from Lina's pistol, a yell of pain and rage from both of them. The door was down. One of the men was in the room. Lina had fired her last shot, and running to the bed snatched Aunt Margaret's pistol, and turned to face the enemy. Suddenly came a wild shriek from Parkins. Then a voice calling, 'Lina, Lina! I am coming,' and Sir Robert de Rosset hurled himself bodily upon the ruffian outside the door, prostrated him, and sprang into the room over his body. And this is what he saw: Madelaine Leigh, the 'little coward,' with blazing eyes and scarlet cheeks, and a pistol in her hand, standing unflinchingly between Aunt Margaret and a burly ruffian; and Aunt Margaret herself, who had not turned in her bed for a year, standing on her feet on the floor. Two seconds changed the aspect of affairs. After that the burglar lay senseless on the floor. Aunt Margaret sank back on her bed with a wild 'Thank God!' and the little heroine of the scene lay in Sir Robert's arms, in a dead faint.

'Oh, Robert, why did not you come a little sooner?' she murmured half an hour afterwards when she opened her eyes and met his.

'Don't you know I came as soon as I found your note?' he said. 'Leo went to my room, and I found him there when I left the drawing-room after eleven o'clock.'

'Where are those dreadful men?' Lina asked, raising her head dizzily and looking round with a shudder.

'Never mind them, dear. They were taken by the men who followed me. My brave little darling! What a heroine you are!'

Two months later, when Parkins and the men were brought to trial, Aunt Margaret walked into the witness-box, and gave her testimony with directness and self-possession. Lina gave hers with much trembling and some tears; but she looked intensely lovely, and no one wondered that Sir Robert was going to marry her.

The crowd around the door gave three cheers as she left the court room, walking between Sir Robert and his mother, and three more for Leo, who followed them.

And Aunt Margaret's wedding present to Lina was the thousand pounds and the diamonds that had been saved by the courage of 'the little coward.'

'My son,' said a fond New Haven mother, 'I shall expect you to save some of your pennies for the missionary box. If not, you can't have no fire cracker money for the Fourth.' 'My dear ma,' was the reply, 'I regard your request in the light of a political assessment and am informed by the civil service reform ring of the party not to heed it.' He was shut up in a dark closet, from which the jam jars had been removed.

A BASHFUL BRIDEGROOM.

Senator Sebastian of Tennessee tells this story: "When I was young I was the most bashful boy west of the Alleghanies. I wouldn't look at a girl, much less speak to a maiden; but for all that I fell desperately in love with a sweet, beautiful neighborly girl. It was a desirable match on both sides, and the old folks saw the drift, and fixed it up. I was a gawky, awkward country lout, about 19 years old. She was an intelligent, refined and fairly educated girl, in a country and at a time when the girls had superior advantages, and were, therefore, superior to the boys. I fixed the day as far off as I could have it put. I lay awake in a cold perspiration as the time drew near, and shivered with agony as I thought of the terrible ordeal. The dreadful day came. I went through with the programme somehow in a dazed, confused, mechanical sort of a way. The guests one by one departed, and my hair began to stand on end. I felt like fleeing to the woods, spending the night in the barn, leaving for the west never to return. I was deeply devoted to Sallie. I loved her harder than a mule can kick; but that dreadful ordeal—I could not, I dare not stand it. Finally the last guest was gone, the bride retired, the family gone to bed, and I was left with the old man. 'John,' said he, 'you take that candle; you will find your room just over this. Good night, John, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul,' and with a mischievous twinkle of his eye, the old man left the room. When I heard him close a distant door, I staggered to my feet, and seized the candle with a nervous grip. I knew that it could not be avoided, and yet I hesitated to meet my fate like a man. A happy thought struck me. I hastily mounted the stair, marked the position of the landing and the door of the bridal chamber. I would have died before I would have disrobed in that bridal chamber, where awaited me a trembling and beautiful girl. I would make the usual preparations without, blow out the light, open the door, and the friendly darkness would at least mitigate the horror of the situation. It was soon done. Preparations for retiring were few and simple in their character in Hickman, altogether consisting of disrobing. The dreadful moment had come; I was ready. I blew out the light, grasped the door knob with a deathly grip and a nervous clutch; one moment and it would be over. I leaped within, and there, around a glowing hickory fire, with candles burning brightly on the bureau, was the blushing bride, surrounded by the six lovely bridesmaids."

HE HAD HEARD.

A good story is told of one of the old-time Philadelphia Quakers, whose sterling integrity was ingenuously commingled with worldly shrewdness. He was an extensive vessel owner, and during his life made a fortune, which has since in the hands of his heirs been doubled again and again. At one time, when a long period of stormy weather had greatly delayed shipping of all kinds, he became alarmed for the safety of a ship loaded with a most valuable cargo and several weeks overdue. Going to an insurance agent he truthfully told him that he feared the vessel had been lost, but if the agent wished to take the risk he had no objections. Of course the agent hesitated and put him off from day to day, hoping for private information regarding the missing craft. One bright morning the Quaker drove up to the insurance office and called to the agent: 'Thee need not make out those papers; I have heard from the ship.' Instantly the office was in a bustle, and in a few minutes the agent came hurrying forward exclaiming: 'Oh, you are too late; the papers are already made out, here they are.' As the Quaker looked them over (the ink being scarcely dry), the agent asked: 'Well, what have you heard?' 'I have heard,' responded the Quaker, with child-like simplicity, as he put the documents in his pocket, 'I have heard that the ship has gone to the bottom.'

SMELL OF PAINT.

To get rid of this most objectionable odor in a chamber or a living room, says the California Architect, slice a few onions and put them in a pail of water in the center of the room, close the doors, leave the window open a little, and in a few hours the disagreeable smell will have almost gone. Another method is to plunge a handful of hay into a pailful of water, and let it stand in the newly-painted room over a night; this plan is also effectual. The foregoing have the important advantage of being simple remedies, as the necessary materials are always easily obtainable. Yet another plan, but it is rather more complicated: Place a grate of lighted charcoal on a piece of flag or slate in the center of the room, and throw on it a handful or two of juniper berries; shut out all ventilation from the room for twenty-four hours; the doors and windows can then be opened, when it will be found that the nasty, sickly smell of paint has entirely gone. The furniture may be left in the room during the process, and none of it will be injured.

'I'm not in mourning,' said a young lady frankly to a querist, 'but as the widows are getting all the offers now-a-days, we poor girls must do something to protect ourselves.'

CHOOSING A CLERK.

If boys knew how keenly merchants look for signs of character in little things among those who apply to them for situations, they would be more careful in their habits. An exchange illustrates this fact as follows:

They came and went for one whole day, and as soon as the door was opened the next morning candidates came flocking in like birds. And now it was Fred Barker's turn. He stood before Mr. Mitchell, his hat on his head, his cigar removed from his mouth, it is true, but the smoke thereof curling upwards into the merchant's face. He presented his letter of introduction. Mr. Mitchell read it, then asked a few questions. Meanwhile his practical eyes were taking it all in—the cigar, the imitation diamond, the large seal ring, the flashing necktie. He knew in a twinkling where Fred Barker probably spent his evenings, and that it would take more money to indulge his tastes than he could honestly earn. To Fred's astonishment he presently heard: 'I do not think, young man, that you are just the one we have in mind for this place.' Then before he knew it he was bowed out.

The next boy who was admitted did not advance with such an over confident air. He held his hat in hand and spoke in a modest manner.

'Have you any recommendation?'

'No, sir, I have none,' David answered, a little dejectedly. 'We have not been long in the city.'

'Well you need none, if I can trust my eyes,' Mr. Mitchell remarked to himself. The bright, frank and manly air of the boy impressed him most favorably; he was still more pleased when he drew him into conversation and learned what books he was fond of and how he was going on with his studies evenings, although he had been obliged to leave the high school so as to earn his own living.

Mr. Mitchell had very sharp eyes; he took note of the well-brushed garments, the shining boots, the snowy collar and cuffs, the delicately clean finger nails—even by such small things as these is character read—and above all the look of sincerity and honesty shining from the blue eyes.

'Well, David,' Mr. Mitchell said, as he got up and walked back and forth, 'what if I were to tell you that you can have the situation providing you will work a part of every Sunday.'

It was a most cruel test. The boy hesitated —just a moment —then he said, while his color rose and his voice choked: I should say, sir, that I cannot accept.'

'Not even when your mother needs money so badly?'

'No, sir, my mother would not use money so earned. She has always taught me to obey God and trust Him, come what will.'

'That has the true ring, pure gold,' said Mr. Mitchell, bringing his hand down on David's shoulder. 'My dear boy, I want you, and I do not want you to do any work for me on the Sabbath. I will pay you ten dollars more a month than the last clerk received, because I am glad to find one boy out of a hundred who remembers his mother's teachings, and fears to disobey his Lord.'

WESLEY'S TACT.

The following anecdote of the founder of Methodism has, we believe, never been published. It reaches us from a trustworthy source, and it illustrates in a remarkable manner the mingled tact and piety of that eminent man.

Although Wesley, like the Apostles, found that his preaching did not greatly affect the mighty and the noble, still he numbered some families of good position among his followers. It was at the house of one of these that the incident here recorded took place. Wesley had been preaching, and a daughter of a neighboring gentleman, a girl remarkable for her beauty, had been profoundly impressed by his exhortations. After the sermon Wesley was invited to this gentleman's house to luncheon, and with himself one of his preachers was entertained. This preacher, like many of the class at that time, was a man of plain manners, and not conscious of the restraints of good society. The fair young Methodist sat beside him at the table, and he noticed that she wore a number of rings. During a pause in the meal the preacher took hold of the young lady's hand, and raising it in the air, called Wesley's attention to the sparkling jewels. 'What do you think of this, sir,' he said, 'for a Methodist's hand?'

The young girl turned crimson. For Wesley, with his known and expressed aversion to finery, the question was a peculiarly awkward one. But the aged evangelist showed a tact which Chesterfield might have envied. He looked up with a quiet, benevolent smile, and simply said, 'The hand is very beautiful.'

The blushing beauty had expected something far different from a reproof wrapped up with such felicity in a compliment. She had the good sense to say nothing; but when a few hours later she again appeared in Wesley's presence, the beautiful hand was stripped of every ornament save those which nature had given.—London Society.

'When did George Washington die?' asked an Austin teacher of a large boy. 'Is he dead?' was the astonished reply. THE Bonapartists had a large meeting in Paris on Tuesday, and resolved to place Prince Victor Napolean on the throne of France. Rather easier said than done, we apprehend.

SENATOR BEN. HILL of Georgia died at Atlanta on Wednesday, aged 59 years, after a long and painful illness, from cancer of the mouth. He was a gifted speaker and a man of great popularity and power among his constituents.

JAY HUBBELL is still after the government employes with his assessment circulars. Delinquents who have not responded with their "voluntary" contributions are being prodded with a second circular, and one report has it that an additional 2 per cent has been called for, to meet the "almost unprecedented demands upon the committee."

A NATIONAL FAIR, industrial and art exposition is to be held in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington, commencing on the 25th of November and ending the 3d of December, under the auspices of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, for the purpose of raising funds to aid in the erection of a Garfield statue in that city.

NEW YORK policemen are a fine looking set of officers, and they assist ladies across the crowded thoroughfares very graciously, look after the small boys sharply, run in the drunkards and street brawlers, and keep the lower classes in a respectful attitude. But when it comes to first class game, they can't be depended upon. When the attorney general wanted to raid a lot of policy men the other day he put the job in the hands of Pinkerton's detectives, and it was a success. Had the work been confided to the regular force, they would have "leaked," and there would have been no game to bag. And yet, strange to say, the police do not like it a bit because they did not have the job.

IN reply to an inquiry from the Quincy reformers, Gov. Long has re-stated his views on civil service reform, in a manner which ought to, and does, satisfy these ardent reformers. He believes the routine civil service should be separated from party politics, and would have the clerical and mechanical work of the departments given to the most meritorious and competent, with trial on probation, and promotion when deserved. Recommendations to office are entirely proper, and tenure of office should rest on merit and competency alone. Political assessments he pronounces vicious and unjust. The Governor is sound in his civil service ideas, as he is on other matters, and Republicans of every degree can but feel pleased and satisfied with his views.

Two guests of a Long Branch hotel came down with typhoid fever last week, and when the physicians refused to assent to the proprietor's demand for the removal of the invalids, he threatened to close the hotel at once, lock them up in it, and prosecute anybody who entered the building. He finally relented, upon the payment of $5000 by the friends of the patients, and agreed to keep the hotel open, though he thinks that sum will not make good his loss of custom. It was unfortunate, of course, that the sickness should occur, but when a man opens a public house that is one of the risks he must assume, and we venture to say that the example of these people in meeting the selfish and exorbitant demand of the landlord will not be widely imitated, should similar cases occur.

THEY have some queer notions down in Connecticut. Nowhere else would a jury on a murder trial think of coming together again to celebrate its experiences; but the Malley jury did this last week, having a jolly reunion at Savin Rock, in full view of the spot where the body of Jennie Cramer was washed ashore. Facetious remarks were made about Blanche Douglass and her whereabouts, and the only thing lacking to complete their enjoyment, apparently, was her presence with the Malley boys. Perhaps Blanche and the boys will favor them with their presence next year, when they will probably meet again. Now where's the Guiteau jury? They should have a reunion, by all means. Indeed, they have good reason for felicitating each other upon the result of their work, which is more than can be said of the other jury.

SENATOR HOAR has felt called upon to publish a five-column address to the people of Massachusetts, explaining and defending his vote in favor of the river and harbor bill. His argument is, in substance, that this is a big and growing country, with an immense domestic commerce; that the development of internal water-ways is important and necessary as a check upon railroad rates; and that by assisting liberally in the growth of local interests the government shows a paternal regard for its people which will allay and remove all sectional feeling. He is shocked at the intimation of log-rolling in connection with the bill, and indignantly repudiates the charge. He has examined the bill carefully, finds nothing to condemn in it, and, in short, heartily approves of the whole measure. So far as we can judge from his letter, he would again approve of any similar measure, even if the sums appropriated were much larger. Such an attitude is certainly not in harmony with the public sentiment of this State, and it will not help his re-election, though it probably will not hinder it. Nobody has questioned the sincerity or honesty of Senator Hoar's motives, but it is felt that he has erred in judgment, and his letter will hardly serve to remove this feeling.

A party of eight gentlemen and ladies drove to Mount Holyoke on Wednesday, and had a charming day and some splendid views at that delightful resort.

Engineer George Kenerson and family, Truman Griswold and wife, and others from this place, are enjoying a couple of weeks of camping out at Block Island.

The "newspaper pin" advertised in another column is a wonderfully convenient article for binding newspapers and other periodicals. Call and see how they work.

Mrs. A. E. Hills made a misstep and fell the length of her chamber stairs yesterday morning, receiving some severe bruises, but fortunately breaking no bones.

There were no services at the Advent chapel last Sunday, and will be none to-morrow, the pastor and many of the people being at the annual campmeeting in Springfield.

W. H. Clark, the old-time Palmer jeweler who has for some time been located at Newberry, S. C., has left there and thinks some of moving to Florida if he finds a location to suit him.

Young men at Pittsfield have organized an association on the platform of a vow not to use any profane or indecent words. There is need of such an organization here, with slang also included.

The selectmen advertise for proposals for building a new wooden bridge across the Swift River, near the site of the old Methodist chapel; also for building and repairing the cemetery fence near Four Corners.

B. Frank Bigelow, the defaulting Washington bank teller, whose arrest was recorded a couple of weeks ago, has been sent to jail, being unable to furnish the $55,000 bail required. The total amount of his defalcation is reported at $37,061.90.

Carpenters are at work putting in the new stairway at the school house, and building a porch over the new Park street entrance. H. P. Marcy is doing the job, and will have it completed before it is time for the schools to commence their fall term.

Rev. O. R. Hunt, pastor of the Baptist church, is having a fine time at Camp Comfort, Second Connecticut Lake, N. H. His party have shot two deer, and on Monday they brought in the finest string of trout taken this season, some of them weighing 1½ pounds each.

The Massachusetts Telephone Co. have published a revised list of their subscribers, which now numbers 631, divided among the different exchanges as follows: Palmer, 82; Gardner, 64; Marlboro and Hudson, 52; Clinton, 52; Milford, 49; Framingham, 47; Southbridge, 41; Orange, 32; Athol, 29; Natick, 29; Webster, 29; Winchendon, 22; Spencer, 20; Holliston, 19; Westboro, 19; North Brookfield, 18; East Brookfield, 9; Hopkinton, 6; Oxford, 4; Ashland, 3; Warren, 3; West Brookfield, 2.

The Boston & Albany road ran a cheap excursion to Boston yesterday, from the stations between and including Indian Orchard and West Brookfield, and also Ware and Thorndike, the fare to the Hub being $1.25, and to Nantasket Beach $1.50. About 700 persons came down on the Ware River road, and nearly 100 came in on a special train from Monson, to take the excursion train, which numbered 24 cars, while another train followed to pick up excursionists east of here. There were 249 tickets sold at this station.

Excursion tickets to Montreal and return for $8.50 are now on sale at the New London Northern depot, good to return until the 26th inst. In order to secure this rate, however, the return tickets must be stamped at the American Institute of Science in that city, the reduction in fare being made especially to accommodate those who wish to attend the Institute. This makes a fine opportunity for any one to visit and see the sights at Montreal and vicinity, as well as attend the sessions of the Institute, at one-half the usual cost of a trip to the Canadian metropolis.

An attempt was made to burglarize White, Hellyar & Co.'s store at an early hour last Sunday morning, but the thieves were frightened away without securing anything of much value. An entrance was effected by breaking a pane of glass in the front window. The noise of the breaking glass, however, awoke some of the occupants of the block, and one of them dressed and went down to see what was going on, when the burglars took their departure through a rear window. It is believed to have been the work of boys, as several boys' coats had apparently been tried on. They had also made a vain search for money, but fortunately overlooked the drawer which that night happened to contain some $30 in change. There is no clue to the thieves.

The attraction for to-day is at Lake Pleasant, and the New London Northern road is to run an excursion train to that place, stopping at all points between New London and here, leaving this place at 9.20 a. m., and making no stops north of here. Parties from Palmer who desire to get to the Lake ahead of the excursion should take the boat train at 8.10; and as round trip tickets are sold at the low price of 75 cents, it will doubtless draw a large number from this place. Returning, the special train leaves the Lake at 10 p. m., thus giving the excursionists an opportunity to witness the grand illumination which takes place in the evening. The train will stop at all stations. This is the first, and probably the only, cheap excursion over this road to the Lake this summer. Those who would prefer a trip to Mount Toby, can stop off there and enjoy the mountain air and scenery, the fare being the same to both points.

THE NEW WIRE MILL.

The mill of the Palmer Wire Co. has so far approached completion that the engine will be started up and work begun next Monday, about forty men being employed, to begin with, in manufacturing wire for fence purposes. The mill is delightfully situated about one mile west of the village, and near the tracks of the New London Northern and the Ware River railroads. The main building is 125 by 60 feet, two stories high, with a deck roof. At one end is the office, 20 by 50 feet, roomy and comfortable. Adjoining this is the drawing room, 85 by 60 feet, and at the other end is the room for packing and shipping, 20 by 60, with a platform outside from which goods may be loaded directly into the cars upon a spur track. Between the drawing and shipping rooms are the elevator and stairway, communicating with the second floor, which is finished off in one large room, the full size of the building, to be used also as a drawing room.

In the rear of this building are the boiler and engine rooms, located on opposite sides of the passage leading to the annealing building. The boiler is from the manufactory of C. Stewart & Sons of Worcester, and is rated at 150-horse power. The engine is a Fitchburg of 100-horse power, capable of running up to 125. The annealing building is of brick, 112 by 80, one story, with a deck roof, and contains vats, furnaces, and all the necessary appliances for annealing the wire. Back of this is the galvanizing building, 110 by 35 feet, and the coal house, 52 by 31. All the buildings are connected by covered passageways, and tracks are to be laid to the different rooms, over which cars will be run for convenience in handling the wire. A spur track connects with the New London Northern Railroad, and connection can also be made with the Ware River road should it be desirable. A pump house between the mill and the river supplies the building with water from the river. Everything about the buildings and the machinery is substantial and convenient.

The present capacity of the mill is about 10 tons per day, which can be increased to 30 or 40. The company already have orders for several hundred tons of wire, and will run night and day as soon as they get fairly at work. They give employment only to first-class workmen, who will make a desirable class of citizens, and the mill promises to be a valuable acquisition to the business interests of the village and town in every way. The company have an office in the village, in Wales Hall block, and also one in New York, at 18 Cliff street, with H. C. Burrows, for several years with the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing Co. of Worcester, as agent.

WILBRAHAM.

A. E. Barnes, wife and family, returned last Monday from the fine mountain air and scenery. They averaged 25 quarts of huckleberries daily while they were away.

BRIMFIELD.

Misses Lydia and Mollie Wyles are spending the summer with their sister, Mrs. Wm. M. Ducker, at her summer residence in New Rochelle, N. Y., where are also Misses Alice and Addie Haynes.

BONDSVILLE.

Adolph Girouard has decided to close up his livery business, and advertises his entire stock of horses, carriages, etc., for sale at auction next week Saturday, at 10 a. m., if not disposed of at private sale before that date.

THORNDIKE.

At the Revere, the Sunday services were under the management of Mr. Collinson, of Baltimore. Sermon in the morning by Rev. Mr. Torsey, of Montreal. In the evening by Rev. C. H. Ricketts, of Palmer, Mass. Both gentlemen are gifted preachers, and were listened to with the closest attention.—Old Orchard (Me.) Sea Shell.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

Our gardens are looking hard just now.

Mr. and Mrs. William Twiss are at the seashore for a few weeks.

The French brass band holds a picnic at the Hill Grove to-day, giving an afternoon of dancing. In the evening a dramatic entertainment will be given in the hall. The object is to raise money for band uniforms.

WALES.

The peach pickers returned last Saturday, finding themselves about 10 days too early to pick.

Mrs. Carlton, the local milliner, has closed her rooms until October 1st, and gone west for her health.

E. Shaw and family, and P. W. Moore and family, accompanied by friends, have gone to the Vineyard for a few days.

WEST WARREN.

The Catholic picnic comes off to-day. The proceeds are for the church.

The Congregationalists gave a lawn party on the church grounds last night.

A cricket club is expected down from Warren to play the West Warren cricketers to-day.

The Rockets go to Ware to-day to play the Clippers. Great interest is manifested as to the result of the game, for each club has won a game from the other. The game between the Rockets and the Worcesters is "off," as the Rockets are unable to procure the grounds they wanted.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

On Monday evening Moses Phillips's dog was killed by the express train.

Quite a number availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Boston and Nantasket Friday.

No preaching services next Sunday. Sabbath school at 12.45, and prayer meeting at 5.30 p. m., as usual.

On account of the drouth the milkmen will advance the price of milk Aug. 20th from five to six cents per quart.

The boys very modestly scored another victory last Saturday, as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Paper Makers	2	0	1	0	1	0	3	0	0	—7

They play this afternoon with the Hampshires of South Hadley Falls.

THREE RIVERS.

The building for Heath & Shaw's market, on the east side of the river, is nearly completed.

The citizens of the village are showing their appreciation of the music rendered by our band, by building for their use a handsome stand on the common.

There will be services in the Union church Sunday, the pastor, Rev. W. L. Noyes, having returned from Old Orchard, Me., where he has been spending his vacation.

Miss Maggie Kenyon, organist at the Union church, is absent on her vacation, as are also Mrs. Nellie Milliken, soprano, and Miss Ada Paine, alto. Mrs. Milliken accompanied her husband to Old Orchard.

J. I. Milliken, overseer of the finishing at the Palmer Mills, is spending a short time at Old Orchard Beach, and Mr. Cheney, overseer of the weaving department, started this week to join his wife at Saco, Me., where she has been visiting friends.

BELCHERTOWN.

Every room at the Belcher House has already been engaged for the summer of 1883, which speaks well for the proprietor, as well as for the town attractions.

Kenfield's band gave a very enjoyable open air concert in the park last Tuesday evening. The citizens showed their appreciation by hearty cheers. That these demonstrations were shown in a manner that will encourage similar entertainments often is the wish of all.

The late John Francis Clapp, of Brooklyn, N. Y., son of James H. Clapp, deceased, has left a munificent gift of $40,000 to this, his native town, for a public library building and library. The bequest, with interest, will amount to fully $43,000. Everett and Dwight Clapp, brothers of the deceased and executors of the will, hope to begin work on the building next spring. This, in addition to what was left for the same purpose by the late Calvin Bridgman, will be a lasting memorial.

HAMPDEN.

The woodchucks are moving their habitations nearer to gardens and swamps, so as to get green fodder.

The Willing Workers of the M. E. Society netted $21 at their lawn party last week, and it was an enjoyable occasion.

W. G. West, of Boston, president of the Automatic Thread Machine Company, is in town spending the heated term at his father's.

The water in the streams is getting very low. The Ravine and Scantic Mills, which usually run entirely with water, are now running wholly by steam.

The drought still continues here, and while other towns in the vicinity are luxuriating in copious showers and green sward, we are lolling in heat and dust.

Some of the citizens of Hampden, with a few friends from Monson, had a grand time the other day at Evergreen Park, at State Line. The weather was fine, the company select and quiet, and all praised the projectors of the project.

The long needed well for school district No. 3 has at last been made, and will be highly appreciated by the children and the public in general until after the first tremendous shower, when they will awake in the morning and find the well non est, or de bonis non, it being located within the limit of the highway, and exactly in the ditch.

Sheriff Thresher has started a new enterprise in the south part of the town. He has bought of R. M. Day a clay bank, and is making the beds and preparing the machinery as fast as possible for brick making. He hauls the clay and sand about half a mile to the beds, on account of getting near water, which article will be a scarce commodity while the drought lasts.

O. A. Thresher's horse, which ran away at Hazardville a few weeks ago and was seriously damaged by getting a hind leg under the rail of the railroad track, is improving and is likely to get well. Mr. Thresher is rejoicing in a very heavy hay crop. He not only filled his own barn to overflowing, but also filled his uncle Dorman's barn, and has put some in other neighbors' barns, and has sold some.

MONSON.

S. F. Cushman is cooling off in the State of Maine, wherein resideth Blaine.

The straw shop is running on fall goods, with a more than ordinary business term.

Repairs and improvements are being made at the Academy preparatory to the fall term.

Daniel Riley has a new barn erected near his dwelling house on the West Branch road.

Gage & Reynolds are making repairs and improvements preparatory to their fall and winter term.

Horace Squier has purchased a building lot on Pease Avenue, and will erect a dwelling house this season.

Peaches, green corn, cucumbers and the like are quite plenty in the markets, and the doctors don't complain.

Butter and milk seem to be one of the hard things to find, the recent drought having curtailed the supply of lacteal fluid.

Lewis Rogers has bought a building lot on Highland street, easterly of Patrick Shea, and will build a house thereon at once.

Dr. Homer Smith of Bondville has returned to town, and will assume the practice of his father, the late Alvan Smith, M. D.

James Pendergast has purchased a building lot on Pearl street, and will commence the erection of a dwelling house at once.

Not one cent of appropriation in the river and harbor bill for Monson, and no one blames Congressman Robinson, either.

Julius Lyon will build a house on Pearl street, and has sold one lot to another party, who will probably put up a house this season.

Arba Squier has completed the building of the new road from Pease Avenue to Hampden Avenue, and also the new road east of High street.

H. E. Aldrich, the livery man, has recently made additions to his stock of new carriages and turnouts, and is having a brisk business in his line.

Whortleberries are 10c. a quart, scarce at that, and said to be more like dried berries than the usually wholesome, juicy berry of former years.

Wm. Carroll has erected a new barn adjacent to his house, and will continue the breeding of Alderneys, in which he has had peculiarly good fortune.

Flynt & Co. are having more than the usual amount of business at their quarries, and have a contract at Colchester, Conn., which employs over 100 men.

The Messrs. Munn have the north store and addition to the block occupied by Gage Bros. nearly completed, and it will be ready for occupancy in the course of a month.

Curbing is being put in in front of the residence of Mrs. Wm. Puffer, and is also being extended southerly in front of E. P. Newton's, A. A. Gage's and Mrs. Gilbert White's places.

Amasa Harvey has bought a building lot on Pearl street of Northrop & Ferrill, and has the cellar dug preparatory to erecting a dwelling house, which is contracted for, to be completed this season.

Potatoes are occasionally found larger than hens' eggs, and no doubt there will soon be among the farmers the same newspaper rivalry in regard to the size of potatoes that there has been in the size of eggs.

Lafayette Moulton, a long time resident on Moulton hill, and an old veteran in the army, is seriously ill at Brookfield, where he has been engaged in the foundry business, and serious doubts are entertained of his recovery.

King Avenue begins to loom up as one of the streets to be. A. W. Ferry's house now building, and two or three more in prospect, warrant the belief that this will be one of the prominent, as well as pleasant, streets in that locality.

The mania for street lamps has somewhat subsided. A few months ago every street corner and many private residences were illuminated, but the fever has died out. One party who erected a lamp post with all the fixtures nearly a year ago, says it has not been used as yet.

Messrs. Northrop and Ferrill are having customers for building lots on their plot of ground easterly of Merrick & Fay's shop. The location is very central to the railroad, post office, schools and churches, and it seems as though the fever for building this season was centering in that locality.

Uncle John Ferry, the vegetarian whose regular visits have made glad many a housewife, says that the recent dry spell has curtailed his naturally good disposition to dispense blessings and vegetables among his customers, but he hopes for rain for the mutual benefit of himself and his many patrons.

The recent dry spell has demonstrated the fact that if a good reservoir with pipe connected to the Main street should be built by some company or individuals, it would not only be a paying investment, but be a great accommodation to many of our citizens, and in case of fire it might supersede the main fire department, which now consists of only a few cakes of ice and one or two second hand syringes.

WARE AND VICINITY.

The Clippers scored another victory over the Thorndikes at that place last Saturday.

Dr. G. L. Withrow, of Park street church, Boston, will preach at the East Congregational church on Sunday.

All the mills in Ware and Gilbertville closed up on Friday, that any of their operatives who wished might go on the excursion to Nantasket.

Our chairman of the selectmen, C. C. Hitchcock, has returned from his trip to Lake George, bringing with him several dozen photographs, taken with his amateur outfit, of the scenery through which he passed.

Rev. A. E. P. Perkins, D.D., arrived home from his four months' European trip on Tuesday afternoon. He has been through England, Ireland and Switzerland. His son, Herbert P. Perkins, who has been studying at Munich, returned with him.

Charles H. Tarbell, who has been express messenger on the Ware River R. R. for about six years, has resigned the position, to take effect the first of September. He is to go into the hotel business at Brimfield, and has the best wishes of his host of friends here for his success in the new business.

Perry Cheever has in his possession a book giving the history of his ancestors. Ezekiel Cheever, the first, came from England to Boston in the year 1637. He was the first Latin and Greek scholar in the country. He taught school, most of the time in Boston, for 70 years, and died at the age of 94. It is supposed that most of the old educated men of Boston received their education either directly or indirectly from him. The book contains a fac-simile of his hand-writing, and specimen pages of the printing of some of his works published at that day.

The National Associated Press has recently been reorganized, and has leased a special wire from New York to New England. On Monday the Boston Globe begun to receive its general news on a wire which runs directly into its editorial rooms from New York, the first instance in American journalism where a daily newspaper has been able to secure its general news on a special wire into its editorial rooms.

Ex-Gov. Sprague tore down the bridge leading to his estate at Canonchet, R. I., and patrolled the avenue to the house with a loaded rifle, but in spite of his belligerent attitude an auctioneer knocked off the estate, Tuesday, for $62,250, standing on the wreck of the bridge. It was bought by Frank D. Moulton of New York.

Even the Indians are becoming prohibitionists out West. Some of the red men at the Pine Ridge agency, Dakota, have asked the agent to post notices offering $50 reward for evidence by which any person is convicted of furnishing liquor to Indians under the law, and the savages will themselves pay the money.

It appears that lumber which has been imported from Canada into the United States as one inch boards, are really an inch and a quarter thick, and the government having discovered this fact, has issued an order which has for the present caused a practical suspension of the lumber business.

Sixty-seven oil mills in the South have caused an advance in cotton seed from $6 to $15. Of the 3,000,000 tons of cotton seed in the last year's crop, only one-sixteenth was used, leaving seed enough as waste to make 87,000,000 gallons, worth, manufactured into oil, $63,000,000.

The Grand Trunk Railroad has absorbed the Great Western road, and now practically controls the railroad business of Canada. The Grand Trunk system now covers 3330 miles—an immense stretch of line to be controlled and operated by one coperation.

Before the dreaded ophthalmia can make havoc with the English troops in Egypt it will have to overcome the resistance of blue spectacles, of which 25,000 pairs have been ordered by the Government, at 5 cents a pair.

A couple of men went into the First National Bank at Kewanee, Ill., Monday afternoon, pounded the cashier and his female assistant, locked them up in the vault, and walked off with $20,000.

The town of Payson, Ill., by a vote put the matter of licensing rumsellers into the hands of a Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Of course, no licenses are now granted.

It is said that a young Southern widow who recently married a young Pittsfield millionare forfeits $500,000 by the rash act, but it reverts to her child by a former husband.

Such large numbers of smelt are dying in Lake Champlain that in some spots the surface is thickly covered with them, appearing at a little distance like flecks of foam.

The fire insurance agents of Lancaster, Pa., will stop issuing policies and cancel all now in force unless the authorities adopt measures to suppress incendiarism.

The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company has reported that its gross earnings for the year ending June 30, 1882, amounted to $24,557,041,34.

Considerable excitement has been created at Plattsburg, N. Y., by the sale of 50,000 acres in the heart of the Adirondack region to a company of lumber dealers. The tract covers the region of St. Regis lake and the Upper Saranac, so well known and loved by anglers. The purchasers intend to build a track to the center of the wilderness, and construct saw mills at many points. The great tract of splendid pine timber will be despoiled; the clear streams choked with slabs and sawdust; the breeding places of the trout polluted, and every quality destroyed that has given the North woods their attractiveness and fame.

There is now a gap of a little more than 600 miles between the approaching ends of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which is being closed up at the rate of nearly four miles a day. A daily line of four-horse stages is now running between the two ends of the line, and by the 1st of October the schedule passenger time between Chicago and Portland will be reduced to eight days, which is less than the present time between the two cities by way of San Francisco. A force of 8000 men is employed in pushing forward the road, and the whole line is expected to be completed and in running order early in 1883.

It is estimated that the corn crop of Kansas will be worth $60,000,000. The oat crop is the heaviest ever known in that State. Virginia has made the greatest wheat crop since the war, and the corn crop never looked better than now. Fruits and vegetables are equally prolific.

September Magazines.

The North American Review for September has for its leading article a forcible presentment by Dorman B. Eaton, of the evils produced by the practice of levying "Political Assessments." The paper is noteworthy for its striking array of facts, also because it will be universally regarded as the ultimatum of a large section of the Republican party, addressed to the party leaders. "Oaths in Legal Proceedings," by Judge Edward A. Thomas is a discussion of the question whether the interests of morality and public justice would not be promoted by the abrogation of all laws requiring testimony to be given under the sanction of an oath. Thompson B. Maury, late of the Signal Office, contributes an article on "Tornadoes and their Causes," which possesses the merit of suggesting many practical measures for averting disaster to life and property from wind-storms. "Architecture in America," by Clarence Cook, is marked by a freedom of utterance that is refreshing. Augustus G. Cobb writes of "Earth-Burial and Cremation," and J. F. Manning, in an article entitled "The Geneva Award and the Ship-Owners," sets forth the justice of the claims of consignors of cargoes and owners of vessels to indemnification out of the Geneva Award Fund. The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

Harper's Magazine for September has a frontispiece from a picture by Alfred Parsons, entitled "A Sunday Morning in Surrey," and the same artist illustrates Mrs. Lillie's papers, "In Surrey," the first of which is contained in this number. There is also an illustrated article quaintly describing our own coast-town of York, Maine. Mr. Lathrop's "Spanish Vistas" closes with a description of "Mediterranean Ports and Gardens," the coast towns from Malaga to Barcelona. Colonel Higginson's third paper on "American History" is devoted to discoveries by the Northmen, and has eight engravings. "A Doctor Spoiled," by Barnet Phillips, "Some Recollections of Ralph Waldo Emerson," by E. P. Whipple, "Love will Find Out the Way," by Mrs. E. D. E. Stoddard, are some of the attractions; "Shandon Bell" becomes more interesting each month, and the editorial departments are always attractive and entertaining.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Our friend Morse of the "Central Shoe Store," Springfield, has waked up the liveliest kind of a trade with his 3000 pairs "Drummer's Samples." The truth is, it is a genuine thing and draws like a magnet.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, whooping cough, influenza, consumption, and all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. 1y3

The salutary effects of Simmons Liver Regulator upon the NERVOUS system, prostrated by long suffering with dyspepsia, constipation and kindred diseases, is without a precedent. Its tonic, cathartic and alterative effects are truly wonderful.

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

PLEASE REMEMBER THIS.—Renne's Magic Oil still stands in the front ranks and at the head of all curative agents; and that before its miraculous influences all internal pains and aches, such as Cramps, Colic Pains, Cholera Morbus, Dirrhœa, Dysentery, &c., give way at once, and that Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Ailments cannot withstand its wondrous powers for even a single hour. It is especially recommended to ladies for certain ailments, as it is as clear as crystal, as aromatic as rose water, and as harmless as the limpid spring, being a purely vegetable preparation.
"It works like a charm." 4w20

"Malt Bitters have no rivals in this town."
"Best thing for nursing mothers we have."
"We like to recommend Malt Bitters." a

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria and Canker Mouth. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Peruvian Syrup cures dyspepsia, general debility, liver complaint, boils, humors, chronic diarrhœa, nervous affections, female complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood. 1y3

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief? Price 10c., 50c. and $1.00. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it, Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

Palmer, March 1st, 1882.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN, STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS: The undersigned, citizens and legal voters of the town of Palmer, county of Hampden, and State of Massachusetts, respectfully represent that the public necessity and convenience require that a highway be laid out at Bond's Village, in said Palmer, as follows, viz: Beginning at a pine stump in the northerly side and at the southern terminus of a town way leading from house of Timothy Lynes to Humphrey Sullivan's, and running south 77° east, 565 ft. in land of Humphrey Sullivan to a maple tree in line of land of John Cavin, thence south 87½° east, 160 ft. to land of Daniel Sullivan, thence same course south 50° 20' east, 336 ft. to a point in the westerly side of Daniel Sullivan's wood-shed and 3 ft. southerly of its northwest corner, above being northerly line of highway asked for. And we pray that your honorable board will view the premises, lay out such way and take such other action as you may deem fit. J. B. CARMODY AND OTHERS.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—HAMPDEN SS. At a meeting of the County Commissioners holden at Springfield, within and for said county, on the first day of August, in the year of our Lord 1882.
And now upon the petition aforesaid, the county commissioners, deeming a view of the premises expedient and proper, give notice that they will meet for the purpose of said view at the depot of the Springfield & Athol R. R. Co., in Bondsville, Palmer, on Thursday, the seventh day of September next, at eight o'clock a. m.; and it is ordered by the county commissioners that a copy of said petition be served by the sheriff of said county or his deputy, upon the clerk of the town of Palmer, in said county, thirty days at least before the said seventh day of September, and that all other persons and corporations interested therein be notified, by publishing a copy of said petition and this order thereon, once a week, in the Palmer Journal, a public newspaper printed in said county, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time of said view. And it is further ordered by the commissioners that copies of said petition, or abstracts containing the substance thereof and this order, be posted by said sheriff or deputy, in two public places in the town of Palmer, fourteen days before said seventh day of September, and that notice be given in manner aforesaid to all persons and corporations interested, that the county commissioners deem a view of the premises expedient and proper, and that a view of the same will be taken by them at the time and place aforesaid,
ROBERT O. MORRIS, Clerk.
True copy of the petition and order of the county commissioners thereon. Attest:

TO THE HONORABLE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN, STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS: We, the undersigned, citizens and legal voters of the town of Palmer, would respectfully represent that the exact bounds on that portion of the county road leading from Ware to Belchertown, as lies between the residence of John Carmody and the road leading from Enfield to Palmer in the village of Bondsville, cannot readily be ascertained. In view of this fact, we would pray your honorable board to view said premises, establish bounds on same, and take such other action in the matter as may to you seem meet and proper.
Bondsville, Mass., July 21st, 1882.

Make the Best of Life.

What's the use of always fretting
Over ills that can't be cured?
What's the use of finding fault with
What we know must be endured?
Does it make our burdens lighter
If we grumble 'neath the load?
Does it make life's pathway smoother
If we fret about the road?
Better use our time, than fill it
Full of sighs and vain regrets
Over some imagined blunder—
As does he who always frets.

We cannot expect life's pathway
To be always strewn with flowers;
Nor the time which God has given
To all be made of happy hours.
Storms will follow every sunshine,
Grief be mixed with every joy;
And 'tis best that it should be so—
Gold's too soft without alloy.
"Half our trouble's our invention,"
We're to blame for half our strife;
Then, if life is what we make it,
Why not make the best of life?

AMERICAN MANNERS.

The St. Louis Republican believes that while American manners are doubtless susceptible of much improvement, they are not nearly so black as they are frequently painted by foreign fools and native snobs. If by good manners are meant 'the small, sweet courtesies of life,' then ours will bear comparison with the foreign article. An American may not bow as gracefully as a Frenchman, but he will sacrifice quite as much personal covenience and comfort for a stranger as the Frenchman—perhaps more. An American may not be as elegant at a dinner party as an Englishman, but he will not ride half a day in a railway car without speaking to a fellow passenger at his elbow, as the Englishman will.

A lady—whether young or old, pretty or plain—may travel from Boston to San Francisco without an escort, and receive all the needed attentions from men whom she never saw before and will never see again. Would the same lady be equally fortunate in a trip from London to Paris, or Paris to Rome? In our street cars a laboring man, wearied out with the day's toil, will give his seat to any woman who enters. How many European gentlemen would do the same? There is more chivalric respect shown to women in America than anywhere else on earth, and such respect is inconsistent with intense 'vulgarity ofmanners.'

In drawing-room accomplishments and the graces of the dancing master, and in those indescribable products of high breeding found in the circles of hereditary aristocracy, America must now—and always, perhaps—yield the palm to Europe; but in genuine courtesy, and unselfish politeness, disposition to accommodate, readiness to go out of one's way to help others—Europe has much to learn from America. Our manners are 'in the rough' and need polishing; but the material of which they are made is gold, not pinchbeck. Vulgar manners are bad, but artificial worse. Let us hope and believe that by diligent minding of our own business and making the best of ourselves without servile copying of European models, we shall some day reach a point in education, manners and morals which will meet the demands of the most fastidious taste, foreign or domestic.

MONKEY TRICKS.

An old monkey sat cozily asleep in a snug corner, with a friend nestling against him and indulging likewise in a comfortable snooze. Presently a young skylarker approached them somewhat timidly, and squatting beside the friend, sat quiet for some seconds, then suddenly, as if possessed by some malicious inspiration, he reached his arm out cautiously behind the slumbering friend and gave the elderly monkey a whacking box on the ear. He, waking in just wrath, and unsuspicious of the truth—for the culprit was now shamming sleep and looked the picture of innocence—flew at his friend with an indictment for assault and chivied him with monstrous clamor round and round the cage, while the culprit sat regarding them and jabbering with joy. Some little time afterward, the performance was repeated; the old monkey and his friend having settled in the corner, and the assault and wrongful punishment occurring as before. Once again the trick was tried, but the friend who had twice suffered, was shamming sleep this time, and caught the culprit in the act, and, with the help of the old monkey, gave him a good drubbing, which, indeed, he well deserved.—All the Year Round.

GRINDSTONES. — Grindstones should be cared for. The following are directions:—1. Don't allow the stone to stand in water when not in use, as this will cause a soft place, and consequent uneven wear. 2. Wet the stone by dropping water on it from a pot suspended above the stone, and stop off the water when not in use. 3. Do not allow the stone to get out of round, but true up with a piece of gas-pipe or a 'hacker.' 4. do not leave the stone out of doors in the wind and weather, as this hardens it and makes it less effective. 5. Clean off all greasy tools before grinding, as grease or oil destroys the grit. 6. When you get a stone that suits your purposes, keep a sample of the grit to send to the dealer to select by, as in this way you can always secure one that suits.

'Father,' said the young man, as he leaned on his hoe, 'they say the balance of trade is agin us.' 'They do, eh?' 'And that our bank reserves are rapidly diminishing.' 'Du tell!' 'And that railroad extension has come to a halt.' 'Well, I swan!' 'And that the volume of securities is substantially without a market.' 'Great snakes! Well, I never! And do they say anything about a feller stopping to lean on his hoe to talk when he might just as well talk and hoe?' Reuben spit on his hands and resumed.—Wall Street News.

Pat(to Sandy)—'Shure, now, Sandy, yer a good-looking fellow; but yer face spoils yez greatly. You've the fine open countenance, though.' Sandy—'Ou, aye, man, and ye hae the fine open countenance yersel'; but it's below the nose.'

AMATEUR INCOMPETENTS.

We see every day stately and substantial edifices being built up around us. We frequently conceive the idea of building for ourselves. Our first move is to consult some reliable architect, from whom we receive the plans of the building. These may receive alteration or improvement from our hands. We give the plans into the hands of a trustworthy builder, by whom, under the supervision of the architect, the building is erected. The building is turned over to us, finished, as a safe and comfortable place of abode. This is as it should be. But suppose we, who know nothing about the science and mechanism necessary to erect a house, should endeavor to build one. Would we live in it? Certainly not! 'Tis nothing but the offspring of incompetency and botch-work, and our lives would not be safe in such a rickety edifice a moment. We wish to guide these remarks, in a gentle manner, in the direction of that prolific being—the amateur printer. Now be it far from us to discourage the aspirations of the rising young of this generation. But the miserable evidences we see on all sides of their attempts at the mysteries of typography, compel us, through charity, to peremptorily shut down all support, aid, and encouragement they may look to us for. Who that has regard for success, for reputable position among the business classes of the community, will circulate, in broad daylight, these emblems of printing, of the rickety building pattern, in this age of beautiful typographical development? Did these tools of the "art preservative" remain in the hands of the youth, as toys, no condemnation might be issued against the pleasures resulting from such use. But, as is often the case with many boys, after two or three years' apprenticeship in a printing office, and having barely learned the correct position and requirements of typesetting, they graduate into the world full-fledged printers—so with this other class. Their model press no sooner starts working than, flushed with ardor, and desirous of conquering the difficulties of a visiting card or a drug-label, they circulate themselves among their friends soliciting work. And cases have been known where their aspirations so intoxicated them as to cause them to issue a card of their own, with the mystic word "Printer" in close proximity to their names! Their building will hot stand, and he who lives in it or patronizes this class of spoilers will surely come to grief. Cheap work brings cheap results.

No sounder advice than this can be given. When you desire creditable printing—printing that will be read by an enlightened community, who will judge your wares or business qualifications by the manner you set them forth, when you desire to encourage legitimate trade, to support competent workmen, to frown down all botchers, go to headquarters—go to the architect—who is the printer; go to the builder—who is the competent compositor—and you will have work that will stand—printing that you will not be ashamed of, and that will bring you trade and profit.—Typographic Advertiser.

In France fourteen jurors are drawn for each trial, twelve to form the jury and two to act as substitutes in case of sickness. The two substitutes are sworn, sit in the jury box, but take no part in finding the verdict unless they are required to fill a vacancy. Unanimity is not required in finding a verdict, but there must be a majority of eight to four to carry a full conviction.

The steel wheels on the forward truck of engine Number 39 on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Road were made in 1876 by Frederick Krupp, the great cannon maker, and have been in constant use ever since. They have been run 185,620 miles, cost about $100 apiece, and are still as good as when first put on.

Memorial Hall, erected by Philadelphia for the Exhibition of 1876 at a cost of $1,500,000 and intended to stand as a reminder of that event, is serving the latter purpose by requiring very extensive repairs. The roof cannot hold itself up much longer, and other parts of the pretentious building are falling to ruin.

A little son of Orlando Whitney of Darien, whose neck was dislocated recently by the upsetting of a carriage, has had it set and is getting well. The boy was obliged to lie in a plaster paris cast as the only thing that could save his life. A movement to the right or left would have been fatal.

Faxon, the wide-awake temperance agitator, has compiled and published a very convenient pamphlet, giving all the statutes of this State now in force for the regulation of the liquor traffic, with a digest of decisions bearing upon the subject.

There is said to be gold enough in Snake River Valley, Idaho, to pay the national debt if it could be gathered. On hundreds of thousands of acres it can be found with a common gold pan, but it is so light that it escapes all known processes.

Sharks are very numerous in Bristol harbor, R. I., and a few days ago a party of young men who were bathing at the Narrows found themselves surrounded by a school of these creatures, which led to a hasty retreat for the shore.

Eben Carey of Burrillville, R. I., 79 years old, has for 40 years mowed each summer a double swath in a swamp meadow, and the other day he repeated the feat, in spite of feebleness, before an admiring crowd of neighbors.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER,

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq.,
Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. —, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me, so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. LEN. M. FRAILEY,
64 South Street, Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and blood diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

BY UNIVERSAL ACCORD

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative pill that science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar coated they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

MALARIA!

THE ONLY REMEDY KNOWN

TO DESTROY THIS DEADLY PEST.

The most alarming fact, in our sanitary conditions, is the prevalence of MALARIAL POISON not only in marshy, low-lying districts, but in the cities and upon elevated ground where, a few years since, it was unheard of. Frequently fatal disorders of the digestive functions, wasted and enfeebled body and even insanity are the dire effects of malarial poisoning, the sure precursors of death if the poison is not neutralized. The boatmen on the Del. & Hudson Canal, as well as the inhabitants of the adjoining country, have been great sufferers from MALARIA. Not until a few years past did they find a reliable remedy. Now thousands testify that there is but one real and speedy cure for malarial poisoning, and that is DR. KENNEDY'S "FAVORITE REMEDY," which by its action upon the blood purifies it and restores a healthy tone to the entire system. As a preventive in localities where this danger lurks, it is invaluable. The "FAVORITE REMEDY" also cures the worst liver and kidney complaints and all diseases caused by vitiated blood. For sale by all druggists: price $1.00 per bottle. It is an absolutely safe, purely vegetable remedy, the greatest alterative medicine in the world. Address the proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N.Y. 4w20

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quieted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

Go Away!

With a bumpsy swish and a curdled roar,
Sweet Mary's churn goes drumming;
Young Reuben leans on the low half-door
And hopes that the butter's coming;
Then sighs and sighs, and drops his eyes—
What words can his feelings utter?
"O, drop me into the churn," he cries,
"And make me into butter."
She rests her hands, and gazing stands
At sound of his words' vagary,
Then plies the staff with a lightsome laugh,
"O, go away!" says Mary.

If a maiden's word means aught, they say,
The opposite sense is in it.
So Reuben finds in her "Go away!"
A "just come in a minute."
"I hope," says he, "I may make so free,"
With a grin and a nervous stutter,
"My answer would be to your ears," says she,
"If I could but leave the butter."
His arm on the shelf that holds the delf,
He looks across the dairy;
"Shall I go to her side? Shall I dare her pride?"
"O, go away!" says Mary.

He takes the hint and he takes a kiss,
With fears and inward quaking;
She does not take what he takes amiss,
Nor seem in an awful taking.
Sweet kisses he takes so loud and fast
That he takes her breath completely;
He takes her tight in his arms at last,
And still she takes it sweetly!
The heart of the boy is wild with joy;
He has won her—his bird, his fairy;
"I'll go outright for the ring to-night!"
"Oh, go away!" says Mary.

CARRADINE'S LOVE.

Carradine sat alone at his easel, painting; and as he painted, he thought. Eight years before, when he was a poor and struggling boy, just entering on that race which must be run by every aspirant to art and its honors, there happened to him something which neither time nor toil had ever been able to efface from his memory. As he was passing along the streets a wreath of fragrant roses suddenly fell on his head, and, looking up in wonder, he beheld, reaching out from the embroidered draperies of an overhanging window, a child, with great, dark eyes, and long curling, black locks, who stood smiling and throwing him kisses from her curved lips, colored like a pomegranate. While she still gazed, a nurse had come forward and drawn the child away; the curtains were closed, and he saw the little creature no more.

Such was the vision that the artist had carried so long in his memory; in his memory only, for he had no second glimpse of the child. That very day an accident occurred which kept him a prisoner in his room for some weeks, and when next he went out the house was empty, and a placard with great flaring letters announcing it for sale stared him in the face, from the same window in which the little while-robed elf had stood waving her hand and smiling to him. In course of time other faces appeared there, but they were strange faces, and among them was never the one for which he looked.

Now, as Carradine sat painting alone, he thought of all this; of the struggle that had ended at length in success; of the beautiful child with her fragrant rose-crown, which had seemed almost like a prophecy. That rose-wreath, dry and withered now, was all that was left to him of the fair vision, but when one morning, in turning over an old portfolio, he had come upon it by chance, it spoke to him of that by-gone day just as eloquently as when its blossoms were fresh and full.

'Eight years ago,' he said, thoughtfully, letting the shriveled circle slip through his fingers slowly. 'She must be near sixteen now—if she lives. If? No, I do not doubt her living presence—somewhere. I wonder where she is now, and what she is like at sixteen?'

With that, he placed the wreath beside his easel and began to paint. The face as it grew on his canvas, presented a young girl in the dewy morning blush of first youth, with shadows in the great dark eyes and a half smile about the curved lips, like an embodied summer sun shower. It was thus that the artist pictured his ideal of the childwoman whose infantine look and smile, for eight long years had been his own dream of love.

Carradine had not had an easy life. An orphan from his earliest years, poor and unfriended, he had striven hard for the means to gratify that inherent idolatry for art which was always clamoring to find expression in form and coloring. He had fought and he had won; but now, at twenty-six, he stood in the place which he had gained for himself, almost as much alone as he had been eight years before, when the child's gift came to him as a prophecy.

It was not that he was friendless. There were men who liked and sought him; women who would gladly have taught him to forget his loneliness in their affection. But, though his nature responded readily to any kindness, there was one chord, deeper than all, that remained untouched; and, from the sweetest glances, his thoughts went back to the unknown child that had smiled on him so long ago.

The ideal head became his great source of enjoyment; and a dreamy softness shaded his dark-gray eyes, as line by line and tint by tint took him back into the past, which, all lifeless as it was, seemed to him in those moments more real than the busy present. Yet now, in reviewing that one bright vision of his memory, it was not so much the lovely child that he saw, in fancy, as the beautiful girl whose face, with fuller depth and sweetness, looked out at him from his own canvas.

Instinctively, he hardly knew why, he disliked to work on this picture in any other presence, and he devoted to it only his hours of solitude. So it happened that it was nearly finished when, by some chance, a friend discovered him bending over it, too absorbed to notice any approach. As the door opened, Carradine rose hastily, turning his easel to the wall so as to conceal the face upon it. This little stratagem, however, was destined to be of no avail. Having been marked by the intruder—one of those cordial, well meaning people, good-natured to a degree, but with no delicacy of perception—the action at once aroused his curiosity.

'Aha, master painter,' he said, with a laugh, 'let us see what it is that you work at by yourself till it steals away your eyes and ears. Only one peep!'

With that, he laid his hand on the frame, and receiving no forbidding word from Carradine, turned it round. The next moment he was loud in praise.

'But who is it, Carradine? If it is a portrait tell me where to find the original, and I will, if it is a seven days' journey!'

Carradine smiled.

'If I myself knew where to find such an original, I should not be here to tell you, my good friend,' he answered evasively.

'Oh, a fancy sketch,' said the other, misled as the artist had desired. 'I might have saved myself the trouble of asking. No real flesh and blood face ever looked like that—the more shame to Nature, I say! Of course you will exhibit it, Carradine?'

'No,' answered the painter quietly.

'No!' repeated the other in surprise. 'But my dear fellow you must, or I shall betray your secret, and you will have a swarm of visitors, worse than a plague of Egypt let in upon you.'

Carradine hesitated. A chance word in his friend's speech had suggested a possibility that made his heart leap in spite of sober reason.

'You are right,' he said. 'I shall send the picture for exhibition. It will be better so.'

After his visitor had left him alone again, Carradine bent long over his easel, gazing into the lovely, upturned face, until it began to fade into the gathering twilight.

'If—if!' he murmured to himself, half unconsciously. 'But it cannot be. Yet I will send it,—and perhaps—'

And so the picture was sent, in due time; and it seemed almost as if Carradine's soul had gone with it and drawn him to follow. Hour after hour, and day after day, he sat in the gallery, scrutinizing eagerly every face amid the visitors, whom taste or fashion had brought to look at the now celebrated artist's latest success. Every night he went away unsatisfied, and every morning he returned with hope springing afresh in his heart.

Still the object of his search, whatever it may have been, did not appear; and one day, discouraged at last, he resolved to go no more on so fruitless an errand. Shutting himself in his studio, he began to paint, but strive as he would, he could command neither hand nor fancy. Finally, tired of repeated failure, he abandoned work, and yielded to the impulse which drew his steps in the customary direction. When he entered the small side room in which his picture hung, he found but two persons within, a young man and a girl.

Carradine could not see the faces of these two; but, with an earnestness for which he was at a loss to account, he followed their retreating figures as they moved slowly toward his picture. But the next moment an exclamation of astonishment burst from the lips of the young man.

'Why, here is your portrait, Lelia! What does it mean? Who can the painter be?'

With that, he hurried out to purchase a catalogue.

Carradine advanced quickly to the girl and said: 'I am the painter.'

She turned and looked at him with one steady gaze from those glorious eyes which had haunted his visions for so many years. Then she spoke.

'You painted that picture? and how did you do it?'

'From remembrance,' he answered. 'It was my only tribute to the little unknown princess who crowned me once with roses. Does she remember it?'

For a moment doubt was in her face, but as he looked fixedly at her it vanished in certainty. A smile just touched the bright red lips.

'It was you, then, on whom I forced my roses? a princess who gave away honors unasked. How often have I wondered since—'

She stopped, turned to the canvas and added abruptly, 'But I was a child then; and here—'

'Here you are a young woman,' said Carradine, completing the unspoken sentence. 'Is it so hard to understand? The same power that kept the child in my heart showed me into what she would ripen.'

She did not look at him now, but at the picture, as she asked in a low voice: 'And who am I to thank for such an honor?'

'My name is Hubert Carradine,' he answered, and saw at once that it was no unfamiliar word to her. 'And yours? Through all these years, your face has haunted me always, but your name I never knew.'

She hesitated a moment, and then turned to him.

'You never knew my name? Then think of me still as you have thought of me through all these years,' she said, a half smile lingering about her mouth, but never lighting the great dark eyes that were shaded by some subtle sadness. The look, the tone, transported Carradine beyond all remembrance of place or circumstance, into the unreal realm of imagination in which his wish was supreme ruler.

'I have thought of you always as my life and my love,' he said half unconsciously, his dreamy, deep gray eyes glowing upon her face. She blushed suddenly, and then paled instantly. Just then her former companion entered the room.

'I am Lelia Auvernay,' she said, hastily, 'and this is Cecil Wyndham, my—my betrothed husband.'

Not another word was said. As the young man approached, Carradine fell back a step and looked at the two. His was a fair, handsome face, so little marked as yet by time, that it would be hard for an unpracticed eye to conjecture with what lines the shaping character would stamp it. Nevertheless, with one keen gaze Carradine estimated both present and future.

She said a few low-spoken words to her companion, who presently moved toward Carradine, and addressed him.

'I have the honor of speaking to Mr. Carradine, the painter of this picture?'

Carradine bowed without speaking.

'Will you pardon me for asking if it is a fancy sketch?' continued Mr. Wynham.

'Partly so, but suggested by the face of a little girl,' answered the artist.

'But the likeness is very striking!' muttered the young gentleman. 'I must have it at any rate. Of course you will part with it—at your own price?'

'The picture is not for sale,' said Carradine, quietly, still regarding the young man with that cool, steady gaze which had already caused him to betray a hesitation, almost confusion, very unlike his usual easy confidence. He seemed to have an instinctive knowledge that the artist was measuring him, and to shrink from that measurement with unconscious dread.

Carradine saw Lelia Auvernay once more before she returned to her home in a distant town. Then he took his picture from the academy walls, and hung it in his studio, where his eyes could find it whenever he looked away from his work. For he did not give up work; yet, among themselves, his friends pronounced him an altered man, and marveled what had caused so subtle a difference. Always quiet, he now seemed to live in an ideal world of his own; and whatever he might occupy himself with, there was that in his manner which appeared to imply that it was only temporary diversion until the coming of some event for which he was patiently waiting.

So passed half a year, at the end of which there came a letter to Carradine. It was very brief, but it was enough to assure him of that which he had been almost unconsciously expecting.

The letter was from Lelia Auvernay. He went to her at once. She met him with a laughing light in her eyes, such as he had not seen there when she stood in the gallery beside her betrothed husband; a light which recalled the merry child who had smiled on him so long ago.

'Mr. Carradine,' she said, 'I told you that my fortune was gone, but I did not tell you how utterly it had been swept away. I am nothing better than a beggar! Will you take me for one of your students, for charity's sake?'

He looked searchingly into her smiling face.

'And Mr. Wyndham?' he asked in a low voice.

She laughed without so much as a flush of emotion.

'Mr. Wyndham has gone with the rest of my earthly possessions. Did I not say that I had lost everything? You see, Mr. Carradine, that I am not of as much worth now as my picture.'

The words, as she said them, did not seem bitter. He took her hands.

'Lelia,' he said, 'does your loss make you unhappy?'

'Do I look so?' she asked gayly. 'As for marriage, it was my father's wish, and so to grant his dying request I consented—before I knew my own heart—' here a quick, vivid color shot into her cheek, but she went on. 'There never was love on my side; and on his—well money is more than love—with some natures. I do not wish to blame him.'

Carradine's grasp tightened on her hands.

'Leila,' he said, 'once your answer put a bar between us, when I spoke words that were surprised out of my heart. Would it be so now, if I should say them once more? My love, my life, will you come to me?'

'Will I come!' she repeated, looking up in his eyes and drawing nearer, until his arms silently folded about her.

And so Carradine found his love at last.

POLISH IMMIGRANTS IN DETROIT.

'They're a thrifty people, the Polanders.'

'Thrifty! Let a family consisting of husband and wife, four children, and a grandfather and a grandmother come to town with $150 or $200 in cash, and in five years they will own $5000 worth of property.'

'How in the science of economy do they do it?'

'By having just such women as you see ahead of you.'

'They are used to such service from childhood?'

'Yes; the children are utilized for the gathering of firewood and swill.'

'Now, what do they do with that scrap lumber? Firewood?'

'Firewood? Not much. That is building material.'

Mr. Baxter drove through the Polish quarter of the city. The houses there are all small, but they afford perfect shelter from rain and cold, and in very many cases are made of scrap lumber.

'You see,' said Mr. Baxter, 'they 'strike' the city, and until they can get a house of their own they are cared for by their friends. (There are now from two to four families in nearly every house.) They lease a lot for a year at $10 per year, agreeing to pay all taxes. They then begin work. The men are most of them ordinary laborers, earning from ninety cents to $1.25 per day. By the aid of choice bits selected from swill gathered by the children, enough is saved from the wages to pay the ground rent and buy nails, brick for chimneys, and little odds and ends needed in housebuilding. Meanwhile the women patrol the city for scrap lumber.'

'What do they do for foundation timbers and framing?'

'Occasionally they buy them, but often they get the stuff for the carrying of it away, when, in the business portion of the city, some old wooden building is being torn down to make way for a new structure.'

'The women do not lug joists and scantling on their backs, do they?'

'No; they find out where such materials are to be had, and then they get some friend who is driving a team for some merchant or manfacturer, and when he is on his way home at night meet him at the place specified and load up his wagon.'

'As a class, these Poles are very healthy?'

'A physician told me once that he never saw a class so muscular, so free from disease, and so prompt to pay for medical attendance.'

'How do you account for it?'

'I don't try to. The other day I met two Polanders whom I knew well, and they each had four or five beef hoofs, with perhaps two or three inches of shank attached to each hoof. I asked where they got them, and what they were going to do with them, and they told me that they got them at the Michigan Carbon works, and that they were taking them home for food. Sounds disagreeable, doesn't it?'

'It's literally chewing glue.'

'Still, when you think of it, it isn't so bad. There's lots of gluten in a shank and hoof, and I suppose they get the material for nothing.'

'No wonder they prosper.'—Detroit Free Press.

AN OLD BILL PAID.

A Detroit lawyer took in a new boy the other day, and as he had suffered to some extent from the depredations of the former one, he decided to try the new lad's honesty at once. He therefore placed $15 in bills under a weight on his desk and walked out without a word. Upon his return, half an hour later, the bills were gone and seventy-five cents in silver had taken their place.

'Boy, when I stepped out to get a draft on London I left $15 under this weight.'

'Yes, sir.'

'And now I find only seventy-five cents.'

'Yes, sir; but, you see, you hadn't been gone five minutes when a man came in with a bill against you for $14.25, and I paid it. I guess the change is correct.'

'You—you paid a bill?'

'Yes, sir; there it is, all receipted. The man said it had slipped your mind for the last four years, and so—'

He didn't get any further before he was rushed for the stairs, and he isn't in the law business any more.—Detroit Free Press.

Life on the Ocean Wave.

"A Life on the Ocean Wave!"
The man who wrote it was green;
He never had been to sea,
And a storm he had never seen.

He had never been aroused
From the morning's gentle doze
By the sound of splashing water
As it fell from the horrid hose!

He never has heard a man
Scrubbing right over his head,
With a noise sufficient to rouse
From the grave the slumbering dead.

He has never seen a fat woman
Growing thinner day by day,
And leaning over the vessel's side
Throwing herself away;

While people look carelessly on,
Though in tears the woman may be,
And unfeelingly say it is nothing at all,
Only the roll of the sea.

And, oh! he has never been seasick,
And crept into bed in his coat,
While every motion increased his throes,
And his feelings were all in his throat.

That man may have sailed in a boat,
In some puddle or on a sound;
But if he has been to sea and wrote
Such a song he deserves to be drowned.

THE GREATEST THINGS ON EARTH.

The highest range of mountains is the Himalayas, the mean elevation being estimated at from 16,000 to 18,000 feet.

The loftiest mountain is Mount Everest or Gaurisanker, of the Himalaya range, having an elevation of 29,002 feet above the sea level.

The largest theatre is the new opera house in Paris. It covers nearly three acres of ground. Its cubic mass is 4,287,000 feet. It cost about 100,000,000 francs.

The largest city in the world is London. Its population numbers 3,020,871 souls. New York, with a population of about 1,250,000, comes fifth in the list of great cities.

The largest suspension bridge will be the one now building between New York and Brooklyn. The length of the main span is 1595 feet six inches, the entire length of the bridge, 5989.

The loftiest active volcano is Popocatapetl—"Smoking mountain"—thirty-five miles southwest of Pueblo, Mexico. It is 17,784 feet above the sea level, and has a crater three miles in circumference and 1000 feet deep.

The largest island in the world, which is also regarded as a continent, is Australia. It is 2500 miles in length from east to west, and measures 1950 miles north to south. Its area is 2,984,287 square miles.

The longest span of wire in the world is used for a telegraph in India over the river Kistnah, between Bezorah and Sectanagrund. It is more than 6000 feet long, and is stretched between two hills, each of which is 1200 feet high.

The largest ship in the world is the Great Eastern. She is 680 feet long, 83 feet broad and 60 feet deep, being 22,927 tons burden, 18,915 gross and 13,344 net register. She was built at Millwall on the Thames, and was launched January 31, 1857.

The largest university is Oxford, in England, in the city of the same name, fifty-five miles from London. It consists of twenty-one colleges and five halls. Oxford was a seat of learning as early as the time of Edward the Confessor. University college claims to have been founded by Alfred.

The largest body of fresh water on the globe is Lake Superior—400 miles long, 100 miles wide at its greatest breadth, and having an area of 32,000 square miles. Its mean depth is said to be 160, and its greatest depth about 200 fathoms. Its surface is about 650 feet above the level of the sea.

The most extensive park is Deer park, in the environs of Copenhagen, Denmark. The enclosure contains about 4200 acres, and is divided by a small river. The largest pleasure ground in this country, and one of the largest in the world, is Fairmount park, Philadelphia, which contains 2740 acres.

The biggest cavern is the Mammoth cave in Edmonson county, Ky. It is near Green River, six miles from Cave City, and about twenty-eight miles from Bowling Green. The cave consists of a succession of irregular chambers, some of which are large, situated on different levels. Some of these are traversed by navigable branches of the subterranean Echo river. Blind fish are found in its waters.

The largest tunnel in the world is that of St. Gothard, on the line of the railroad between Lucerne and Milan. The summit of the tunnel is 990 feet below the surface at Andermatt, and 6600 feet beneath the peak of Kastelhorn, of the St. Gothard group. The tunnel is 26½ feet wide, and 19 feet 10 inches from the floor to the crown of the arched roof. It is 9½ miles longer than the Mont Cenis tunnel.

The biggest trees in the world are the mammoth trees of California. One of a grove in Tulare county, according to measurement made by members of the state geological survey, was shown to be 276 feet high, 106 feet in circumference at the base, and 76 feet at a point 12 feet above the ground. Some of the trees are 376 feet high and 34 feet in diameter. Some of the largest trees that have been felled indicate an age of from 2000 to 2500 years.

No successful substitute for the teasel plant has been devised, and the nap on woolen cloth will probably for generations be raised by the little hooks which arm the stalks of this curious little shrub. For a long time the woolen manufacturers denied that the American plant was fit for use, but when the war of the rebellion broke out, it was discovered that the home grown teasel surpassed the French growth in every respect. Over one-half of the teasel crop of the United States is grown in two towns of Onondaga county, New York.

A prominent granger from Onion Creek was in Austin, recently. Desiring to obtain some reliable figures about the oat crop, we asked him if he could tell us precisely how many acres he had in oats, and how many bushels he raised to the acre. 'I can't give you the precise figures, but I raised a heap, sold right smart, and I've got a powerful lot left.'—Texas Siftings.

Sheep-raisers in Utah are very much assisted by eagles. One man who has had two hundred lambs raised by them this season to the topmost cliffs, finds, however, that familiarity with the national bird breeds contempt, and declares that though they perform the raising very neatly, he prefers the old method.

A very little child revealed his idea of lightning by saying after a flash, 'The sun shone ever so bright then, didn't it? If I were God, I'd keep that beautiful light up for all the time.'

ESSAY ON THE VEST.

The vest is a useless article of apparel worn by man. It is an encumbrance handed down from past generations and perpetuated only through pure stupidity. In old times it was termed a 'waistcoat.' It was then a veritable coat, intended for the protection of the body. The regular coat over it protected only the back and arms, being cut entirely away from the breast. The vest of to-day is a rudimentary garment. It is simply a vestige of a former fashion. In summer it would be gladly dispensed with did people dare to do so. It adds another thickness for the retention of animal heat. In winter an additional thickness of coat would serve the purpose of the vest. The vest as to use is simply a needless coat without arms. It is principally useful to tailors, enabling them to charge for an additional needless piece of cloth. Vests always survive other garments. A man will wear out three coats and four pairs of trousers to one vest. Such is the force of custom that no man would dare to buy a suit of clothes without the vest, though cut and worn in such a manner that the vest is invisible perpetually. As for vest pockets, they are a nuisance. They become sink-holes for old matches and notes thrust in in a hurry, which one's wife finds because she knows where to look for them. When robbers rob a man they show their contempt for the vest by not taking it. They will deprive a man of his trousers and his coat. They leave the vest. Of what use is a man clad only in a vest? The vest is only a cause and almost an excuse for poor fitting garments. Any man looks better in a buttoned up coat, a la militaire. But the vest perpetuates the frock, double-breasted coat (though why called double-breasted none can clearly tell), and the fit of such coat never lasts over two months, since it depends almost entirely on the tailor's stiffening and smoothing iron. These are stern facts. A bas the vest. Let us form a society for the abolition of the vest. The vest is useless even in charity. Who would give a beggar a vest? It would be a mockery.—New York Graphic.

A STEAM TRICYCLE.

A Buffalo man has perfected an important invention, which is nothing less than a steam tricycle. It is expected that it is destined to revolutionize the modes of travel on the highway. It at first sight resembles a low, open buggy or buckboard. The seat is placed between the two principal wheels, the third wheel being in front, about five feet away from the others. It is smaller, and is used for guiding the vehicle. The two main wheels are the same as those used in bicycles. The motive power is applied to them by means of a small spur wheel and a few feet of belting or chain. The engine and boiler are located between the seat and the forward wheel. They take up very little space, and much of the machinery will be inclosed in a wooden case when the vehicle is complete. The engine is one and a half horse power, and it rests on the bottom of the conveyance. The exhaust is underneath, and will be nearly noiseless and invisible. The cylinder is 2 x 4 inches. The generator is upright and stands directly over the neat little boiler. For fuel gasoline is used, and two gallons of this fluid, surrounded by water, will be carried in a reservoir under the seat. It will be conveyed to the furnace by means of tubes. It is claimed that one gallon will be sufficient to run the engine for nine hours at the rate of from 15 to 20 miles an hour. The tricycle as it now stands cost about $200, but it can be duplicated for $150.

WAITING FOR CIRCUMSTANCES.—When the Legislature convened last winter a member of the 'Third House,' who was anxious to make personal acquaintances and discover what sort of men he had to handle, was introduced to a representative from the wilderness district, and he straightway began to throw out feelers.

'I presume you will take an active part in the present session?'

'Well, I dunno,' was the doubtful reply.

'Are you pledged?'

'Not to speak of.'

'Have you any particular policy mapped out?'

'Yes, a sort o' policy. Durin' the first week I shall support all motions to adjourn; durin' the next I shall move to amend, and after that I shall be guided by circumstances. Some of our folks think I'm an orator, and some of 'em say I'm a fool, so I've got to take a sort o' middle course and convince both factions.'—Monroe (Pa.) Journal.

A London lecturer on female attire said recently: 'Dressed as women are, the less exercise they take the better for health. In fact, they are seldom fit to stand erect or walk a block, but should be rolled around or carried on a palanquin. Not one woman in 10,000 has room inside her clothes for the rise and fall of the ribs in breathing, and there is not one in 10,000 whose vital organs are not displaced by external pressure. While this is so, the less exercise the better.'

One of the regular exercises at normal schools is writing words from dictation and giving their meaning. One of the words given out was 'hazardous,' which the young lady pupil spelled 'hazardess,' and defined as 'a female hazard.'

The Journal.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 26, 1882.

THE Massachusetts Democrats will hold their State convention at Tremont Temple, Boston, on Tuesday, Sept. 19, the day before the Republicans meet at Worcester. Judge Abbott will preside, and Albert Palmer will be chairman of the committee on resolutions.

IF the Greenbackers of this State elect their nominee, Gen. Butler will be our next Governor. The Massachusetts Greenbackers, it may be remarked, have not up to date been remarkably successful in electing their candidates, even with the help of the Democrats.

THE woman suffragists are not pleased with the candidacy of Mr. Bishop for the Governorship, he being an outspoken opponent of female suffrage, and they protest vigorously against his nomination. We apprehend, however, that their protests will not seriously affect Mr. Bishop's prospects, either in the convention or throughout the State.

YELLOW FEVER has obtained a strong foothold at Brownsville, Tex., and is spreading with frightful rapidity. Thirty-five new cases were reported on Monday, 54 on Tuesday, 53 on Wednesday, and 62 on Thursday, with several deaths each day. Other places have quarantined against the fated town, and it is hoped to prevent any spread of the plague.

GEN. WOLSELEY seems to have determined upon a short and aggressive campaign in Egypt. Last Sunday he descended in force upon Port Said, at the northern end of the Suez Canal, and now has control of the entire canal. Troops are being pushed forward into the interior, and a few days will probably suffice to bring about a decisive combat between the contending armies.

MAINE Republicans propose to fight to win in this year's campaign. Congressman Robinson of this State has been engaged to speak in a number of towns, and about a dozen other Congressmen and Senators of note will take a hand in the fray. Not to be behind, the Fusionists are also importing a quantity of speakers, and a rousing old-fashioned campaign is assured, with about a "nip and tuck" prospect for victory.

THE attempt of ex-Senator Dorsey's friends to help him out of his star route troubles by publishing letters written by him to Gen. Garfield before his inauguration, tending (they claim) to show that he was a trusted adviser of the President-elect, will hardly succeed. However good a friend of Dorsey Gen. Garfield may have been, and however officious Dorsey may have been in giving advice to the incoming President, it is evident enough that President Garfield did not follow his advice. It is probable that the President did not think Dorsey had any connection with the star route frauds, and even if he had any suspicion of it, he did not hesitate to institute vigorous measures to unearth the frauds and punish the guilty perpetrators, whoever they might be.

THE Boston & Albany Railroad managers are now at liberty to direct its affairs without any interruption from unsympathetic State directors. The road has within a few days completed the exchange of its bonds for the stock held by the State, the railroad handing over to the State $3,858,000 in 5 per cent 20-year bonds, with $400 in cash, and receiving in return 24,115 shares of the company's capital stock. The interest on the bonds is payable the first of October and April. The removal of the five State directors leaves the board with only eight members, and as this number constitutes a quorum under the present by-laws, they must all be present at meetings if any business is done, until the annual meeting next Febuary, when the vacancies will be filled.

CONGRESSMAN HARRIS has formally withdrawn as a candidate for re-election in the 2d district, in pursuance of a long cherished plan, and the field is now clear for Governor Long, if he chooses to enter it. He has given no indication of his purpose as yet, and can have the Governorship another term if he will take it, but it is possible that he will prefer to go to Washington, now that there is an opportunity for him to do so without interfering with the "claims" of anybody else. Still, he may conclude that it is better to be Governor of the whole State than to represent one district in Congress, and the people, who know a good thing when they see it, will be very glad to continue him in his present position, even at the expense of disappointing other aspirants for the place.

IF Gov. Long should decide to withdraw from the gubernatorial canvass, and accept a nomination for Congress, the list of candidates for the Governorship would be narrowed down to Crapo and Bishop, with the chances in favor of Mr. Bishop. Crapo's candidacy has certainly been injured by his vote on the river and harbor bill; the people are not as familiar with his name and reputation as they are with Mr. Bishop's, and the latter has the advantage over his competitor of being thoroughly conversant with the inner working of our State affairs. The Bishop boom is a growing one, beyond question, while Mr. Crapo's prospects may be regarded as at least at a stand-still, if they are not actually diminishing. Mr. Crapo secured liberal appropriations for his district in the river and harbor bill, and must be popular among the people of the district. Why, then, would it not be well for him to reconsider his determination not to run for Congress again, and let them return him once more? This would simplify matters materially, and would give him a "vindication" which he is not likely to receive at Worcester.

A printer at Corning, Ia., has worked at the case for 63 consecutive years, and is still at it, at the age of 90 years.

A BITTER personal quarrel between Gov. Cornell on one hand, and Jay Gould and ex-Senator Conkling on the other, promises to be an unpleasant feature of the political campaign in New York. An article in the Albany Journal, supposed to be inspired by the Governor, plainly charges Conkling with using all his influence to induce the Governor to sign bills in the interest of Conkling and his client, Gould, as a personal favor, regardless of the public interest, with a promise of rich political rewards for so doing. It is also claimed that when Conkling resigned, he demanded that the Governor should so use the veto power as to oblige members of the Legislature to return him to the Senate. The personal integrity of the ex-Senator has remained unspotted throughout his career thus far, and people will not readily believe that he has deliberately blackened it now, though they will be anxious to hear his answer to the charges. It is noticeable that that stanch Republican organ, the New York Times, takes up the cudgel against Conkling, of whom it says: "No more dangerous move has been made toward the establishment in this State of a despotism sustained by unlimited wealth and endless possibilities of corporate robbery than is involved in the work which is now being done by Roscoe Conkling for his master, Jay Gould." Cornell's enemies retaliate by charging him with unscrupulous stock speculations, and it looks now as if Cornell would be defeated, and James W. Wadsworth nominated for Governor.

THE protracted strikes among the iron, coal and other laborers in various parts of the country are mostly at an end. Destitution and starvation have accomplished what reason could not. The strikers have not received the expected assistance from their relief associations, and now that they and their families are facing actual starvation, the power of the organizations to hold the men is crumbling, and they are returning to work where they can at the old prices. Laborers may learn in time that a strike is not the best way to right their grievances, but they are very slow to learn the lesson.

True refinement is not always found in the so-called "upper circles," and it is not strange that the æsthetic Oscar Wilde has been shocked by the essential vulgarity of some of our American women. Speaking of his visit to Saratoga, he says: "I stopped at the United States and Congress Hall—two of the best hotels—which one would suppose would be patronized by cultured people. While talking with Judge Brady there a great crowd came around us, mostly women, and finding it a bore to be thus stared at, I moved on into the office. There they came flocking in after us. I went to the billiard-room, but found no refuge there. The women rushed there—ladies in silks and crapes and laces, with diamonds in their ears, bringing their daughters with them! To balk the pursuit utterly, I fled to the bar-room. Will you believe me that they came there—in ten minutes fifty to one hundred of them—filling up the place almost? It seemed to me a most painful and dreadful thing—the bold-faced staring and half-audible comment. Why didn't I say, 'What'll you have, ladies?' Oh, it wouldn't have done any good, and all the country would have said I had insulted the ladies at Saratoga."

A law passed by the last Legislature, which took effect July 1, makes an important change in the disposition of the estates of married women. Heretofore, on the decease of a wife all her personal property and estate not devised by will, has descended to her husband. The new statute provides that only one-half shall go to the husband. Therefore, if a married woman has a bank deposit, a savings bank account, or a life insurance policy, one-half goes to the husband, while the remainder goes to her children or next of kin. The law requires the appointment of an administrator, and of guardians for children, if there are any, which will add considerably to the work of the probate courts.

An alleged conspiracy on the part of the negro inhabitants of Choctaw county, Ala., to massacre their white neighbors has been discovered. The reputed ringleaders were arrested, and one of them was summarily executed in pursuance of a viva voce vote. It is believed, however, by persons familiar with affairs there, that the "conspiracy" is a pure fabrication, gotten up by white bull-dozers who are taking this method of securing control of a strong negro district.

Henry J. Hall, paying teller of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company at Providence, confesses to a defalcation of $20,100, which he has concealed since 1875. He was arrested Thursday and is ready to be punished. He is a member of the city council, and a prominent Mason. He has a wife and three children. The money has been spent in fast living.

It is stated that the Pennsylvania Railroad has resumed the policy of paying commissions on passenger business secured by its agents. This is in direct opposition to an agreement entered into some time ago, and agents of other lines say they will retaliate in kind, and will also cut rates if necessary.

After five years of begging in New York and Philadelphia, Wilhelmina Rosseau, a cripple in hands and feet, has sailed for her home in Antwerp, to enjoy the $20,000 she has accumulated.

The ironclad Massachusetts, begun at the Portsmouth navy yard about the close of the war, is to be broken up, after an outlay of some $2,000,000 on her. Great is the American navy!

The log cabin which Washington used as his headquarters when a surveyor in the Valley of Virginia still stands intact over the spring at Soldiers' Rest, Clarke county.

The project for an all-rail line to some Newfoundland point and a line of swift steamers thence to Europe is revived, with excellent prospects of fulfillment.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Milligan is bound to close out base ball, lawn tennis and low shoes, if low figures will do it.

It will be safe to eat oysters in a week. There's an "r" in September, you know.

Eggs are up to 30 cents, and butter stands at 35, with a decided scarcity of both articles.

Mrs. O. P. Allen is at Cottage City with her daughters, and will spend next week at Nantucket.

All signs fail in a dry time, and the indications of rain Wednesday night resulted only in a bare sprinkle.

Mrs. G. A. Hunt has opened dressmaking rooms on Pine street, and calls attention to the fact in another column.

The Eastern Hampden Medical Society held its monthly meeting with Dr. C. B. Newton of Stafford Springs on Wednesday.

John L. Shaw of Putnam, Ct., formerly with the late J. P. Shaw of this place, has been engaged as clerk in White, Hellyar & Co's. store.

C. A. Capen has taken G. M. Stone's blacksmith shop at Tenneyville, and advertises to do work at 20 per cent less than the usual rates.

C. E. Dewey has put up a fine street lamp in front of his residence on South Main street. A few more down that way would be greatly appreciated.

The Three Rivers base ball club had a game with a Palmer picked nine on the park Thursday afternoon. Score: Three Rivers 18, Palmers 3.

Mail Agent Whitcomb, of the Ware River road, has a vacation of a week, commencing last Thursday, and Julian Tuthill, clerk in the post office, takes his place on the road.

The French St. Vincent de Paul society of Holyoke passed through here Thursday morning on an excursion train numbering eleven cars, bound for Boston and Nantasket Beach.

Tax Collector Northrop has taken $26,500 of the $33,500 due from taxpayers. The day of grace is now past, and the rest of 'em will get no 5 per cent discount from their bills.

The telegraph office at the B. & A. passenger depot is soon to be remodeled, the old desk taken out and a quartette table put in, a writing desk added and other improvements made.

A ball game on the park this afternoon between the Clippers of Ware and the Rockets of West Warren is among the possibilities, the latter club having been challenged to play here by the Clippers.

The fast New York express was delayed by a hot box at Worcester last Tuesday evening, and made the run of 40 miles to this station in just 52 minutes, arriving at Springfield only one minute late.

The savings bank has contracted with the Phillips Manufacturing Co. of Springfield to put a Pierce steam heater into the bank building, the old boiler being found unequal to the task of furnishing sufficient warmth in the winter.

The New London Northern Railroad took up some fifteen carloads of passengers to Lake Pleasant last Saturday from this way, besides bringing a large crowd from Brattleboro way. Over 100 tickets were sold at this station.

J. T. Danforth has engaged a competent cook in his Central street restaurant, to meet the requirements of his increasing business, and beginning with September 1st will have regular dinners, as well as furnish meals to order as heretofore.

Good Crawford peaches from Delaware have been in market this week at $1.85 per basket. It is said that the peach season will be at its height next week, and housewives will need to be on the lookout if they want any for canning purposes.

Quite a large number of people from this place went to Nantasket Wednesday on the Catholic excursion from Chicopee, but were obliged to go down to the bridge to get on, as the train did not stop at the station. There were nineteen carloads of the excursionists.

The milkmen have advanced the price of milk to seven cents a quart. The pastures have dried up to such an extent that farmers are obliged to feed their cows meal, and even this does not suffice to keep them up to their average quantity of milk. Many cows have shrunk fully 20 per cent in their milking within a few weeks.

G. W. Aspinwall was kicked in the chest by a horse at Burdick's blacksmith shop in Monson a few days ago, and knocked senseless for a few moments. He afterwards drove back to this place and walked home, thinking he had only received two or three bruises, but it was found that two of his ribs had been fractured by the blow.

It is doubtful if there has been a season before when travel was so heavy on the Boston & Albany road as it is this summer. The trains all run full, and many of them are so loaded that they are regularly drawn by two locomotives. The travel is likely to continue heavy for some weeks longer, until cool weather drives all the summer visitors to their homes.

A. C. Billings of Waukesha, Wis., is spending a few days in town, visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Billings is one of the few men left who lived in Palmer when the now prosperous village was only a small hamlet. But few would suspect, to see his vigorous form and manner, that he had already passed the allotted three score years and ten on life's journey.

Simmons & Mower's (late of the Wilkinson's) Uncle Tom's Cabin Combination, with a first-class company, introducing jubilee singers, genuine bloodhounds and trick donkey, will appear at Wales Hall next Thursday evening, presenting Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's new version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Secure your seats at Hitchcock's drug store. See advertisement.

Plans and specifications for a new dam across the river, just below Three Rivers, on the water power recently purchased by E. D. Metcalf of Springfield, have been filed with the county commissioners. Men are clearing away the brush, and the indications point to the erection of a fine large mill of some kind there in the near future, making another important addition to the manufacturing interests of this town.

George Kenerson, Frank Lawton and Truman Griswold and families, who are all camping out on Block Island, report a splendid time at "Jolly-Ten Camp," as they have named it. They are on the eastern end, a little north of the lighthouse, and the pleasantest spot on the whole island for a camp, as it gives a view of the harbor, landing and hotels on one side, and on the other an unlimited stretch of the ocean. They return next Monday.

Cyrus Hamilton, driver of the express company's wagon, was holding the horse by the head at the depot Thursday evening as a train was coming in, when the frightened animal reared and threw Mr. Hamilton to the ground. The horse ran a short distance, the wheels of the express wagon passing over Mr. Hamilton's knee, and he also received a few other bruises. Fortunately no bones were broken, but he will probably be pretty lame for a while. The horse ran only a few rods, and stopped without doing any further harm.

The excursion to Block Island on the 12th inst. was such a success that the managers of the New London Northern Railroad have decided to repeat it next week Thursday. The train will run on the same time as before, leaving Brattleboro at 5 a. m., and Palmer at 7.15. Monson people will be given an opportunity to participate this time, the train leaving there at 7.30, and the fare being $1.50, the same as from Palmer. No stops for passengers will be made below Monson. The boat will spend 2¼ hours at the Island, and the sail there and back will be a delightful feature of the trip for all lovers of the briny deep.

While the baggage master at the B. and A. depot was busily loading a big pile of trunks on to the 11.04 a. m. express the other day, a man came up to him, pulled him from his truck, and, with an oath, told him he wanted his bag from the baggage room. Upon being told that he couldn't be attended to just then, he responded with a volley of profane abuse, which seemed to indicate that he had not read the last part of the paragraph concerning "Incivility," on the company's pocket time tables, which says, "It is suggested that courtesy is equally commendable, whether practised by the railroad employe or the passenger." A stout fist or club is about the only medium through which anything like civility can be impressed upon such a man.

John Quinlan of Monson and Rosa Cardnell were before the district court last week for adultery, there also being a charge against Quinlan for larceny. The cases were continued and Rosa secured bail, but Quinlan could not, and Deputy Sheriff Palmer started for Springfield with him on the 1.24 p. m. express last Saturday to lodge him in jail. Quinlan went into the water closet once when near Wilbraham and again as the train reached the top of the Springfield grade. A moment later a passenger saw him crawl out of the car window and fall to the ground. The train was stopped and Mr. Palmer went back, finding him lying unconscious in a pool of blood, with a big hole in his left side. He was taken to the hospital, and subsequently rallied, but died in the evening. The train was running about 30 miles an hour, and it is thought he struck on the end of a tie. It is said that he had two wives living, and had five children by the woman who was arrested with him.

Visitors to Mount Toby can enjoy no more of the grand views from the tower on the summit, as the hotel and tower were burned on Wednesday, a little after noon. The building was set on fire by sparks from the kitchen chimney, and the flames spread so rapidly that but little of the furniture was saved, and almost within thirty minutes the entire structure was in ashes. The property was worth about $3000, and was owned by John L. Graves. J. W. White, the lessee, had no insurance, and, in addition to his goods, unfortunately lost $200 in money. The fire broke out just after a party of visitors had descended from the tower. Had they remained on top a few moments longer their escape would have been well-nigh impossible. The tower was eight stories high, and was a familiar landmark for many miles around. For some years past the mountain has been quite a favorite resort for people in this section, and it is to be presumed that the tower will be rebuilt without unnecessary delay.

HOLLAND.

The proprietor of the Holland hotel announces that the house is not open to visitors on the Sabbath.

MONSON.

Father Kelley gave the choir of his church, numbering twenty-five young people, an excursion to Watch Hill last Tuesday, paying all expenses.

WEST WARREN.

The Catholics netted about $100 from their picnic last Saturday.

The Congregational lawn party has been postponed indefinitely.

The Rockets defeated the Ware Clippers at Ware last Sunday by a score of 20 to 18.

The cricket match was won by the home club, which defeated the Warrens—48 to 38.

BELCHERTOWN.

Owen Kulrava, a blacksmith in this village, mysteriously disappeared from the steamer City of Worcester while on his way home from New York one night last week. He had some trouble with one of the watchmen on the boat, and his friends think he was foully dealt with; but the boat hands claim that he was crazy drunk, and probably jumped overboard.

LUDLOW.

Hiram Waid has sold his farm to William H. Whitney.

The valuation of the town is $768,802. The rate of taxation is $17, and the total tax $13,815, the rate being high this year on account of the abolishing of the school district system. The names of those who pay a tax of $100 or over are as follows: George D. Green $118, D. C. Jones 104, Lucien N. Lyon 109, Albert Fuller & Son 112, Ludlow Mfg. Co. 4821, William P. Clark 134, David Joy 112, Lucius Simonds 192, James M. White 344. There are 373 polls in town, 274 houses, 588 cows, 147 sheep, 256 horses.

ENFIELD.

There was a pleasant and notable reunion of the Howard family at the residence of Joel Collis in this town last week Thursday. Nathan Howard, with his children and children's children, to the number of thirty-five in all, assembled under a large tent on the lawn, where there was a liberal supply of provisions, and a delightfully social reunion. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Brown of Buffalo, N. Y., N. Braman and wife of New Haven, Eliza Heald and Alvarado Howard of Stafford Springs, E. Howard of South Hadley, Annis Dorman of Webster, Mrs. J. P. Howard of Palmer, and others.

WILBRAHAM.

Rev. M. S. Howard has been having a vacation of two weeks.

Prof. Benj. Gill is daily expected home from his vacation trip to Europe.

The fall term of the academy will commence next Wednesday afternoon.

Several of the young people of the town enjoyed a picnic at Nine Mile Pond Wednesday.

The Tyro society of young people held an open society at the Congregational parsonage last evening.

The Willing Workers meet in the ladies' parlor of the Congregational church next Saturday afternoon.

The family friends of S. J. Goodenough held a family reunion on Wednesday, with dinner at Rich Hall.

WARREN.

Warren, with other towns, is suffering severely from the drouth.

The Sons of Temperance had a very successful lawn party, and cleared about $15.

Rev. Mr. Beaman will preach at the Methodist church Sunday. Mr. Sanderson is at Northampton.

Mrs. A. L. Converse, H. S. Howe and Charles L. Converse are spending a couple of weeks at Hampton Beach.

The walls of the town hall are to be frescoed by John Morgan of Springfield. This is an improvement that will add much to its interior.

Rev. Mr. Canfield preached at the town hall, Sunday, for the last time this season. The improvements on the Universalist church are progressing rapidly.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Springs are getting very low.

Mike Rock has bought out the saloon formerly run by Charles Waite.

Services to-morrow at Grace Chapel. Sunday school at 1.45, preaching at 2 and 5.30 p. m.

The river is so low that the paper mill runs but a part of the time. The grain mill has been run by steam for five weeks.

The signals are completed, and trains approaching the station from either direction are compelled to stop if signals do not show the tracks clear.

The Paper Makers scored another victory last Saturday, with a score as follows:

Innings,	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Paper Makers,	3	3	6	5	2	2	0	3	0	—24
Hampshires,	2	2	0	0	0	2	0	6	3	—15

In the seventh inning Kearney hurt his hand, and Frank Lenahan caught the balance of the game. No definite arrangements have been made for to-day, but if possible they will play the Westfield Firemen.

WALES.

The pastor of the Methodist church is now off on his vacation, and the Baptist pastor is supplying his desk.

The salt water people have nearly all returned, finding it cold, but several others have gone to camp meetings.

The corn and potato crop will be very small. Some fields of potatoes will hardly pay for the digging, while corn is being cut for fodder.

Look out, dog owners! The constable is ordered to kill all unlicensed canines. Remember meat is high, the officer is a butcher, and 'twill be an object for him to make thorough work of it.

Warren Rood, aged 72 years, had his leg amputated Monday, and died very soon afterward. The surgeon remonstrated strongly against taking it off, saying there was no chance for him, but Mr. Rood insisted, and it was done.

Owing to the drouth and high price of hay several of the milkmen have decided to ask six cents a quart after September 1, as they have kept an account and find that at five cents they hardly get pay for keeping. Butter has also advanced.

The Baptist Sunday School held a floral concert last Sunday evening. The school took up the exercise, "A lesson from the flowers,' which was very instructive. The flowers and bouquets, of which there was an abundant supply, were much admired; also the motto, "God is Love," in evergreen and gilt letters, wrought on a tablet, was elegant.

WARE AND VICINITY.

Rev. A. E. P. Perkins, D. D., will occupy his own pulpit next Sunday.

Owen F. McMahon has removed his bar and is putting in a stock of groceries.

Charles S. Robinson and wife have gone to Middletown, Conn., as assistants at the insane asylum.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society at Ware Center held a lawn party in front of their church last week Friday evening.

There was quite an extensive fire in the woods south of the village Tuesday evening, but it was extinguished without great damage being done.

476 tickets were sold at this depot for the excursion to Boston and Nantasket Beach last week, and most, if not all, were well pleased with the trip.

In the cool weather of the past few days dances are in order, one being held at Firemen's Hall Monday evening, and one at Music Hall Thursday evening.

A new blacksmith shop has been built in the rear of McBride's block, Main street, and is occupied by Jesse Miner, who will do horse shoeing and light jobbing.

It has been ascertained that one Wheeler, of Leominister, was the one who stole Mr. Runyan's horse a few weeks since, but the horse has not yet been recovered.

The Ware Cornet Band are waking up under their new leader, J. H. Cummings, and were out for a parade on Saturday evening, marching through some of our principal streets.

The street sprinkler was missed upon the street Saturday and part of Monday, just long enough for some of those who won't help pay the expenses to see what condition we would be in if all were as stingy as themselves.

The East Congregational Sunday school picnic, which was to have been held on Thursday, was postponed because it looked rainy in the morning, thus disappointing a host of little ones. The day was, after all, all that could have been desired.

All the children of Mrs. Eliza Robinson of this place, and all the grandchildren, to the number of 13, met for a family reunion with the son, Judge Robinson of Palmer, on Tuesday. Mrs. Robinson is 81 years of age, but is still in good health and greatly enjoys having her children and children's children about her. The day was one of the many enjoyable ones of this family.

The temperance picnic under the auspices of the Good Templars, at Hoyt's Grove next Wednesday, promises to be a brilliant affair. 15 prominent members from Boston and vicinity have volunteered to address the meeting, among them Grand Worthy Chief Templar Stevens, and G. W. Secretary Mrs. Leonard, and others of the grand officers. 'Buses will run from Ware to the grove, and all are invited, whether belonging to the organization or not.

The wedding of Prof. C. E. Garman of Amherst and Miss Eliza N. Miner, eldest daughter of Dr. D. W. Miner, on Thursday evening was a brilliant affair, a large number of relatives being present from out of town. Dr. Perkins performed the ceremony. Miss Miner was for some years assistant teacher in the high school, and has also been for a long time a Sunday school teacher in the East Congregational Sunday school, and has made a host of friends. The wedding presents were numerous, elegant and valuable. The newly wedded pair go to their new home in Amherst with the best wishes of all.

The ball game last Saturday between the Rockets of West Warren and the Clippers was very unsatisfactory, on account of the unfair decisions of the umpire, who, evidently financially interested, gave the game to the Rockets in the last half of the ninth inning, by calling three unfair strikes in succession, after six balls had been called, the game then standing 20 to 18 in favor of the visitors, the Clippers having two men on bases and two out. A game has never been sold in Ware in quite so barefaced a manner before. Though close, the Clippers with fair play would without doubt have won. We understand that there was a good deal of money bet on the game. The Clippers' friends ought to back them up, but let them do it by cheering their good playing, and not by betting.

A man by the name of Tolman, employed at Eddy's boot factory, on going to his trunk at his boarding place a few days since found some one had picked the lock and stolen all his ready money. His shopmates, on learning of his misfortune, made up a purse for him, which was presented by Mr. Eddy, who asked if he had any suspicions who took his money, and the particulars, when he replied without hesitation as follows:

"There was a man came into town,
And told the folks his name was Brown;
He smiled and looked as sweet as honey,
And ran away with poor Tolman's money.

"This Mr. Brown is large and stout,
And looks just like a lazy lout.
To fleece the people seems his aim—
We hope he won't come here again.

"Ye citizens of towns, look out,
This famous Brown is on a scout.
He'll take you captive at his will,
When he returns from Gilbertville.

September Magazines.

The Atlantic Monthly for September contains the first of a number of papers by Lieut. F. H. Cushing, the adopted Zuni, on "The Nation of the Willows," the Kuhni kwe, a tribe of Indians hitherto almost unknown. Gen. A. C. McClurg, of Chicago, contributes a valuable paper entitled "The Last chance of the Confederacy," which will be read with much interest by hosts of people, North and South. Miss Elizabeth Robbins, who has written several engaging articles on subjects connected with witchcraft and legendary lore, writes another interesting paper on "Evil in Greek Mythology." M. D. Conway, of London, describes "A Geological Ramble on the Weald." The seventh paper in the admirably accurate and impartial series, "Studies in the South," discusses the important subject of the education needed by the negroes and the poor whites of the south. This paper, as was all the previous ones in this series, merits the most careful attention from all good citizens. Six new chapters are given of Mr. Hardy's serial story, "Two on a Tower;" Miss Phelps's "Doctor Zay" is concluded; and two more chapters are given of Mr. Bishop's "The House of a Merchant Prince." The number contains poems by Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr and Frances L. Mace. It has an unusual number of reviews of important recent publications and an admirable variety of brief essays in the Contributors' Club. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

The unusual favor with which the midsummer number of The Century was received is not likely to be withdrawn from its successor, the current issue, which numbers among its special features a fine portrait of Mark Twain, engraved by Cole, and printed as a frontispiece, to accompany a charming paper (by Mr. W. D. Howells), on the humorist and his American rivals; a critical review of the war in Egypt, by General George B. McClellan, with a forecast of its probable results; an important paper by Austin Dobson, the poet, on Bewick, the great wood-engraver, with illustrations, including reprints of the most notable of his birds, quadrupeds, and tail-pieces; a biographical sketch of the late Dante Gabriel Rossetti, by his friend, Edmund W. Gesse, with a portrait; a humorous short story, "The Col. Bill Williams Mine," by Joaquin Miller; a sketch of the development of ocean steam-ships, illustrated; E. V. Smalley's second paper on "The New North-west," giving account of a recent trip along the proposed line of the Northern Pacific Railroad; a beautiful portrait, engraved by Cole, of the American lady who was the original of Rebecca in Ivanhoe, a sketch of her life, and her relation to the novel; an illustrated travel article on "Ningpo and the Buddhist Temples," by Constance Gordon-Cumming; a sketch of "The Academic Career of ex-President Woolsey," by George P. Fisher, with portraits, and a reproduction of the gold medal recently presented to Dr. Woolsey by the professors of Yale; an illustrated paper on a Maine coast town, by Noah Brooks; practical hints on "Going Abroad for an Education;" editorials, serial novels, poetry, etc. Of the two novels now running as serials in The Century, it is announced that Mr. Howells's "Modern Instance" will conclude, with an unusually large and dramatic part, in the October number. It will be succeded by a story of mining life, by a writer who has already printed promising short stories in this magazice. This in turn is to be followed by another novel by Mr. Howells, to begin early in 1883.

St. Nicholas for September comes with the month, evidently determined to make these by no means the least pleasant of the summer days. It is a bright, sketchy number, filled with short stories, clever verses, and beautiful pictures. Girls will be interested in "The Doll that Couldn't Spell her Name,"—boys will read with pleasure the story of "The Marlborough Sands." There is an instructive and amusing article on elephants, entitled "Our Largest Friends." "Jiro—A Japanese Boy" is a sketch of boy-life in that curious country, and Maurice Thompson, the celebrated archer, contributes "The Story of the Arbalist," or "Cross bow." The "Stories of the Northern Myths" end in this issue with an account of the slaying of Balder, the God of the Summer, and Mrs. Clement's paper on the "Art and Artists" of the Renaissance is bright and anecdotal. Mrs. Dodge has a long installment of her serial, "Donald and Dorothy." Among the verses scattered through the September pages, it is enough to mention the poem entitled "The Cockatoos," by Celia Thaxter, and "The Land of Noddy," a quaint, unconventional lullaby, by Rossiter Johnson. There are the usual departments, and an entertaining story, for the little folks, of a pig that went sailing in a horse-trough.

The Voice, edited by Edgar S. Werner, Albany, N. Y., is an international review of the speaking and singing voice, with special attention to oratory, the Del Sarte Philosophy, stuttering, stammering, singing and visible speech. Its contributors include leading foreign and American specialists. Published monthly at $1 a year; single copy, ten cents.

The grand opening of the second annual exhibition of the New England Manufacturers' and Mechanics' Institute is announced to take place in their mammoth exhibition building, Huntington Avenue, Boston, on Wednesday, September 6. The exhibition promises to far surpass the brilliant display of last Fall. Exhibits from twenty-seven States, and from three foreign countries, will completely fill the immense building. The genius of the inventor and the skill of the mechanic will be displayed in a thousand forms. Illuminated water displays, cascades and fountains will add a charm to the busy interior. The great Southern Railroad exhibit, a repetition of the Atlanta Exposition, will undoubtedly prove of much interest to our agricultural readers. The ores, minerals, woods and field products of the South will be fully represented. Another attractive feature of the exhibition will be the great electric light display by Professor Edison and others. One thousand incandescent lights of Professor Edison's system, and 1000 arc lights of other companies will illuminate the interior at night. The opening ceremonies will take place at 11 o'clock, a. m., Governor Long presiding, assisted by the Governors of such other States as are represented by extensive exhibits. Edward Atkinson will deliver an address, and Reeves' American Band, of Providence, will enliven the occasion with choice musical selections. A grand gala day is expected, and a large enthusiastic attendance is anticipated.

FIRES.—The new Hotel Humarock, at Marshfield, was burned Monday morning, the guests narrowly escaping.——The village of Derry Depot, N. H., was nearly destroyed by fire last Saturday. Loss $70,000.——Tilley & Co.'s furniture store at Holyoke was burned Saturday. Loss about $36,000.——The main building of the Syracuse iron works was burned Wednesday, involving a loss of $200,000; and thirty buildings at Keeseville, N. Y., valued at $100,000, were also burned.——The Erie Railway elevator at Buffalo was burned by an explosion Thursday night, causing a loss of $225,000. At least four lives were lost.

A man in New York is making a good living by going about to the saloons and betting that he can drown flies and restore them to life again. He holds them in water until they are dead or act like it, then pours a lot of salt over them. In a few minutes they crawl out as lively as ever. He makes $2 or $3 at every place he visits.

Good locomotive engineers are said to be hard to obtain at the present time by New England companies. The many new roads of the West have taken very many Eastern men, and are likely to take many more. Higher wages and cheaper living are the influences at work in sending them West.

An air-tight clock is being made for Wesleyan University. It winds itself by means of an electrical apparatus, and as the air is exhausted from the case when it is started, atmospheric disturbances are avoided.

Last week's railroad construction throughout the country aggregated 309½ miles, making the total mileage of new road built thus far this year 5782, against 3180 for the corresponding period last year.

We have received from C. I. Hood & Co., the Lowell sarsaparilla men, four handsome card board placques, well executed and richly colored, which they sell for 25 cents. They make as pretty an ornament for the mantel or wall as can be found for the money, and come all fitted with hangers.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

AN EDITOR'S OPINION.—We are satisfied from what we see and hear that there is no proprietary medicine on the market that is so popular and is doing so much good for suffering humanity as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The testimonials published by this firm are a wonder in their way, each one having the autographic signature of its author. This conclusively proves them to be genuine and that the parties giving them may be relied upon. The demand for the remedies comes from all parts of the country, and the sales must be immense. While we do not make a practice of endorsing proprietary medicines, we have no hesitation in recommending Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, because we know it to be a good thing, and that the firm is composed of fair, square dealing business men, who never "go back" on the printer.—*Stamford (Conn.) PLEASE REMEMBER THIS.—Renne's Magic Oil still stands in the front ranks and at the head of all curative agents; and that before its miraculous influences all internal pains and aches, such as Cramps, Colic Pains, Cholera Morbus, Dirrhœa, Dysentery, &c., give way at once, and that Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Ailments cannot withstand its wondrous powers for even a single hour. It is especially recommended to ladies for certain ailments, as it is as clear as crystal, as aromatic as rose water, and as harmless as the limpid spring, being a purely vegetable preparation.

Very Fign.

If fir a stomach ache you tache
Each time some whisky, it will break
You down and meak you sheak and quache,
And you will see a horrid snache.

Much whisky doth your wits beguile,
Your breath defuile, yourself make vuile;
You lose your style, likewise your pyle,
If you ere whyle too often smuile.

But should there be, like now a drought,
When water and your strength give ought,
None will your good name then malign
If you confign your drink to wign.

THERE'LL BE ROOM IN HEAVEN.

She was a little old woman, very plainly dressed in black bombazine that had seen much careful wear, and her bonnet was very old fashioned, and people stared at her tottering up the aisle of the grand church, evidently bent on securing one of the best seats, for a great man preached on that day, and the house was filled with splendidly-dressed people who had heard of the fame of the preacher, of his learning, his intellect and goodness, and they wondered at the presumption of the poor old woman. She must have been in her dotage, for she picked out the pew of the richest and proudest member of the church and took a seat. The three ladies who were seated there beckoned to the sexton, who bent over the intruder and whispered something, but she was hard of hearing, and smiled a little withered smile as she said gently:

'Oh, I'm quite comfortable here, quite comfortable.'

'But you are not wanted here,' said the sexton, pompously; 'there is not room. Come with me, my good woman; I will see that you have a seat.'

'Not room,' said the woman, looking at her old shrunken proportions, and then at the fine ladies. 'Why, I'm not crowded a bit. I rode ten miles to hear the sermon to-day, because—'

But here the sexton took her by the arm, and shook her roughly in a polite underhand way, and then she took the hint. Her faded old eyes filled with tears, her chin quivered; but she arose meekly and left the pew. Turning quietly to the ladies, who were spreading their rich dresses over the space left vacant, she said gently:

'I hope, my dears, there'll be room in heaven for us all.'

Then she followed the pompous sexton to the rear of the church where, in the last pew, she was seated between a threadbare girl and a shabby man.

'She must be crazy,' said one of the ladies in the pew which she had first occupied. 'What can an ignorant old woman like her want to hear Dr.——preach for! She would not be able to understand one word that he said.'

'Those people are so persistent! The idea of her forcing herself into our pew. Is not that voluntary lovely! There's Dr.——coming out of the vestry. Is not he grand?'

'Splendid! What a stately man! You know he has promised to dine with us while he is here.'

He was a commanding-looking man, and as the organ voluntary stopped, and he looked over the great crowd of worshippers gathered in the vast church, he seemed to scan every face. His hand was on the Bible, when suddenly he leaned over the reading-desk and beckoned to the sexton, who obsequiously mounted the steps to receive a mysterious message. And then the three ladies in the grand pew were electrified to see him take his way the whole length of the church to return with the old woman, when he placed her in the front pew of all, its other occupants making willing room for her. The great preacher looked at her with a smile of recognition, and then the service proceeded, and he preached a sermon that struck fire from every heart.

'Who was she?' asked the ladies who could not make room for her, as they passed the sexton at the door.

'The preacher's mother,' answered that functionary, in an injured tone.

How few remember that while 'man looketh on the outward appearance the Lord looketh on the heart?'

The stage of a Western theatre took fire the other evening, but a panic and rush for the door was averted by the manager, who, with great presence of mind, slipped to the front and said: 'Ladies and gentlemen! We have prepared a little surprise for you. An immense kettle of whisky punch is now being heated, and in a few moments waiters will pass through the hall and distribute it.' After that, the audience had to be pulled out one by one.

There are eight Atlantic cables now, three from Heart's Content, one between Torbay and Bailingskillys, one between Cape Cod and Brest, one between Duxbury, Mass. and Brest, and two between Canzo and Penzance.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER,

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq.,
Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me, so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. LEN. M. FRAILEY,
64 South Street, Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and blood diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

WHEAT BITTERS.

THE BEST AND THE RICHEST

BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

CAREFULLY PREPARED,
THOROUGHLY TESTED,
ACCEPTABLE & RELIABLE

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuble food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to

BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation, but by solution, and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

Sold by druggists, $1.00 per bottle.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recomended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

MALARIA!

THE ONLY REMEDY KNOWN

TO DESTROY THIS DEADLY PEST.

The most alarming fact, in our sanitary conditions, is the prevalence of MALARIAL POISON not only in marshy, low-lying districts, but in the cities and upon elevated ground where, a few years since, it was unheard of. Frequently fatal disorders of the digestive functions, wasted and enfeebled body and even insanity are the dire effects of malarial poisoning, the sure precursors of death if the poison is not neutralized. The boatmen on the Del. & Hudson Canal, as well as the inhabitants of the adjoining country, have been great sufferers from MALARIA. Not until a few years past did they find a reliable remedy. Now thousands testify that there is but one real and speedy cure for malarial poisoning, and that is DR. KENNEDY'S "FAVORITE REMEDY," which by its action upon the blood purifies it and restores a healtny tone to the entire system. As a preventive in localities where this danger lurks, it is invaluable. The "FAVORITE REMEDY" also cures the worst liver and kidney complaints and all diseases caused by vitiated blood. For sale by all druggists: price $1.00 per bottle. It is an absolutely safe, purely vegetable remedy, the greatest alterative medicine in the world. Address the proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N.Y.

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quieted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

BLADDER AND KIDNEYS.

Most of the diseases of the bladder originate from those of the kidneys; restore the action of the Liver fully, and both the kidneys and bladder will be restored.

Slipping Away.

They are slipping away—these sweet, swift years
Like a leaf on the current cast;
With never a break in their rapid flow,
We watch them as one by one they go
Into the beautiful past.

As silent and swift as a weaver's thread,
Or an arrow's flying gleam;
As soft as the languorus breezes hid,
That lift the willow's long golden lid,
And ripple the glassy stream.

As light as the breath of the thistle-down;
As fond as a lover's dream;
As pure as a flush in the sea-shell's throat,
As sweet as the wood-bird's wooing note
So tender and sweet they seem.

One after another we see them pass
Down the dim-lighted stair;
We hear the sound of their heavy tread,
In the steps of the centuries long since dead,
As beautiful and as fair.

There are only a few years left to love;
Shall we waste them in idle strife?
Shall we trample under our ruthless feet
Those beautiful blossoms, rare and sweet,
By the dusty way of life?

There are only a few swift years—ah, let
No envious taunt be heard;
Make life's fair pattern of rare design,
And fill up the measure with Love's sweet wine,
But never an angry word!

THUNDERBOLT'S VICTORY.

There are still a few towns in Massachusetts where the railway train is never seen and where there is no telegraph. An unpainted farmhouse, big and square, with long barns and sheds in the rear, stood in such a town. It was a day in September, as hot and sultry as if it were midsummer. A doctor's sulky had just driven up to the gate, and the horse stood hitched at the post. In the yard, lying under one of the elms, was a boy of about thirteen. He was thin and pale, but there was a bright, resolute look in his eyes that attracted one. Fred Appleton had been in Warnham for a couple of months. He had been sent out by his uncle, that he might have the benefit of country air after a long and prostrating fever. The boy's eyes were fixed on the open door that led into the hall. Everything in the house was ominously still. Out of doors the chickens were 'craking' about the yard and making sudden runs at insects.

Now a low groan from the room at the left of the front door made Fred start and grow pale. His hands shut themselves hard with an involuntary motion. Not another sound was heard for nearly half an hour, and then steps approached from within the house and the doctor came out on the piazza. He was followed closely by a middle-aged woman. Neither of them appeared to notice Fred, and both stopped at the gate.

'Doctor, how is it?' asked Mrs. Morris in a voice that was not steady.

'Bad! very bad! It's a case where I cannot speak with hope. It was an awful fall from that scaffold. Take care of her as I have said; it is all that can possibly be done. It is heartbreaking to hear her call so for her father.'

The doctor was evidently in a hurry. He jumped into his carriage and drove away, leaving Mrs. Morris standing there. The woman looked after him a moment with unseeing eyes; then she wrung her hands violently, while she exclaimed in a low voice: 'If Charles has not gone. If he could be detained!'

Fred Appleton rose, came quietly forward, and touched the woman's arm.

'Is Clara going to die?' he asked.

Mrs. Morris immediately made an effort to control herself and said:

'I am afraid so. It was a bad fall. Oh, it is very hard!'

'You just spoke of her father. Can not word be got to him before he goes on board the steamer?' the boy asked.

Mrs. Morris trembled. The girl lying in the house was her niece, and about the same age as Fred. She was the only child of her brother, Charles Roth, and dear as an own daughter to her. The father had gone. He was on his way to Boston, to embark on a Cunard steamer for Europe. He had remained in Warnham until the last moment, and had just time to reach the city if nothing delayed him.

'It can't be done!' Mrs. Morris answered. 'It can't be done! The telegraph station is ten miles away. Before anyone could get there Charles will have left, and once on the water nothing can reach him. God help him! The first news he hears the other side of the Atlantic will break his heart!'

Fred stood for an instant with his bright glance fixed on his companion's face.

'Is not there time to reach Northport?' he asked.

'There is not a horse in town could do it,' was the reply.

Fred's eyes brightened.

'Thunderbolt could,' he said quickly, 'and Mrs. Morris I'll ride him. Clara's father shall know.'

The boy started to go away but he was followed and his arm was caught, as Mrs. Morris cried:

'He will throw you! You know you are afraid of him! You must not do it! And you couldn't reach there.'

'There's a chance isn't there?' he turned back to ask.

'Just a chance.'

'And no time to lose!' cried Fred, as he ran to the barn.

It was true that Fred was afraid of Thunderbolt, for the colt had kicked him when he first came to the farm, and his health was not robust enough to enable him to overcome fear as he otherwise would have done.

When the boy entered the barn a shrill whinny greeted him, and a long black head with big, black-looking eyes, was turned toward him from one of the stalls. Fred, as he had said, had no time to lose. He could not stop to think whether he wished to go into the stall or not. He stepped in quickly with the bridle on his arm, and in two minutes more the saddle was on the horse's back, and the boy had flung himself on also and gathered up the reins. He knew how fierce of temper the young horse was, and that he might take a notion to stop and kick, and throw himself about, that he might unseat his rider; and he also knew that Thunderbolt, if he chose, might cover ten miles in so short a time that he might hope to reach Northport in season.

Mrs. Morris, sitting by the insensible girl, heard the rush of the horse's feet as they went out of the yard, and an inaudible prayer was in her heart. She glanced at the clock which was ticking on the mantel, and told herself the thing was impossible.

There was not a braver boy for many a mile than Fred Appleton, and he had made up his mind that it should take a very powerful effort to get him off Thunderbolt's back. Had he been more robust in health, he might have enjoyed this furious start; and as it was, after a few moments, when the colt had settled down into its tremendous stride, Fred grew accustomed to thus cleaving the sultry air, and sat more securely, while he felt that savage exultation which comes to one who sits on an animal that appears to have power to annihilate space.

Fred flung up his hand and uttered a shrill whoop. He was monarch of a force as good as any in the 'Arabian Nights.' He would not exchange his seat on Thunderbolt for any magical gift in that book. At the sound of his cry the colt lurched forward still faster, and snorted, as if the heavy, fragrant atmosphere were something which made him drunk.

He told himself that he must reach Bucket village by a certain time, and Bucket village was half way to Northport. It was a place whose whole business was the making of pails of different kinds. Now just as he reached a sharp turn in the road, there came around the corner the first of three tall, long wagons, piled high with wooden pails. Fred, warned by the pricking up of his horse's ears, gathered the lines more firmly in his hands and made himself as strong on his seat as possible, and all his precautions were necessary, for Thunderbolt leaped to one side as he shot by the wagons. The boy swayed fearfully, but he stuck; and then the colt rose high in the air, his front feet pawing out, his whole figure the picture of terrible beauty. Fred had reached that pitch where it was impossible for him to fear anything—he was too thoroughly excited; but he was afraid that Thunderbolt would 'cut up some of his antics,' and thus delay their arrival at Northport. He pulled sharply on the lines and pounded his heels into the horse's sides, and called out authoritatively to him.

The man on the last wagon had jumped down and was running up.

'Don't touch him!' cried Fred, who was anxious above all things not to be detained. By this time his blood was boiling, and he felt as if he could be a match for a hundred Thunderbolts.

The man fell back from before the pawing feet, looking with amazement at the fiery-eyed boy who sat upon the horse. At the second sharp command, the colt, as if in surprise, dropped his feet and darted away, leaving the man staring.

'Good gracious!' he exclaimed, as he walked back to his wagon. 'Was that 'ere a real horse 'n' a boy, or 'n appearance? I hope 't aint a forewarnin' of nothin'.'

As Fred passed through the next village, the clock was striking the hour, and the sound sent a thrill of apprension through him, for it was ten minutes later than the time at which he had calculated to be in that place. He had come fast enough—it was not that; it must be that the clock at the farmhouse had been slow. And what a fatal slowness that might be! He thought of Clara—of her father stepping on board the boat, never to see her again; and then came a remembrance of a cart-path which went across a piece of woodland and came out on the main road a mile nearer Northport than it was by the traveled way. The path must be close by here; he was sure he had not passed it. Yes, there it was, and without hesitation he turned his horse's head in that direction and rode off beneath the low-drooping trees. When about half-way through he saw ahead of him a fallen tree, lying directly across the path. Can you imagine the pang that went through the boy's heart as he saw that? No time to go back, and on each side thickly-growing wood, filled with a heavy growth of brier and underbrush. Again he thought of the girl lying at home there, moaning and calling for her father, and he resolved not to give up without an effort. He no more thought of himself than as if he could not be hurt.

'Go on, Thunderbolt!' he shouted.

The colt was not half broken in any way, and he knew nothing of leaping; but he saw an obstacle before him, and his instinct was to jump over it. He flew on; he gathered his four legs under him, he rose in the air like some winged thing, and went over the tree, landing on the other side without having touched a twig of it. As for Fred, was there any breath left in him? He thought it did not come back for several minutes after the horse had landed; but he was conscious of a sense of magnificent triumph. The colt was as wet as if he had been in the water; the perspiration dropped off him as he went; his blazing eyes protruded, and seemed to emit sparks.

Three minutes more, and the horse and his rider had entered the outskirts of Northport. Thunderbolt was running now. Everybody stopped and gazed. It was as if some demon horse had gone by. Did he have wings, or was he a mortal steed? In two minutes more they had reached the depot. Fred was off his back almost before the animal had stopped, and had dashed into the station.

'Telegraph!' he gasped out to the operator, who instantly put himself in readiness, seeing how urgent the case was. 'Telegraph to Charles Roth, wharf of the Cunard steamers, East Boston. 'Clara is ill. Come back.' Have you got it?'

The man nodded.

'Make it go then, I'll wait,' whispered the boy, and he gave his name; then he sank back, helpless and trembling, on a settee. The reaction had come. Something gurgled up to his lips. He fumbled for his handkerchief. He heard some one say: "Mercy! what's the matter with the boy!' And then he had his handkerchief at his mouth and saw the linen stained with blood.

He dimly knew that two or three people hurried to him. He smelled hartshorn and tasted brandy; but he was not conscious of anything but 'Would Mr. Roth get it?'

Some questions were asked him, but he did not try to reply.

Outside half a dozen men were caring for the horse.

How much time passed Fred did not know. He was placed on a lounge, and he was glad to lie there very quietly. No more blood came, and he dropped into a kind of doze. He started up instantly, however, when a voice said:

'Here's your answer.'

He took the paper and read:

'Am coming. C. Roth.'

'Now I will go,' said the boy, getting on his feet. 'Where is Thunderbolt!'

'You are not going on the horse,' said a man, speaking authoritatively. 'I will take you in my buggy.'

It was the doctor who had been summoned. He carefully questioned Fred as they drove homeward, the colt having been put in a stable until he should be called for.

Contrary to the doctor's fears, Fred was not ill, though he had to be very quiet for a week or two. When he reached the house and was allowed to tell Clara himself that her father had not sailed, but was coming to her, he thought the look on her face paid him for his journey. And when, next day, he saw her lying in her father's arms he was more than ever glad. 'I should never have forgiven myself if I had sailed,' Mr. Roth said to the boy. 'I owe you more than I can tell. The doctor says Clara's joy at my return has given him a hope that her system may rally from the injury.'

'Thunderbolt won!' said Fred, gaily. 'Now I think of it, it really seems as if I did not ride a horse, but some imp in the shape of one. Nothing else could have made such time, though.'

When next Fred came near the colt, it was evident the animal was glad to see him, and soon the whole household learned that he would obey Fred better than any one else, while the boy began to have an affection for the beautiful horse that had carried him so well.

A few weeks later Mr. Roth came upon Fred as he was sitting in the barn looking over some fishing tackle.

'What do you think I have just done?' said the gentleman.

Fred looked up.

'How can I guess?' he asked.

'Well, I've bought Thunderbolt of Mr. Morris.'

Fred's face fell.

'You will take him away, I suppose?' he said.

'No. I have bought him for a dear friend of mine.'

Something in Mr. Roth's tone made Fred's cheeks flush, but he said nothing, and Mr. Roth went on:

'Will you take him, Fred? I bought him for you.'

Fred's eyes danced. He sprang to his feet.

'I'd rather have him than anything else in the world!' he cried excitedly. Then he added, hesitatingly, 'But is not he rather an expensive present? Perhaps I ought not—'

'Let me be the judge of that,' said Mr. Roth. 'All you have to do is to take the colt and be careful of yourself and him.'

Fred sprang to the side of the colt, and threw his arms around the shining neck.

'We'll never be parted in the world,' he cried eagerly.

And Thunderbolt's bright eyes looked as if they knew what his young master said.—Independent.

SOME HAWKEYE PHILOSOPHY.

My son, when you hear a man growling and scolding because Moody gets $200 a week for preaching Christianity, you will perceive that he never worries a minute because Ingersoll gets $200 a night for preaching atheism. You will observe that the man who is unutterably shocked because Francis Murphy is getting $150 a week for temperance work, seems to think it all right when the bar-keeper takes in twice as much money in a single day. The laborer is worthy of his hire, my boy, and he is just as worthy of it in the pulpit as he is upon the stump. Is the man who is honestly trying to save your immortal soul worth less than the man who is only trying his level best to go to Congress? Isn't Moody doing as good work as Ingersoll? Isn't John B. Gough as much the friend of humanity and society as the bartender? Do you want to get all the good in the world for nothing, so that you may be able to pay a high price for the bad? Remember, my boy, the good things in the world are always the cheapest. Spring water costs less than corn whiskey; a box of cigars will buy two or three Bibles; a gallon of old brandy costs more than a barrel of flour; a "full hand" at poker often costs a man more in twenty minutes than his church subscription amounts to in three years; a State election costs more than a revival of religion; you can sleep in church every Sunday morning for nothing, if you're mean enough to deadbeat your lodging in that way, but a nap in a Pullman car costs you $2 every time; 50 cents for the circus and a penny for the missionary box; $1 for the theatre and a pair of old trousers, frayed out at the ends, baggy as to the knees, and utterly bursted as to the dome, for the Michigan sufferers; the dancing lady who tries to wear the skirt of her dress under her arms and the waist around her knees and kicks her slippers clear over the orchestra chairs every night gets $600 a week, and the city missionary gets $600 a year; the horse-race scoops in $2000 the first day and the church fair lasts a week, works twenty-five or thirty of the best women in America nearly to death, and comes out $40 in debt—why, my boy, if you ever find yourself sneering or scoffing because once in a while you hear of a preacher getting a living, or even a luxurious salary, or a temperance worker making money, go out in the dark and feel ashamed of yourself, and if you don't feel above kicking a mean man, kick yourself. Precious little does religion and charity cost the old world, my boy, and when the money it does get is flung into its face, like a bone to a dog, the donor is not benefitted by the gift, and the receiver is not, and certainly should not be grateful. It is insulted.—Burdette.

GOOD NIGHT.—How very commonplace is the expression 'Good-night!' and yet what volumes it may speak for the future time! We never listen to it in passing, that this thought does not force itself upon us, be the tones in which it isuttered never so thoughtless. The lapse of a few hours may so surround and hedge it in horror that of the millions of words which a lifetime has recorded these two little words alone shall be remembered: 'Good night!' The little child has lisped it, as it passed smiling from this world; the lover with his gay dreams of the nuptial morrow; the wife and mother, with the tangled threads of household cares still in the fingers; the father, going out to death, leaving home and kin unprotected and uncared for. Good night! The seal upon days past and days to come. What hand so rash to tear aside the veil that covers its to-morrow! —The Presbyterian.

Robinson's fair daughters have taken the æsthetic nonsense deeply to heart. One recently inquired for furniture covering—'Something with a distinct individuality—but—rather subdued and—pensive—with a—dash of pathos and suggestive of infinite tenderness.'

For every young wife that cannot cook, there is a young husband who will not make fires, carry ashes, split kindlings or shovel snow, and cannot market because he does not know a hawk from a hen.—Illinois Woman.

'My gracious, what is the matter? You look all broken up; been up half the night with the boys?' 'No, been up all night with a girl.' 'A girl?' 'Yes, a girl about ten months old. She is teething.'

For the Palmer Journal.

There Is!

There is a sun—
A sun that ne'er will set;
And when the sands of life are run,
And our time on earth is done,
Be sure we don't forget
That for the true it ever shines,
And never from its sky declines.

There is a star—
O'er Bethlehem it shone;
We may not see it, for 'tis far
As heaven and the angels are;
Still it twinkles alone,
And sheds its gentle radiance
On One who forms our only chance.

There is a life—
But not on lowly earth;
And when we part with mortal strife,
And leave all earthly pleasures rife,
To pass a second birth,
A lease of life we will receive,
That mortal life can ne'er conceive.

Three Rivers, Mass. HENRY.

HOW THE STATES WERE NAMED.

Virginia, the oldest of the States, was so called in honor of Queen Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen," in whose reign Sir Walter Raleigh made his first attempt to colonize that region.

Florida—Ponce de Leon landed on the coast of Florida on Easter Sunday, and called the country in commemoration of the day, which was the Pasqua Florida of the Spaniards, or "Feast of Flowers."

Louisiana was called after Louis the Fourteenth, who at one time owned that section of the country.

Alabama was so named by the Indians, and signifies "Here we rest."

Mississippi is also an Indian name, meaning "Long River."

So also is Arkansas, from Kansas, the Indian word for "smoky water." Its prefix was really "Arc," the French word for bow.

The Carolinas were originally one tract, and were called "Carolina," after Charles the Ninth of France.

Georgia owes its name to George the Second of England, who first established a colony there in 1732.

Tennessee is the Indian for the "river of the bend;" i. e., the Mississippi, which forms its western boundary.

Kentucky is the Indian for "at the head of the river."

Ohio means "beautiful;" Iowa "drowsy ones;" Minnesota "cloudy water," and Wisconsin "wild rushing channel."

Illinois is derived from the Indian word "illini," and the French suffix "ois," together signifying "tribe of men."

Michigan is called by the name given the lake, "fishweir," which was so styled from its fancied resemblance to a fish-trap.

Missouri is from the Indian word "muddy," which very properly applies to the river which flows through it.

Oregon owes its Indian name also to its principal river.

Cortes named California.

Massachusetts is the Indian for "the country around the great hills."

Connecticut is from the Indian "Quanchta-Cut," signifying "long river."

Maryland, after Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles the First of England.

New York was named by the Duke of York.

Everybody knows that Pennsylvania means "Penn's woods," and was called after William Penn, its original owner.

Delaware after Lord De la Ware.

New Jersey, so called in honor of Sir George Cartaret, who was governor of the island of Jersey, in the British Channel.

Texas is the American word for the Mexican name by which all that section of the country was called before it was ceded to the United States.

DON'T DRINK TOO MUCH.

Americans as a class are unconscionable drinkers. All are prone to take more fluid than the system needs. It is not uncommon to see an individual sit down to a table and commence a meal by pouring down, the first thing, a goblet of water, either at the ordinary well temperature, say 50 or 60 degrees Fahrenheit, or ice cold. The gastric juice is diluted and the process of digestion interfered with at the start. It is better to eat the whole meal without drinking at all. Then a glass of water, a cup of coffee, a cup of tea, a goblet of milk will be found sufficient in all ordinary cases. We have seen a professional teacher of righteousness and temperance, who eschewed alcohol as he would a mortal sin, swill eight or ten cups of strong tea at a sitting. Visitors at Saratoga guzzle illimitable spring water in the fetish belief that they are laying in a stock of health for the season; and many swallow the fluids provided with their food, not as if they were to drink again in a few hours, but as if they were camels, with extra stomachs, and were about to cross a desert where they would find no water again for several days. Drinking too frequently at meals, except moderately, is an impediment to digestion, as already intimated. Drinking between meals, especially before the latest taken food has had time to digest in the stomach, is specially hurtful.—Troy Times.

A prominent railroad manager is credited with the following: 'I predict that every passenger locomotive will soon carry a pilot. I don't know where he'll be—whether on the cab or in front of the cab over the boiler, or in front of the boiler over what we now call the pilot and you call the cowcatcher—but he will be carried on every locomotive that carries trains at a high rate of speed, and he will watch the signals, switches, bridges, highways and junctions, and do nothing else, while the engineer runs his engine.'

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

We have passed the season when, ordinarily, the most intense heat is experienced; but the period comprising the latter part of August and nearly all of September is, perhaps, even more trying to the human constitution, and particularly so far as very young children are concerned. It was a remark of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, founded on his own professional observation, that "Heaven fills up fast with young angels during August and September." The New York Board of Health has made a special study of the cause of sickness among children, and has prepared a series of rules for their proper care. These rules will be useful not only here but everywhere—not in the city alone, but in the country as well, for the dangers against which they seek to provide exist in every community. We give them in full, and commend them to the careful perusal of all who have young children in their care:

NURSING OF INFANTS.

Over-feeding does more harm than anything else; nurse an infant a month or two old every two or three hours.

Nurse an infant of six months and over five times in twenty-four hours, and no more.

If an infant is thirsty, give it pure water, or barley water; no sugar.

On the hottest days, a few drops of whisky may be added to either water or food; the whisky not to exceed a teaspoonful in twenty-four hours.

FEEDING OF INFANTS.

Boil a teaspoonful of powdered barley (ground in a coffee grinder), and half a pint of water, with a little salt, for fifteen minutes, strain, then mix it with half as much boiled milk, add a lump of white sugar size of a walnut, and give it lukewarm from a nursing bottle. Keep bottle and mouthpiece in a bowl of water when not in use, to which a little soda may be added.

For infants five or six months old give half barley water and half boiled milk, with salt and a lump of sugar.

For older infants, give more milk than barley water.

For infants very costive, give oatmeal instead of barley. Cook and strain as before.

When your breast milk is only half enough, change off between breast milk and this prepared food.

In hot weather, if blue litmus paper, applied to the food, turns red, the food is too acid, and you must have a fresh mess, or add a small pinch of baking soda.

Infants of six months may have beef tea or beef soup once a day, by itself or mixed with other food; and when ten or twelve months old, a crust of bread and a piece of rare beef to suck.

No child under two years ought to eat at your table.

Give no candies, in fact nothing that is not contained in these rules, without a doctor's orders.

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

It comes from over-feeding and hot and foul air. Keep doors and windows open.

Wash your children well with cool water twice a day, or oftener in the hot season.

Never neglect looseness of the bowels in an infant; consult the family or dispensary physician at once, and he will give you rules about what it should take and how it should be nursed. Keep your rooms as cool as possible, have them well ventilated, and do not allow any smell to come from sinks, privies, garbage boxes or gutters about the house where you live. See that your own apartments are right, and complain to the Board of Health if the neighborhood is offensive. Where an infant is cross and irritable in the hot weather, a trip on the water will do it a great deal of good (ferryboat or steamboat), and may prevent cholera infantum.—Mechanical News.

WEEDS GOING TO SEED.

Just at this season, when cultivation is mostly over, and the main crops harvested or laid by, we are most in danger of allowing our old enemies, the weeds, to go to seed. This is a most culpable and expensive practice, entailing untold labor in future years. We have had in hand the present season, an old garden, where every weed was left undisturbed, and no crop was planted last year. Their name is legion of almost every variety that infests Connecticut soil, and some that we never met elsewhere. Pig-weed, milk-weed, dock and burdock, dandelion, fennel, mustard, quack-grass, plantain, purslain, jack-in-the-pulpit, mallows, and divers other sorts have sprung up in their season, and disputed possession with the crops planted. There is only one excellence about them, they insure frequent cultivation of all crops, if you would have any harvest. The labor of subduing one year's seeding of these pests is immense. In the garden especially, no weed should ever be allowed to go to seed. When one crop is off, put in another, and when the last is gathered, plow, or rake, or harrow, and let the frosts have free play at the soil.—American Agriculturist for September.

It is an unwritten law well understood in journalism that no editor is under the slightest obligation to give a reason for his acceptance or non-acceptance of a manuscript. He is not called upon to write a private critique on the article to the author of it. His acceptance or rejection is an absolute and unquestionable fact. Among amateur writers this does not appear to be understood. All sub-editors and reporters understand that it is an unjustifiable impertinence to ask the managing editor his reason for publishing or not publishing any matter submitted to his judgment. Outside writers and aspiring amateurs rarely seem to comprehend this truth, and their transgressions are largely from ignorance rather than intention. The nature of editorial work requires absolute power of decision, in order to preserve the duties of the journal the editor conducts.—Boston Traveller.

A short metre wedding: A young clergyman in Iowa recently married a couple in the following brief manner: 'Do you want one another?' Both responded, 'Yes.' 'Well, then, have one another.'

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1882.

SECRETARY FOLGER says he will accept the nomination for Governor of New York if it is tendered him.

RUMORS are current in Washington that Secretary Lincoln will not remain much longer in the cabinet, but they are believed to be without any foundation.

FIFTY or more new cases of yellow fever are reported daily at Brownsville, Texas. The deaths are not numerous as yet, but the hot weather is spreading the scourge, and a terrible epidemic of the dreadful disease seems inevitable.

THERE have been two or three sharp engagements between the English and Egyptian forces in Egypt the past week, in which the British troops have come off victorious. Arabi is retiring slowly before the enemy, and an unconfirmed rumor says that he has asked for an armistice.

DURING his stay in Newport the past week President Arthur has been dined and wined and lunched and feted on every hand, until his stomach must cry out for a rest. Unless he is more abstemious than he is supposed to be, his vacation trip is likely to be quite a tax upon his digestive organs.

EX-GOV. SPRAGUE of Rhode Island de-nded his recently-sold Canonchet mansion ith rifles, Gatling guns and mitrailleuses st week Friday when Trustee Chaffee went to take possession of the property, and the latter withdrew to await reinforcements. The courts will now settle the question of ownership.

PORTLAND had a city hall packed full of people Monday night, while about as many more tried vainly to get in to hear Mr. Blaine, who made the first campaign speech of any account. The ex-Secretary is still a good deal of a power in Maine, and he arraigned Plaisted in a most effective manner, speaking with all his old-time vigor and fire.

SOME three hundred friends of Mr. Bishop had a conference at Boston Wednesday, and a large committee was appointed to look after his interests throughout the State, among its members being ex-Mayor Powers, Col. Warriner, D. H. Brigham and other Springfield gentlemen, and Senator Corser of Holyoke. Mr. Bishop's prospects for securing the nomination at Worcester are steadily growing, and he is unquestionably the leading candidate to-day.

THE Westfield Times and News-Letter hung out the banner of Long and Barker as its candidates for the first and second places on the Republican ticket, but as it can't have Long any longer, takes Bishop for its next choice. But we want Barker for attorney general, neighbor; so make it Bishop and Woods. These names come pretty near being the alpha and omega, alphabetically speaking, and quite as near that in the qualities to be desired in the positions for which we name them.

THE Garfield Hospital, the Garfield Club House and other projects of the sort at Washington are languishing in a manner which does not promise well for their ultimate success. In fact, it is very doubtful if they ever do come to anything. Had the friends of the late President attempted less, and gone to work energetically and promptly, they would have accomplished something. As it is now, there will be cause for congratulation if his monument at Cleveland is fully completed within the next decade.

GOV. LONG accepts the invitation to run for Congress in the second district, in a brief letter in which he says: "I would deem the nomination, if tendered me, a great honor, and also deem it a call to public service which I would be bound as well as grateful to accept." This settles the question. He will be nominated and elected, of course, and the Republicans must choose between Bishop and Crapo to put in his place on the State ticket. Both are excellent men, but the campaign must be largely a defensive one if Crapo is nominated. Not so, however, with Bishop at the head. He has no river and harbor vote to apologize for, but, on the contrary, has a reputation for positive economy which will be a tower of strength to the party, and will insure a sweeping victory if he is nominated.

PASSENGERS on the fast Boston, White Mountain, Providence and other express trains bound for New York felt themselves grossly ill-treated by the managers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad last Saturday night. A freight train was derailed some two miles south of New Haven, and the passengers were delayed several hours. Parlor car passengers were turned out of their cars and the hundreds of waiting passengers were packed into ordinary cars at the New Haven depot, hauled out into a forsaken spot and there left, until the blockade was removed, without water or opportunity to get refreshments, and then taken on to New York on accommodation time, reaching there at 2. a. m., with their baggage left behind. Resolutions of indignation were adopted, but the managers of the road are used to this sort of thing, and, like Tweed, they would doubtless ask, "What are you going to do about it?"

An Illinois boy fell down a cliff, and was so injured that he had to stay abed a month. A physician prescribed drugs and a clergyman prayed daily for his recovery. He is now well. The father refuses to pay the doctor's bill of $80, because he believes the cure was wrought by prayer alone, but has given $80 to the church. A lawsuit is the result.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

September.

Oysters r ripe.

Five JOURNALS this month.

Communion Sunday at the churches to-morrow.

James H. Clark offers his farm on the Warren road for sale.

Cattle show will be along in a little more than two weeks, now.

Rev. A. W. Lamb preaches at the Congregational church to-morrow.

Quite a number of our people have attended the Hartford races this week.

Five carloads of immigrants passed through here for the West Tuesday evening.

Take good care of yourself this weather. These warm days and cool nights keep the doctors busy.

The Wide Awakes of this village defeated a nine from Warren Wednesday, in a game of ball, 22 to 17.

Applicants for admission to the high school will be examined at the school house next Friday, at 9 o'clock a. m.

Rev. E. A. Perry returns from his vacation this week, and will occupy the pulpit of St. Paul's church to-morrow.

Dr. A. C. Downing is enjoying a brief vacation in Northern Vermont. Dr. Bailey looks after his patients during his absence.

A freight train off the track at Dwight's made the boat train on the New London road two hours and a half late Tuesday evening.

George A Griffin is digging the cellar and putting in the foundations for L. E. Moore's new residence, corner of Main and Knox streets.

C. A. Brown and wife, Mrs. E. Brown and Miss Anna Brown have gone to Marblehead, for a couple of weeks' enjoyment of the sea breezes.

About 20 members of Merrick Post No. 117, G. A. R., of this place, went to Warren Wednesday evening to attend a camp fire with the post there.

Dr. W. H. Stowe has been to Fall River this week to attend a reunion of the Raymond excursionists who took a trip up the Saguenay river a while ago.

The drouth is killing a good many young trees, and some yards are strewn with dead leaves as thickly as they usually are two months later in the season.

Vennor says: "There's another scorcher coming. The fore part of September is almost certain to be sultry, stormy and hot." This means an approaching cold spell.

The horse attached to Marcy's lumber yard wagon tried a little runaway through Main street Wednesday afternoon, getting up a momentary excitement, but he was stopped before doing any damage.

The following scholars are reported as neither absent nor tardy during the last term of the second primary school: Emma Duplessis, Eddie Brooks, Edward Davis, Freddie Stoughton.

The directors of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society will meet at the office of the secretary, O. P. Allen, next Wednesday afternoon, at one o'clock, to arrange the programme for the approaching exhibition of the society.

M. Fox has had one shipment this week of as handsome Crawford peaches as are often seen hereabouts, but they are not ripening quite as fast as was expected, and on this account some of the best fruit for canning will not be along until next week.

The Baptist church, which has been closed during the month of August, while the pastor was away on his vacation, will be reopened to-morrow, with service at the usual morning hour. Rev. Mr. Hunt returned yesterday from his trip to New Hampshire and Maine, and reports a most refreshing and enjoyable vacation season.

The New England Fair occurs at Worcester next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and the Boston & Albany road will run an excursion train to Worcester each day of the fair, leaving Palmer at 8.36 a. m., and Worcester, on the return trip, at 5.30 p. m. Round trip tickets from Palmer to Worcester will be sold for $1, good on the excursion train only.

Dog-days come to an end next Tuesday. They have been rather more comfortable than usual this year, on the whole, with very little of the customary mugginess and stickiness, but the terrible drouth has made an impression on the crops which will cause the present reign of the dog star to be long and sorrowfully remembered by people in this part of the country.

We see that the firemen in the various towns around us are practicing for the firemen's muster, to take place at Framingham September 7th. Guess they don't know about the Palmer fire department. If that goes down to the muster it will be of no use for any of the towns around here to try and compete with it. Our department is very skillful—with pails.

C. S. Tarbell, the popular express agent on the Ware River Railroad, has resigned his position, to go into the hotel business at Brimfield with his father-in-law, Landlord Munroe. Mr. Tarbell has hosts of friends who will miss him on the road, but will be glad to see him in his new position. He will be succeeded by Con. Foley, for some time in the express office in this village.

The new bank wall between Haynes's tin shop and the railroad bridge has been laid this week. An iron fence goes on top of it, and when the necessary filling-in has been done and the proposed new concrete walk from the bridge to the bank is put in, the improvement will be so marked that people will wonder how they ever got along so long without it.

As we stated some weeks ago, oysters are going to be scarce and high this fall and winter. The supply has been diminished to such an extent by the singular fatality which has swept many oyster beds almost entirely out of existence, that it will not begin to come up to the demand. The bivalves now sell for 50 cents per quart, and there is no prospect of the price being lower this season, while it may go still higher.

Simmons & Mower's Uncle Tom's Cabin combination presented that play at Wales Hall Thursday evening to a full house. This is their first appearance here, and they made a good impression. The bloodhounds were very real, and their loud baying at first caused some to feel a little timid. "Topsy" was one of the best that ever played here, and the other principal parts were well taken.

A good soaking rain began early yesterday morning, which it is to be hoped was the forerunner of other and more extensive rains. It is too late now to save many of the crops. Corn and potatoes, as well as cucumbers and other garden vegetables, are too far gone in many cases to be resuscitated by any amount of rain, but the springs and wells need filling up, and it will take a large quantity of rain to put them in shape for the winter.

The annual illumination at Oak Bluffs and Martha's Vineyard comes off to-night, and the New London Northern Railroad sells excursion tickets to the Vineyard and return, from Palmer and Monson, for $4. The steamer "City of Springfield" will convey excursionists from New London at 11.45 a. m. to-day, and remain at the Vineyard until 9 p. m. on Sunday, returning to New London in season to connect with the Monday morning trains.

The schools at Blanchardville and in the out districts will begin their fall term next Monday, but it has been thought best to continue the vacation of the village schools another week. The schools at Palmer, Three Rivers, Thorndike and Bondsville will accordingly not commence until Sept. 11th. The principal of the high school is to have a competent assistant hereafter, and no pains will be spared to make this one of the best schools in Western Massachusetts.

The Clipper base ball club of Ware and the Rockets of West Warren, between whom considerable rivalry exists, and who have played several close games, but always with a feeling of dissatisfaction on one side or the other in regard to the decisions of the umpire, have agreed to play a game on the park in this village this afternoon for $100 a side. The umpire will be chosen by an outside party, and neither side will know who he is until the game commences. This will undoubtedly be the finest game of the season on these grounds. Game called at 2.30 o'clock.

William L. Nixon, a tramp, was committed to the work house at Bridgewater for a year, on the 24th ult., by the district court. Last Saturday Alfred D. Cady of the Monson House was fined $100 for illegal liquor selling, but appealed. Timothy O'Grady of Monson did the same, on a similar complaint. Mary Cummings was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness, and for larceny was sent to the house of correction for one month. James Linnehan could not pay $1 and costs for drunkenness, and so was sent up. On Tuesday the case against Rosa Cardnell, for adultery, was dismissed, and no further proceedings were had against John Quinlan for adultery and larceny, he having put himself beyond the jurisdiction of earthly courts. On Wednesday Dimmick Willis of Wales, for drunkenness and assault on his wife, paid $21.91, and was discharged, promising to do better in the future.

Lawyer Strong has begun work this week on some important additions to his Nassowanno House property. A one-story addition is being made on the Walnut street side of the block, 8 feet wide on Main street, 6 feet wide at the rear, and 54 feet deep. This is to be used as an additional entrance to the post office, which will be enlarged by taking in the rear part of the addition, through arches in the wall. Mails will be received and sent out through a door in the rear, instead of through the front entrance as at present. There will also be room for a large number of additional boxes, and it is probable that Postmaster Knox will put in an entirely new set of boxes throughout—a thing which certainly ought to be done. Mr. Strong's law office is being moved from Main street to Walnut, in the rear of the Nassowanno, and adjoining it he proposes to build a two-story building of wood, suitable for two stores. He will then put in a concrete walk on Walnut street, extending from Main street to Mrs. Shaw's residence. On the Main street site of his office, and covering most of the present drive-way to the stable in the rear, he proposes to erect a substantial brick block 28 feet front, 75 feet deep, and three stories high, leaving a space of about 4 feet between this and the Nassowanno House block. The first floor of the new building is to be finished off for stores, the second for offices, and the third probably for additional sleeping rooms for the hotel. This block promises to be quite an acquisition to Main street, and with the new block on Walnut street, will throw three or four new stores into the market. There has been considerable criticism of the architectural effect of the small addition to the Nassowanno block for the post office, and a petition has been presented to the selectmen asking them to widen the lower end of Walnut street, so as to embrace the land covered by this addition. It is quite doubtful about this being done, however, on account of the expense involved, while Mr. Strong is confident that when the work is completed the appearance of the building will be such as to disarm all unfavorable criticism.

Editor of the Journal:—A petition for the widening of Walnut street having recently been circulated by John M. Converse, accompanied by certain seeming misrepresentations which perhaps the gentleman cannot help, a correct statement of facts in regard to the matter, as they appear to the writer, may be desirable. Walnut street, after a careful examination and hearing of all interested, was laid out by the county commissioners a few years since. It was finally decided to make the street two rods wide instead of three rods, (a) because Central street, a wide street, was so near, and (b) a three-rod street would bring a very large expense upon the town, with no corresponding advantage, such a street necessitating the removal of a portion of the Nassowanno hotel building. The line of the street as now laid passes within about two feet of quite a portion of the Nassowanno House. The owners of the Nassowanno hotel property, hoping that the erection of substantial buildings in the business part of the town will give an impetus to building activity in the near future, have projected certain improvements which anyone who has the prosperity of Palmer village at heart will be glad to see consummated. Among them, in answer to requests for enlarged post office accommodations, is the covering of the angular-shaped piece of land near Main street, which has been occupied for coal bins, ash heap and rubbish, with a good brick building which affords ample and convenient accommodations to the post office and the public, and the building of a concrete walk on the line of Walnut street most of the distance between Main and Pleasant streets. The parties interested feel confident that the above will be a most decided improvement, after careful thought. If the public, when the above improvements are completed, should deem otherwise, the owners of the property will be found easily approachable at any time on any subject relating to the benefit of the town. One thing is certain, this town ought not longer to be what it has been for the last thirty years. It ought to be improved, and must be improved, even if certain well-meaning citizens have to give up their habit of fault finding and their pet ideas. Less grumbling and more encouragement of enterprise is what is needed. Any unprejudiced observer cannot fail to note the contrast between a neatly-constructed brick building and the row of hatchways and unseemly platforms now placed along the westerly side of Walnut street. If some of the cheap wooden buildings used for business purposes on Main street were torn down and good buildings put in their place, it would be in the line of improvements.

HOMER C. STRONG.

THREE RIVERS.

The Three Rivers base ball club went to West Warren last week Friday and beat the Rockets 21 to 13. The Rockets changed their positions repeatedly, while the Three Rivers boys kept each of their positions through the game. Features of the game were double plays made by Foley and Robertson, and a running catch made by J. Manion. The game passed off without any disputes, and our boys are satisfied with the respect always shown them by the Rockets, who are all gentlemanly players.

BRIMFIELD.

Miss Sarah M. Shanley of "Tower Hill" is taking a six weeks' vacation among friends in Connecticut.

On Tuesday twenty-five applicants were examined for admission to the Hitchcock Free High School. On Wednesday the school opened under the following teachers: F. E. Burnett, principal; Arthur A. Upham, Miss Ellen E. Osgood and Miss Mary A. Witter, assistants. Ninety pupils were present. Others expected to come in will increase the number to 100 or more.

WALES.

The schools commence next Monday.

The Rogers families, who have been spending a few days at their old home, leave to-day for their homes in New York and Worcester.

The Ladies' Aid Society held an ice cream and peach festival, Wednesday evening, in the Baptist vestry, which was highly enjoyed by a goodly number of people.

Mrs. Eden D. Shaw, Mrs. E. Hubbard and Hattie Hubbard are spending the week at the Vineyard, while Mrs. E. Cady is spending a few weeks among the mountains in Vermont with her friends.

HAMPDEN.

Skunks are getting quite plentiful in Main street, but it is not much of a place for skunks.

Rumor says that the little brown jug is getting quite numerous about the west end of Main street o' nights.

Malarial fever is quite prevalent here. Mr. Jones and family, who came here on a visit from Suffield, are down with it.

The brick yard, which started so promisingly two weeks ago, has petered out. Mr. Thresher, after expending considerable time and money in making beds and getting machinery, found the clay would not make good brick, and is now hauling them from Springfield to build his two coal kilns.

BONDSVILLE.

Paymaster Packard has returned from a two weeks' trip to the beach.

Guess the schoolma'ams are anxious to have school begin, as two of them put in an appearance a week before the proper time, claiming that they had not been notified of the change by the committee, and they were consequently $1.20 out for car fare.

It would be a good idea if the Belchertown authorities would put a few loads of gravel on the principal crossing near the depot. People are getting tired of bumping their heads against the top of their carriage when going over it much faster than a walk. Don't believe we need any more sand on the roads, as this dry weather makes plenty of it.

WARREN.

The milkmen have raised prices to six cents a quart.

The visitors to the seaside are fast returning to their homes.

The public schools commence next Monday, with quite a good many changes in teachers.

A number of people availed themselves of the opportunity to attend the Sabbath school convention at South Framingham, the fare being reduced.

The Grand Army had a pleasant reunion Wednesday evening, with a torchlight procession and an address by Col. Warriner of Springfield. Delegations from Brookfield and Spencer were present. The Warren band furnished music.

WILBRAHAM.

The public schools of the town commence next Monday.

Prof. Gill returned home from his European tour Tuesday morning.

The monthly meeting of the Willing Workers has been postponed till a week from to-morrow.

The fall term of the academy commenced Wednesday afternoon with an unusually large attendance. The boarding house has been undergoing some needed repairs.

Mrs. Guthrie, daughter of Judge Merrick of New Orleans, died suddenly at the house of her uncle, William Merrick, on Wednesday evening, and was interred in the old cemetery Friday afternoon. She leaves a husband and two small children to mourn her loss.

THORNDIKE.

Mr. Brosnahan received a savage scalp wound by a fall down stairs last Saturday.

The communion season at the Congregational church will be postponed until September 10.

The public schools of the village will not commence till September 11, to be uniform with the others in town.

The grammar school building is being thoroughly cleansed for the fall term. The sanitary condition of all the school buildings in town is being carefully looked after.

The annual farmers' picnic was held on the premises of Deacon Freeman Foster last Wednesday. As usual, the day was clear, and the deacon affable. Over one hundred guests, including a goodly number of lads and lasses, assembled to enjoy the great sociable and the cool shade of the broad elms. Although it was called a "basket picnic," and a "dry year for farmers," still the extension, or better extensive, tables were richly laden with both ambrosia and nectar. The dinner was prefaced by appropriate suggestions by the deacon, to which Rev. Mr. Ricketts added an index. Before and after the repast harmless games were indulged in by the sturdy tillers of the soil—base ball, croquet, quoits, archery, singing, etc. In every respect the day will be pleasantly remembered by all the guests who enjoyed the kind hospitality of the host and hostess.

BELCHERTOWN.

Rev. P. W. Lyman has gone on a vacation of two weeks. S. G. Hastings supplied his pulpit last Sunday.

The members of the Masonic fraternity, with their wives, picnicked near the Ludlow reservoir last Wednesday.

A body has been seen floating near Great Gull Island, near New London, which, it was thought, might be that of Owen Kulreave. It is thought his friends will charter a tug to investigate.

The annual reunion of the Morse family was held at Slate's Grove, on August 23, and was much enjoyed by all present, the number being one hundred. A. W. Morse was chosen president; M. A. Morse, secretary; Jessie Morse, treasurer. Jessie Buffington and Samuel Morse of Ware were the speakers of the day. M. A. Morse was appointed to gather statistics of the family and put them in a permanent form. H. C. Davis of Ware was chosen orator for the coming year, and Prof. Harwood of Newton was elected poet. The next gathering will be held August 24, 1883.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

The public schools commence next Monday.

W. E. Stone has gone on a two weeks' vacation and fishing trip.

The Lord's Supper will be administered at the Street to-morrow morning.

Rev. M. S. Howard delivered a preparatory lecture at the chapel Thursday evening.

The paper makers engage the Valley paper mill nine of Holyoke this afternoon, and next week the Westfield firemen at Westfield. The second and third nines have a game this afternoon also.

Dr. A. O. Squier has sold out and gone to Dakota for two months. Then he returns East to enter the hospital in New York for the winter, and subsequently to settling in Springfield to practice.

Dr. John Cotton of Woodstock, Conn., has bought out Dr. Squier, and will remove to this village next week to commence practice. Dr. Cotton spent one year in the hospitals of Europe after graduation, and has had seven years' experience in Connecticut, and the people will be glad to have so able a physician in our midst.

Mr. Truman C. Bradway died Wednesday norning, after a severe sickness of sixteen days—at first a fever, followed by pneumonia and abscesses on the lungs. He died very suddenly without a struggle. The doctor made his usual morning visit and left him quite easy and seemingly as comfortable as any time before, but before the doctor had got far away he was recalled, only in time to find that he had suddenly passed away. He leaves a wife and three boys, the oldest 14 years of age. He was a member of Ashland Lodge of Masons and Palmer Lodge of Odd Fellows, and leaves to his family about $3500 insurance. The funeral occurred yesterday at one o'clock at the house, and at two o'clock at the chapel, under the auspices of the Palmer Lodge of Odd Fellows. Services were conducted by Rev. M. S. Howard and Dr. Fox. The grain mill was shut down during the afternoon.

WEST WARREN.

G. H. Swindells intends to move to Potsdam, N. Y.

A petition is around town to have a road cut to connect Summer and School streets.

J. B. Lombard recently sold a building lot on Chapel street to Nelson Gagnon for $250.

A Prevost girl had her eye put out the other day by a stone thrown by a boy who was angry with her. The boy will probably go to the reform school.

The Rockets play the Clippers on Palmer park this afternoon for $100 a side, the losing nine paying all expenses. The umpire this time is to be chosen by disinterested parties and will not be known until time for the game.

C. F. Elmer was robbed of about thirty dollars Tuesday, the burglars effecting an entrance by cutting through the window screen. A barn, about three miles out of the village, belonging to Mr. Elmer, was destroyed by fire, together with twelve tons of hay, by an incendiary fire, about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. Loss about $1000; insured for $600.

The Ware Clippers are dissatisfied with the result of the ball game between them and the Rockets, the 19th ult., and think that the umpire gave them the game. The Rockets are ready to play them again any time, and convince them that it wasn't the umpire that beat them. They are also sure that the umpire had no money staked on the game and had no reasons for deciding otherwise than fairly.

Wood & Swindells, dealers in dry goods and groceries, have sold out to Senton Bros., one from Gilbertville and the other from Utica, N. Y. They will continue the business under the firm name of Senton Bros. Wood & Swindells came here in May, 1874, and bought out Lombard & Tidd. This store was started in 1854 and has been owned by at least eight different firms. The post-office was started in one corner of it in 1862, by Lewis Elwell.

Arba Squier has sold a building lot on Highland street to John Gavin of Wales, who will at once erect a dwelling house.

Work on Pearl street is lively, the digging of cellars and the erection of dwellings indicating work for carpenters and painters.

The Messrs. Munn have a new coat of paint on the block occupied by Gage Bros., which materially benefits its appearance.

It is a veritable saying, and the acceptation, though not pleasant, is, alas! too true, that "Potatoes are small, and but few in the hill."

John D. Bradway has a small dog which has slaughtered 43 woodchucks and 13 skunks this season. And the dog has but one eye, at that.

The river and harbor bill is not causing as much anxiety in this locality as the "water in the well," and a liberal appropriation from the great treasury would be unanimously voted for.

We copy the following from the Cape Cod Bee: "It is our painful duty to chronicle the sudden death of another estimable young lady, Mrs. Lizzie H. Newton, wife of Warren F. Newton of Monson, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McIntyre, which occurred after a painful illness of only a few weeks, at her father's residence, on Wednesday, August 16. Mrs. Newton, who had been married but a few months, was sprightly and lively in disposition and leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her untimely death. The funeral, which was very largely attended, took place on Friday afternoon, Rev. J. K. Aldrich conducting the services, with singing by a quartet, consisting of Messrs. E. W. and G. F. Snow, Nye and Ingalls. The remains reposed in an elegant casket, around which were arranged several fine floral tributes. The sympathy of this community is extended to the husband and family in their great bereavement."

WARE AND VICINITY.

The 42d Mass. Regiment are talking of having a reunion at King's Grove some time in the middle of September.

The old Oregon engine has been thoroughly repaired, with a new bottom and drip valves, and by many is thought to be superior to the new one for actual service.

Mrs. George Hale met with a sad accident on Thursday morning, while hanging her bird cage upon the piazza. In stepping into a chair she fell in such a way as to break one rib and fracture another.

Congressman George R. Davis has presented the library with the "Roll of Honor," published by the government, in 27 volumes, containing the name and place of burial of all those who lost their lives in the late war.

The Otis Company are putting four new 60-inch horizontal tubular boilers into the bleachery and finishing department, to take the place of five old boilers. Each of the new ones contains 66 three-inch tubes, 16½ feet long, and they are rated at 80 horse power each.

All of the schools in the village and out districts are to begin on Monday. There are to be few changes in teachers. Miss Affa Miner is to be assistant at the high school, Miss Sanford takes the school on top of Ware which was in charge of Miss Weeks, Miss Brayer takes district No. 9, and Miss Carrie Howe No. 4.

The Congregational church, at its meeting last week Friday night, voted to call a council to examine and ordain Henry P. Perkins as a missionary, and appointed the pastor and deacons a committee of arrangements. Next Wednesday is appointed as the time the council is to meet, in the chapel. The council is to be nearly the same as before.

The annual races on Hampden park, Springfield, will come off next week, beginning on Tuesday and continuing through four days. Nearly seventy horses have been entered for these races, including the best trotters which have gone through the western circuit. On Tuesday horses in the 2.38 and 2.20 classes will trot, the latter being one of the best matched races of the season. The 2.29 and 2.23 classes will trot on Wednesday, with a fine field of horses. On Thursday the 2.34 and 2.26 classes will appear, and Friday will be given to the 2.50 class and a special open-to-all race. Brown's Brigade Band of Boston will furnish music each day, and some fine races are assured. Excursion tickets will be sold over all the railroads.

The Springfield Bicycle Club has arranged for a grand tournament in that city on Wednesday, September 20. There are to be a number of races on the park in the afternoon, and in the evening there will be contests in the skating rink, all for prizes aggregating nearly $1500 in value. Continuous music is to be furnished by two bands, and a large attendance of bicyclists is already assured, among them being John S. Prince, the champion rider of the United States; Louise Armaindo, the champion bicyclenne of the world, and many others, giving promise of some fine races.

Old "Rover," the Haydenville dog which figured conspicuously in the Mill River disaster and which was 21 years old and a cripple, was recently chloroformed. It was this dog that was found beside the body of Robbie Hayden after the flood, and after the boy was taken away the dog was found three days after watching by the body of the grandfather, Eli Bryant, which was covered by the sand, except an arm, which the dog had dug out.

Governor Long has evinced his willingness to stand for Congress in the second district He has kept several political prizes dangling before his eyes, apparently unable to find out which one he would like best. Now that he has made his choice, it is to be hoped that the district will not lose the chance of securing so distinguished a representative. He would add materially to the weight of the Massachusetts delegation.—N. Y. Tribune.

John Murray, of Reading, half drunk, was on a train coming out of Boston, the other evening, and when the conductor called for his fare he drew a pistol and drove conductor and passengers in a heap to the other end of the car. At Dedham an officer boldly arrested him, and it was found that his shooter was one of those dreadful toy pistols.

Iceland is experiencing a terrible famine, the severe winters of the past two years being followed by cold summers, which have ruined the crops and left the people in many districts absolutely destitute. The governor appeals for food for the people and fodder for the stock before winter sets in, to ward off the impending starvation.

An excursion train returning from Grand Rapids to Toledo, O., on Monday, was boarded thirty miles from Toledo by half a dozen ruffians, who beat the conductor, and with drawn revolvers robbed the passengers. All of the desperadoes escaped but one, a notorious rough, who was arrested at Toledo.

Barnum has been offered $120,000, cash in advance, for the privilege of exhibiting Jumbo with the baby elephant and its mother in the Southern States, from October 14 to March 6—120 days. He declines the offer, although the animals will probably be lying idle during this period.

Gen. William T. Sherman will ask to be placed on the retired list of the army in November, 1883. He could be retired under the army compulsory act February 8, 1884, at which date he will be 64 years of age, but will not wait until then.

Only Two Bottles.

Messrs. Johnson, Holloway & Co., wholesale druggists of Philadelphia, Pa., report that some time ago a gentleman handed them a dollar, with a request to send a good catarrh cure to two army officers in Arizona. Recently the same gentleman told them that both the officers and the wife of Gen. John C. Fremont, Gov of Arizona, had been cured of catarrh by the two bottles of Ely's Cream Balm.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.—A few days ago I saw a lady who had used your Cream Balm for Catarrh, and had found more relief in one bottle than from all other remedies she had tried. I enclose $1 for two bottles. Yours respectfully, JAMES HITCHEN, M. D., Providence, R. I.

Apply into nostrils with little finger. 1y23

PLEASE REMEMBER THIS.—Renne's Magic Oil still stands in the front ranks and at the head of all curative agents; and that before its miraculous influences all internal pains and aches, such as Cramps, Colic Pains, Cholera Morbus, Dirrhœa, Dysentery, &c., give way at once, and that Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Ailments cannot withstand its wondrous powers for even a single hour. It is especially recommended to ladies for certain ailments, as it is as clear as crystal, as aromatic as rose water, and as harmless as the limpid spring, being a purely vegetable preparation.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth when it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

The Sweet Country Cousins.

How dear to the heart are the sweet country cousins,
When dog days of summer begin to draw near,
When bricks have grown hot and when sunstrokes by the dozens
Fill body with anguish and bosom with fear!
The green waving fields and the sweet-smelling breezes,
The 'scaping from turmoil to quiet and calm,
The rich, creamy milk which the ready hand seizes,
And e'en the brown cousins who live on the farm;
The plain country cousins, the uncultured cousins,
The sweet country cousins that live on the farm.

The sweet country cousins! oh, aren't they a treasure?
How handy to have at the vacation time!
And paying one's board is too costly a pleasure,
When all can be had without spending a dime.
How pleasant to live on rich cream and ripe berries,
Fresh, golden-hued butter and cakes light and warm,
Free use of the horses, the carts and the wherries
Of sweet country cousins who live on the farm!
The plain country cousins, the uncultured cousins,
The sweet country cousins that live on the farm.

How dear are the sweet country cousins in summer!
How fragrant the meadow, romantic the down!
But straightway your faces begin to grow glummer
At thoughts of their visit next winter to town.
The theatre, the concert, the lecture, the money
Expended in tickets! the thought gives a qualm;
The sequel of summer is not quite so funny—
Why don't the sweet cousins remain on their farm?
The brown-visaged cousins, the great awkward cousins,
The clodhopper cousins should stay on their farm.

THE COURTESIES OF TRAVEL.

It is common to say that, in losing the old stage-coach, we have lost that comfortable sociability which once made travel so great a charm. But we have lost something more. We have lost that humane instinct which, in the olden times, made all travelers considerate of one another. Travel—travail; the derivation of the word is suggestive. It was work, and hard work, in the old days, and out of the common strain and the common hardship came a co-operative and fraternal spirit which transformed its hardships into pleasurable memories. But the Pulman car is a refrigerator. In transporting fruit from California, the first condition is that there shall be coldness, and then—isolation. The nectarines must not touch each other. In like manner, as we multiply the luxuries of travel, we multiply barriers between the travelers. It is not merely that there are parlor-cars; it is that in these, and in the ordinary American railway carriage, also, the first consideration comes, more and more, to be personal comfort and not mutual consideration. The grudging answer, the reluctance to impart information, the almost brutal struggle for the best, which increasingly disregards weakness and age and woman—these are things which one sees now more frequently and unpleasantly than of old. We talk of the garrulous and interrogative American. But where is he? Vanished as utterly as the Massasoit Indian. An English gentleman, who lately traversed the continent, said that he had never traveled in a country in which his fellow-travelers were so reserved.

It is a mistake, if it is no more. There is no one whose horizon may not be widened if he will only avail himself of the wholesome education of the fellowships of travel. It is easy to be too much upon one's guard. All travelers are not swindlers, and courtesy is not necessarily familiarity. As it is, one is reminded of that countryman of ours who, having crossed the Atlantic with a roommate who, from the beginning to the end of the voyage, had not addressed one word to him, parted from him, saying airily: "Well, good-by. You will now proceed, I suppose, to your home at the Deaf and Dumb Asylum!"—September Century.

The Nebraska young man who broke the leg of a rival in a combat over a girl whom both were encouraged to love, does not feel that he was the victor after all, since she has taken to devotedly nursing the invalid, and has promised to marry him as soon as he can walk to church.

A convict says he was sent to prison for being dishonest, and yet he is compelled every day to cut out pieces of pasteboard, which are put in between the soles of the cheap shoes made there and palmed off on the innocent public as leather.—Philadelphia News.

It is said that bunches of violets laid away when fresh in the pockets or sleeves of dresses impart a more pleasant perfume than any liquid preparation from the flowers. They need to be gathered when externally dry, and removed when themselves scentless.

An Austin teacher was calling the roll. Just as he called out 'Bob Smith,' Bob pushed open the door, out of breath, and answered, 'Here, sir.' 'Robert, next time you must not answer to your name unless you are here.' 'Yes, sir; I will try not to.'—Texas Siftings.

Miss Kreuger carried a gun to the wedding of Gottleib Summers, at Canton, Ohio, and after the husband and wife had retired for the night, fired into their bedroom through a window. Her excuse was that she ought to have been the bride.

M. Saint Paul has offered the French Academy of Medicine a sum of $5000 to found a prize for the discovery of a cure for diphtheria, the competition to be open to the world and not confined to the medical profession.

Fruit of the tropic's burning clime,
Thy wondrous virtues, fadeless still,
Exert an influence sublime
In ministering to human ill;
And many a pang along our way
SANFORD'S GINGER doth allay. s

Sick headache, nausea, rising of food, flatulency, seasickness, cramps and pains, hysteria, nervousness, languor, and loss of sleep call for prompt use of Sanford's Ginger, "the delicious." s

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA

and CUTICURA SOAP externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

"Introduced in 1864, five years prior to the introduction of any other New England remedy for the same diseases."

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its healing effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

MALARIA!

THE ONLY REMEDY KNOWN

TO DESTROY THIS DEADLY PEST.

The most alarming fact, in our sanitary conditions, is the prevalence of MALARIAL POISON not only in marshy, low-lying districts, but in the cities and upon elevated ground where, a few years since, it was unheard of. Frequently fatal disorders of the digestive functions, wasted and enfeebled body and even insanity are the dire effects of malarial poisoning, the sure precursors of death if the poison is not neutralized. The boatmen on the Del. & Hudson Canal, as well as the inhabitants of the adjoining country, have been great sufferers from MALARIA. Not until a few years past did they find a reliable remedy. Now thousands testify that there is but one real and speedy cure for malarial poisoning, and that is DR. KENNEDY'S "FAVORITE REMEDY," which by its action upon the blood purifies it and restores a healthy tone to the entire system. As a preventive in localities where this danger lurks, it is invaluable. The "FAVORITE REMEDY" also cures the worst liver and kidney complaints and all diseases caused by vitiated blood. For sale by all druggists: price $1.00 per bottle. It is an absolutely safe, purely vegetable remedy, the greatest alterative medicine in the world. Address the proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N.Y. 4w20

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quicted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

BLADDER AND KIDNEYS.

Most of the diseases of the bladder originate from those of the kidneys; restore the action of the Liver fully, and both the kidneys and bladder will be restored.

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

As the Wind Blows.

The wind blows north, the wind blows south,
The wind blows east and west;
No matter how the free wind blows,
Some ship will find it best;
Some one out on the wide, wide sea
Shouts with a happy air,
Ho! shipmates, ho! set all the sails,
The wind is blowing fair!

One ship sails out into the east,
Another to the west;
One has to struggle fierce and hard,
By winds and waves oppressed,
Under bare masts, tossed to and fro,
By rain and salt spray wet;
The other flies before the gale
With all her white sail set.

"Oh, wind, oh, wind, why dost thou blow,
And out to ocean roar,
When I would steer my little bark
Toward some pleasant shore?
What honor will it be to thee
If down beneath the wave
My simple craft and I shall find
A cold, forgotten grave?"

"Oh, foolish one, why wilt thou steer
Against the mighty gale?
There are ten thousand ships afloat
Besides thy tiny sail.
If thou would float o'er pleasant seas,
Oppose my will no more;
When I blow shoreward, then do thou
Sail also to the shore.

"Yet, if thy will with mine must thrive,
Do thou the best thou can;
Against my might set all thy skill,
And fight me like a man.
Keep by the wheel, steer steadily,
Keep watch above, below;
Such hearts will make the ports they seek,
No matter what winds blow."

DOCTOR FRANK.

'Dear me! Such a pretty dress so sadly wasted. It seems almost a sin to put it on. I don't think either Uncle Reuben or Aunt Jane will appreciate it, and Fido I am sure will not, inasmuch as its ruffles are not to be soiled by his dirty paws.'

And, thus soliloquizing, Kate Arden hesitated a moment as to whether the open trunk should receive back the pink batiste, with its innumerable lace-edged flounces and loops of rose-colored ribbon, or whether it should deck the pretty face and form reflected in the mirror of Aunt Jane's best bed-room, occupied only since yesterday by her pretty city niece, who had come down to smell the June roses and woo some of their color into her own pale cheeks.

Something in the reflection decided the question. The trunk was closed and the batiste donned, and, looking as lovely as the first flush of sunrise, Kate tripped smilingly down the stairs, knowing that two pairs of eyes would kindle into admiration, and that Uncle Reuben would break into hearty speech. Nor was she mistaken. He turned toward her as she opened the door.

'Ah, here comes the little girl now,' he said. 'Kate, dear—why, how lovely you're looking, my lassie!—this is our new doctor—Doctor Lawrence. He stopped in to know how my rheumatism was getting on, and I was just talking to him about you.'

The girl looked up. All regret concerning the pink batiste fled, for standing by her uncle's side was a young, handsome man, whose clear brown eyes were bent full upon her, and who acknowledged the introduction with a courteous bow, utterly devoid of embarrassment or rusticity.

'We thought at first no one could take poor old Doctor Grey's place,' continued Uncle Reuben. ('You knew he was dead, Kate. He took a sudden cold last winter.) But somehow I don't think we'd quite know how to do without Doctor Lawrence now, although we old folks do laugh at some of his new-fledged notions.'

'You're very kind, Mr. Evans,' answered the young man, in a deep, musical voice. 'I hope you don't think me unappreciative of how little you've let me feel myself a stranger in Evansville.'

'It was your own magic, my boy; but talking of strangers, you must certainly not be so now. We don't quite know what to do with this city girl, who's come to spend a few weeks with us, to get back the roses dissipation and town life have scattered. You'll have to help us make the country so attractive that she'll not be in too great a hurry to run away from us.'

'If you always set such delightful tasks, Mr. Evans, your prescriptions will, I am sure, be religiously followed, though, unfortunately, every chemist cannot make them up.'

And he glanced at Kate, with a mischievous smile.

She was not slow with some merry repartee, and when, half an hour later, Doctor Lawrence took his departure, he had left quite a pleasurable little wave of anticipation and excitement behind. Nor did Kate experience any more regret at pretty dresses being wasted, as one by one she took them from her trunks, and proceeded to make herself as fascinatingly pretty as possible.

It was wonderful, too, the time that Doctor Lawrence managed to spare from his patients. It grew to be a very customary thing for his light wagon to drive up in the early gloaming, and for Kate to take in it her place beside him, for one of those charming drives which she said were doing her so much good. They had long talks, too—talks in which he told her of his hopes for the future, and touched very lightly on some of his disappointments and struggles of the past.

She learned that this man was ambitious; that the post of physician in this obscure town was only the stepping-stone across the stream which yet separated him from honor, name and fame. Somehow her own blood coursed more quickly, and her pulses leaped, as she listened. It was all so different from the languid talk she was used to hearing from the men who would spend, in the roses they offered at her shrine, a sum which would do so much to realize his life's ambition; yet she wrote home:

'I am having a new experience—a flirtation with a country physician. I hope he's taking care of his heart; he may find it difficult to heal himself. For me, of course, I have no heart. He has so much spare energy, I am sure he must find it a kindness to be able to expend some of it even on me.'

But after she had written this she laid down her pen and sighed. After all, the words did not help her in a fight she was having with herself, nor make her arguments the stronger for her own convincing; but she folded and sealed the letter and mailed it that same evening, she and the doctor driving by the post office that she might do so. Was she sorry for what she knew was inevitable?

June had nearly passed before Frank Lawrence put his fate into her hands. She had had many men make love to her, but never one in those simple, earnest tones.

'You'll have to share some of the hardships, Kate,' he said, 'but I'll make them light as may be for you, darling; and one day I'll make you proud of me. Looking ahead to the light, will you let my love make the present not quite dark?'

He used no eloquence, no passion, but his face was very pale, and his hand trembled a little as he folded hers within it and awaited her reply.

A sharp pain she could not then analyze shot through her heart.

'I am very sorry, Doctor Lawrence,' she murmured, 'but it is impossible.'

'Impossible! Why?'

'I—I—'

She got no further.

"You do not love me? Is that what you would say? Look straight in my eyes and tell me true!'

She dared not. He knew that once her eyes met his, she would hide her head upon his breast and whisper what she dared not acknowledge—that he alone had not been burned in the hot fire her hands had helped to kindle.

For one little minute the memory of the past month returned to her—the strange, sweet influence he had exerted over her life—the future sweetness life yet might hold for her.

Pshaw! This was but a girl's idle sentiment. Did not every man dream of glory? And to grow old, like Aunt Kate and Uncle Reuben, in a stagnant country town—to have her sleep disturbed by every old man and woman within a radius of twenty miles who wanted a potion for their latest ailment—how could she bear this?

'I am already engaged to be married,' she answered, hastily, as though seeking strength in the words, a vision rising before her as she uttered them of the man of her choice—a man more than twice her age, bald and gouty, but with bonds and bank notes sufficient to atone for all deficiencies, and make the world esteem it high honor that she should be made his wife. 'Oh, Frank, forgive me,' she cried, in quick contrition—for his hand now had unclasped itself from hers, and he sprang to his feet, with a look upon his face of mortal agony.

But he answered her not a word, as he walked quickly away in the mockery of the June sunlight.

* * * * * * * * *

Five years later, and in one of the fashionable hotels of Paris lay a child ill unto death—a little, fairy creature, of perhaps three years of age, but whose golden curls now clustered about a face white as the lace-trimmed pillows on which it rested.

The long, dark lashes hung on the marble cheek; the little, rose-leaf lips quivered even in sleep with the pain which racked her baby form.

Over her bent her mother, a woman young and beautiful—a widow, wondrous rich, the world said, but who, in this hour, would gladly have poured out all her treasures to buy the priceless treasure of her darling's life. She had not loved her husband, this same world declared; but, be this as it may, he had made no moan into its listening ear, and after two short years of wedded life, when death after a short, decisive struggle, had claimed him, all that he had was willed unreservedly to the woman who had filled alike his pride and his heart.

If she had also made the latter suffer, there was no codicil in his last generous testament to that effect.

A light knock on the door aroused her. She opened it.

'The young American physician to whom madame was recommended is below,' announced an attendant.

'Show him up,' she answered, and returned to her post. 'Come in,' she called, softly, when a second knock was heard; and then, standing motionless, she turned to look into the face of one who, though a stranger, was at least a countryman, but started back, as though confronted by a ghost. 'Frank!' she murmured; 'it is you!'

His own amazement equaled hers.

'Ah, I comprehend!' he said, the first to regain his self-control. 'I did not recognize Miss Arden in Mrs. Geoffrey, and doubtless the French tongue so garbled my own name as to render your mistake an easy one. Pardon me, I will withdraw at once.'

'No, no, stay!' she cried, laying one entreating hand upon his arm. 'I have heard of your wonderful skill, which has made your name famous even on this side of the water. Oh, Frank, be merciful! Save my child—my baby! She is all, all, that I have."

'Where is your husband?'

In quick, curt tones he put the question.

'Did you not know?' she said. 'He has been dead three years.'

'And your child—. Yes, I have heard. It is the brain which is affected."

'She has been unconscious for twenty-four hours. The physicians here have given her up. Oh, Frank, do not tell me she must die, if you would not break my heart,' and she clasped her hands together in an agony of entreaty.

A scornful, incredulous smile crept about his lips—this woman spoke as if she had a heart; but his physician's instinct conquered hesitation, and, bending over the little sufferer, with careful, tender skill he lifted the clustering rings from the baby-brow, and made a brief examination of the head. He looked very grave as he lifted his own.

'There is but one chance for your child's life, Mrs. Geoffrey,' he said, then, and only the physician spoke. 'There must be an immediate operation of a most precarious nature. Her recovery from it is extremely doubtful, but there is a chance. Otherwise, there is none. Will you consent?'

'You will perform it?'

'I will intrust it to no one else.'

'She is in your hands. Do with her as you will.'

'And if she dies?'

'Oh, Frank, she is my child. You will not let her die.'

Was it the remembrance of these words which made Doctor Lawrence hesitate, a few hours later, as, with two of the most eminent surgeons in Paris, he stood beside the little sufferer? If his judgment should be at fault! But there was no time to weigh the question.

Two hours after, he stepped into the darkened room where one woman awaited him.

'She is sleeping. When she wakes she will know you. I think that she will live.'

He had stopped some little distance from her as he spoke, but with a suddenness he could not divine she had fallen on her knees before him, grasping his hands and covering them with her kisses and her tears.

'You must be calm for your child's sake,' he said, in a voice all unmoved. 'Now go in to her. I will return to watch with you through the night.'

But when morning dawned his prophecy had been fulfilled. Death had taken away his grim shadow, and the baby, waking, smiled into the beautiful face above her and whispered:

"Mamma."

Throughout Paris spread the news of the marvelous operation. It was another on the long list of triumphs accomplished by this young man, who had not yet attained his thirty-fifth year—'Doctor Frank,' Baby Alice called him; and as the old gulf grew and widened between Mrs. Gooffrey and himself, they became the greatest friends.

Three weeks had elapsed, when he said one day:

'Little Alice is quite well now. My visits will be no longer necessary.'

'I never can repay my debt, Doctor Lawrence," answered Alice's mother. "But here is my check. Fill it with what sum you will. It shall be honored.'

'Madam,' he said, 'it is I who am in your debt.'

And, with a quick motion, he tore in two the piece of paper she had handed him.

'See, you make mamma cry,' said the baby. 'She always cries after you have been here. Why does she do that, Doctor Frank? Kiss her—please kiss her—and tell her you are sorry. You must not make my pretty mamma cry.'

'Good-by, little one!' he answered, casting no glance at the lovely face, pale with its long and anxious waiting.

'You have not kissed mamma,' pleaded the baby voice. 'She says she was very naughty to you once. Please forgive her, and do not let her cry any more.'

He strode toward Kate at these latter words.

'Is it true,' he asked, 'that you fancy you stand in need of my forgiveness? When I cease to love you, I will send it to you.'

'Frank,' she whispered, 'must you wait till then? God knows I have suffered for my fault. I was only a child, Frank. I did not know my own heart, or that I had one, until—until—'

'Until what?'

His voice was very hoarse now, and he drew a step nearer her.

'Must you wring all from me?' she said. 'Yet I owe you the atonement. Until I learned your image filled it. Scorn, despise me as you will, I cannot banish it.'

But ere she could finish her confession, Doctor Frank had caught her in his arms, Baby Alice clapping her hands exultantly—the little hands which had unwittingly bridged the chasm between two divided hearts.

BURDETTE'S JUVENILE DAYS.

Unpublished page from the life of George Washington. It is the merry summer time. To him the mother of the father of his country:

'George, dear, where have you been since school was dismissed?'

'Hain't been nowhere, ma.'

'Did you come straight home from school, George?'

'Yes, ma'am!'

'But school is dismissed at 3 o'clock, and it is now half-past six. Now, how does that come?'

'Got kep' in.'

'What for?'

'Missed m' joggrafy less'n.'

'But your teacher was here only an hour ago, and said you hadn't been at school all day.'

'Got kep' in yestiddy, then.'

'George, why were you not at school today?'

'Forgot. Thought all the time it was Saturday?'

'Don't stand on one side of your foot in that manner. Come here to me. George, you have been swimming.'

'No'm.'

'Yes you have, George. Haven't you?'

'N o a p.'

'Tell your mother, George.'

'N u c k.'

'Then what makes your hair so wet, my son?'

'Sweat. I run so fast comin' home from school.'

'But your shirt is wrong side out.'

'Put it on that way when I got up this morning for luck. Always win when you play for keeps if your shirt's on hindside out.'

'And you haven't the right sleeve of your shirt on your arm at all, George, and there is a hard knot tied in it. How did that come there?'

'Bill Fairfax tied it in when I wasn't lookin.'

'But what were you doing with your shirt off?'

'Didn't have it off at all. He jes took and tied that knot in there when it was on me.'

'George!'

'That's honest truth, he did.'

About that time the noble Bushrod came along with a skate strap, and we draw a veil over the dreadful scene, merely remarking that boys do not seem to change as much as men.—Burdette.

'The walls of the old engine-house at Harper's Ferry, where John Brown made his last stand with a dozen men against 7000,' says a correspondent, 'now furnish an artistic background to a huge placard setting forth the virtues of somebody's liver pad. The inscription on the front of the building, which tells the story of Brown's crusade, cannot be read at any distance. The advertisment of the liver pad is in letters as long as a Springfield musket. The grass grows rank in front of the historic spot, as though few pilgrim feet visited it. A clump of tall ragweed stands in the open doorway where young Watson Brown and his brother were shot down. The roof has gone, the windows have disappeared, and there is an air of neglect and gradual decay about the spot that accords well with the stagnation of the town.'

Home love is the best love. The love that you were born to is the sweetest you will have on earth. You who are so anxious to escape from the home nest, pause a moment and remember this is so. Never again, after strangers have broken this beautiful bond, will there be anything so sweet as the little circle of mother, father and children, where you are cherished, protected, praised, and kept from harm. You may not know it now, but you will know it some day.

A little Philadelphia boy had his long curls cut off the other day, and was annoyingly reminded of the fact by the remarks of all his friends. To his delight, he escaped them by going to the country with his family. Soon after his arrival, however, he came running into the house in great sorrow, crying, 'Mamma, mamma, even the hens laugh at me; they all say, 'Cut—cut—cut—got—your—hair—cut!''

A Rain-Drop.

Noiseless and swift a rain-drop sank
Into the sea,
Silent the sea the rain-drop drank,
And made no sign. "Ah, me! ah, me!"
The rain-drop cried, "Here I am lost,
No thirsty land
To cool and save! Of one drop's cost
What knows the bitter salt sea sand!"

Into an oyster's open shell,
Deep in the sea,
Noiseless and swift the rain-drop fell,
And by slow, subtle alchemy,
Into a shining pearl was changed;
A pearl of white,
No diver who the deep sea ranged
Had seen or dreamed a fairer sight.

To-day, the peerless, snowy gem
Men kneeling see
Set in a royal diadem,
And kings count up its pedigree,
They reckon not the raindrop lost
By thirsty lands
From bloom and tree. Of that drop's cost
Naught knew the bitter salt sea sand.

THE LION AND THE JACKALS.

A FABLE.

One day a troop of Jackals were astonished beyond measure at the appearance of a Lion in their midst, and their surprise could not be imagined when his countenance assumed a pleasant expression and he remarked:

'Friends, I have come to settle among you and be a neighbor. I want to be friendly to each and every one and think well of all, and I hope and trust we shall dwell together in harmony.'

'Hooray for the Lion! Hurrah for the old man-killer!' cheered the Jackals, and they were tickled to death at their good luck.

But the Lion had scarcely got his den in order when one of the Jackals came sneaking in, and began:

'I—I—that is—delicate subject, you know—embarrassed, you see—ah—hum.'

'My friend, if you have anything to say to me, be at your ease,' replied the Lion.

'Well, I simply wanted to drop you a hint. Don't be too sweet on John Jackal. His great grandfather was banished for cause, and his wife's second cousin is a wall-eyed villain.'

The Lion received the information without remarks, and the caller went away, chuckling over the idea that he had sowed good seed. Next day a second Jackal appeared, beat around the bush for a while and then he observed:

'I feel it my duty to warn you against Joe Jackal who lives over the creek. He beats his wife, and is a double, back-action hypocrite.'

Soon another appeared with a similar story about some one else in the community, and in the course of a fortnight the Lion felt it his duty to call a public meeting. When the Jackals had gathered around him he said to them:

'I find by your own statements, that you are a community of thieves, liars, deadbeats and swindlers, and henceforth you can fight your own battles and hunt your own bones. Sneaks, skulks and vagabonds, I bid you all farewell.'

MORAL.—He who tries to climb up by pulling his neighbor down, makes poor headway.

MAKING A PASSENGER "GIT."

A justice of the peace in the interior of Michigan had a case before him some days ago in which the defendant, who had been arrested as a suspicious character, and pleaded guilty to vagrancy, was sent to the Detroit house of correction for six months. A constable took him in charge to deliver him there, and as the man seemed rather pleased at the idea of securing board and lodging for six months he was not handcuffed. As the train was about ready to go the constable moved across the aisle to talk politics with a friend, and pretty soon they were having it hot and heavy. When the conductor came in for tickets he held out his hand to the prisoner, and the latter shook his head and replied:

'I don't pay fare.'

'Aha! You don't, eh? Well, now, you pay or git!'

'I won't pay!'

'Then you'll git! When we slow up at the crossing you jump off. If I find you on the train after we pass there I'll give you a bounce you won't forget!'

In two minutes the train began to slow, and the prisoner walked to the door and picked a soft spot and dropped off. When the train had made another mile the conductor held out his hand to the constable and received two tickets.

'Who is the extra one for?' he asked.

'For that prisoner over there.'

'What prisoner?'

'Why, that fel—'

Then there was raving and gnashing of teeth and hurrying up and down, but it was no use.

'Sorry,' said the conductor, as he passed along, 'but when a passenger says he won't pay fare on my train I give him the drop. The only thing that surprised me was to see how willingly he obeyed orders.'

TOO STRICT WITH CHILDREN.

'You are too strict with your children,' said a good, Christian woman, whose bright-eyed, active little boy was playing about the street, to another mother who held her own mischievous son under strict yet kind control, and would not allow him to associate with rough boys, or enjoy the advantages of the 'street school.'

Twenty years have passed away. The boy whose mother was too strict with him is in college—sober, temperate, respected. The other squandered his parents' property, contracted habits of intemperance, became an inmate of a prison, and at last has gone to an untimely grave, though not, we trust, without penitence or hope.

'You are too strict with your daughter. Young folks must enjoy themselves,' said a mother. But the daughter that was guarded and watched over has grown up in safety, while others who had their liberty brought bitter sorrow to their mother's heart.

Where love tempers authority, there is little danger of being 'too strict.' 'The world is very evil.' Times are perilous, snares are many; parents are responsible for the training of children; and 'A child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame.' (Proverbs xxix. 15.

We never regret the kind words we have spoken or the retort we have left unsaid, but bitterly we recall sharp words spoken angrily, and unkind actions that may have caused tears to come to eyes that will never shed them any more.

VACATION TRIPS.

What suits one only disgusts another. Saratoga and Newport afford the height of pleasurable enjoyment to the fashionably inclined, but are deserts of dreariness to those whose hearts are not set upon purple and fine linen, and after-dinner twaddle and midnight balls. Not infrequently, to the great vexation of both parties, the head of the house will want to go into the woods, while his better half prefers the seaside or the springs. A compromise is made which is acceptable to neither, and they firmly resolve that next year they will stay at home. But when next year comes, and one by one their friends disappear, and unfamiliar faces greet them in the street, and the papers are full of vacation gossip and letters from the omnipresent 'Rusticus,' their longing to be away grows irresistible, and so, after an animated discussion, they decide to go—to the seaside.

Happy is the man who knows just how to spend his vacation, and is at liberty to spend it as he will. Happier still is the man whose whole family coincides with him in the project which lies nearest his heart, and who is permitted to enjoy his outing in harmonious unison with those he loves. A little self-sacrifice on the part of each one may bring about this happy consummation of affairs, if it does not already exist.

There is nothing which is less restful to a man than a vacation which he does not enjoy. It is better, far better, both physically and mentally, that he should stay at home and have the satisfaction of accomplishing something, than expend energy and capital in a fruitless chase after enjoyment and then return to take up the work of the year with diminished vitality and mental power dissipated.—Burlington Free Press.

HOW A GERMAN OPENED A DOOR.

The pole of a heavy freight wagon was forced against the door of a Broadway stage in New York a few days ago, in such a manner as to prevent the door being opened in either direction. As no one was injured by the accident the stage continued its trip toward Fulton Ferry until a German whose abdominal capacity prevented him from making an exit through a window, expressed a desire to get out. He walked to the door and tugged away at it until he became very red in the face; but the door did not move. Stepping forward to the front of the stage he commanded the driver to get down and open the door for him.

'Can't do it,' said the driver as he clucked to his horses and then gave them the rein.

'Den I will stave in dot door,' gasped the German, as he mopped the great beads of sweat from his brow.

'Stave away, I don't care,' replied the driver.

The fat man waddled to the door and delivered a kick which would have done credit to a pile driver, but it did not open the door. After repeated efforts of this kind he adopted a new plan. Grasping the rail in the top of stage, he planted both feet against the door with terrific force. The passengers laughed heartily as he swung himself to and fro like a battering ram. The timbers of the stage began to creak like those of a ship at sea. Suddenly the door flew open, and the German, with outstretched limbs, shot out upon the pavement as if he had been fired from a cannon. With a mingled look of pain and triumph upon his face he picked himself up and was soon lost to view in a lager beer shop.

DANGEROUS COMPANIONS.

When a young fellow has made up his mind to walk on the edge of precipices for the sake of seeing prospects he always finds plenty of company.

There are abundance of people with strong heads, who, having walked these paths till they are quite certain of their foothold, are ready to go out with giddy new beginners. If they accidentally lose their heads and fall over, whose fault is that? Not theirs, of course. They never fall. They look where they step and their heads do not turn. It is not drunkards and thieves who are dangerous companions to the green boys from the country—oh, dear, no! it is your respectable young men that have learned to sip discreetly in all sorts of forbidden fountains, and nibble here and there carefully of the forbidden fruit. They are held up as patterns. They drink, but are never drunk. They have exactly the knack of seeing and knowing all that there is to be seen and known in the ways of wickedness and yet keeping even step with the righteous. Some of them are church members and Sunday school teachers; some of them are shrewd, regular business men. They are never going to hurt themselves, they tell you, but they believe in a certain freedom. They never could see the sense of temperance pledges; for their part they don't need them; and if there is anything they do abominate, it's your radical, straight-laced people, who keep always in the dusty turnpike for fear of the precipice.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

'How much rent do you pay?' asked Gilhooly of Hostetter McGinnis. 'Twenty-five dollars.' 'Isn't that a little high for a place like Austin?' 'Yes, it is a little high for summer; but the place has a good stout cedar fence around it, and I calculate to save forty dollars this winter in firewood, so that will bring the rent down to a reasonable figure.'—Texas Siftings.

'Does your wife take much exercise?' asked Fenderson of Fogg, whose family is at the seaside. 'Exercise,' exclaimed Fogg, 'I should say so. She changes her dress six times a day.'

The jealous husband of a pretty woman at Fayette, Tex., branded her with an iron used for marking cattle, making a star and a cross, which she must bear on each cheek for life.

'Right' has been defined as the 'centre of a circle,' and 'about right' as its 'circumference.' The centre remains unchanged but the circumference can be drawn of any size.

Now that Darwin is gone, we violate no confidence in saying that he always believed Oscar Wilde to be the missing link.—Burlington Hawkeye.

The conqueror is regarded with awe, the wise man commands our esteem, but it is the benevolent man who wins our affection.

Greeley revised: 'Go West, young man, and blow up with the country.' This revision is touchingly appropriate.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1882.

It is a fact worth noting, that every Republican paper in Western Massachusetts is for Bishop for Governor. The people are pretty much likewise, too.

The Maine election comes off next Monday. Both sides have worked hard, and each party claims to be confident of success. It will be a close shave, whichever wins.

Congressman Norcross builded better than he knew, perhaps, when he voted against the river and harbor bill. It looks now as if that vote would secure his renomination and election.

Orders have been issued to the British troops in Egypt for a general move to the front, and some lively fighting is expected soon. Arabi is reported to have some 90,000 men at his command.

The election of delegates to the Republican State convention has begun, and of the hundred and odd already elected it is claimed that 53 are for Bishop and 29 for Crapo, while the preferences of 26 are not known.

Vermont was carried by the Republicans as usual on Tuesday, Barstow being elected governor by a majority of 20,000. Judge Poland is elected to Congress, though there was a good deal of bolting, and his majority will not be much over 500.

The arguments in the star route trials at Washington are completed, and a verdict will be given soon. Considerable excitement was caused on Thursday by Judge Wylie's announcement that disgraceful attempts had been made to bribe the jury, and there will be an investigation.

Somebody wrote to Mr. Crapo the other day apparently to give him a chance to express himself on the subject of political assessments, and he responded in a letter denouncing the business unequivocally. He says no one should respond to the assessment circulars unwillingly, and thinks no harm will come to them by so doing.

Saratoga upper-ten-dom stood aghast the other day, when Gen. Grant and his wife, finding no vacant chairs in the parlor cars, took seats in an ordinary passenger car, instead of waiting for another train. It was perfectly shocking, you know! and can but be regarded as the outcropping of the plebeian taint with which his blood must be polluted.

It was Robert R. Bishop who defeated the attempted salary grab at the State House last spring. It was W. W. Crapo who helped pass the river and harbor grab over the President's veto at Washington a few weeks ago. Is there any doubt as to which of these two gentlemen best represents the convictions of the people of Massachusetts on these matters? We apprehend not.

Gen. Butler is back from his yachting tour, and is convinced, from a look at political affairs in the State, that "a need of a change has long existed." This has been his opinion ever since he was left out in the cold. Just what the change should be he don't say. In fact, we suspect he don't care what it is, if it will only float him into that long-desired haven, the State House.

The Governor of Texas issued an appeal to the people of that State on Monday, for aid for the yellow fever sufferers at Brownsville, where 500 cases of fever were reported, with from 70 to 100 new cases daily. Up to last Sunday there had been a total of 1113 cases, and 69 deaths, in the city, out of a population of about 5000. At Matamoras there have been over 200 deaths, the population being 800, but the fever is now on a decline.

Senator Hoar, it is said, is putting in all the influence and work he can in favor of the nomination of Mr. Crapo, believing that his own re-election depends upon Crapo's success. This does not necessarily follow, by any means, and the senator may injure his prospects more than he will help them, by taking a very active part in work of this kind. Massachusetts does not care to have her senators mingle too freely in the arena of active political work and wire-pulling.

Secretary Folger virtuously disapproves of political assessments, and would not consent to Hubbell's collectors going through the treasury department in search of funds; but neither did he tell them they should not do so. Consequently the collectors made the tour of the department as freely as though they had been specially invited to do so, and the only persons at all disturbed by the proceedings seem to be the poor clerks who had to fork over their funds. The Secretary's objections to assessments have not struck in very deep, or he would not allow Hubbell's emissaries to be hounding his employes at their desks.

Gen. Chalmers, of Fort Pillow fame, who was recently kicked out of Congress for occupying a seat as representative from the Mississippi "shoe-string" district which did not belong to him, is now out of favor with the Democrats of his State. Accordingly he is running for Congress as an Independent candidate, and is now backed up by the Republican congressional committee, who ignore the claims of a colored Republican candidate in the same district. We hardly know which to admire most, Chalmers' hunger for the loaves and fishes, regardless of principle, or the political consistency of the Republican committee in so readily adopting and aiding a renegade of his description.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Large stock of Germantown Yarns at White, Hellyar & Co's.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Dog-days have exodusted.

The village schools begin next Monday.

The September new moon will put in an appearance next Tuesday.

Samuel Frost, the yeast peddler, has sold out his business to Leroy Wing.

Michael Finnerty has sold his place on Water street to John Doyle, for $800.

The regular meeting of Mizpah Chapter, No. 23, Golden Rule Alliance, occurs next Tuesday evening.

Col. H. R. Stoughton, agent of the New London Northern road in this place, is away on a short trip to Michigan.

A part of Thorndike and North Main streets have been covered with sawdust the past week, to hold down the dust. It's 'most as good as a sprinkler.

The Republican caucus for choice of delegates to the State Convention at Worcester will probably be held at the town house next week Saturday evening.

J. S. Holden has bought of Charles Miranda, through the agency of G. L. Rockwell of West Warren, three tenement houses in that village, for about $6000.

W. H. Hitchcock of this village has just finished slating the roof of the new mill at Bondsville. The roof is 250 feet long, and contains over 100 squares.

About 150 excursion tickets to Worcester have been sold at this station of the B. & A. R. R. this week, while some 100 tickets have been sold to the races at Springfield.

A handsome night-blooming cereus belonging to Mrs. Dr. Downing was exhibited in Hitchcock's news room Thursday, with three elegant blossoms which had unfolded the night before.

Our old-time townsman, F. T. Wallace, Esq., of Cleveland, O., has just published a book entitled "Men and Events of Half a Century," which is meeting with quite an extensive sale.

One of Dr. Warren's horses pulled away from the post while hitched in front of his residence last Sunday, and started on a run for the barn, tipping over and pretty thoroughly wrecking the carriage on the way.

Mrs. Albert Loomis had a fall at Newell's Pond the other day, which broke the bone of her left shoulder, through the joint. It was a bad fracture, but she is getting along comfortably, and the arm promises to come out all right in time.

C. E. Tanner's bay stallion, "Hersey," won the 2.38 race at the New England Fair in Worcester, Wednesday, in three straight heats, over eight competitors. Time, 2.38, 2.36, 2.38. On Thursday "Hersey" took third money in the 2.34 race on the same track.

The selectmen gave a hearing, Wednesday afternoon, on the petition for widening the lower end of Walnut street. Quite a number of citizens were on hand, but not much was said, and after viewing the premises, the board dismissed the petition, at the request of the petitioners.

Wednesday was the first anniversary of that peculiar day last year which will be known in history as "Yellow Tuesday," and which will be always remembered by those who experienced the peculiar "old gold" light, which gave such a strange and unearthly appearance to all objects.

The county commissioners went up to Bondsville Wednesday forenoon and laid out the county road 33 rods wide between the Palmer roads, and 3 rods wide to John Carmody's house. They also viewed the way asked for leading to the house of Daniel Sullivan, but passed no order in regard to it.

At Tuesday's session of the probate court in Springfield administration was granted on the estates of—Ira Peck of Wales, Charlotte Peck administratrix; Mary A. Brewer of Wilbraham, Francis E. Clark administrator; Sophia Marcheton of Ludlow, W. S. Colwell administrator. An inventory of the estate of Ira Peck was filed, $518.

One who has thoroughly tried it, says that housekeepers will find an easy and effective way of cleaning and polishing silverware by dipping a soft flannel in kerosene oil, then in whiting, rubbing the silver briskly and polishing off with a dry flannel or chamois skin. This is particularly good where silver is tarnished from long standing.

W. A. Brakenridge, who has been spending his vacation at the old homestead in Tenneyville, returned to Newark, N. J., this week, to begin his twenty-ninth consecutive year of teaching in that city, under the stimulus of a 5 per cent increase of salary. Mr. Brakenridge has charge of the grammar department, having the oversight of fourteen teachers, all on the same floor.

The sale of the Massachusetts Telephone Co. puts the management of the local line into new hands. L. N. Downs of Worcester is now the general manager of this district. The new company has abundant capital, and controls most of the territory in the State east of the Connecticut river. The present trunk line between Springfield and South Framingham will probably soon be furnished with new poles and an additional wire or two.

The members of the Congregational church had a business meeting Tuesday evening to consider the question of calling a pastor. Two ballots were taken, showing a nearly unanimous expression in favor of extending a call to Rev. A. W. Lamb, who has supplied the pulpit for several weeks, the second ballot standing 28 ayes to 6 blanks. The attendance was not as large as seemed desirable, however, many members being out of town, and it was accordingly voted to postpone further action for a week.

A business man not much over a thousand miles away, who had a good deal of worry and anxiety in his business matters the other day, and had also held frequent communications with parties through the telephone, went home at night tired and abstracted, and as he seated himself at the supper table and bowed his head for the accustomed grace, the family were startled by a loud "Halloo!" from his lips, followed by a pause. But the line did not seem to be in working order, for he could get no response, so he hung up his mouth on the hook and went to work.

The "castile soap" hat is the latest fashionable freak, and it promises to have an extended sale this fall. It is made of beaver felt of different colors, and is "ring-streaked and speckled" in a manner which gives it the appearance of castile soap or veined marble. The hat is colored by taking the beaver, crushing or rolling it up in the hand, tying it and throwing it into a dyeing vat. When taken out and opened the creased parts have taken the color. It is afterward treated to a bath of chemicals to make the color fast, and then finished. It is an English idea, and one of the indirect results of the Wilde sunflower craze.

Among the passengers coming up from Boston the other night on the modoc train was a woman and her child. The mother was evidently tired and cross; the child fretful and apparently not feeling well. In her endeavors to quiet the child, the mother would lift it high in the air and then set it down, first this way and then that, with a force strongly suggestive of a pile driver. A good many passengers were considerably incensed by her course of treatment, and finally a stout German who sat behind her leaned forward, and exclaimed, with a good deal of vigor, "You've got a nice disposition, haint you? Do you want to make that child sick?" The woman flushed, but made no response, and for the rest of the journey the child was treated with some consideration.

The directors of the agricultural society, at their meeting on Wednesday, voted to accept the 54 rods of new fence which has been built along the back side of the park at an expense of $240. They also made out the programme for the approaching exhibition, on the 19th and 20th inst., there being only one or two slight changes from last year's programme. It was voted to have a tank of ice water in the exhibition hall, in accordance with the suggestion made by the Journal last year. The judges' stand and the seats will be fixed up as much as may be necessary to make them usable this year, and probably next year they will be entirely replaced by new structures. It is probable that the society will have no music this year, as the Palmer band cannot be obtained, on account of the scattering of its members, and the directors do not feel justified in going to the expense of engaging a band from abroad.

Mr. Editor:—Will you kindly allow me to make a few suggestions through the columns of your paper? It has for a long time been felt that Palmer ought to have better post office accommodations, but just how to get at it was the question. Since the new entrance has been commenced, (which, by the way, does not meet with universal favor, and looks more like a shed than anything else,) it has brought the subject more to mind, and a plan has been thought of which would give us a first-class post office room. It is said that John Feeney could be induced to vacate his building on the corner of Main and Central streets, provided the post office would be moved to that locality. This would be an excellent place for it, giving a large, light room, instead of the small, dark quarters which it now occupies. It would be fully as centrally located as now, and would have the advantage of being by itself, and not at the back end of some store. A great deal might be said in favor of the place, and but little can be said against it, except that the rent might be too large; but no doubt that could be easily overcome, as there are doubtless a good many men in the village who would each be willing to give a little to see the post office an institution by itself. Now is the time, gentlemen, for you to show whether you want to improve the town in this way. Let us have the post office in another quarter.

Yours Truly.

BRIMFIELD.

James McAllister has bought the mill property at East Brimfield, and proposes to put in saw and grist mills and also mills for grinding bones for the manufacture of phosphates.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

A Catholic temperance society was organized last Sunday, under the name of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence society. The officers are as follows: President, James Flynn; vice-president, John Pero; recording and corresponding secretary, John E. Stone; financial secretary, James H. Maloney; treasurer, John Shea; spiritual adviser, Rev. John Kenny. The society starts off with 28 members and bids fair to be a success.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Fuller start to-day for a drive to Vermont.

Preaching at the chapel at 2 p. m. on Sunday, by Rev. M. S. Howard; at 5.30 p. m. by Dr. Fox.

The Republican caucus to choose delegates to the State convention is called for Monday night, at 7.30 o'clock, at Music Hall.

Ex-Marshal Blair, with the State agent, made a raid on Moses Phillips' saloon last Saturday night, taking away with them a bottle of lager beer.

The paper makers scored still another victory last Saturday over the Valley paper nine—16 to 10. They expect to play the Westfield Firemen this afternoon at Westfield. The second nine engage the Wesleyans this afternoon.

WARREN.

Four persons united with the Congregational church last Sabbath.

Warren has seemed to take a new impetus in building, and several new houses are going up.

A large delegation of ladies attended the meeting of the Woman's board at Ware Thursday.

The public library has sixty new books added to it, and bound volumes are constantly being given.

Rev. Mr. Forbes and Dr. J. W. Hastings attended the ordination of Mr. Perkins, Wednesday afternoon, at Ware.

The marriage of Miss Emma Sibley and Mr. Guibbert takes place next Tuesday, and promises to be one of the most brilliant weddings of the season. A large number of guests are invited.

A camp meeting is to be held in a large tent at South Warren next week, beginning with Tuesday. The ministers at Spencer, Brookfield, Sturbridge, West Warren, Brimfield, Wales and Ware have been invited, and a large attendance is expected.

WEST WARREN.

The "Pool," owing to the drouth, has become dry, something that was never known to happen before.

The cricket club went to Warren last Saturday and finished the remaining inning of the game two weeks before, winning by 93 to 66. They then played the second game, again coming out victorious, by a score of 102 to 100.

The Rockets went to Palmer last Saturday, intending to win the $100-a-side game between them and the Clippers of Ware, and would probably have done so but for a discord among themselves, as they were holding the Clippers to business until the sixth inning, when the fielders began to walk after the ball; then they became rattled, and lost the game—12 to 2. The Clippers presented two new players, and some of the boys didn't like the idea of playing new men, and would not do their share towards winning the game. The Rockets expect three new players from Clinton—a catcher, second baseman and short-stop. Their old catcher, "Bob" Pettit, has gone to Meriden, Conn.

THORNDIKE.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stever have returned from a two weeks' sojourn at Hyannis.

The water in the Ware river is so low that only a part of the machinery can be driven.

Four new tenements are being built on the new street opposite the Congregational church.

A large party of children met with Mrs. Peebles, Wednesday, to celebrate the ninth birthday of her youngest daughter.

The vestry of the Congregational church is being thoroughly repaired. At the communion season on Sunday three persons will unite with the church.

The Sharps of this village defeated the Hampdens of Hampden on Saturday last, by a score of 7 to 3. On Monday of this week they played with the Three Rivers club, with a different result, the score standing 27 to 22 in favor of the latter club. The afternoon was sultry and the game poorly played. Much dissatisfaction arose on the part of the Sharps as to the decisions of the umpire, which they deemed unfair.

THREE RIVERS.

Heath & Shaw have moved into their new store during the week.

Capt. David Milliken and wife are spending a week among the mountains of New Hampshire.

The school building is completed and the steam heating apparatus is in and in running order. School will commence next Monday.

A. L. Haynes, the coal dealer, has been quite sick, but is now much better, and will be about again soon. His son William, of Chicopee, is attending to his business at present.

Frank Shepardson, a member of the senior class in Brown University, and son of Rev. Mr. Shepardson, who for a number of years was pastor of the Baptist church here, has been visiting friends in the village during the week.

Although the water is very low in all of the rivers, the Palmer mills have not, as yet, been obliged to stop any to speak of for water, but they cannot run full much longer, unless there is rain soon. Many of the best springs are dry.

The people of the village are justly proud of the new band stand upon the common, which is second to none in this part of the State. It was to have been dedicated to-night with a concert by the Three Rivers cornet band, but on account of the illness of the leader, Henry Dumas, the dedication has been postponed for the present.

MONSON.

Potatoes and hay are being imported, as the home supply will not meet the demand.

B. O'Connell has the cellar dug for a dwelling house on the west side of Bridge street.

Father Kelly has been quite sick with inflammation of the bowels, but is slowly improving.

There will probably be a "full crop" found in the poultry dressed for market on Thanksgiving day.

The schools have started up the present week, and the academy has nearly one hundred scholars.

The stove and tin smiths talk about furnaces, stoves, ranges, etc., just as though it were really cold.

Quite a number of our citizens availed themselves of the reduced rates to visit Worcester and the New England fair this week.

Lindorf Miller, for the past ten years wool sorter at Holmes's mill, moves to Worcester this week, where he has a situation with chances for advancement.

A short crop of vinegar is predicted, as the apples are small and not juicy. One farmer says that he thinks the vote of the town last spring to have a "dry time" has been too fully carried out.

The youngest son of Silas L. Peck on Wednesday fell from a chamber window to the ground, a distance of 20 feet, but happily escaped without any injury beyond the temporary shaking-up.

Granite curbing has been placed all the length of the frontage of the late Hiram Newton estate on Main street, and a gravel walk made which now materially assists the pedestrian in locomotion.

Friends of Almon S. Colton, who lives just over the Stafford line, descended upon him last week Friday, to the number of one hundred, from Hampden, Stafford and Monson, and presented him with an easy chair and foot rest.

The political pot has not begun to boil much as yet. The political chess players, however, believe Bishop to be one of the strongest men in the game. Many are wondering who the Springfield Republican would go for if Crapo should get the nomination.

Horace Squier has found water quite plenty in the spring he has been digging on Calvin S. Pease's land, and the fall is so great that if the water were conducted to Main street it could easily be thrown over the buildings. There is talk of forming a company to bring water into Main street from some of the many surrounding hills.

About these days there are many who are fond of oysters and are very favorably impressed with the luscious bivalves that are to be found at Central market, Charles R. Hoar, agent. Those who are inclined to fish, flesh and fowl are well pleased with the choice cuts and nice roasts which are daily dispensed and which are from extra fattened beeves.

Report says that there will be a grand wedding in the M. E. church next week, the parties being the daughter of a resident clergyman and a prominent manufacturer of Chicopee. Invitations have been sent to friends and relatives in cities, towns and States, and as a wedding in church is an uncommon occurrence here, it will, doubtless, be quite a a notable event.

WARE AND VICINITY.

Skunks abound, about a dozen having been killed in the village within a short time.

Rev. Henry P. Perkins is going as missionary to Tien-Tsin, China, and will sail about the 20th of this month.

M. L. Snow had the nail of the third finger of his right hand torn from its socket by being caught in the machinery of the box shop on Saturday last.

The Republicans will hold a caucus at Music Hall next Tuesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, to choose delegates to the State convention at Worcester on the 20th.

The schools are now under full headway. The high school has thirty-five members, the grammar school over eighty. The private school, by Miss Vila Barton, has at present a membership of about twenty.

The curbing is on the ground for the new walk in front of the Unitarian church and the old town hall lot, also around the park in Nenemeseck square. The fence around the upper end of the walk is to be shortened a little, so as to allow a walk from Sandford's corner to the Otis Co.'s counting room.

There was a lively runaway and a narrow escape from serious results on Monday morning, when the horse of Alonzo Stearns ran down North street with a top carriage, in which were his wife and son. The carriage was overturned and pretty thoroughly demolished, and the occupants were thrown out in front of F. P. Clark & Co.'s store, with no further injury than getting severely bruised.

A Young Men's Lyceum was organized on Tuesday evening, but so much business was in hand that the choice of officers was put over until next week. The number of members is limited to thirty, and they commence with this number. There will be debates each week, the object being to get together a select society of young men who will meet for mutual improvement. They have secured pleasant rooms in Robinson's block, with toilet and wardrobe rooms connected. Each member is to have a key, so he may visit the rooms whenever he pleases, for reading, writing, etc.

The Worcester branch of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions held their meeting in the East Congregational chapel on Thursday. In the forenoon reports were read from the several missions. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Mason. In the afternoon addresses were made by Miss Stone, from the Bulgaria mission, Mrs. Chidds and Mrs. Mason. At 4.30 Miss Stone addressed the children, giving an interesting account of her school in Bulgaria. In the evening a social meeting was held in the chapel parlors, questions being freely asked and answered in reference to mission work.

The ordination of Henry P. Perkins took place on Wednesday, as announced, the council consisting of the pastors and delegates from Ware, Ware Center, Belchertown, Enfield, Greenwich, Warren, and Gilbertville, Dr. Warren, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and Prof. Hartranft of Hartford. Rev. W. C. Tuttle was chosen moderator. The examination proved eminently satisfactory to the council. The exercises at the church in the afternoon were opened by an organ voluntary by George C. Hall, and were as follows: Reading of the minutes of the council, by Rev. W. D. Brown, scribe; anthem, composed for the occasion by Edward N. Anderson; reading of Scripture and prayer, by Rev. E. P. Blodgett of Greenwich; hymn, "How beauteous are the feet;" sermon, by Prof. Hartranft, from Acts 13, 1-3; ordaining prayer, Rev. A. E. P. Perkins, D. D.; charge to the candidate, by Dr. Alden; singing, "All hail the power of Jesus' name;" right hand of fellowship, by Rev. E. C. Ewing of Enfield; singing, "Father of Mercies, bow thine ear;" benediction, by Rev. Henry P. Perkins.

Card.—I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many friends who have been so kind and thoughtful in my son's affliction; whose generous acts of help and sympathy have been a source of comfort and encouragement; also the members of Palmer Lodge of Odd Fellows, who showed their brotherly interest in one who so recently had become one of their number, and for their valuable aid; and to the Ashland Lodge of Masons, for their beautiful floral gift; and his fellow workmen, for their token of interest and esteem.

Mrs. Mary J. Bradway.

The signal tower of the Pennsylvania Railroad, on the elevated railroad at Seventeenth and Filbert streets, Philadelphia, controls the passage of more trains within a given period than any other in the world. No such number of trains is controlled by signal at any of the famous railway junctions in and around London. About 1140 trains pass this point every twenty-four hours, and yet so accurate is the system and so perfect the control exercised that this enormous traffic moves with safety and without delay or stoppage.

The Institue Fair had a successful opening at Boston on Wednesday, Gov. Long presiding and Edward Atkinson delivering the address. The exhibits are not yet all in place, but the fair promises to be better and of greater interest than last year's exhibition. There are some fine exhibits from the Southern States, and the fine art department is of superior excellence.

The great organ in the Boston Music Hall has been sold to a church congregation in a Western city and is soon to be removed. Years ago this organ was considered one of the finest in the United States. Organ concerts were given to display the instrument, but the concerts were not remunerative, and now the organ is to be sold.

A large barn on the Sprague estate, adjoining Narragansett Park, in Cranston, R. I., was burned Tuesday night, making the fifth building on the estate destroyed by incendiary fires within a short time. The ex-Governor cannot enjoy the property himself, and his creditors seem no more likely to have the use of it.

The annual wheat crop of Minnesota is glorified in the four quarters of the globe, while the hay crop stays at home and is seldom even thought of by the outside world. Yet its value this year is reckoned at nearly $20,000,000. The crop is estimated at 1,500,000 tons of wild hay and 200,000 tons of cultivated.

If those who favor Mr. Bishop are to be told continually that they are on that account enemies to Mr. Hoar, they may come to believe and to act on that view of the case, after a while. Mr. Crapo's candidacy is strong enough to stand alone. Mr. Hoar, when the time comes, will be found to develop enough strength to confound those who have supposed that he could be easily set aside, because of a difference of judgment between him and some of his constituents on a single question. The effort, on the one hand, to hit Mr. Hoar over Mr. Crapo's shoulders, and on the other hand, to strengthen Mr. Crapo by causing alarm among Mr. Hoar's friends, is wholly mischievous.—Boston Journal.

The six school-girls who have been spending their summer vacation in a 400 miles' tramp through the mountains of North Carolina have reached their homes in safety and are delighted with their experiences. They had no need of man's protection, were hospitably received at farm-houses along their route, encountered no snakes, and have returned with ardent hopes of repeating the performance next summer.

VACATION NOTES.

PALMER, Sept. 7, 1882.

Correspondence of the Journal.

"Vacation" is at the present time a very popular word, but I wonder how many of the thousands of people who have been absent from their homes have had any vacation?

Webster says "a vacation is freedom from interruption, trouble, or perplexity; leisure." Taking it for granted that Webster is correct, the question comes, where can one spend the time allotted to him, so as to have a vacation, and return to his business better fitted for his work? For one, I have found but little freedom from interruption at the popular summer resorts—at Martha's Vineyard, at Red Bank, or Long Branch; while Saratoga was full of trouble and perplexities, and I found no leisure. At the close of my four weeks' vacation (so called), I returned home, feeling the need of a week to get rested in.

In the summer of 1880, as the time drew near, I began to ask myself, "Where will you go?" Having visited each of the above-named places twice, and had like experiences, I really did not know where to go. Weary with sermon making, I called upon one of my ministerial neighbors for an exchange. He was absent; but his good wife, ever anxious for Herbert's welfare, bade me tarry till his return. During the time, we talked about vacations instead of pulpit exchanges, and I resolved to accompany Herbert to the 2d Connecticut Lake. I did so, and after three consecutive visits can truly say it is no undecided question with me where to spend a vacation. The time spent there usually varies from ten to thirty days, and every one ought to so spend his time that he can give an account of it with joy and not with grief. Many having asked, "Where is Second Lake?" and presuming others would like to, were they not afraid of exposing their ignorance, I will tell you. The Second Connecticut Lake is one of the three lakes giving rise to the Connecticut river, in the northeastern part of New Hampshire.

Leaving this place by way of the N. L. N. R. R., you pass through Brattleboro, Wells River and Groveton Junction to North Stratford, where you leave the cars and seat yourself in the stage-coach, drawn by six horses to Colebrook, a distance of thirteen miles. Here I hope you will stop at the Parsons House, for Mr. Bailey will do all he can to make your brief stay a pleasant one, and send you away rejoicing in the morning, at half-past eight. Riding through some narrow passes and over a few little hills, you come to the land of Canaan, where you drink; Stewartstown, where you eat; and Pittsburg, where you stop for the night, unless you wish to pass on to your place of destination. If so, Mr. Smith will take the popular vehicle of the place, a buckboard, and with two as fine horses as you ever rode behind, land you safely at Uncle Tom's, of whom you may expect to hear more.

I said there were three lakes in the chain, the first of which you pass as you leave the hotel with Smith. This lake, five miles long and three wide, is surrounded by woods except along the southwest shore, where the hotel, steamboat wharf and saw mill are located. Five miles north and 376 feet higher than the level of the first is the gem of the chain, smaller in size, but more beautiful than the first, three miles long and two wide, and entirely surrounded by wood-covered mountains, scarcely molested by the lumberman's axe. Four miles beyond is Third Lake, but it is too near the French settlement over the line to be a retreat for much large game; nevertheless, a beautiful place for trout.

But the Second Lake—a name suggestive in itself—brings back in memory the scene of three delightful weeks of long summer days—days filled with an unforbidden and unmixed pleasure, which now inspires regret only that they had an end. To my friend, Herbert, who three years ago pitched our camp by the trout-filled streams, it is known as "The Lake." Inseparable from the lake in thought is Thomas Chester and his log cabin, facing the lake and the limitless forest eastward. Uncle Tom, for by that endearing name we hail him, is a man 62 years of age, five feet six in height and about 175 pounds weight, and I care not where you go, you can find no one with his heart better located. Cheerful, self-denying and kind to all who visit him, he has many friends. As a trapper he is second to none in the State, and the natives from the near settlement keep away, knowing it is no use to trap where Uncle Tom does.

Strange as it may seem, all game, such as moose, deer and caribou, instead of being driven away, are on the increase. The deer has a great dislike for anything like a "dry feed," and consequently resorts to the lakes and the streams, where grows the favorite bunch-grass, to feed. Instead of hunting and frightening them with dogs, we float for them on the lake, and coming noiselessly upon them they know not what hits them, and therefore bear no tidings to the rest of the family. In taking the trout we fish from our boats at the various inlets, where the water is cool, and usually with a fly hook, instead of a sunken one. Thus we live on the fat of the water, as well as the land; and in my next I will tell you about camping, and how we spend our time.

RESIDENT.

Hay fever, like malaria, is gradually extending its habitat and driving its victims out of some of their most trusted refuges. During the last two years scores of sufferers, whom the White Mountains had ceased to relieve, have found their way up Mt. Killington, the highest peak of the Green Mountains, and there bid defiance to sneezes and snuffles.

The new Bay State Telephone Company, into which the Hampden and Massachusetts companies have been merged, has a capital of $600,000, and aspires to the control of all the telephone lines in the State, and perhaps in New England. The president of the company is William A. Ingham of Lowell, and L. N. Downs, of Worcester, is manager.

The new Congregational church at West Brookfield, to replace the one struck by lightning and burned some time ago, was dedicated on Tuesday. The new edifice is built of wood, of the Queen Anne style of architecture; is handsome in itself and its furnishings, and has cost over $23,000, all told.

The funeral of James ("Chip") Smith, who was hanged at New Haven last week Friday for the murder of Chief of Police Hayes in Ansonia last December, was attended by an immense crowd on Sunday. The remains were followed to the grave by a procession a mile and a half long.

A Tunbridge (Vt.) school teacher is said to have found a nine-years-old girl with her feet on the desk, and to have compelled her to sit in that position during school hours for two days.

The new Eddystone Lighthouse is built of 2171 stones, containing 63,020 cubic feet or 4668 tons of masonry. The amount of stone contained in the tower of the old lighthouse was only 998 tons. It is believed that the sheer weight of the new tower will enable it to withstand a considerable force of wind or wave. Every stone is dovetailed above, below and on all sides, and the work is cemented. Up to a height 25½ feet above the level of high water the tower is solid, with the exception of a space given to a large water tank.

The striking iron workers at Pittsburg held a convention on Monday, and almost unanimously voted against any compromise with the manufacturers. This action was unexpected, and, as the manufacturers refuse to yield, a settlement of the difficulties seems as far off as ever. The mills will attempt to start up soon with non-union men.

The Checker Board Puzzle is a new game for the children, and also may be attractive to any who care for games, puzzles, etc. It consists of a dissected checker board, and it proves much more of a trick to put it together than it would seem at first. How Silly 'twould Be.

"You have heard," said a youth to his sweetheart, as he stood
While he sat on a corn-sheaf, at daylight's decline—
"You have heard of the Danish boy's whistle of wood;
I wish that Danish boy's whistle was mine."

"And what would you do with it? Tell me," she said,
While an arch smile played over her beautiful face.
"I would blow it," he answered, "and then my fair maid
Would fly to to my side and would there take her place."

"Is that all you wish for? Why, that may be yours Without any magic!" the fair maiden cried;
"A favor so slight one's good nature secures,"
And she playfully seated herself by his side.

"I would blow it again," said the youth, "and the charm
Would work so that not even modesty's check
Would be able to keep from my neck your white arm."
She smiled and she laid her white arm round his neck.

"Yet once more would I blow, and the music divine
Would bring me a third time an exquisite bliss—
And would lay your fair cheek to this brown one of mine;
And your lips stealing past it would give me a kiss."

The maiden laughed out in her innocent glee—
"What a fool of yourself with the whistle you'd make!
For only consider how foolish 'twould be
To sit there and whistle for what you might take."

IT WAS JOHN.

A St. Louis woman waked the other night, and putting out her hand touched the smooth face of an unknown man. She jumped out of bed and screamed for help. Her brother, who slept in the next room, entered, and, not finding any matches, seized the intruder by the hair of his head, pummeled him soundly, expressing at the same time, in the most vigorous terms, his opinion of a scoundrel who would be guilty of such an act. Then he dragged him into the middle of the room, thumped him, kicked him, and threw him out of the window into the yard below. The neighbors, aroused by the noise, came in, and procured a light. Nothing was taken, and attention was directed to the miserable object who lay groaning in the yard. It would, says the St. Louis Republican, be useless to describe that face, with its nose spread all over the middle of it, one eye bulging out and the other closed up, both colored like an indigo bag, an open mouth, and a row of twisted teeth, much less to recognize it; but as the excitement slowly subsided and cool reason began to reign, a thought suddenly struck the wife that made her turn pale with horror. 'Why, it can't be—it must be—yes, it is John! He has been to the barber's!' It was true, he had. He was her husband, and on his way home late in the evening, feeling his long and heavy beard oppressive in the heat, he had had it shorn. His wife was asleep when he crawled into bed, and he soon fell into a comfortable nap, from which he was rudely awakened by the experience above recorded. She is now making the best poultices and chicken soup for him she knows how.

A TRUE LADY.

Wildness is a thing which girls cannot afford. Delicacy is a thing which cannot be lost or found. No art can restore to the grape its bloom. Familiarity without confidence, without regard, is destructive to all that makes woman exalting and ennobling. It is the first duty of a woman to be a lady. Good breeding is good sense. Bad manners in a woman is immorality. Awkwardness may be ineradicable. Bashfulness is constitutional. Ignorance of etiquette is the result of circumstances. All can be condoned and not banish men and women from the amenities of their kind. But self-possessed, unshrinking and aggressive coarseness of demeanor may be reckoned as a state's-prison offence, and certainly merits that mild form of restraint called imprisonment for life. It is a shame for women to be lectured on their manners. It is a bitter shame that they need it. Do not be restrained. Do not have impulses that need restraint. Do not wish to dance with the prince unsought; feel differently. Be sure you confer honor. Carry yourself so loftily that men will look up to you for reward, not at you in rebuke. The natural sentiment of man toward woman is reverence. He loses a large means of grace when he is obliged to account her a being to be trained in propriety. A man's ideal is not wounded when a woman fails in worldly wisdom; but if in grace, in tact, in sentiment, in delicacy, in kindness, she should be found wanting, he receives an inward hurt.—Gail Hamilton.

The "patent outside" of an Ohio paper of August 15 contained the following fresh and startling items: "General Garfield, a correspondent notes, now receives hundreds of newspapers with the articles marked referring to him. He is gaining an experience as an exchange reader, and all kinds of experience are needed at the head of a great nation." . . . . . "General Garibaldi's health has been entirely restored by his residence on the Genoese coast. He frequently visits the villages along the shore in a canoe or small boat. His friends believe that he will live ten years longer, at least."

A shrewd one-legged man caught one of his crutches in a hole on the street at Leadville, fell, rose and sued the city, recovering $3000 damages. He did likewise in Kansas City, and recovered $500; in Terre Haute $500, and in St. Louis $800.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

WHEAT BITTERS.

THE BEST AND THE RICHEST

BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

CAREFULLY PREPARED,
THOROUGHLY TESTED,
ACCEPTABLE & RELIABLE

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuble food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to

BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation, but by solution, and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

Sold by druggists, $1.00 per bottle.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

"Introduced in 1864, five years prior to the introduction of any other New England remedy for the same diseases."

NOTHING SHORT OF UNMISTAKABLE BENEFITS

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick.

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quieted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

BLADDER AND KIDNEYS.

Most of the diseases of the bladder originate from those of the kidneys; restore the action of the Liver fully, and both the kidneys and bladder will be restored.

Don't Slop Over.

"Don't slop over," the old man said,
As he placed his hand on the young man's head.
"Go it by all means. Go it fast;
Go it while leather and horseshoes last;
Go it while hide and hair on horse
Will hold together. Oh, go it, of course—
Go it as fast as ever you can—
But don't slop over, my dear young man.

"Don't slop over. You'll find some day
That keeping an eye to win'ard will pay.
A horse may run a little too long;
A preacher may preach a little too strong;
A poet who pleases the world with rhymes
May write and regret it in after times;
Keep the end of the effort ever in view,
And don't slop over, whatever you do.

"Don't slop over. The wisest of men
Are bound to slop over now and then;
And the wisest, at work or at feast,
Are the very ones that blunder the least.
Those that for spilt milk never wail
Are the ones that carry the steadiest pail.
Wherever you go, go in for the fat,
But don't slop over—and freeze to that.

"Don't slop over. Distrust yourself,
Nor always reach to the highest shelf;
The next to the highest will generally do,
And answer the needs of such as you.
Climb, of course, but alway stop
And take your breath this side of the top;
And you will reach it in wind, and strong,
Without slopping over. This ends my song."

LOLA.

I was homeward bound from one of my various excursions across the ocean, by which I had for many years beguiled the tedium of my monotonous bachelor existence, and having settled my belongings in my stateroom, I turned out to take a survey of my fellow-passengers. It was autumn, and the last of the summer tourists were returning, and both saloons and decks were crowded with animated groups. Every one seemed cheerful and gay, and already several embryo flirtations could be detected among the young people, of whom the passengers were largely composed. Being an outsider myself, traveling alone, and having left such tender pursuits far back in the vagueness of the past, I amused myself with merely watching and listening, and it is perhaps not surprising that I soon found myself wearied. It was for the most part such senseless chatter, such arrant frivolity that I heard, such conscious poising and airy fluttering that I saw. Of course after a while I found exceptions to this tendency, but the quiet and sensible people on board, as usual, occupied the background.

Failing to find myself interested then in these surroundings, I began a leisurely inspection of the vessel, wandering about its nooks and crannies, and familiarizing myself with my little island home. And so, strolling along, I came upon a small, quiet, gray-clad figure seated alone, and looking wistfully over the waters. As she was quite unconscious of my proximity, I stepped a few paces off and examined her closely. She looked almost a child, so small and slight she was, and yet one would not have dared to treat her as a child. There was a self-reliance and serenity about her entirely unchildlike, but, all the same, very pretty to see. Her complexion was dark and very rich, and her cheeks charmingly rounded and curved, and her eyes, turned seaward, were the largest and darkest I ever remembered to have seen. Indeed, so uncommon was their size that, when some sound aroused her and she turned them slowly on me, I was dazzled by them—they gave her face such a strange aspect, and yet it was a peculiarity far from being unlovely. She was Spanish—I had seen that at a glance—and the mute, uncertain way in which she looked at me prompted the conviction that she felt herself, even at the outset of this voyage, hampered by the fact that she knew no other tongue. After that one long, steady glance, she turned her face away again, and I heard her sigh gently. After a moment's hesitation I moved just a step nearer and addressed her in her own language, asking if it was her first voyage.

She turned with a swift, impulsive smile and looked at me again. The great eyes were radiant with pleasure, and, with an exquisite utterance that made my own Spanish seem a harsh brogue, she answered fearlessly and naturally that she was going to America for the first time, and, indeed, was for the first time at sea.

'You will be seasick almost certainly, then,' I said. 'Are you prepared for that?'

'Oh, yes,' she answered. 'I have hoped that perhaps I might not be, but I am prepared for anything.'

There was a patient resolution in her tones that piqued my curiosity, especially as she presently informed me she was all alone and going simply under the captain's care. She was full of joy at meeting some one who spoke her language, and constantly intermingled with her talk little ejaculatory expressions of thanks, which seemed to have no application beside the general one of my knowing Spanish.

When the bell sounded for dinner I took her down, my arm, which was rather timidly offered, being promptly and gratefully accepted. After that I used to seek her always before meals, and take her in with me, and once, when something detained me and I was a little late, I found her waiting for me. I think the people of the vessel thought that we were companions from the start, and some one alluded to her once as my daughter, and, although I hastily corrected this, I willingly let it be supposed that she was traveling under my care. In the simplest and most natural fashion she learned to defer to me and lean on my decisions, and, by-and-bye, to confide in me.

It was one evening that we had been sitting together a long time, talking idly about the weather and the ship, and wondering how long we should have it so fair, when she turned to me, in her soft Spanish speech, that loses so incalculably by translation, and said:

'I want you to tell me about your people and your home.'

I felt as if her little, soft, plump hand had dealt a blow upon my bare heart; but I answered, simply:

'I have no home, and my people are all dead or gone from me—that is, my parents, sisters and brothers, for I never had a wife or a child, which is what you meant, perhaps.'

'Yes, I meant that. It is so sad. I thought perhaps you might have a daughter like me, and that made you so kind.'

'No, I have no daughter,' I said slowly; 'though I am, in truth, old enough to be your father.'

'And you have never loved any one—never wanted to be married to some one who was good and beautiful and kind? How strange!'

These questions were scarcely marked by any interrogative accent. She seemed to be merely stating them as facts, with a general reluctance. But, though she expected no answer from me, I was irresistibly prompted to confession.

'Yes, Lola,' I said, 'I knew some one like that once, and I loved her. But it was long ago, and we were parted.'

'Oh, why did you part?' she said, passionately. 'Why did you suffer anything to part you? Was she not willing to give up all, to leave home and friends and country and everything to follow love, as I have done?'

Urged on by a deep excitement, she had revealed her secret, and I half feared she would repent and try to retract it, but she did not. She seemed either to be unconscious that anything had been divulged, or unconscious of the fact that I had not known it all the time.

'You do well,' I said, fervently. 'It is worth the sacrifice. God grant you do not repent it.'

'I have no fear,' she said, confidently. 'Fear could not live in my heart, which holds a perfect love.'

Then, so simply and naturally, she told me her story. She had become engaged to a young American sent out to Spain as agent for some New York business firm, and he had gone home a few months ago, expecting to return; but his superiors had made other arrangements, and he had written that although he would be stationary in New York thereafter, he was coming back to marry her and bring her to her home in the new world. At the time set for his arrival, however, he had sent a letter instead, saying that an attack of illness prevented his coming, but he was now convalescent, though the physicians said he must not take the voyage for some time.

'When I got that letter,' said Lola, 'I could do nothing but fret and cry for the first two or three days. I did not eat nor sleep, and my aunt, whom I lived with, said I would die, and was very hard and cross. I was utterly wretched, until one night as I lay thinking it all over I resolved that I would go to him. He had once, half hesitatingly, suggested it, saying it would save so much expense, and he is not at all well off; but it had frightened me so that he gave it up, saying he would spend all he had sooner than give me the anxiety and trouble of such a voyage. But now—now that he was ill and alone—I could think no longer of my dread; indeed, it was gone, and all I thought of was to go to him, and comfort and nurse and take care of him. So I got my aunt's consent, though she would not give it at first, and I took the very next steamer. And see how easy and pleasant it has been! He need not have been afraid for me; but, then, he could not know, and neither could I, that I should find you!'

Her ardent tone and look, as she said these last words, thrilled me strangely. It was a spontaneous, affectionate outburst that pained while it caressed me. And beside my own personal feeling, a dreadful misgiving about her weighed on my heart. She was so confident, so full of trust—what if she should be deceived by this man? What if the attack of sickness were a mere subterfuge? Such things had been. I turned cold and then hot at the mere suggestion. I asked her lover's name, but it was unknown to me, although the name of the house he represented was familiar. But that went for nothing as to the man's personal character, and the fear that this might be treacherous made me sick with dread. What would be the end, if my apprehensions proved correct? What would become of the poor child? A wild thought suggested itself. It was a strange mixture of deep pity for her and deep joy, tempered with pain and yet sweet with hope, for myself.

At last the voyage was over, and the realization of this fact made me unaccountably sad. For Lola was dearer to me every day. In her little attacks of illness, which she had not altogether escaped, I had carried her about in my arms, like a child, and she had leaned on me and looked up to me with a childish confidence and trust that was unspeakably sweet to the lonely old bachelor whose attitude toward this young girl had seemed to touch his age and world-weariness with a magic wand that had made them drop from him like a garment.

Lola and I stood together on deck, all our bags and parcels strapped and ready for moving. She had not told her lover she was coming, and of course he would not meet her. I reproached her for not having telegraphed him, feeling a strange reluctance to go and hunt him up; but she answered simply that she could not afford it. All her money was required for the voyage, and, 'Besides,' she added, quickly, blushing like a rose, 'I wanted to give him the joy of the surprise.'

'And if,' I said, reluctantly, 'he should not be here, have you not money to return?'

'But he is bound to be here; nothing like that could happen. And if he were away I should wait till he returned. I have no money to go home if I should want to, but there's not much danger of my wanting.'

Heavens! what trust, what exquisite feeling, what beautiful belief in love! And if he should prove unworthy!

When we stepped ashore, Lola and I got into a carriage, which I ordered to take us to a hotel. She let me arrange everything just as I chose, and we had agreed to go together to the hotel, and then I was to find her lover and send him to her.

I saw her safely seated in her little parlor, and then, as it was early morning, I ordered a dainty breakfast there and we ate it tete-a-tete. I don't think either had much appetite, though I taxed my wits to the uttermost on the menu and had even given a lavish order for flowers. I tried to think of everything that could give her pleasure, for I felt almost certain of an impending calamity, and I looked again and again into her sweet face trying to fix its look of happiness in my mind. And she was happy! Her voice was joyous as a lark's and her face as radiant as day. I would fain have lingered a while to bask in this bright sunshine, but she was feverishly impatient and eager that I should be gone. I think she grudged me the boon of seeing him first, for she made me promise that I would not tell him of her presence, but bring him back with me under some pretext if I found him well, and return and take her to him if he was ill. In either event, she had settled it in her mind that they were to be married on that very day.

When I was ready to go I went up to her and took her hand in mine.

'Lola,' I said, 'whatever lies before you, whether joy or sorrow, remember that you have me always for your friend. You must rely upon me as you would upon your'—I paused and then said—'father.'

It was an effort but I forced myself to say it. Then, before leaving, I stooped and kissed her sweet lips. It was the first time, and would probably be the last, and I valued it as people do value what can come to them but once.

When I reached the house, the address of which Lola had given me, I inquired for her lover—he was gone. The woman who kept the house could give no information except that she thought he had gone West.

I was unfeignedly distressed. In that moment I rose above self and thought only of Lola.

How shall I describe the scene that followed my announcement to the little creature? The heart-rending grief, the wild denial of her lover's faithlessness! She utterly refused to believe it. She would far sooner, she said, think that he was dead. After the first outburst of passionate grief was over, she calmed herself and said, standing up, 'I must go away; I must not stay here.'

The sight of her agony almost killed me.

'Oh, Lola,' I said, 'where?'

She flung herself back on the lounge with a motion of utter despair. I went to her and threw myself on my knees beside her and folded both her trembling hands in mine.

'Lola, be brave,' I said. 'Face the worst. It is a bitter thing to say, but I believe he is false to you. My little darling, it is hard, I know, but not so bad as if you had married him and found it out afterward. But do not despair. I will not leave you, and you shall tell me just what you would have me do. I will take you back to Spain if you want to go!'

'I cannot! I could not bear it! And I have no money.'

'Never mind that,' I said. 'I have plenty, more—far more than I want. I would give my life to comfort you. I will go now, if you say so, and take passage on the next returning ship.'

'I could not bear it. I never will go back,' she said; 'no one loves me there. I am only a useless little burden. I never will go back!'

'Then stay,' I said, passionately—'stay here with me. Let me love and comfort you. Stay with me always, Lola. No one can love you as I will.'

At first I think she did not understand my meaning, but when she did she wrenched her hands from mine and sprang to the middle of the room.

'How can you! how can you be so cruel?' she said. 'Do you think I could ever love any one else after having given my love to him? No; I have loved him only—I have given him all my love—and, worthy or unworthy, he has it still.'

'Lola, my little child,' I said, 'you must face the truth. You cannot live in this strange country all alone. You have neither friends nor money. You cannot work, and if you could you must not be alone. I cannot help you and maintain you unless you take my name and occupy the honorable position of my wife. But I will not force it on you. For the present I will find some safe place to put you in, and we will see what can be done. At all events, whether you can love me or not, I love you and will always love you.'

'Do you love me?' she said, facing me and speaking with eager vehemence.

'Oh, I do, I do,' I said.

'Then find him for me!'

I could not speak at once. For one moment a wild hope had budded in my breast, and it would not die without a struggle. Then I looked at her and said, calmly:

'I will try. I will do my utmost. I will give it my most conscientious efforts. But, Lola, if I fail?'

'If you fail to find him,' she said, 'or if you find him to be false, then I will give you the reward you wish. I will marry you.'

It was not a rapturous consent, but I found a wonderful satisfaction in it, despite my fond sympathy for her. I was not being selfishly happy at her expense, for, on my own part, I entirely believed in her lover's treacherousness, though there was nothing that could go for real proof. It was a foregone conclusion with me, and it was, therefore, only its issue I rejoiced at.

In my present state of feeling it was easy to fall into hopeful dreams of the future; it was impossible not to. And now, as she sat meekly on the sofa, after all her passionate struggles were over, I felt convinced that, if I could win her hand in the way we had agreed upon, I could also, with time, win her pure heart for my own. It was a glorious goal. Something to live for, something to work and struggle for. My life and utmost energies had found the incentive they had lacked so long.

We fell now into a composed and quiet talk, and she listened patiently while I unfolded my plans for her. But there rested on her lovely face such a look of unutterable sorrow that I had to turn my eyes away. How blessed it would be to smooth away this look—to recall the gay vivacity of my own bright Lola! What a happy task! In spite of all, I felt I should succeed.

A long silence had fallen upon us both. The room was warm, and I had set open the door leading into the hall. I was glad of an excuse to do so, as it took away some of the air of privacy which I feared she might find irksome. She did not seem to notice my action, but sat facing the door, with her drooping eyes resting on the little hands clasped in her lap. Presently a footstep was heard coming along the hall, and she listlessly looked up. As she did so, the light of a great, ecstatic joy rushed over her face. She sprang to her feet, with the glad cry:

'Richard!' and flung herself into his arms. He clasped her tight to his heart, and drew her into the room. Was he true or false? I knew that I need only see his face to tell. In that moment of extreme excitement he would forget to don his mask. He stooped above her and covered her neck and face with kisses. Then, after that moment's rapture, he looked at me. It was a noble face—honest, manly and kind.

I ought to have been glad, but I heard myself groan.

I would have left the room, but Lola detained me, telling her lover in enthusiastic terms how kind I had been, and begging him to thank me, which he did in such terms as only a good and honorable man could have used. I had to listen, too, to his explanation. He had, indeed, gone West, having accepted a promising appointment which would give him permanent and remunerative employment. Having settled matters there, he had obtained leave, and was now on his way to Spain and Lola. It was all as clear as day.

That very evening they were married. I was the only witness beside the clergyman, and I never will forget the radiance of her face as I watched it during the service. I rather feared her joy might be dimmed by some remembering thought of me, but it was not so. I don't think she ever comprehended my feeling for her, and, of course, it pleased her to fancy now that it had been pity for her loneliness.

The services ended, there remained nothing but to take Lola to a jeweler's shop near by and let her choose a present from me, which she munificently paid for with a kiss.

It was, indeed, the last.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Will any candid objector point out any error either in the premises assumed or in the implied logic by which they are supported?

1. That the slavery of alcohol is the most degrading and ruinous of all human conditions.

2. That the manufacture and sale of intoxicants as a beverage is the sum of all villainies.

3. That the use of alcoholic drinks is spreading disease, crime, poverty, shame and death throughout the land.

4. That its continuance will result in the damnation of millions that might otherwise be saved.

5. That the drink custom is the greatest obstacle with which the church has to contend in saving men.

6. That all legalizing authorities—whether national, state, or municipal—which grant license to sell intoxicating drinks are morally responsible to God, and to outraged humanity, for all the crimes growing out of all such sale.

7. That all who manufacture, sell, drink, or vote for a policy that authorizes the manufacture, sale, or use of intoxicants are responsible for all crimes resulting from such sale and use.

8. That all who fail to oppose by vote or otherwise the continuance of the aforesaid policy are involved in guilt for its continuance.

9. That this liquor traffic is justly charged with nine-tenths of all crimes and woes with which our land and nation are cursed.

10. That every form of licentiousness and all kindred vices are associated with and aggravated by the liquor traffic.

11. That the well-being of every man, woman and child in the nation is continually imperiled by its existence.

12. The question to be settled is: Shall this nation rise in her strength and stamp this evil out of being, or shall she, with all her wealth of promise for the future go down in the burning sea of alcohol?—Rev. C. Hobart.

A VILE CONSPIRACY.

Jehiel Jaspar strolled into the grocery store and post office of one of our back country villages recently, and after standing round with his back to the fire until he was permeated with caloric, said:

'Well, I guess I'll read the news and get along home. Squire Perkins' paper come yet?' and he stepped behind the post office boxes, as was his custom, to take it out and read it.

'Can't let you see it, Jehiel,' said the postmaster; 'government has issued orders that any postmaster who allows a non-subscriber to read subscribers' papers will lose his position.'

'No; you don't tell me? Well, if that ain't a good idea. It's a put-up job; a gol-darned conspiracy between these ere newspapers and the government to keep the multitude in ignorance, so that they can domineer over the community. And they talk about this ere being a free country. It's drifting right into despotism just as fast as it can. How in thunder's a man to know what's going on if he don't read? And now the gov'ment is settin' down all ideas of eddication, and taking away that privilege.'

'Oh, not so bad as that, Jehiel,' said the postmaster. 'The government does not say anything against your subscribing for the paper yourself, you know.'

'Subscribin' for it! What d'ye take me for? D'ye suppose that I'm going to subscribe for a paper I have read fourteen years right here by the stove without costin' me a cent? No, sir; I aint a-going to help 'em oppress me by keepin' me in ignorance. No, sir-ee.'

And having got a supply of cheap tobacco 'put on the slate,' he jogged along home a thoroughly oppressed citizen.—New Haven Register.

An editor is a man whose bizness is to investigate a nuspaper. He writes editorials, grinds out poetry, inserts deths and weddings, sorts manuscript, keeps a waste basket, "blows up the devil," steals matter, fites out other people's battles, sells his paper for a dollar and fifty cents a year, takes white beans and apple sass for pay when he can't get it, raises a large family, works nineteen hours out of twenty-four, noze no Sunday, gets dammed bi everybody, lives poor, dies middle aged and often broken hearted, leaves no munney, is rewarded for a life of toil by a short but free obituary puff in the nuspapers. —Josh Billings.

An Ansonia physician was called to attend a woman who was thought to be dying. Passing through the sitting room he saw a diminutive looking fellow weeping as if his heart would break. Thinking to comfort him, the good doctor soothingly said, 'Don't cry, bubby; we'll try to make your mother well again.' Imagine the doctor's surprise when the little fellow, wiping his eyes and straightening up to his fullest stature, about four feet six, indignantly exclaimed, 'Who in thunder are you calling bubby? I'm her husband, sir.'

Since the new oil wells of Warren county, Penn., began to discharge 'the crude,' at the rate of 3000 barrels a day, creating the impression that the entire community was about to be drowned in petroleum, numberless operators have been forced to ask themselves the question, 'Is life worth living?' One of the brotherhood at Olean, while meditating upon the decline of the market last week, fell asleep in his chair, whereupon some of his friends hung around his neck a placard bearing the words, 'Not dead, but paralyzed.'

A Cincinnati woman was swinging in a hammock in the seclusion of her back yard, and her feet hung down. A neighbor looked through the fence and cried, 'Shoot them feet.' He was prosecuted, and, though he protested that he meant no adverse criticism of the feet, nor disrespect of the owner, was fined $2.

'My frens,' said the officiating clergyman at the marriage of two colored persons near Cincinnati, a few Sundays ago, 'my frens, it am a serous ting to get married, specially when bofe parties is orphans an' haint got no parients to fall back on, as am the present case.'

"Who Called Me?"

Patient, with weight of years upon his head,
The old man sat within the chimney nook;
His ears were dull, he heard no word was said;
His eyes were dim, he read no face or book.
Serene and still, without a doubt or fear;
Between two worlds, not wholly there or here.

One night the gray face brightened with strange light.
"Who called me?" with quick eagerness he cried;
"Who called me?" then he softly smiled and sighed;
"It was my mother's voice; she called me so
When evening shadows fell long, long ago."

He mused some hours, then suddenly once more
Broke into smiles, and said, 'Be still! Be still!
I hear the squirrels on the forest floor!
I hear the hunter's voice upon the hill!
It must be morning now o'er land and sea;
I hear my brother—he is calling me."

The summons came again at middle night;
We saw the glory through Death's mystic gray.
"Coming!" he cried, his face with wonder bright;
"A good-night dears!" and so he went away.
Yet while we listened, worshipping and dumb,
I heard him passing to some Presence say:
"Haste thee before, and tell my dead I come."

HOW MANY TOES HAS A CAT?—This was one of the questions asked a certain class in school No. 3 during examination week, and as simple as the question appears to be, none could answer it. In the emergency, the principal, Mr. Brands, was applied to for a solution, and he also, with a good-natured smile, gave it up, when one of the teachers, determined not to be beaten by so simple a question, hit on the idea of sending out a delegation of boys to scour the neighborhood for a cat. When this idea was announced, the whole class wanted to join in the hunt. Several boys went out and having been successful soon returned with a Thomas. A returning board was at once appointed and the toes counted, when to the relief of all it was learned that a cat possesses eighteen toes, ten on the front feet and eight on the hind feet. The board of education should feel proud at having in their employ so determined and practical a teacher. After the question was solved, Thomas was allowed to depart, much to his satisfaction.—Paterson Press.

SMALL CHANGE IN MEXICO.—In one of the small towns I bought some limes and gave the girl $1 in payment. By way of change she returned me forty-nine pieces of soap the size of a water cracker. I looked at her in astonishment, and she returned my look with equal surprise, when a police officer who witnessed the incident hastened to inform me that soap was the legal tender in many portions of the country for small sums. I examined my change and found that each cake was stamped with the name of a town and of a manufacturer authorized by the government. The cakes of soap were worth 1½ cents each. Afterwards in my travels I frequently received similar change. Many of the cakes showed signs of having been in the wash-tub; but that, I discovered, was not at all uncommon. Provided the stamp was not obliterated, the soap did not lose any value as currency. Occasionally a man would borrow a cake, wash his hands and return it with thanks. I made use of mine more than once in my bath, and subsequently spent them.—Philadelphia Press.

A Philadelphia gentleman relates the following disagreeable experience with his office telephone: 'My telephone has the hooks for suspending the transmitter on the front of the case. I was speaking with my face quite close to them, and perhaps approached my forehead so near the hooks as unconsciously to touch them. All I know is that suddenly I seemed to see a bright blue and white fire shoot out of the very body of the instrument, and at the same moment experienced a sensation like having a claw seize and drag up the skin of my forehead, and, holding me by it, shake me to and fro with great violence. I was partially stunned; half an hour at least elapsed ere I recovered myself, and my watch, an unusually fine one, has been simply useless ever since. I presume it is magnetized. I know that it will not go. There was no storm at the time, or I should have supposed that I was struck by lightning.'

Dialogue in a summer hotel in Rhode Island at midnight recently: 'Ma?' 'What, dear?' 'Is that you, ma?' 'Yes, dear.' 'Pa?' 'What, dear?' 'Is that you, pa?' 'Yes, dear.' 'Good-night, ma.' 'Good-night, dear.' 'Good-night, pa.' 'Good-night, dear.' The dialogue had been repeated at intervals of fifteen minutes for two hours, when an elderly man in the adjacent room, who had been trying to sleep all that time, rolled out of bed with a thud, climbed up into the transom, and, putting his head out, shouted out at the top of his lungs: 'Yes, it's me, maw, and it's me, paw; now go to sleep, you little brat, or I'll come in there and chew you up!' Five minutes later a holy calm brooded over the house.

A member of the Legislature who voted against the purchase of Huddle's pictures of the ex-Governors of Texas by the State gave the following unique reasons: 'Two hundred and fifty dollars apiece is too much for them oil paintings. Oil ain't so dear as all that, for I bought some the other day at two bits a quart. Besides, chromos are a heap cheaper. I bought a chromo of Wellington crossing the Alps, and there was a hoss in the picture, and it only cost a dollar and a half. None of the pictures of these Governors of Texas has got a hoss in it.'—Texas Siftings.

Some ways of young America are startling, and a notable example of them is furnished by the Iowa children who recently killed their father in order that they might have things their own way at home. The boy shot the unhappy parent, but it was arranged that the younger girl should acknowledge the crime, on a plea of self-defence, so that her extreme youth might save her. The whole affair was arranged and carried out with a coolness worthy of veteran criminals.

'Am I hurting you badly?' asked a Boston dentist of a lady whose teeth he was fixing, and who was emitting horrible groans. 'Oh, not in the least, but I love to groan,' was the reply.

A Frenchman, feeling ill, complained to an English friend that he had a pain in his portmanteau, by which he meant his chest.

The power of a man's virtue should not be measured by his special efforts, but by his ordinary doing.—Pascal.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1882.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has been spending the week at Bar Harbor and along the coast of Maine. He set sail for New York on Thursday morning.

THE Pittsfield Eagle has come out for Crapo—the first Republican paper in the western part of the State to do so, and the last, as well.

JAY HUBBELL'S constituents have expressed their opinion of him by nominating another man for his seat in Congress. Hubbell aspires to the Senate, but is believed to stand no chance of getting there.

IT is generally conceded that Butler will be nominated for Governor by the Democrats next week. The calling of the convention a day ahead of the Republican convention was an unusual proceeding, and a good many of the brethren are in favor of adjourning over until Thursday, so as to see what the Republicans will do and cut their cloth accordingly.

THE New Hampshire Republicans have nominated Samuel W. Hale of Keene, a wealthy furniture manufacturer, for Governor. There was a lively contest for the nomination between Mr. Hale and Moody Currier of Manchester, and it is reported that thousands of dollars were spent by both candidates. The Democrats have nominated M. V. B. Edgerly.

MAINE led off in fine shape on Monday, the Republicans making a clean sweep. Col. Frederic Robie was chosen Governor by a plurality of over 9000, the four Republican candidates for Congress are elected, and the Legislature stands about two-thirds Republican. The people of the Pine Tree State seem to be recovering from their Greenback craze. Now let the other States do as well.

SENATOR HOAR follows Mr. Crapo in writing a letter on political assessments, and deprecates the whole system. He diplomatically speaks of Hubbell's first circular as "unfortunate," and the second one as doubly so, and pertinently asks, "What right has anybody who has once asked a freeman or a gentleman to contribute to a public object to inform him that he is 'surprised' by his refusal?"

EDITOR HALL of Greenfield is being talked of for councilor from the seventh district, Rodney Wallace of Fitchburg declining further service. The Greenfield Gazette advocates the renomination of Congressman Norcross, and the Gardner News puts this and that together, and wonders if anybody scents a bargain between Fitchburg and Greenfield. You musn't be jealous, neighbor. We don't believe Editor Hall is that sort of a man.

THE first decisive battle of the campaign in Egypt was fought early Wednesday morning, when the English troops attacked Arabi's forces at Tel-el-Kebir, carrying the works at the point of the bayonet. The Egyptians lost some 1500 killed and wounded, and 40 guns. The British loss was 54 killed, including several officers. The Egyptians fled in disorder towards Zagazig, which was occupied by the pursuing British troops in the afternoon. Cairo was subsequently occupied, and Kafr-el-Divar surrendered. The Egyptian war seems to have completely collapsed, and it is reported that Arabi has been captured.

THREE-QUARTERS of the delegates to the Republican convention at Worcester next Wednesday have already been chosen, and a majority of them are claimed for both Bishop and Crapo. It is a close contest, but judging from the most conservative estimates, it is believed that Bishop will lead Crapo in the convention by a good majority. Worcester, the home of Senator Hoar, which was expected to go solid for Crapo, sends 29 Bishop delegates to 8 for Crapo, and the western part of the State is practically solid for Bishop, in spite of Berkshire's energetic boom for Weston. If the convention rises fully to the occasion, we shall next week announce the nomination of Robert R. Bishop for Governor.

FAXON is out with his annual classification of the Massachusetts legislators on the temperance question. He divides them into four classes. Out and out prohibitionists are marked with three stars; good, but somewhat weak-kneed brethren are given two stars; "policy men," one star; those who are in favor of free rum, a dash. The 40 Senators are divided as follows: Three stars, 18; two, 8; one, 2; dash, 11. In the House he finds 82 three star men, 32 two star, 42 one star, and 80 are given dashes. Senators Haile and Corser of Hampden, and Cook of Granby are each marked with two stars. Representatives Holbrook of Palmer and Stevens of Ware are designated with one star, and only Representative Webber of Holland, in this vicinity, comes up to the full measure of three stars.

THE star route trials terminated on Monday in an almost complete failure. After a trial of over three months, and the production of sufficient evidence, it would seem, to convince the dullest-headed juror, the jury, as the result of sixty hours' deliberation, brought in a verdict acquitting W. H. Turner, a former clerk in the post office department, and J. W. Peck, Senator Dorsey's brother-in-law, and convicting M. C. Rerdell, J. W. Dorsey's private secretary, and John C. Miner, the contractor. Ex-Assistant Postmaster General Brady, ex-Senator Dorsey, and his brother John W. Dorsey, escape through the disagreement of the jury. The big fish went through the net; the little ones, only, were caught. The verdict serves to confirm the belief that the jury were tampered with, and a strong effort will be made to ferret out the facts in the alleged attempts at bribery. It is reported that there will be a new trial next month.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

A full report of the cattle show will appear in next week's JOURNAL.

Postmaster Knox has the frame up for his new house on Knox street.

Dea. L. Dimock and wife have been spending the week at Huntington.

Hon. C. W. King and wife of Lunenburg, Vt., are visiting friends in this place.

Miss Emma Chapman has resumed her former position in White, Hellyar & Co.'s store.

Walter Allen has returned to Billerica this week, for another year in Prof. Mitchell's school for boys.

W. H. Hitchcock proposes to open his rollerskating rink at Wales Hall next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The next monthly meeting of the Eastern Hampden Medical Society will be held next Thursday with Dr. Stowe.

The first frost of the season made its appearance Wednesday morning, but it was not heavy enough to do any damage.

Workmen are digging the cellar for the new building to be erected by Lawyer Strong, adjoining the Nassowanno House.

One of our physicians has officiated at six births within a week, and didn't consider it much of a week for births, either.

The ladies of the Baptist society had their opening social of the season at the church Wednesday afternoon and evening.

F. J. Wassum's valuable driving horse died of colic, it is supposed, Wednesday night, at Woodstock, Ct., where he was to trot in the races.

Do the girls who frequent the depot so regularly at train time understand the extent to which they are cheapening their reputations by so doing?

The largest and finest sweet apples we have seen this year came from the trees of A. P. Kendall, who has left a basket with us for sampling.

Cyrus Hamilton, who was knocked down and run over by the running of the express company's horse at the railroad station, is on the street once more.

The proposal to move the post office to Feeney's building, corner of Main and Central streets, is meeting with a good deal of favor among our citizens.

Rev. F. T. Allen of Shrewsbury preached at the Congregational church last Sabbath. The pulpit will be occupied to-morrow by Rev. Granville Yager, of Cohasset.

It was the new roof of the old mill at Bondsville which W. H. Hitchcock finished slating last week, covering 200 squares. The new mill will not be slated until it is erected.

A movement is on foot to have our merchants close their stores at 8 p. m. from Oct. 1st to April 1st, with the exception of Saturday evenings and holiday week. It ought to succeed.

Republican caucus at the town house to-night, at 7.30 o'clock, to choose delegates to the Worcester convention. Let the voters be on hand, and see that the right men are selected to represent them.

The train from the west Thursday afternoon was too late to connect with the 1.30 express east from Springfield, and came out as a special train just ahead of the 3.48 express, which passed it at this station.

Palmer has one leading Republican who sufficiently admires Lieut.-Gov. Weston to exemplify the principles of civil service reform by voting for him at Worcester for Governor, if he should have a chance.

Miss Mary Mason is temporarily occupying the position of telegraph operator at the Boston & Albany station, during the absence of W. C. Gamwell, the regular operator, in New York. The nature of his errand to the metropolis may be learned by reference to our marriage notices.

W. O. Richardson, of the express office, is off on a four weeks' vacation at Keene, N. H. He has been running on the express route between Palmer and Brattleboro this week, while Ole Crawford, the regular route agent, relieved one of the agents on the Connecticut River Railroad for a few days.

A substantial iron-tube fence, five feet high, has been put in this week from Haynes's stove store to the corner of the railroad bridge, on the new wall recently laid by the railroad, and now that the old fence is away, everybody can see what a great improvement is made at that point by the change.

"They say" that a quiet effort is being made to insure a full attendance of Crapo men at to-night's caucus. It will not do for the Bishop men to stay at home and "trust to Providence" for the choice of delegates favorable to their candidate, for they will find that Providence will not do their work for them.

The talk of a new union passenger station in this place is again revived, and it is reported, on seemingly good authority, that the officials of the different railroads have come to an understanding in the matter, and that work will be begun on the foundation this fall. We hope the reports are true this time.

Why don't somebody run a 'bus between the village and fair grounds next week? It would undoubtedly pay well, for a good many people would ride if there was an opportunity, while some ladies in the village would be glad to attend if they could ride back and forth, who will not think of undertaking the walk.

Farmers, and everybody else, are rejoicing over the welcome rain which came in such generous quantity Monday, and was so well supplemented by the rain of Thursday. The backbone of the drouth may safely be considered to be now soaked up so limber that there will be no probability of a relapse into its past stiffness.

Frank S. Blanchard, formerly of this place and the JOURNAL office, but for the past two years and a half a successful job printer at Worcester, has taken to himself a partner for his future joys and sorrows, being married on Thursday to Miss M. Elise Tessier of that city. The bride and groom left the same afternoon on a trip to Montreal and Quebec.

Shall Palmer send Bishop or Crapo delegates to Worcester next week? That question will be determined by the voters who attend the caucus to-night. So far as we can ascertain, there is a strong sentiment in town in favor of Bishop, but it will avail nothing unless those in favor of his nomination manifest their interest by being on hand at the caucus.

At the adjourned business meeting of the Congregational church on Tuesday evening, another vote was taken on the question of extending a call to Rev. A. W. Lamb to become pastor of the church, the result showing 27 in favor and 15 against the proposition. The meeting adjourned without further action, and nothing more is likely to be done at present towards calling a pastor.

The plans and specifications for the new dam on the water power at Three Rivers, recently purchased by E. D. Metcalf of Springfield, have been approved by the county commissioners, and it is hoped to complete the abutments this fall. The dam will be put in next year, and it is in contemplation to erect two mills there, one a paper mill and the other a woolen or cotton mill.

The programme of the bicycle tournament to be held in Springfield next Wednesday will be found in another column. The attractions are varied and numerous, as will be seen, and among the contestants will be the most noted riders in the world. Excursion tickets, including admission to the park, will be sold at Palmer for 75 cents, and from other stations at correspondingly low rates.

The 1.24 p. m. express for New York was partly derailed at Springfield on Tuesday. A boy was standing near the switch at the east end of the depot, and as the train drew near some railroad men motioned him to get away from the track. He thought they wanted him to turn the switch, and did so, the engine and one truck of the baggage car leaving the rails. No particular damage was done.

Secretary Allen of the agricultural society desires that entries for next week's exhibition be made this week as far as possible, in order to avoid the unpleasant delay by the rush on the morning of the exhibition. Parties in the village and vicinity, especially, can usually enter their articles two or three days in advance without any inconvenience, and by so doing they will greatly facilitate the work of the secretary.

The fair building on the park has been fixed up and put in order this week for the approaching exhibition. The building has been broken into several times the past year, and a good many panes of glass demolished, including one whole sash. The officers of the society propose to keep an eye open for similar offenses in the future, and to punish the perpetrators to the full extent of the law, if they once get hold of them.

J. N. Kimball of New Haven, who has been visiting in town a couple of weeks past, thought he would try the pond at Three Rivers for some black bass a few days ago, and did so with such success that he captured nearly 50 pounds of the beauties, the smallest weighing about a pound, while some of the largest were four times that weight. It was quite a surprise to the citizens of Three Rivers, who had no idea there were any in the pond.

A well-known carpenter in this village, steady enough and old enough to know what he is about, went to his work the other morning, carrying his dinner pail as usual. In the course of the forenoon, a message arrived from his wife, asking him to return her lard pail, and upon investigating matters he found that, sure enough, he had taken the pail of fat instead of his lunch pail. Both were alike in outward appearance, and it was of course a very natural mistake to make, but "the boys" had a good laugh at his expense, just the same.

The schools began on Monday with substantially the same corps of teachers as last term, there being only three changes. Mr. Merrick becomes principal of the grammar school at Three Rivers, in place of Mr. Perry, resigned; Miss Gertrude Graves of Springfield takes the school in the Shaw district, succeeding Miss Nellie Cobb, who has resigned to attend the South Hadley seminary; and Miss Inez Burleigh takes the school at Blanchardville, in place of Miss Mary Snow, resigned. Miss E. N. Baxter of Boston, a graduate of Boston University, and a thoroughly competent teacher, takes the new position of assistant in the high school.

A session of the probate court was held at the district court room on Tuesday, when the following business was transacted: Administration granted on estates of Anna J. Stoddard, of Springfield, Willis E. Ranney administrator; Bridget Grady, of Holyoke, John F. Stapleton administrator; Truman C. Bradway, of Wilbraham, Mary J. Bradway administratrix; William W. Johnson, of Chicopee, George A. Edgerton and Harriet Johnson administrators. Wills were proved of Mary Stebbins, of Monson, Henry G. Rogers executor; Alvan Smith, of Monson, Abbie G. Smith, executrix; Ferdinand L. Burley of Wales, John C. Burley executor; John Smith, of Wales, Friend C. Smith executor.

John S. Holden, who recently purchased the Marchant & Brigham hat shop on Fox avenue, has bought twelve acres of land adjoining, from the heirs of the Parks estate, for $3500, embracing all the land owned by them on the south side of Main street, on which it has a frontage of some thirty rods. The purchase includes the small house on Main street opposite the old Parks homestead. Mr. Holden will probably open a street through the property from Main street, and at its lower end, back of the hat shop and near the New London Northern railroad and the river, he will at once proceed to the erection of a three-set woolen mill, for the manufacture of fancy cassimeres. The mill will be of wood, probably about 40 by 60 feet, and four stories high, and will make an important addition to the manufacturing interests of our village. The old hat shop is not strong enough for use as a woolen mill, and Mr. Holden will rent it for light manufacturing purposes, or sell it. It is hoped to have the new mill ready for work in the spring. The new street to be opened by Mr. Holden will open up several desirable building lots, and the erection of the new mill will give something of a stimulus to building operations in that part of the village.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday comes the thirtieth annual exhibition of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society. The preliminary arrangements are about completed; the exhibition hall, pens, track and seats have been put in order, and if Dame Nature vouchsafes the usual fair skies, the exhibition will without doubt be a success. The drouth has made sad work with some of the crops, but the farmers will take all the more pains to make as good a showing as possible, while the ladies will of course see to it that their part of the hall exhibit does not fall below that of past years. A number of horses have been in training for some time with an eye to this exhibition, and some good exhibitions of speed are expected on the track. The programme of the fair is about the same as last year, and will be found in full in "Our Cattle Show," the little sheet published annually at the JOURNAL office for free distribution on the grounds.

THE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Palmer Improvement Association, for the election of officers and transaction of other business, will be held at the district court room next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. During the past year the association has received $196.35. Of this sum $60 was received from the Palmer Dramatic Club, and $65 was the result of the clam chowder and oyster suppers furnished last year. The expenses have been $56.32 of which $16 was for re-covering the Main street walk across Central street, and $34.62 for raising and re laying the walk on Church street. Besides this the association has put in over $100 worth of new cross-walks this season which do not appear in the treasurer's books yet.

The work of the association thus far, it will be seen, has been almost wholly in the direction of putting in cross-walks. If less has been accomplished than some expected, it is nothing strange. The association has had to contend with a great deal of indifference, and at present has a membership of less than sixty, when it should have several times that number. The work it has done was all needed, but it would not have been done only for this organization; and we think that, all things considered, the association has made a very creditable record for its one year's existence. Very much more remains to be done in the way of village improvement, which may easily be accomplished if the citizens will take hold, and by their encouragement and pecuniary assistance help on the association. Every barren waste cannot be made to bud and blossom as the rose in a single year, but "a long pull and a steady pull" will accomplish wonders in this direction eventually.

How many citizens of this village—ladies as well as gentlemen—feel sufficient interest in the objects of the association to make a point of attending the meeting next Monday evening? The invitation is to all. Let the response be a generous one. And remember the hour, at 7.30 prompt.

WEST WARREN.

Charles Mirando, having sold his houses, has "skipped out," to the grief of sundry creditors.

LUDLOW.

B. F. Burr and C. F. Howard are the delegates to the Worcester convention, both for Bishop. The new town committee consists of John Hobson, Jr., Chas. Grosvenor and G. D. Atchinson.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

There was a sharp frost Wednesday morning.

The huntsmen begin to come in with the grays.

The Democratic caucus send Butler delegates.

The Collins Paper Co. have made connections with their new water supply, which is both pure and sufficient. They are now lowering the raceway to let off some of the backwater.

At the Republican caucus Dr. Steele and Henry Cutler were chosen delegates to the State convention and were instructed to vote for Bishop.

In the ball games last Saturday the Wesleyans beat the second nine 4 to 1, and the second paper mill nine beat the second Wesleyan 17 to 4. Both games were played on the Wesleyan grounds. There has been no game arranged for this afternoon.

BRIMFIELD.

Delegates to the Republican State Convention: James Noyes and Frank Tobey.

Miner Miller of Wales has leased the Herring homestead, and will take possession this week.

On Monday the town received from Herring & Co., of New York, a three-ton champion fire-proof safe, which has been placed in the selectmen's room at the town hall, for the safe keeping of the town records and papers.

The fall term of the town schools has commenced, with the following teachers: No. 1, Miss Rebecca M. Lincoln; No. 2, Miss Addie L. Green; No. 3, Miss Nellie Chamberlain; No. 4, Miss Anna M. Tarbell; No. 5, Miss Martha E. Stone; No. 6, no school; No. 7, Miss Jennie E. Livermore; No. 8, Miss Lizzie J. Traverse; No. 9, Miss Annie M. Brown; No. 10, Miss Ruth R. Cortis. Three of the above are from the last graduated class of the Hitchcock Free High School.

THORNDIKE.

Of late there has been a revival of some of those old street scenes with which most of our peace-loving citizens are familiar.

The second nine of the Sharps defeated the second nine of the Clippers of Ware in this village last Saturday afternoon, by a score of 13 to 12.

There has been composed by some young ladies of this village a song entitled "Hampden vs. Sharps," and there is talk of putting it in print soon.

The Rockets of West Warren accepted a challenge from the Sharps of this village to play here on Saturday last, but for some unknown reason failed to put in an appearance. The Sharps expect to play them to-day.

The members of the Sharps base ball club are pleased to return their sincere thanks to Mr. Wilson for his many acts of kindness to them, and wish to assure him that they are appreciated and will not go unrewarded. They also wish to acknowledge obligations to the generous public for furnishing them with uniforms.

WARREN.

The Ladies' Home Missionary society have packed and forwarded a box to a missionary family in Colorado this week.

The foundry connected with Blake's pump shop is to be enlarged by the addition of 100 feet, to be used as a brass foundry.

The wedding of Miss Sibley and Mr. Guilbert of Philadelphia has been indefinitely postponed on account of the sickness of the bridegroom.

The funeral of Mrs. George Buriand was attended on Monday afternoon, at the Congregational church, by Rev. Mr. Perry of Palmer and Rev. Mr. Forbes.

The Methodist camp meeting is well attended, and will continue until next week. An omnibus runs twice a day, making it very convenient for those who wish to attend.

Mr. Gibson died very suddenly of neuralgia of the heart Wednesday morning. He has been in feeble health for some time, but has been out until a few days before his death. He was a man much respected by all who knew him.

The Republicans have chosen the following delegates to the Worcester convention: J. W. Chadsey, C. S. Strickland and George W. Bliss. They are instructed to vote for Bishop. The delegates to the other conventions are as follows: Congressional, J. W. Hastie, John M. Drake, William H. Ducker; county, H. M. Converse, Charles Heritage, J. T. Bixby; senatorial, Charles S. Lincoln, J. H. Goodhue and J. B. Sibley; councilor, William A. Jenks, S. M. Cutler, Charles B. Blair; town committee, C. S. Strickland, J. W. Chadsey, George Bliss, William A. Jenks, J. B. Sibley.

THREE RIVERS.

The vestry of the Union church has received a new coat of paint during the week, and also been otherwise improved.

Selectman McMaster advertises in another column to sell his stock of livery horses, carriages, etc., at auction, next Thursday.

The recent rains have not as yet very much improved the condition of the springs, but it is hoped more of the same kind may follow.

Most of the Republican voters in this village seem to be for Bishop, if we cannot have Long. The Democrats are mostly for Butler, as usual.

R. E. Knowlton, formerly master mechanic of the Palmer mills, and now superintendent of a mill in Montville, Ct., has resigned his present position to become agent of a mill at Uncasville, in the same State. Mr. Knowlton was in town Monday, and looked over the school house in this village. It will be remembered that he was chairman of the committee which had charge of building the new addition and making repairs in the old part, until he left a few weeks since.

Rev. O. L. Leonard, the evangelist who conducted a series of revival meetings here a year ago last winter, was present and took charge of the Y. M. C. A.'s meeting, in their rooms, last Wednesday evening. Many of those who were converted while he was laboring here were present and were very much pleased to meet him again. He gave some account of his labors in different fields since he was here, and also gave the young people some excellent advice, which older ones would also do well to follow. Mr. Leonard left for Iowa Thursday morning, where he goes to labor during the coming winter.

WALES.

Julia M. Parker has bought Loel and Merrick Stebbins's farm, for $1200.

L. L. Moulton tore off a part of the roof of his house, while blasting rocks in his garden the other day.

The remainder of the peach pickers arrived Tuesday, and give glowing descriptions of their five weeks' stay there.

Stealing watermelons has been the principal business recent evenings for some of the boys, one man having lost about 150.

A new livery stable has been opened by S. Hulett on Main street. This makes four stables. "You pays your money and takes your choice."

E. Shaw's old "Dolly" has followed her mate, and been silently put to rest, and their place has been filled by a pair from Springfield, weighing about 2500 pounds.

Sneak thieves are plenty, as several people can testify. They take fruit, garden vegetables, etc. It is hoped that the arrest of some of the guilty parties soon will stop it.

H. A. McFarland and John C. Burly were chosen Wednesday night as delegates to the State convention. The caucus took an expression as to their choice for Governor, and it was unanimous for Bishop.

H. M. Needham, Esq., and family returned to New York Tuesday. They were on the fast train that came so near being smashed up at Springfield, and their many friends congratulate them on their fortunate escape.

John Ricketts is experimenting on a well for his new home. He has drilled 25 feet into a solid rock and put in about five pounds of the explosive that blows down instead of up, but when it went off it shook the whole surroundings, smashing crockery and window glass, tearing off part of the jet and so jarring the house that the doors could not be shut or opened. It worked fully up to the recommend, but thus far the water has not been increased.

MONSON.

Amasa Harvey has the frame up for his new dwelling on Pearl street.

Rev. E. A. Perry will preach at 2 p. m., on Sunday, at Central Hall.

Dwight King has sold three building lots on King avenue to John A. Orcutt.

C. S. Pease has sold a building lot on Pease avenue to E. O. Knowlton.

C. H. Robbins has sold his livery stock to J. L. Bacon, the new hotel proprietor.

John L. Bacon of Brimfield has purchased the Monson Hotel of A. D. Cady, and will take possession the 20th inst.

R. M. & T. Reynolds are laying out a new street southerly of Highland street, to intersect Reynolds street easterly of P. Shea's house.

Northrop & Ferrill are laying out a new street easterly of Pearl street to intersect with the new street being laid out by C. S. Pease, east of Cushman's mill.

Uncle John Ferry says that "faith without works" does not accomplish much. He had faith to believe that if he watered his vegetable garden it would bring forth a remunerative supply, and being the only traveling vegetarian in this locality he finds ready sale for his fresh "garden sass."

Monson people put on their best "bib and tucker" on Thursday afternoon and attended church, some for the first time in many weeks, to witness a marriage ceremony, the contracting parties being J. Wallace Cumnock, agent of the Dwight Manufacturing Company of Chicopee, and Louie F., daughter of Rev. E. S. Best, pastor of the M. E. church. At 4 o'clock the large audience room was well filled, gentlemanly ushers being in attendance, and at fifteen minutes past 4 the bride and bridegroom entered, with numerous relatives, friends and invited guests, and the marriage ceremony was performed by the pastor and father of the bride, assisted by Rev. H. B. Ridgeway, D. D., of Northwestern University of Chicago, Ill. The church was elegantly and profusely decorated with floral designs, among which was an evergreen arch, from which was suspended a floral yoke, while the pulpit was a mass of ferns and flowers. The visitors present spoke highly of the artistic display made and the effect produced by the artificial light from the well-lighted chandeliers. The newly-married couple, with friends and relatives, then repaired to the residence of the bride's father, where a reception was held. The bride's dress was of white surah silk, en train, trimmed with sparkling blonde, with low corsage, pearl ornamented, veil of white tulle, with white rosebuds and maiden hair ferns. The groom wore the conventional evening dress. Letters of regret were received from His Excellency Gov. Long, he having a previous engagement at Marshfield; also from Councilor Rufus Wood, Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson of Chicago, Thomas Saunders, Hon. C. C. Corbin of Webster, Albert Farnum, Esq., of Boston, and many friends in other cities and towns. The presents were numerous, and in the bountiful supply were noticed a splendid cathedral clock, from Minot Hooper & Co., New York; Rogers' group, "Coming to the Parson," from Mr. and Mrs. J. Cumnock; silver ice pitcher, from T. B. Wattles, agent Chicopee Manufacturing Co.; a pair of large bronze student lamps, from Minot Hooper & Co., New York; splendid mirror, from Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gaylord; a novel and unique silver jewel case, from Mrs. T. B. Watties; silver paper cutter, from H. M. Phillips; hand hammered silver pepper and salt of novel design, from Harrison Gardner; set of gold-lined goblets, from Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Smith of Rome, Ga.; a bank check for $200, from the bride's brother; with other checks and gold coins of various amounts from other relatives and friends; set (12 vols.) Mrs. Jameson's Works, from Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams, Springfield; gold bowl sugar spoon, from S. S. class, Monson, of which the bride was a member; sugar tongs, from Master Harry Farnum; "Illustrated Switzerland," by Raden, and "Illustrated Italy," by Trollope, from Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Cumnock; elegant strawberry spoon, from Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Reynolds; 1 dozen of silver spoons, from Hon. J. L. Reynolds; Bohemian sugar bowl and pitcher, from Mrs. Thorne of Cincinnati; fruit dish, from Mrs. N. M. Field; housekeepers' ready reckoner for the kitchen, from Mrs. Harlan Page; several dozen coffee and ice cream spoons, from different friends; gold-lined nut and fruit basket, from Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Farnum; 2 Bisque figures, from William F. Draper; large family Bible, from parents of the bride; mirror and candlesticks, from Mrs. Colwell and Mrs. Ridgeway; bronze fruit knives with silver blades, from Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nichols; 1 dozen silver teaspoons, from Luther Fernald; satin and lace cushions, from the cousins of the bride; Rogers' group, "Weighing of the Baby," from John Cumnock; full china set, from W. Cumnock; after dinner coffee set, in case, from Brown Brothers, Providence, R. I.; fish knife and fork, solid silver, from Mr. and Mrs. Adam Cook; silver table and tea spoons, from Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cumnock; 3 sets of silver forks, from Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Freeland, Boston; study lamp, from Mr. and Mrs. N. Whittier; china set, beautifully painted, for fruit or flowers, from an unknown friend; fine five-diamond ring, from bridegroom to bride; oatmeal hand-painted porcelain set, made, moulded and painted by the bride, and presented to the bridegroom; Lamosa floral baskets, spoons, butter knives, paper cutter and other presents almost ad infinitum. Barr of Springfield furnished the refreshments, and as in the family name of the bride, so in the entertainment, the best was provided, and all went merry, even to throwing the good luck old slipper and shoe as the newly married couple left the flower bedecked homestead for a bridal tour to New York city, thence up the Hudson and on to Lake George and other places of resort for rest and recreation.

WARE AND VICINITY.

There was a good attendance at the Republican caucus on Tuesday evening, and William Hyde, John W. Robinson and Almer F. Richardson were elected delegates to the State convention at Worcester, by a vote of 57 out of a total of 74. Although they were unpledged by the caucus, they are understood, without question, to be Bishop men.

At the Democratic caucus at Music Hall, on Thursday evening, Philip L. Keefe was chosen chairman, and A. E. Cooper secretary. The delegates elected to attend the State convention at Boston, next Tuesday, were Philip L. Keefe, George S. Marsh and A. E. Cooper. The following town committee was elected: Philip L. Keefe, Owen F. McMahon and George S. Marsh.

MAYOR LOW of Brooklyn has views on the subject of political assessments, and knows how to express them with a directness which leaves no doubt as to his meaning. He has sent a letter to each of the heads of city departments, in which he says:

"I am admonished by many signs that the fall political campaign is about to begin. Be so good as to assure the employes of your department that their salaries are intended to compensate them for faithful service to the city; that, failing in that respect, no amount of contributions for party purposes will avail them. On the other hand, that a refusal to contribute will not imperil their situations. In other words, they are in the same condition in this particular as the employes of a commercial firm. I look to you to protect them in this respect."

If the heads of departments at Washington would speak out after this fashion, Jay Hubbell's circulars would lose the terror for the clerks which they now possess.

EX-SENATOR CONKLING could not get elected a delegate to the State convention from his own city the other day. On the contrary, his fellow-citizens showed their appreciation of him by electing as one of their delegates the postmaster who was removed from office to satisfy a grudge of Conkling. "How are the mighty fallen!"

A CARD.—We wish to thank our kind neighbors and many friends for their floral tributes, and their kind help and sympathy in our recent loss of our little one.

MR. AND MRS. H. MCMASTER.
Three Rivers.

CARD.—I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many friends who have been so kind and thoughtful in my sore affliction; whose generous acts of help and sympathy have been a source of comfort and encouragement; also the members of Palmer Lodge of Odd Fellows, who showed their brotherly interest in one who so recently had become one of their number, and for their valuable aid; and to the Ashland Lodge of Masons, for their beautiful floral gift; and his fellow workmen, for their token of interest and esteem.

MRS. MARY J. BRADWAY.
North Wilbraham, Mass.

Thomas C. Johnson, a colored Springfield lawyer, walked out with his sweetheart last week Thursday evening, and while they were sitting near Ingersoll grove, Peter Clark, a special officer, rushed at them and fired two shots from a pistol, one of them wounding Johnson in the neck. The latter caned Clark and he fled. Clark claims that Johnson was tearing down a fence. The affair will be investigated in court.

Ex-Gov. Sprague of Rhode Island has come out ahead, so far, in the contest for his Canonchet home. The supreme court at Providence last Saturday dismissed the petition of Z. Chaffee, trustee and assignee of the Spragues, for advice and assistance relative to the sale of the property to F. D. Moulton, thus leaving the warlike ex-governor in possession indefinitely unless ousted by proceedings at law.

Trial Justice G. F. Willis of Putnam, Ct., 60 years old, a prominent and respected citizen, has been arrested on the charge of setting the recent large fire in that town. He was entrapped by detectives who, under the guise of bank robbers, induced him to confess a number of criminal exploits, to win their confidence in a proposed negotiation of stolen bonds.

Judge Lowell, of the United States circuit court, has decided that punched and plugged coins are in effect counterfeit, because they no longer have the weight and fineness prescribed by law, and persons who mutilate or pass them are guilty of counterfeiting.

The amalgamated association is losing its hold on the iron men at Pittsburg. One hundred and twenty-five workmen in one mill refused to obey the association's orders to quit work last week, and it is believed that many of the strikers will go to work again soon.

John McClusky, 45 years old, was killed by the cars at West Brookfield, Monday, while walking on the track in an intoxicated condition. There was $1800 in pensions due him within a few days.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

A document of considerable interest to candidates for Congress has been published the past week, in the shape of a circular, issued by a committee of the civil service reform associations, and signed by over a thousand prominent citizens of both parties in different portions of the State, including such names as Charles Francis Adams, Jr., P. A. Chadbourne, Edward Atkinson, Charles W. Eliot, Mark Hopkins, Washington Gladden, William S. Shurtleff, Edward H. Lathrop, and many others. The circular says:

We, the undersigned, citizens of Massachusetts, believe that reform in the methods of appointment to office is the most pressing need in our politics, and that, until this reform is secured, other questions cannot be dealt with properly, both because our representatives are too much occupied with the distribution of patronage to give them due attention, and because the present system tends to the choice of men who study more how to retain their offices than how best to discharge their official duties. We have, therefore, resolved to vote for no one at the next election of members of Congress whose character and record do not satisfy us that he will be found in office a consistent, earnest and aggressive supporter of civil service reform. Professions are entitled to no weight, when they are contradicted by the candidate's record or character; nor can we trust men who, while declaring that they would gladly be relieved from the importunities of office-seekers, receive with coldness or open opposition every scheme of reform. During the past ten years both political parties have promised, in their platforms, to undertake the work, but representatives elected by their votes have persistently refused to carry out these promises, paying more regard to their own selfish interests than to the declared will of their respective parties. * * Unless bad faith is to be rewarded, these officers should be displaced. * * We have no wish to separate from the political parties with which we have always acted and in whose principles we believe. But, when any party nominates a candidate from whom no adherence to one of its leading principles can be expected, it forfeits its right to the support of its members. We wish to assure the triumph of our party principles by the nomination and election of men who believe in them all and will earnestly labor to carry them out. To this end, if a candidate for Congress is nominated whose sympathy with the cause of civil service reform is doubtful, we shall seek for ourselves some better representative and cast our votes for him. We advise our fellow-citizens to adopt the same course, to organize in their respective districts that their strength may be used to the best effect, and so to vote that their influence may be felt against the dishonest and degrading system which corrupts the government of our country.

Black and White.

Our Dinah has a baby
That you really ought to see,
Its skin is black all over,
Like a piece of ebony;
Its hair is black, and curly, too,
And Dinah never fails
To braid it so it stands around
Its head in little tails.

We play together now and then,
And both of us get hurt,
But Dinah's baby seldom cries,
And never shows the dirt;
Is real good natured all the time,
And that's the reason, maybe,
Why everybody makes a fuss
With Dinah's little baby.

My skin is white and satin soft,
My mother calls me Pearl,
And says there never, never was
So sweet a little girl;
And Dinah's baby stares at me,
And I keep staring back;
She wonders why I am so white,
I wonder why she's black.

And Dinah gives her loving hugs
And kisses that must be,
I really think, as sweet as those,
My mother gives to me.
Oh, mothers' hearts are all alike,
And that's the reason, maybe,
Why every mother thinks she has
The very nicest baby.

HOW MAY I POSSESS A HOME!

To this important question the Carriage Monthly replies: 'By paying the price of it.'

Why do not more of our working people own the houses in which they make their homes? The answer, in most cases, continues the Monthly, is that they do not choose to buy them and pay for them. It is not because they cannot, but because they will not, in the majority of cases.

Whoever will deny himself, and suppress the demands of an unreasonable appetite or a vitiated taste, has brought himself at least in the line of promotion toward a home in the life that now is, as well as in that which is to come. The excess of wages or earnings of the industrious, above the actual demands of physical life and the real needs of mental and physical well-being, will in ten years realize a sum equal to the purchase of a domicile as good as that in which the average worker makes his home. If any one wishes to enter upon so perilous an undertaking as home-winning, we will make some suggestions. This we do knowingly, having tried and accomplished it in several years less time. First, buy a very cheap place on credit. This you can always do, if you have character for industry and integrity. If you have not these, then get them by right doing, which will require only two years. Make an estimate of ordinary expenses for pleasure, riding, theater and concert-going, tobacco and cigars, drinks (other than water and milk), table expenses beyond actual demands of the physical system, and all such clothing as is not in harmony with a rented house. Add these sums together and make the amount the basis for that of your payments on the property. Move into it, be a king, greet the queen of home on her own threshold when you return from toil. Say 'our house,' talk about raising money to pay taxes, plant a tree and a rosebush and a vine, watch them grow as you never did before. Your wages will be advanced at an early date. Employers will say, 'We can rely on him.' There is an inspiration in honest ownership.

'Pa, what is a lay preacher?' inquired a South Chicago boy one Sunday afternoon. 'A lay preacher? Why, my son, a lay preacher is a—a—a; a lay preacher is a man who lays around and takes the regular preacher's place and deals out a strange, peculiar and conflicting theology.'

Doctor—'Well, Pat, have you taken the box of pills I sent you?' Pat—'Yes, sir, be jabers, I have! but I don't feel any better yet; maybe the lid hasn't come off yet!'—London Judy.

Visitor (endeavoring to impart information to a young mind): 'The little bird in the cage belongs to the finch family, and—' Three-year-old listener: 'No it don't. It belongs to me.'

'My teeth are all full of sand,' said the fair bather. 'All right, hand them out,' said an admirer, 'and I'll rinse them off for you.' And now she regards him only as a brother. —Puck.

Shifting the responsibility: Mistress—'Forgot it? Why, I told you to impress it on your mind.' Bridget—'It was on me moind I put it, mum, an' me moind went astray wid it.'

Piety, which is a true devotion to God, consists in doing all His will, precisely at the time, in the situation, and under the circumstances in which He has placed us.—Fenelon.

A hackman recently went into the surf at Long Branch and encountered a huge shark. Their eyes met for an instant, when the shark blushed and swam out into deep water.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

"Introduced in 1864, five years prior to the introduction of any other New England remedy for the same diseases."

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checke , and a new growth will be produced in all c ses where the follices are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

From the Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is at once a most annoying and very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Another striking case is now added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked for him. Toward the end of last January Mr. Lawler called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding him, the Dr. "struck stone." He decided that Mr. Lawler should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb. 6," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorders of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1 a bottle. 26

TAKE

Simmons Liver Regulator!

It Will Positively Cure

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant as bad breath, generally arising from a disordered stomach, and can be so easily corrected by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

JAUNDICE.

Simmons Liver Regulator soon eradicates this disease from the system, leaving the skin clear and free from all impurities.

SICK HEADACHE.

The stomach imperfectly digesting its contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied by disagreeable nausea. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

MALARIA.

Persons living in unhealthy localities, may avoid all bilious attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy order.

CONSTIPATION

should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

BILIOUSNESS.

One or two teaspoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after Eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

Simmons Liver Regulator will counteract the effect of alcoholic poisoning. By its use the torpid liver is aroused, the nerves quieted, the gastric disturbance corrected and intemperance prevented.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Regulator has proven its great value as a remedial agent during the prevalence of that terrible scourge. Simmons Liver Regulator never fails to do all that is claimed for it.

COLIC.

Children suffering from colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered according to directions. Adults as well as children derive great benefit from this medicine.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

There is no need of suffering any longer with chills and fever—Simmons Liver Regulator soon breaks the chills and carries the fever out of the system. It cures when all other remedies fail.

DYSPEPSIA.

This medicine will positively cure you of this terrible disease. It is no vain boast, but we assert emphatically what we know to be true, Simmons Liver Regulator will cure you.

BLADDER AND KIDNEYS.

Most of the diseases of the bladder originate from those of the kidneys; restore the action of the Liver fully, and both the kidneys and bladder will be restored.

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Is It Worth While?

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother,
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other
In blackness of heart that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

God pity us all as we jostle each other;
God pardon us all for the triumph we feel
When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather,
Pierced to the heart; words are keener than steel,
And mightier far for woe than for weal.

Were it not well in this brief little journey
On over the isthmus, down into the tide,
We give him a fish instead of a serpent,
Ere folding the hands to be and abide
Forever and aye in the dust at his side?

Look at the roses saluting each other;
Look at the herds all at peace on the plain;
Man, and man only, makes war on his brother,
And laughs in his heart at his peril and pain;
Shamed by the beasts that go down on the plain.

Is it worth while that we battle to humble
Some poor fellow down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time oft soon will tumble
All of us together, like leaves in a gust,
Humbled, indeed, down into the dust.

—Joaquin Miller.

THE PRISONER'S CHILD.

It was early morning.

'Is this the way, sir, to Sing Sing?'

'Yes,' roughly replied a brown-faced countryman and passed on.

It was afternoon. The child was somewhat fragile in her appearance. Her bonnet was of broken straw, her shoes were much torn; the sun played hotly on her forehead. She walked on and on an hour longer.

'Is this the way to Sing Sing, sir?'

'Yes, little girl, but what are you going there for?'

The child trudged on, her lips quivering, but not deigning to answer the pleasant-faced old man, who had stopped the jogging of his horse to note her hurried manner, and who liked that little face, anxious and sad as its expression was.

The dew was falling. Katie had fallen too, almost. A rough stone by the way, imbedded in moss, received her tired little frame. She looked so weird and tired, sitting there, her tangled hair falling on her hands that were clasped over her face. By the shaking of her frame the tears were coming too, and she was bravely trying to keep them back.

'Why, what is this dear little girl doing here?'

This exclamation came from a pair of young lips.

'A curiosity, I declare!' exclaimed a harsher voice, and Katie, looking up suddenly, cowered away from sight of the young lady and her agreeable looking companion.

'Whatever are you doing here, little girl?' asked Nell Maywood, moving a little towards the frightened child.

'Going, miss, to Sing Sing," said Katie.

'Why, George! this child is going to Sing Sing—ten miles off. Child, did you know it was so far off?'

Katie shook her head and wiped away the hot and heavy tears, one by one.

'Why, you little goose, what are you going to Sing Sing for? Have you had your supper?'

Katie shook her head.

'Have you had any dinner?'

Again the sad child shook her head.

'No breakfast? Why, George, the poor thing must be almost starved!'

'I should think so,' mechanically replied her brother, just recovering from a yawn, and showing signs of sympathy.

'Look here, what's your name? Well, Katie, you must come up to the house and get something to eat. Follow me, Katie, and we'll take care of you to-night somehow, and see about your going to Sing Sing to-morrow.'

Katie followed. What a glorious vision burst upon her view! The palace house; the rocks reddening in the low western sun; the shining river; the signs of luxury on every hand.

'Susan, give this child a good supper; she is hungry, and tired too, I imagine. After that I will see what can be done for her.'

Susan wore a mild face. She looked pleasantly down at the poor little tired one, and taking her hand, which now trembled, led her into the kitchen.

Meanwhile her story, or that brief part of it which we know, was being told in the drawing room. The sylph figure in white, lounging gracefully in the midst of delicate cushions, accompanied her narrative with expressive gestures, and now and then a little laugh.

'I should like to know what she is going to Sing Sing for!' she said, leaning languidly back. 'We must look her up something to wear—a bonnet, a pair of shoes; and then maybe we can manage to have her carried some distance. Oh! such an odd-looking little thing.'

'Who is that, my daughter?'

'Oh, papa, you are come home! Why, I was talking about a little mite of a child; she can't be more than ten, if that. I saw her out here sitting on a moss-rock, the most forlorn object. She says she is going to Sing Sing.'

'I met her on my way,' said the pleasant-faced old man; 'she asked me about it, and I would have stopped her, but she trudged on. Where is she? It was noon when I saw her.'

'In the kitchen, papa. Susan is taking good care of her, I expect, and when she has had a hearty supper we will talk with her.'

A gay trio of young girls came in. The nettings were put up, the gas burned brightly and music and mirth banished all sorts of care. Suddenly Nell Maywood remembered the little odd figure, and clapping her hands, cried, 'Oh, I've something to show you, girls!' and disappeared.

Susan was picking over the gooseberries near the pantry in the kitchen.

'Where is the child, Susie?' asked Nell Maywood.

'On the doorstep, miss.'

'Why, no, Susan, there's nobody to be seen.'

'Yes, miss.'

Susan placed her pan down, held her apron up to catch the stems of the berries, and walked deliberately to the door.

'Why, she sat there some time after supper. I turned and came in; she was looking up, up at the stars, I expect. I thought she was a mighty quiet child, but she's deep, deep, Miss Nelly; she's gone. Let me see, there ain't any silver around—I should be afeard she'd took something; they're mighty artful.'

'Why didn't you tell her she might stay all night?'

Nell Maywood was peeping here and there to spy her if possible.

'Yes, Miss Nell, and told her what a good bed there was over the wood shed; but she looked strange out of them large eyes of hers,'

'The poor child is in trouble,' said Nell, quite sorrowful that she could not further relieve her necessities. 'I'd have given her something to wear, and we could have sent her to Sing Sing; and perhaps she will come back again—if so, you will send her to me?"

'If she do, I will, miss,' answered Susan, going at the gooseberries again.

But little Katie did not come back. She had been watching her opportunity to get off, and had already been gone some time. She slept in an open field; crawled into some hay; she would have walked all night if she had dared, but she was afraid of the darkness.

* * * * * *

'Mr. Warden, there's a queer case over at my house,' said a bluff-looking fellow, meeting the warden of Sing Sing prison. 'We found her last night in some out-of-the-way place, and nothing would do but my wife would take her in. We can't find out her name except that it is Katie, and I expect that she wants to see somebody in the prison. But we can't get anything out of her—where she came from or anything about it.'

'Bring her over here,' said the warden; 'my wife is wanting a little girl for help; maybe she's just the one.'

So Katie stood, trembling more than ever, in a few moments, in the presence of the warden and jailor. Katie was a pretty child. Her large blue eyes wore an expression of intense melancholy; her hair had been nicely combed and curled, and some one had put a good pair of shoes on her feet.

'Well, my little girl,' said the warden, kindly—for he was prepossessed in her favor—'where have you come from?'

'New York,' said the child, faintly.

The men looked at each other incredulously.

'Do you mean to say that you have come to Sing Sing from New York on foot?'

'Yes, sir,' said the child, frightened at his manner, which had in it something of severity.

'And what have you come for?'

'To see my father.'

The child broke forth with one great sob, and for a moment her little frame was shaken with a tempest of feeling.

'And who is your father?' asked the warden kindly.

'He is Mr. Loyd,' said the child, as soon as she could speak.

The warden looked at the jailor.

'Loyd—there are three Loyds here—Jim, Bondy and Dick,' said the jailor.

'They may not be their proper names,' responded the warden.

'That's so,' said the jailor, 'but I can try 'em all. Little one, was your father's name Jim?'

The child nodded her head, or they thought she did; she was all convulsed by the reaction brought on by the termination of her journey.

'If it's Jim, he's a bad one,' said the jailor, in a low voice; he's in irons this morning, for tempting to break jail; he don't deserve a little gal as looks like that one, the villain. Come, child, I'll go and find your father.'

He took Katie's shaking hand; with the other she dashed the tears away as fast as they fell. It frightened her almost to calmness to see the ponderous door at which the jailor applied the great key and the stillness of the long stone passages; the dimness thrown over all; the constant succession of iron bars and the bleak, black walls was terrible to a sensitive mind like hers. How the heavy tread of the jailor, and the tread of the warden behind him, echoed through the gloom and the space! It was, in truth, a great tomb through which they moved—a tomb in which were confined living hearts, whose throb could almost be heard in the awful stillness. On, on they went now, through the passageway. Everything spoke of crime, of fierce passions subdued and held in stern control—everything, from the grim face of the ferocious watch dog to the sentinels armed.

Then they turned and went up the stairs, the jailor holding the scared bird close to his side with a tender clasp, the warden following. Another tramp, and then they come to a stand-still. The jailor rapped at a cell door. Slowly the figure of a man, with a harsh, hair-covered face, appeared.

'Here's your little girl come to see you,' said the jailor.

'Little gal! hem, you're green,' said the man, in glum accents. 'I've got no little girl, or you wouldn't catch me here.'

'Father,' said the childish voice.

It sounded so sweet, so childish, in that terrible prison. But, as the scowling face came closer to the bars, the child hid her head quickly in the jailor's arm, half-sobbing; it wasn't him.

'We'll try the next one.'

He walked further on, and spoke more pleasantly this time.

'Well, Bondy, here is little Katie; don't you want to see her?'

'Little Katie—' There was a long pause. 'I had a Katie once—not a little Katie; I broke her heart—God pity me! Go on, it can't be for me!'

Again the sweet voice rang out, 'Father!'

The prisoner came up close to the bars; a youthful face, framed with light wavy hair—a face in which the blue eyes looked innocent—a face that it seemed a sin to couple with a foul deed, gazed out. It saw the child's earnest, tearful eyes, a dark expression rolled like a wave across his brow; a groan came up from his bosom, and, with a loud moan, he staggered against his bed, crying:

'Take her away! I can't bear to look on anything as pure as that.'

Katie had hidden her face a second time, as she feebly cried, 'It isn't him!' So they kept on to the third cell.

'Jim, here's a little girl—little Katie—your daughter—wants to see you.'

A stupid 'What!' came from the bed; the man had probably just awakened.

'Your little daughter!'

There was a sound of rattling irons that made the girl shiver. Dimly appeared the face and outlines of a well-made man—the countenance handsome but evil. He seemed not to comprehend. But as fast as his chains would permit him, he came forward and looked out at the anxious face below.

With a loud, convulsive cry, she exclaimed, 'Father! father!' and fell nearly senseless against the jailor.

'Katie!' exclaimed the man; and there was a nervous twitching about the muscles of the mouth; 'whatever has brought you here?'

The jailor was calling the child to consciousness.

'Shall we let her come into the cell?' asked the warden.

Jim was dashing his hand across his face. A smothered 'Yes' issued from his lips. They opened the ponderous door and put the child within. Her arms were outstretched, his were wide open, and they came together with a clanking sound—together about the form of that poor little child.

'Oh, father!' 'Oh, Katie, Katie!' and then there was a quiet crying.

By-and-by the man lifted the little head, whose glossy curls were falling on his shoulder—and oh! what a sharp rattle of the chain smote on the ear—and looked in her face.

After a moment's irresolution he kissed her, and then his head fell under her earnest, loving look.

'Katie, what made you come?'

'Wanted to see you, father,' and the head was on his shoulder again.

'How did you come, Katie?—never mind the noise, they are locking up; they will be here again and let you out. How did you come, Katie?'

'I walked here.'

'From New York, child?'

'Yes, father.'

There was no sound, save that of the chains, as he strained her closer to his bosom.

'And how did you leave—her, Katie—your mother?'

The question was fearfully asked, but not responded to. He gazed eagerly in the child's face; her little lip was quivering.

'Katie, tell me quick!'

'She died, father.'

A groan, a terrible groan followed; the victim's head fell in the lap of his child, and he wept with strong cries.

The jailor and the warden said that they never saw a sight so woeful. And the child tried to comfort him, till his strength seemed to be gone and his sobs were like gasps.

'Oh, Katie, when did she die? Oh, my poor May! my poor girl!'

'Ever so long ago, I think; ever so many weeks,' replied the girl; 'but she told me to come and see you and comfort you.'

'Oh, this is hard, very hard; she always forgave me.'

'She told me to pray for you, too; and told me to ask you would you be real good when you came out, and meet her in heaven?'

'In heaven! I in heaven!' groaned the man, giving way in his agony.

The child was angel guided. And this soft touch was better for his souls's good than the stripes and the chains. He had been hardened; her little love had melted down the adamant; had found the locked-up good of his nature, and she had sent her sweet smiles through its prison door. Long he sat there, his head in the lap of his beautiful, quiet child. None dared disturb him; jailor and warden walked to and fro.

'Father, when you come out, I'll take care of you.'

He lifted his head; his eyes, red with weeping, were fastened on her face.

'Mother said I might.'

'God's blessing on you, my precious child; you may save your miserable father.'

'I will, father.'

The warden cleared his throat; the jailor spoke roughly to one of the prisoners; it was to hide his emotion. 'You had better come now,' he added, going to the cell.

'Katie, you must go; will you come again, my child?'

'Can't I stay, father?'

'No, dear; but you shall come again, my child.'

They took her gently from the dark cell; she sobbed very quietly.

In the warden's room stood a pleasant-faced man.

'I have come after that little girl,' he said. 'She must go home with me. I'll take care of her; I've heard her story, and when her father comes out, if he's a mind to behave himself, I'll give him plenty to do. Besides that, I'll bring her up once a week to see him. What say you, little one, will you go with me?' and good old Mr. Maywood stroked her hair, as he said, pityingly, 'Poor child! poor child!'

Ten miles from Sing Sing prison there is now a little cottage occupied by an industrious man and his one daughter. Little Katie is fulfilling the commands of her dying mother. She is taking care of her father, and he, by God's grace, is taking care of himself. Men respect him, and God has graciously forgiven him.

LEATHEROID.

A new article called leatheroid is being manufactured from paper, which promises to be of great utility. It consists of a number of thicknesses of cotton paper wound upon one another over a cylinder. The remarkable qualities of strength and adhesion it possesses are derived from a chemical bath, through which the paper is drawn on its way to the cylinder. The effect of the chemical bath on the paper is wonderful. Leatheroid, for the purposes it now serves, consists of about twenty thicknesses of paper; it is shaped upon or around moulds, when wet, into the form it is to represent, and will hold that form perpetually when dry. When dried it is as difficult as raw hide to cut with a knife. A company has been formed at Kennebunk, Me., for the manufacture of this article, and will at once build a large mill there for that purpose. This company is making, for introduction into the mills, roving pans, boxes, etc., to take the place of tin cans and wooden boxes. Cans made from this material are about one-fourth the weight of tin cans of equal size; while tin cans are liable to get bent, cans made from leatheroid are entirely free from this objection. They have the elasticity of thin steel, and no amount of kicking or handling will break them. Orders have already been received from several large mills for their roving cans and boxes, which are made seamless. This substance is also made for covering pulleys to a large extent, making one of the smoothest and most lasting coverings which can be obtained.—Paper World.

The president of the recent distillers' congress said in his address to the assembly that 'the greatest danger that threatened the whisky business lay in the growing public sentiment that holds every manufacturer of and dealer in spirits to be an enemy of the human race.'

An Austin young man was seen coming hurriedly out of a business house, which he had entered to solicit employment as a salesman. 'Did the boss engage you as a salesman?' 'No; he wanted me to travel,' was the ambiguous reply.

Two ladies contended for precedence at the court of the Emperor Charles V., and appealed to that monarch to decide the matter. 'Let the oldest go first,' said the monarch. He was never troubled with such a dispute again.

Dinna Ask Me.

O, dinna ask me gin I lo'e ye;
Troth, I daurna tell!
Dinna ask me gin I lo'e ye—
Ask it o' yoursel'.

O, dinna look sae sair at me,
For well ye ken me true;
O, gin ye look sae sair at me,
I daurna look at you.

When ye gant to you braw braw town,
And bonnie lasses see,
O, dinna, Jamie, look at them,
Lest ye should mind na me.

For I could never bide the lass
That ye'd lo'e mair than me;
And O, I'm sure my heart wad brak,
Gin ye'd prove fause to me!

VACATION NOTES.

Correspondence of the JOURNAL.

It was on the second day of August that my wife and I set out for our days of rest, and were joined at South Vernon by Herbert and wife, their two boys and a young man from Amherst College. The journey, as mapped out, was accomplished Thursday afternoon, and as there had been a shower that day, thus making it unpleasant to set up camp, we stopped all night at "Weary Men's Rest," with Uncle Tom.

At four o'clock next morning the ax might have been heard as it obeyed our will in chopping up spruce trees into logs eight and twelve feet long, for walls to our camps. By the time the sun had reached its meridian height our three tents were erected, and we gladly heeded the voices of the ladies calling us from labor to refreshment. Dinner being over and the dishes washed, for men wash dishes in the woods, we boughed our beds, prepared wood for the camp-fire, and when evening came felt quite well settled in our new home. Many think because one speaks of camping out, he is "roughing it;" but not so necessarily, for, with a little expense and forethought, one may have all the comforts of home, with many other blessings that locked-up denizens of the city can only wish for.

Among the pleasant things of camping out, let me speak of the camp-fire and bough bed, for both are indispensable to one's comfort and happiness. Wood being plenty, we selected the yellow birch chiefly, and permitted our fire to burn all night without any fear of sparks lighting on our tents. We read in the good Book of a place where "the inhabitants thereof need not the light of a candle," and it was even so with us, for the camp-fire gave us all our light. From previous experiences I learned, however, that the camp-fire was not the best thing to cook by, and, therefore, made a sheet-iron stove, 12x22, with telescope pipe, which can be taken apart and folded into a small package by any one in ten minutes, and which proved to be a grand insitution for frying flip-flops, trout and venison, to say nothing of the many shower baths it saved us from during the eleven days of rainy weather.

Another has well said, "The greater part of our misery in this world is caused by our yearning for something better." It is even so, for one is not always content to stand for an hour up to his waist in a trout stream, although the trout are taking hold, and, as a result, he has sixty-two of the spotted fellows to take into camp, as Benjamin did; but he longs for the camp-fire, where he can dry his trousers, and the bough bed, where he can rest his trout-fevered brow. Perhaps some may not know what the trout fever is. It is unknown to the medical fraternity, especially in this part of Western Massachusetts, and many of them call it something else. But the trout fever is brought on by the sudden jerk of a fifteen-inch trout on your little half-pound fly-rod, and it keeps you at your wits' ends reeling your line in and then out, before it allows you to put your hand on him. One would naturally suppose that the fish in the creel would check the fever, the same as the root of the tooth laid in the hand stops the toothache; but alas! the fact that one has been taken raises the belief that others will be, and thus it is kept up long after you cease fishing, for the whole thing must be gone through with again during the evening, as you sit around the camp-fire; and thus the bough bed, with its balsamic fragrance, quiets the nerves and checks the fever.

It may be that some do not know what a bough bed is, for there are few who know how to make one; so I will tell you. Raise your bed from the ground by means of small trees, any height you choose for convenience; then take the topmost branches from a thrifty-growing fir-tree, and using only the tips of those branches place them in your bed, the points downward, so they will resemble the feathers on a hen's back. The more you put on, the easier the bed, of course. Now spread on your blankets, and there, free from the discordant combination of cats comets and curs, with your troubles all laid aside at the feet of nature, you can lay yourself down and sleep as long as you please.

In camping out, the gloss of pretense is rubbed off; fashion becomes demoralized, and style is paralyzed. There are no new clothes to brush; no "biled shirts," with stove-pipe band around your wrists and neck; no plug hats, but hats well plugged; together with unrestrained freedom and an unbroken quietude of mind.

Thus did Herbert, Benjamin and I, together with our families, spend three eventful weeks in the wilderness, five miles from any family, save Uncle Tom's log cabin. Like boys we roamed and revelled in the wildwood; rowed, swam, fished, and shot deer in the lake; gained stores of strength and health from the clear, balsamic air, the pure spring water, and our close contact with nature primeval, until our eyes sparkled and our cheeks glowed by the stimulus begotten; our chests expanded with strength, and our hands and faces changed to brick color, all telling of health and vigor; and Ben's nose, especially—poor thing—brightened and shone, like the danger signal on a locomotive.

RESIDENT.

Thus far 1882 has been an extraordinary year for fires. The estimated losses in the United States for the eight months foot up more than $61,000,000, or $7,000,000 more than the average for four years.

An æsthetic Philadelphia young woman, who is in deep mourning, complains of the brilliant hue of the postage stamps which she is obliged to put upon her heavily bordered envelopes.

There is no torture that a woman would not endure to enhance her beauty.

A ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

Before the war Robert Stafford, a millionaire planter, owned two islands off the coast of Georgia which were noted for the superior cotton they produced, the famous Sea Island variety. On the larger of the two islands Mr. Stafford lived. He fell in love with a creole girl who was one of his slaves, and married her. She was educated and refined in manners. Six children were the fruit of their marriage. Two boys died in their youth. Just before the breaking out of the war, Stafford, who noted the gathering cloud, came North and built a magnificent dwelling among the pastures a few miles north of Groton, Ct., on the swelling bank of the Thames river. Then he returned to the South, and thence sent his wife and daughters to the Northern home. Here they were surrounded by every luxury. The interior of the house was very fine and the grounds were a triumph of the gardener's skill. The advent of the beautiful girls in New London and Groton was an event that is still fresh in the memory of Connecticut society.

The girls received a fashionable Northern education. Private tutors taught them French, Italian, music, painting, and the arts of the ball room. They were reared in the most pretentious society, and suitors were not a few. One sister married Fred Palmer of New London. The union was not a happy one, and a separation soon followed. Another sister was wedded to Commodore Brady of New York. The honeymoon was passed in Paris, where the bride shone as a society star for a few months. Soon afterward the couple were divorced. The youngest sister was married to a New York gentleman, and is living happily with her husband. Adelaide, another sister, has lived during the past eight years in Paris. A few months ago she met Count Cybulski, who is connected with the diplomatic service of Russia, and about a month ago she became his wife, the nuptials being celebrated in the Church of Notre Dame. She sent wedding cards to her friends in Groton and New London, dainty pieces of pasteboard, perfumed, adorned with the regal coronet, and bearing the words in Italian, 'Countess Cybulski, Paris.' The young wife is described as tall, lithe, graceful, with olive-tinted skin and lustrous eyes. The count is little, old, withered and bent, with a whisk of yellow beard. He has taken his wife to live in the most elegant quarter of Paris.

Robert Stafford was loyal to the Union. At one time the troops of Gen. Joe Hawley, the 7th Connecticut regiment, were quartered on his plantation. He passed his summers in the North from 1867 to the year of his death, 1878. He bought property in New London and Norwich, which the heirs still hold. He left a will by which $400,000 was divided equally among the daughters, while the bulk of the property, several million dollars, was divided among distant relatives. The great mansion that he built in Groton remains in treeless and isolated grandeur among the bleak pasture lands, and every tourist that journeys up the Thames valley inquires, 'Who is the owner of that splendid place?' It is many years since a daughter of the creole slave of the Georgian islands has revisited the mansion.

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT SOCIETIES.

An institution to be found in many of our New England villages, and which is gradually multiplying, is the Village Improvement Society, an institution which deserves all the encouragement that can be given to it. The places where it exists will be found to-day to be very different places from what they were before the institution was established. The evidences of its activity may be seen on the highways, in the cemeteries and on the great open space generally found in all country villages and known as the common. Neat lamp posts, surmounted by lamps well cared for, have been placed in front of the church and the village hall, and perhaps along some of the principal roads; the pedestrian finds a good, hard sidewalk to travel upon, instead of the dusty roadway, which is generally the best he finds ordinarily in the country; a neat railing surrounds the common, which is traversed by smooth paths and ornamented, perhaps, by some beds of flowering plants or groups of handsome shrubs; and in the cemetery, too often a neglected wilderness of weeds and half-wrecked monuments, the visitor finds order, neatness and beauty giving testimony to the respect of the living for the last resting place of the dead. There is a cheerful, wide-awake aspect in everything. The homes of the people share in the neatness and prettiness characterizing the public places, and the observer receives an impression from his surroundings which affords a pleasurable anticipation of his intercourse with the inhabitants of the place. The anticipation is verified, for in improving their outward surroundings the people have improved themselves, and one does not find among them those 'country manners' which city folks are apt to look for almost everywhere outside of metropolitan limits. Refinement and culture dwell in little places, as well as in large ones, and in many places they are being fostered and developed by these village improvement societies, which bring the people together, elevate their tastes, promote a love for the beautiful, and lift the people out of the ruts in which they have followed their primitive ancestors without a thought as to getting more out of life than mere subsistence.—Boston Journal.

The obliging visitor, to show that he is really fond of children, and that the dear little one is not annoying him in the least, treats the kid to a ride upon his knee.

'Trot! trot! trot! How do you like that, my boy? Is that nice?'

'Yes, sir,' replies the child, 'but not so nice as on the real donkey—the one with four legs!'

'Going to visit any watering place this season?' inquired Spugglefoot of Lon Dineeefer, the other morning.

'Watering place!' replied Lon, in a tone of surprise; 'well, not if the supreme court has correctly diagnosed its condition. If you know of some first-class whiskying place, it might hold out some inducements.'

'Yes,' said the affectionate mother, 'the first year of my daughter's marriage I thought her husband an angel, and I'm sure that every year since I've wished he was one.'

We shall be perfectly virtuous when there is no longer any flesh on our bones.

A man may learn infidelity from books and from men, but never from nature.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1882.

THE AGRICULTURAL FAIR.

The thirtieth annual exhibition of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society, which occurred at Palmer this week, marked another successful step in the progressive record of this society. With better cattle than ever before and more of them, better horses and colts, the brightest weather, and a liberal patronage on both days, the fair certainly ought to have been a success—and it was.

FIRST DAY.

Tuesday was a singeing hot day. We have had few warmer the past summer, and men and women, cattle, sheep and swine puffed, panted and sweltered in a most uncomfortable manner, the day seeming the hotter for the cool weather which had preceded it.

Old exhibitors say that the display of stock this year surpassed anything in the past history of the society. In steers, especially, there was a splendid showing. J. S. Loomis's four-year-olds "took the cake" in build, match and general good points. Other noticeable pairs were E. Carpenter & Son's four and three-year-olds, J. M. Tucker's grade Herefords, E. F. Henshaw's Swiss and Durhams, and others belonging to O. A. Davis, J. M. White and the town of Monson. A pair of fat oxen belonging to the town of Monson were also on the ground, six years old and weighing 3800 pounds. D. Morgan & Son exhibited a good yoke of Herefords, eight years old, and W. O. Cadwell of Monson showed a fine large pair of cattle, five years old, strong and well built.

H. A. Rindge of Monson led again this year, as he did last, in miscellaneous herds. He had 36 head on exhibition, including 18 milch cows. Next came the State Primary School, with its herd numbering 32. Luther Crawford of New Braintree had 19 head on the grounds. Among them were some handsome Jerseys, including "Mollie," six years old, who gave 50 pounds of milk a day in June, and for eight days made two pounds of butter a day. She took the sweepstake premium at Sturbridge over all competitors for milk. W. A. Childs, also of New Braintree, brought down a herd of 18, mostly grade Ayrshires. His Ayrshire bull, "Phil Sheridan," took the first premium at Worcester, as did also his cow, "Belle of Brookside," which weighs 1410 pounds, and is giving 50 pounds of milk a day. Charles Robinson of Barre made a good showing of Holsteins, including a fine bull two-and-a-quarter years old, and a cow which has at one time given 60 pounds of milk a day for three months. Mr. Robinson took five first and two second premiums at Worcester. C. E. Dewey exhibited his Jersey breeding cow, "Nannette," No. 4496, and calf, "Goody Giles," five months old. E. P. Keep of Monson, and O. A. Davis and E. F. Henshaw of West Brookfield had Swiss bulls on the ground, and J. K. Knox showed a couple of good-looking Jerseys.

The exhibition of sheep was very fair, considering the fact that it is never large. C. Robinson of Barre exhibited a flock of Cotswold and Shrepshires, C. Upham some grade Southdowns, and H. A. Rindge and J. K. Knox also had flocks in the pens. The Lincoln buck, weighing 300 pounds, and belonging to the State agricultural society for promoting agriculture, attracted considerable attention.

In the pork line there was a good showing of Poland Chinas by J. K. Knox and Luther Crawford, Berkshires by the State Primary School, and Chesters by G. E. & W. M. Tucker.

On the poultry bench were some fine looking Plymouth Rocks, exhibited by Rev. O. R. Hunt; some Brahmas shown by A. L. Haynes, geese and turkeys by A. P. Capen, turtle and carrier doves by M. Fox, Leghorns by G. E. & W. M. Tucker, and game fowls by G. A. Holcomb.

The recommendation of last year's committee that the stones be cleared from a piece of ground to the depth of ten inches has not been carried out yet, and in the morning plowing match the contestants found them more plentiful than desirable for good work. An exhibition was made of a sulky plow, which does good work on land that is adapted to it.

The trained steers, of which there were four entries, went through their performances in a very commendable manner, to the apparent satisfaction of the numerous spectators.

There were two races in the afternoon—the double team and the three minute classes. In the double team race there were three entries, but Bass's pair were drawn after the first heat, one of his horses being in the other race. Reynolds's pair were altogether "too many" for the team driven by Robbins—and for their own driver, as well. In the second and third heats he lost all control over them, and they made about three-quarters of each heat on a dead run, thus losing the race. The score was as follows:

C. H. Robbins, Monson, "Nassowanno Boys".....	3	1	1
R. M. Reynolds, Monson, "Robt. B. Thomas" and mate..	1	2	2
E. D. Bass, Palmer, "Buckskin" and mate.....	2	dr.

Time: 2.43, 3.35, 3.26.

There was some good trotting and close work in the three minute race, and it was nearly dark when it was finished. "Propeller" lost a shoe in the fourth heat, and there was an effort made by some of the drivers to have the judges postpone the remaining heats until the next morning, but they refused to do so, and after some delay a blacksmith was found to replace the shoe. The result of the race is shown by the following score:

Wm. Sherman, Palmer, "Kittie".....	1	1	2	2	1
E. D. Bass, Palmer, "Deceit".....	3	2	3	1	2
S. D. Richards, Springfield, "Propeller"	2	3	1	5	5
Jos. Thompson, Palmer, "Nettie".....	4	4	5	3	3
C. A. Sweetser, Holyoke, 'Lady Wassum'	5	5	4	4	4

Time: 2. 50, 2.51, 2.52, 2.51, 2.50.

The judges for the day's races were A. J. Northrop, F. J. Wassum and R. L. Goddard.

IN THE HALL.

Contrary to general expectation, the display of vegetables in the lower room this year was really very excellent; not as extensive as some years, but of good quality, showing that the drouth did not spoil the crops on all the farms around us. In spite of bugs and drouth there were some fine potatoes in the hall, among the more noticeable being a basket of Clark's No. 1 exhibited by E. M. Orcutt, some Mammoth Pearl and Beauty of Hebrons by R. J. Tufts of Monson, White Stars by Daniel Graves, and Burbank Seedlings by the State Primary School. A fine basket of tomatoes was shown by the State Primary School, which also exhibited beets, carrots, onions, etc., of first quality. E. F. Henshaw of West Brookfield showed some curious looking potatoes which he called Golden Sweets. J. D. Bradway of Monson exhibited some well-filled and matured yellow seed corn, and a good showing of winter squashes was made by E. N. Fisher of Belchertown and C. Upham of Palmer. A bag of Gold Medal wheat, of excellent quality, was exhibited by A. P. Capen of Belchertown. There was but one entry of cabbages, by E. M. Walker of Belchertown, and none of pumpkins. The basket of handsome long-eared corn, with small cob and large kernel, was contributed by Hardin Hunt.

Thirty varieties of apples were shown by A. P. Capen of Belchertown, the same number by W. N. Flynt of Monson, 22 by F. D. Orcutt, and 17 by Josiah Stebbins of Brimfield. A. B. Howard of Belchertown had a large display, as usual, embracing 45 varieties of apples and pears. E. M. Walker of Monson showed 16 varieties of apples, 9 of pears and 5 of grapes, and Mrs. J. D. Blanchard of Palmer 10 varieties of apples, 5 of pears and three of grapes. The four baskets of handsome plums came from the trees of Mrs. Julia A. Scism of Palmer. No peaches were to be seen.

The only exhibitor of canned fruit was Mrs. J. H. Keith, who showed 10 varieties of the article. There were two exhibitors of jelly and the same of honey. There was quite a good display of bread and cake, but only 3 lots of butter and four cheeses were to be seen.

Flowers were present in good abundance. Mrs. J. H. Keith exhibited 8 kinds of pot plants, and Miss Josie L. Fay also had a good collection. Mrs. E. M. Orcutt was on hand, as usual, with a varied collection of cut flowers and bouquets. A large and handsome pin cushion cactus was the contribution of Mrs. E. G. Smith of Monson. Among the flowers, and making the room musical with their notes, were a couple of cages of birds from Mrs. L. C. White. A cage of white rats and another of squirrels attracted considerable attention.

The first impression on entering the upper hall was that the exhibition of fancy articles, etc., was pretty slim. The entries, indeed, were hardly half as numerous as last year, but an examination showed that the quality of the work was above even that of last year, which was such an improvement over the previous one. There were few paintings in the room. Mrs. C. E. W. Buss exhibited a fine crayon picture, and Miss Mary P. Dewey some pretty placques. Mrs. Jennie Carpenter showed some handsome lace pillow shams with painted silk panels in center. Mrs. E. L. Davis showed some nice needlework and specimens of stamping; Misses Anna Brown and Ida Smith and Mrs. Wilson Brainard handsome carriage afghans; Mrs. E. C. Sexton, a Kensington panel; Mrs. Esther R. Holmes, Monson, applique table cover; Mrs. J. D. Blanchard, table spreads of novel design; Effie Shaw, painted ribbons, shell, etc.; Mrs. C. D. Holbrook, decorated wall screens; Mrs. E. J. Orcutt, 71 years old, a lace fichu, her own work; Carrie E. Ellis, lace shams and tidy; and others "too numerous to mention." Loomis Bros. exhibited a couple of handsome carved chamber sets, one of black walnut and the other ash; C. C. & E. M. Gibbons, and W. R. Milligan, each showed specimens from their stocks of shoes, and A. E. Park had an attractive display of crockery and lamps. The committee on fancy articles express the hope that hereafter persons will enter only articles of their own workmanship, and not put in their presents, as has been done in some cases.

SECOND DAY.

The sun came out again in scorching power Wednesday morning, but was sufficiently hidden by the clouds in the afternoon to make that part of the day, at least, very comfortable, for both man and beast. If the exhibition of stock on Tuesday was good, that of horses on Wednesday was no less so. Our farmers are seeking more and more for "the best," not only in the cattle kind, but also in horse flesh, and the result is seen in the steadily-improving grade of horses brought out at these annual fairs. The Hambletonians are the favorite breed hereabouts, although a variety of other blood is to be found. Luther Crawford's handsome Morrill mare, with foal, easily took the first premium, J. H. Woolrich's mare and bright colt getting the second. Some fine colts were shown, noticeable among them being Charles Upham's and O. M. Graves's three-year-olds and George W. Ely's two-year-old. Mr. Crawford's three-year-old stallion was much admired for his symmetrical proportions and good style, while Geo. A. Griffin's stallion of the same age showed good muscular power. Griffin's pair of draft horses handled the loaded wagon in good shape and with little difficulty, as also did J. F. Holbrook's pretty Normans. There was no entry in the members' trotting class. The list of gentlemen's driving horses was well filled, both in pairs and single, and they did some pretty work in going around the track.

The afternoon races, of course, drew the crowd, and they were better races than are usually seen on this track, many of the horses being very evenly matched. There were six entries in the 2.45 class. "Propeller" took the first two heats, and came in ahead on the third, but was set back for running, some of the other horses also being put back for the same cause. The two remaining heats were taken by "Kate Harris" in good shape and with little effort. In the 2.30 class "Hersey" was the favorite with many in this vicinity, being an old Palmer horse, and he did some fine trotting, with few breaks, winning the race in three straight heats. The scores of the two races are as follows:

2.45 CLASS.

H. H. Carter, Holyoke, "Kate Harris"...	2	3	1	1
S. D. Richards, Springfield, "Propeller"	1	1	3	2	2
E. D. Bass, Palmer, "Skyball".....	6	6	2	5	3
C. H. Hatfield, Chicopee, "Surprise"...	4	2	4	4	5
Jos. Goddard, Brookfield, "Siphon"...	3	5	5	3	4
J. G. Stevens, Barre, "Morrill Boy".....	5	4	6	6	d

Time: 2.42, 2.41½, 2.44¼, 2.44¼, 2.45.

2.30 CLASS.

C. E. Tanner, Palmer, "Hersey".....	1	1	1
C. A. Sweetser, Holyoke, "Brown Johnny"	2	3	2
Jos. Goddard, Brookfield, "Dick B".....	3	2	3

Time: 2.37½, 2.36, 2.41.

C. A. Sweetser entered a protest against "Dick B" after the third heat in the 2.30 class, claiming that he was trotting under an assumed name, and had a faster record than 2.30. The judges in the races were Andrew Holt, R. L. Goddard and Wm. Holbrook.

LOCAL NOTICES.

New lot 5-cent music just in. Largest assortment ever exhibited in town. E. J. Wood.

Regular communication of Thomas Lodge, F. and A. M., Monday evening, Sept. 25, at which time the R. W. D. D. G. M., J. M. Cochran will make his annual official visit. Per order W. M.

C. W. CROSS, Sec.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Hard colds are prevailing.

J. S. Loomis is building a new carriage house in the rear of his residence.

The Palmer Democrats sent no delegates to their State convention this week.

There is to be a special meeting of the library association next Thursday evening.

The village schools closed Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, so the scholars could attend the fair.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Thorndike will preach at the Baptist church to-morrow morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. O. R. Hunt.

J. M. Cochran of Southbridge, D. D. G. M. of the 18th Masonic district, will make the annual official visit to Thomas Lodge next Monday evening.

Is it an economical way of doing business to cover the Main street sewer traps with dirt, and then have to dig down to them to build them up to the new grade?

Seventy-five excursion tickets to the bicycle races in Springfield were sold at this station on Wednesday, and all who attended were delighted with the exhibition.

There was a full attendance at the meeting of the Eastern Hampden Medical Association with Dr. Stowe on Thursday, and an interesting essay was read by Dr. Ballard of Hampden.

The skating rink at Wales Hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings was well attended, especially on the last evening, when about a hundred were on the rollers. Music was furnished by the Boston Duck Cornet Band, and a good time enjoyed by all.

The man who entered a grocery store in this village a day or two since and inquired for some "wet" ribbon to tie up a girl's hair with, finally made up his mind that it was watered ribbon that he wanted. He had probably been wetting up a little, but not with water.

A young man apparently anxious to display his skill in handling the reins over a pair of horses turned a short circle on Main street, Tuesday, with his horses on a rapid trot. He did it very handsomely, but will have to put a new wheel on his buggy before repeating the experiment.

Loomis Brothers have something to say in another column about their stock of furniture. In their warerooms on South Main street may be seen a large and choice assortment of all kinds, which they propose to sell at prices as low as the lowest for the same quality of goods. Look in and see them.

The directors and officers of the Boston & Albany Railroad have made their annual tour of examination over the road this week, and spent Wednesday night at the Weeks House. They ride mostly in an open car, and are accompanied by Dudley's dynagraph car, which shows the exact condition of the road-bed.

There was a collision of freight trains at Brookfield yesterday forenoon, one train running into the rear of another, as it was backing on a curve. The caboose and forward end of the engine were smashed, and two cars derailed, bnt nobody hurt. The 11.04 express west was delayed over an hour.

The gravel taken from the excavation for Mr. Strong's new block adjoining the Nassowanno House is being spread on Main street, from Central street west, raising the grade a portion of the way nearly a foot. Some of it is needed, but it looks as though the street was being raised all it will bear, certainly.

We are now sampling those 30 varieties of apples exhibited at the fair by W. N. Flynt of Monson. It is a little confusing to sit down and eat thirty different kinds at one sitting, but our thanks are due him for the opportunity, and we are making the best of it. When through with them, we expect to be competent to sample an almost unlimited amount and variety.

The proposition to close the stores at 8 o'clock p. m. through the winter, except on Saturday nights and holiday week, seems likely to fall through, because of the refusal of one merchant to sign the agreement. This is the same man who has blocked previous attempts of this kind in the same way, and it is not strange that his brother merchants and their clerks are a good deal provoked at his selfish course.

The modoc train going east last Monday morning was thrown from the track about a mile west of Rochdale, by a rail which had been placed on the track. Engineer King was thrown through the window, and considerably injured in the back. The fireman and one brakeman were also somewhat injured, but the passengers escaped harm. The locomotive and five cars were derailed, and traffic was suspended for a few hours by the blocking of the track. A man named Charles S. Lawrence has been arrested on suspicion.

A little three-year-old went to church in this village last Sunday, for the first time. Everything was of course new and strange to him, and his eyes were wide open with mingled awe and wonder, until the organ pealed forth the notes of the opening voluntary. That seemed to have a familiar sound to him. Immediately his eyes brightened, and after looking expectantly at the organist and his surroundings for a moment or two, he turned to his aunt, and anxiously inquired: "Aunt Susie, where's the monkey? When is he coming in?"

Main's International Show is advertised to exhibit in Palmer next Thursday, with its Royal English gymnasium of 25 performers, Denier's Humpty Dumpty troupe, a school of performing horses, ponies and dogs, Morgan's comedy company, etc. This company has exhibited for four seasons in Ohio and Pennsylvania with great success, and claims to be the only show in America that has no gambling connected with it. At 1 p. m. "Little Venus" will ascend a wire from the ground to the top of the center pole, for the free entertainment of all comers.

The discovery of an old iron rod driven into the ground below the surface near the sewer entrance by J. B. Shaw's store, on Thursday, created quite a little stir, as it seemed to indicate the original boundary between the land now owned by John Feeney and Mr. Strong's property adjoining. The rod is some six feet inside the line as claimed by Mr. Strong, and it is understood that Mr. Feeney has always held that his land extended to just about that point. The changing of the line would cut off quite a slice from Mr. Strong's proposed new block, and steps will doubtless be soon taken to determine the boundary beyond question.

Just four persons responded last Monday night to the call for a meeting of the improvement association and of citizens interested in its work. It was a somewhat inauspicious night for the meeting, on the eve of the cattle show and the political conventions, but nevertheless the wretchedly slim attendance does not argue well for the interest our citizens feel in the subject of village improvement, and it is not strange that the officers of the association are somewhat discouraged. Another attempt will probably be made next month to get our citizens together, and it is to be hoped that it may be successful.

Flexus Waid of Ludlow was before the district court last Saturday for being a common drunkard, and was sentenced to two years in the workhouse at Bridgewater. He appealed, but could not furnish $300 bail, and was committed to the house of correction. On Monday the case of Herbert F. Cady, for liquor selling, was continued two weeks. Special Justice Shaw on Wednesday sent Geo. Hartley to the house of correction, in default of $5.48 fine and costs for drunkenness. On Thursday Richard Everett paid $4.83 for drunkenness, and for disturbing the peace Morris Prindable paid $10.33, Edward Foster $7.83 and Adolphus Burnett $8.33. Foster also paid $6.13 for an assault upon Ed. King, who assisted the officer.

The Southbridge stage met with quite an accident Tuesday morning, while on its way to Palmer with thirteen inside passengers and eleven or twelve on the outside. Just as it reached the foot of the hill this side of Fiskdale one of the forward wheels came off, and the stage was capsized. The driver, E. Streeter, had his right leg broken below the knee, the bone protruding through the flesh an inch or more; one lady passenger had one of her shoulders considerably lamed, and another lost one or two teeth. The inside passengers were piled into a heap promiscuously, and the trunks and seats on the outside were mixed up with the people who had been sitting on them, in a way that made it seem remarkable that no more were injured. It was found that the nut which held on the wheel had dropped off a mile back from the scene of the accident. The stage was not seriously damaged, and it was fixed up and came on, a little behind time, though most of the passengers waited for another conveyance.

The Bishop men had things their own way at the Republican caucus last Saturday night, quite to the disgust of the few Crapo men present. George Robinson was chosen moderator, with Rev. C. H. Ricketts as secretary, and a committee of five, consisting of Hubbard Lawrence, S. S. Taft, C. Wilson, Dr. S. Ruggles and D. Milliken, was appointed to select a list of delegates to the State convention. They reported the names of George Robinson, C. Wilson and R. C. Newell—all Bishop men—which were accepted by the caucus. A proposition to take a rising vote to express the preference of the majority on the question of candidates for the governorship met with considerable opposition, but it was carried, and a call for those in favor of the nomination of Bishop brought some forty to their feet, while the eight or ten who kept their seats refused to stand and be counted for Crapo or "any other man." The following town committee was appointed: C. L. Gardner, H. E. W. Clark, W. W. Leach, J. I. Milliken, F. A. Packard.

STRAY FAIR NOTES.

The premiums will be paid the last of next month.

The rickety old judges' stand has survived one more year's strain. Now let it die in peace.

State Delegate E. C. Farnsworth of Templeton was on the grounds both days, and expressed himself as greatly pleased with the exhibition.

The total receipts for the two days were $747.12—some $65 more than last year. In addition to this sum $60 has been received for membership and grass.

The society ought to offer a good premium for walking horses. Fast walkers are not numerous, and more attention should be paid to this part of their training.

A flag staff near the center of the park, or on the fair building, with a flag floating gracefully from its summit during the fair, would look pretty well, wouldn't it?

A telephone connection between the fair building and the village would be a great convenience, and the society will perhaps put in one in season for the next exhibition.

One of our citizens bought three boxes of honey of an exhibitor, but one of them was stolen from the hall Wednesday afternoon. The purchaser felt grateful when he found that the thief had considerately left two of them behind.

That barrel of ice water by the ticket office was the best patronized institution on the grounds. Now give us an additional one, next year, near the judges' stand, to accommodate the crowds who gather at that end of the grounds.

The suggestion of the JOURNAL was taken up by W. B. Davis and P. M. Shearer, who ran a 'bus between the village and the fair grounds both days. They did a pretty good business, and would have done more had it been generally known that they were in the field.

When the society has completed its new fence, built a new judges' stand, and put in new seats for the spectators, it will have to consider the question of erecting sheds for sheltering the stock on exhibition. Such a hot day as Tuesday makes it pretty trying for stock of all kinds to be tied out in a burning sun.

The State Primary School children came down in force on Tuesday, and the boys gave an interesting exhibition of gymnastics. Four of them started on a five-mile race, but two CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

FROM MAJOR DOWNS, Military Instructor, Mt. Pleasant Academy, Sing Sing, N. Y.: During the very cold weather I was suffering with Catarrh. My head and throat ached so severely that I was obliged to give up everything and keep quiet. Ely's Cream Balm was suggested. Within an hour from the first application I felt relieved, the pain began to subside. In two days was entirely cured. W. A. DOWNS. Feb. 15, 1881.

A GENTLEMAN from Orwell, Pa., called my attention to Ely's Cream Balm as a remedy for Catarrh, Hay Fever, &c. He was so earnest in asserting it to be a positive cure (himself having been cured by it) that I purchased a stock. The Balm has already effected a number of cures. P. F. HYATT, Bordentown, N. J. 3

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

When the Frost is on the Punkin.

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouck and gobble of the strutt'n' turkey cock,
And the clackin' of the guineys and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence,
Oh, it's then the times a feller is a feelin' at his best,
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of gracious rest,
As he leaves the house bareheaded and goes out to feed the stock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

They's somepin kind o' hearty like about the atmosphere
When the heat o' summer's over and the coolin' fall is here.
Of course we miss the flowers and the blossom on the trees,
And the mumble of the humin' birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin', and the landscape through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the early autumn days
Is a picture that no painter has the colorin' to mock—
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

The husky, rusty rustle of the tossels of the corn,
And the raspin' of the tangled leaves as golden as the morn;
The stubble in the furries, kind o' lonesome like, but still
A preachin' sermons to us of the barns they growed to fill;
The straw-stack in the medder and the reaper in the shed,
The hosses in their stalls below, the clover overhead;
Oh, it sets my heart a clickin' like the tickin' of a clock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

MISDIRECTED LETTERS.

'We deem it our duty,' said Postmaster Pearson, to a recent inquirer concerning the methods used in the New York post-office, 'to help the public in every way possible, and to carry out the intentions of the sender of each letter, if it is possible to make it out. All sorts of errors constantly occur from carelessness, hurry, or ignorance. We have an expert busy all the time deciphering addresses which the distributing clerks, accustomed though they are to the work, are unable to make out. Frequently the name of the county is given and not the State, or the State and county are both missing. In that case, if a street is given, we have a book of streets, in which we try to find some clue. We have directories of all the large cities, and can sometimes add the correct address at once. When we get a letter addressed to John Brown, New York, there is nothing to do but keep it in hopes that John will apply for and identify it. In every case where there is any clue to the writer's intentions we send the letter.

In this morning's mail there were 2696 letter sent to the clerk who supplies correct addresses or deciphers indistinct ones. Here is a bundle of these letters as corrected: Where the error is simply writing 'Boston instead of 'Chicago,' or 'Philadelphia' instead of 'New York,' it is corrected at once, many of our clerks knowing the streets of those cities as well as they do those of this city. Here you see dozens of instances of such carelessness. Here is a letter addressed to 'John Smith, 2316 Chestnut street, Boston, Pa.' Evidently it is for Philadelphia, although there is probably a Boston in Pennsylvania, for in the 46,159 post-offices of the country the names of well-known towns occur many times. There are 13 Bostons, 4 New Yorks, 5 Chicagos, 7 Philadelphias, etc. Some addresses that would appear complete to most persons are seen by an expert to be incorrect. Here is a letter addressed to No. 416 Milk street in Portland, and sends it to Boston. Many of the addresses are meaningless to any but our clerks. Here are some samples: '—Castle, 3d Story, American Garden.' That man must have written home from the roof of Castle Garden. It is not much of an address, but in one corner, in small letters, is 'Pater,' and in another corner is 'sonne,' and so it goes to Paterson, N. J. Here is a letter which contains nothing legible but Tomkins Co., and that is spelled 'Tom Kynsco.' Here is an Italian letter addressed to 'Para Minha, Filha Felipa de Conseisas, America Coreio de Guipana.' It will go to Cape Ann. Of the 3696 imperfectly addressed letters received this morning, not more than half a dozen will be sent to the Dead Letter office as hopeless.'

The marvelous tide of emigration from Europe shows a steady increase. During the year ending June 30, no less that 789,000 foreigners sought a home in the United States. For the three fiscal years 1880, 1881 and 1882, the arrivals have amounted to 1,915,691, or nearly as many as the total for the eight years previous. This is more than enough to populate any one of the thirty-eight States of the Union, excepting Illinois, Missouri, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The family of the late Deacon Whitin, of Whitinsville, who left an unsigned will, are carrying out its provisions as if it had legal force. The Massachusetts Home Missionary Society has received $20,000, the permanent fund of the American Board $25,000, the Church Erection Society $8000, and the University of New Mexico $5000.

A law passed by the last Legislature of Massachusetts to prevent the sale of adulterated food and drugs went into effect Saturday, August 26. The enforcement of the law rests with the State Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity, who are given power to expend annually an amount not exceeding $3,000 in carrying out its provisions.

The $20,000 bequeathed in 1856 to Hartford, Conn., by John M. Niles, to be held till it had doubled, now amounts to $40,335, and the income will be used henceforth, in accordance with the terms of the bequest, to furnish poor families with fuel.

There are no taxes in New Castle, Del., for the support of the local government and schools, William Penn having endowed the town with land which now rents for enough to pay all the municipal expenses.

The output for the first six months of the present year of the Leadville mines was $7,775,720 against $6,519,257 for the corresponding period of last year.

WHEAT BITTERS.

THE BEST AND THE RICHEST

BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

CAREFULLY PREPARED,

THOROUGHLY TESTED,

ACCEPTABLE & RELIABLE

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuble food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to

BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation, but by solution, and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST!

GOOD SUCCESS TO THE

BOSTON SHOE STORE.

The season is again advancing, and the managers of the Boston Shoe Store are continually receiving new and desirable goods for Spring and Summer trade, and with the patronage given them are surely convincing their customers that the

BEST BOOTS AND SHOES ARE THE CHEAPEST

To buy. Their fine line of Spring goods will far exceed any season they met. They have put in stock a fine line of J. L. Joyce & Co's. Gent's Low and High Cut Side Lace Boots; for fit and style they cannot be equaled. They have a complete line of O. Kendall's Pegged and Sewed Boots, and can fit the broadest as well as the narrowest feet. For these special lines of goods they have the exclusive sale for this town. They have greatly increased their

WALL PAPER DEPARTMENT,

And are prepared to show one of the neatest selections that can be seen in town, as their goods are all new and from the best New England manufactories. In Lamps they have a nice line, and will sell low for cash.

They have also the agency for the

GENUINE

SINGER SEWING MACHINE,

which they will sell for cash or on time. They will also swap and take as part payment old machines. Have always on hand a full supply of MACHINE FINDINGS, such as Shuttles, Needles, Rubbers, &c., &c.

Thanking the public for past favors, and hoping to receive a continuance of the same,

We remain yours truly,

J. & W. EVANS,

Nassowanno Block, Main Street, Palmer.

BY UNIVERSAL ACCORD

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative pill that science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar coated they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

For sale by all druggists. 4

From the Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is at once a most annoying and very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Another striking case is now added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked for him. Toward the end of last January Mr. Lawler called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding him, the Dr. "struck one." He decided that Mr. Lawler should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb. 6," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorders of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1 a bottle. 26

DARBYS

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.

In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by
Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia;
Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York;
Jos. LeConte, Columbia, Prof., University, S. C.
Rev. A. J. Battle, Prof., Mercer University;
Rev. Geo. F. Pierce, Bishop M. E. Church.

INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME.

Perfectly harmless. Used internally or externally for man or beast.

The Fluid has been thoroughly tested, and we have abundant evidence that it has done everything here claimed. For fuller information get of your druggist a pamphlet, or send to the proprietors,

Say No.

You're starting to-day on life's journey
Along on the highway of life;
You'll meet with a thousand temptations,
Each city with evil is rife.
This world is a stage of excitement,
But there's danger wherever you go;
But if you are tempted in weakness,
Have the courage, my boy, to say No!

The Syren's sweet song may allure you;
Beware of her cunning and art;
Whenever you see her approaching,
Be guarded and haste to depart.
The billiard saloons are inviting,
Decked out in their tinsel and show;
You may be invited to enter,
Have courage, my boy, and say No!

The bright, ruby wine may be offered.
No matter how tempting it be,
From poisons that sting like an adder,
My boy, have courage to flee.
The gambling halls rise up before you,
Their lights how they dance to and fro,
If you would be tempted to enter,
Think twice, even thrice, ere you go.

In courage alone lies your safety,
When you the long journey begin,
And trust in a Heavenly Father
Will keep you unspotted from sin.
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from a rivulet flow,
But if you are true to your manhood,
Have the courage, my boy, to say No!

MOLLIE'S MATCH-MAKING.

A dainty parlor with numerous easy chairs—a glowing fire in the nickel-trimmed heater—a pretty little woman listening for the footsteps of her lord and master. This charming picture of domestic bliss Jack Ackerman fully appreciated, as he stepped into the room a few minutes later.

'Well, Mollie, what's the news?'

'Oh, nothing, only supper has been waiting half an hour. Come, let us hurry and eat; I want to talk with you.'

'I thought there was something on your mind; didn't know but I was going to get a lecture for being late.'

'You deserve one, for this is the last evening I shall speak with you for two whole weeks.'

Mrs. John Ackerman tried to frown, but failed completely.

In another half hour they were back in the parlor, and Mollie began:

'I think Tom is a fine fellow, and there were never two brothers more alike than you and he.'

'Thank you, my dear, I honor your judgment.'

'And John, I have the most brilliant plan concerning him.'

'Do tell!' said John with a movement toward his coat pocket, where the evening paper lay in uncut solitude.

Mollie observed the motion, and promptly informed him that he should not read a word until she was through talking.

'I am going away to-morrow, and then you may read the paper from the time you enter the house until midnight, with no one to bother you," she said.

Somehow the vision of the little parlor without Mollie's lively chatter, did not seem to strike very favorably; perhaps this was why he tossed the paper to the other side of the room, and then promised to listen. Mollie perched herself on one arm of his chair, and started:—

'You know my sister Amy is coming home with me for a long visit, and don't you think it would be splendid if she and Tom would fall in love with each other? They could marry and set up housekeeping in a cottage like this one across the street—it would make me so happy!'

John laughed long and heartily.

'Match-making, by Jove!' he said at last. 'Miserable yourself, and want everybody else to be; is that it, Mollie?'

'Don't laugh, John, for I am in earnest. I know they will like each other and I have set my heart on the match; just think how nice it would be to have Amy here, and Tom is such a darling!'

John was laughing again by this time, and it took considerable management to reduce him to order.

'I tell you what it is, Mollie, you don't want to say a word of this to Tom or Amy, or they will take a dislike to each other.'

'I know it,' replied Mollie. 'When I told Tom I was going to visit Aunt Hetty, I did not mention Amy's name and do not think he knows of her existence; as for Amy, I have been with her so little since I was married that I am sure I never spoke to her of Tom.'

'Well, see that you don't do so now; you couldn't mention his name without praising him to the skies, and she would see through your plans at once.'

Mollie departed next morning, leaving directions enough to distract a man if he remembered half of them.

'Don't have Tom at the house when we return. Amy will be tired with her journey, and I want her to have a chance to beautify a little before she meets him.'

When she reached the depot, Mollie's courage began to fail.

'I am almost sorry to go, John,' she said. 'Suppose something should happen to you while I am away.'

'Nonsense, darling! Go and have a good time, and be sure to come back in two weeks and bring Amy with you.'

Mollie's heart was so thoroughly in her pet plan that she found it hard to keep from all mention of her adorable brother-in-law during the two weeks that followed; once she did refer to the cozy party of four which they would make, and then was obliged to turn it off on Jenny, the maid-of-all-work, as making the fourth.

The day before Mollie was to return, Aunt Hetty fell ill. Amy was obliged to postpone her visit for a few days at least. Mollie could go on as she had intended, and she would follow as soon as Aunt Hetty could spare her.

'Amy will certainly come up next week,' she assured John; 'but I could not wait another day.'

It was so pleasant to be at home once more, and mistress of all she surveyed; a note from Amy saying she would come on the following Saturday set her mind completely at rest. She was really sorry to hear John say one morning:

'I think we had better take that run down to Camden's to-day. We must go sometime this month, and of course you won't want to go after your sister comes.'

'John, you know we cannot stay away all night. I gave Jenny leave of absence until Friday, and it won't do to leave the house alone.'

'I'll tell Tom to come and sleep here.'

'There are three keys,' said she, as they left the house. 'You can give one to Tom, and I will leave one with Mrs. Gates, next door. The house might get on fire and then it would be better to have a key handy, so they could get in the house and bring out the things.'

'Yes,' said John sarcastically; 'or I might hire a squad of policemen to watch the house day and night.'

About eleven o'clock that evening Miss Amy Arden alighted from an express and looked about the depot as if expecting some one.

'They could not have received my second postal,' she concluded, after waiting nearly half an hour in the ladies' room. 'Well, I can very soon find their home.'

A hack soon deposited her in front of the pretty cottage on Lake street; all was dark, and Amy pulled the bell several times without hearing a sound from within. Where could Mollie and John have gone? There was a light in the next house, and Amy remembered hearing her sister speak of her kind neighbor, Mrs. Gates; perhaps they were spending the evening with her, or at any rate she might know of their whereabouts. Amy ran across the plot which separated the two cottages and rang the bell. Mrs. Gates soon explained matters.

'You do look a little like Mrs. Ackerman when you laugh,' she said in conclusion, 'so I suppose it's all right to let you have the key; but she wasn't looking for you until Saturday.'

'Probably she didn't receive my postal, which I mailed yesterday.'

'Well, I'll give you the key, of course; but are you not afraid to stay alone in the house to-night?'

'Oh, no, I'm not at all timid,' said Amy.

'But there's a gang of burglars about the city,' urged Mrs. Gates. 'But you are welcome to come and sleep on our parlor sofa, if you are afraid.'

'No, thank you,' said Amy. 'I will risk it for one night.'

She let herself into the deserted house, not without some throbs of fear, it must be confessed. How quiet everything was! Oh, if Mollie were only there! She took a survey of the rooms, the kitchen last of all, where she concluded to look for something to eat. Hark, what was that! Only the silver-toned clock striking the midnight hour.

'That woman's talk about burglars has made me nervous,' she thought, continuing her search for eatables.

Hark, again! surely that was a key turning in the lock; then a door opened and shut quietly, and there were footsteps in the hall. Amy's small stock of courage went down to zero. Instinctively she grasped the poker lying on the range near her. The next instant the door opened, and a great broad-shouldered man with blackened face and hands stepped into the room. Amy felt herself growing white with fear, but she raised her poker threateningly; for a moment they stared at each other in silence, then the man spoke.

'Who the——are you?'

Amy tried to shriek for help, but the sound died away in her throat; she could not speak or move.

Presently he came towards her.

'Will you please lower that poker, or else move away from the sink? I would like to wash my hands,' he said, looking very much inclined to laugh.

Was ever such effrontry known before? Still speechless, Amy moved around to what looked to be an outside door.

'Don't glare at me in that manner,' he went on, with a glance into her terror-stricken eyes.

Then came a hearty laugh, which reassured Amy a very little. Certainly, this was a most extraordinary burglar, or else there was some ridiculous mistake. She would flee to Mrs. Gates's protection at all events, she thought, dropping her weapon, and tugging at the huge bolt with trembling fingers.

By this time the young man had finished his ablutions, and presented quite a different appearance.

'I am Mr. Ackerman's brother,' he said politely; 'he asked me to remain in his house to-night, as a means of protection during his absence.'

'Mr. Ackerman has no brother,' said Amy, stoutly.

'Are you sure of that?'

'Certainly I am. Mrs. Ackerman has just made me a visit, she would have mentioned him if such a person existed.'

'Can it be that you are Aunt Hetty?'

'Aunt Hetty, indeed.'

Amy was finding courage and voice fast enough now.

'I beg pardon,' said Tom; 'but Mollie told me she was going to visit her Aunt Hetty, and you said she had been visiting you; hence my mistake.'

'I am Mrs. Ackerman's sister.'

'Strange I never heard her speak of you! However, I am sorry I frightened you, Miss Arden, and if you will allow me, I will explain matters. I am a bookkeeper, at Bolton's hardware establishment—'

'You looked more like a bootblack,' interrupted Amy.

'Or a burglar,' added Tom. 'Well, as I was just saying, I am a bookkeeper, but there was a press of work in the foundry to-night, and as they happened to be short of hands, I offered to stay and assist; this accounts for my late arrival, also for my blackened face and hands.'

He looked very much like indulging in another hearty laugh, but restrained himself at the sight of Amy's white, distressed face.

'I am afraid I was rude,' she said, 'but it was such a shock to me; and I am very tired and—'

Tom sprang to her side, or she would have fallen from sheer exhaustion. He helped her into the parlor, brought refreshments and wine from Mollie's generous store-room, and they were soon talking matters over quite calmly. It was after two o'clock when Tom proposed to go and ask Mrs. Gates to come over for the rest of the night, but Amy protested against this, saying she was not afraid if he would remain in the house.

Mollie was almost beside herself when she came home and found how affairs had gone in her absence; crying one minute over Amy's fright, laughing the next over Tom's graphic description of the same, and it was some time before they settled down into anything like quiet.

As the days and weeks went by, Mollie could not determine whether certain plans of hers were to prosper or not. Tom spent all his evenings with them, but he and Amy were always on the contrary side of every question and they tantalized each other so unmercifully that poor Mollie sometimes despaired of their being friends, not to mention a nearer relation.

They were all together as usual one evening, and Tom for the hundredth time was describing Amy's appearance on that memorable evening, when she so nearly brained him for a burglar.

'And little did I suspect then,' he went on soberly, 'that she would ever have the privilege of brandishing the poker over me for life.'

'What do you mean?' cried Mollie, staring first at Tom's solemn visage, and then at Amy's flushed cheeks.

'Just what I said. Amy and I are going to set up housekeeping in the opposite cottage, where I suppose she will continue to flourish all sorts of murderous weapons at me.'

'John, darling, it's coming about exactly as we planned,' shouted Mollie, springing up in excitement.

Well, it did come about just as Mollie desired. Mrs. Amy even made cardinal the predominating color in her parlor, and it harmonizes charmingly with the dark beauty of its mistress.

The sisters are inseparable, and as happy as two mortals can ever expect to be. Tom is something more than bookkeeper in the Bolton hardware business now, and he and John are talking of buying two handsome properties in the suburbs of the city. Mrs. Mollie declares she would rather remain in the little home on Lake street, but what woman was ever proof against a handsome establishment in a a very aristocratic neighborhood? Not our ambitious little Mollie I am sure.

THE MAN WHO WAS MIXED.

'Really, but I hope you will excuse the intrusion, said a shabby-looking man as the insurance agent looked up.

'You are excusable, sir. What did you wish?'

'Well—you see—I'm a bit mixed. Was it Napoleon or Washington who crossed the Alps?'

'Napoleon, of course.'

'Just so—thanks. I was inclined that way myself, but yet I knew that General Washington was always scouting around, and he might have taken it into his head to cross the Alps. Good day, sir.'

He passed down the hall thirty feet, and then returned and protested:

'Say, don't think ill of me, but I am still mixed up—dreadfully mixed. Will you answer me one more question?'

'Yes.'

'Was it Nero who commanded the sun to stand still?'

'No, it was Joshua.'

'I had an idea it was Joshua, but I didn't dare put up money on it. Nero was always fiddling around, you know, and I had a dim idea that he might have taken a whack at the sun. Very much obliged to you, sir.'

This time he went half way down stairs and returned on tip-toe. The agent looked up and saw him in the door and sharply queried:

'Well?'

'Mixed again!" pleaded the stranger. 'Say, I want to ask you just one more question.'

'Yes.'

'Did you ever lend a man a dollar to help him on his way to Columbus to see his dying wife?'

'Never! You are thinking of old Diogenes. He used to shell out to every dead beat who came along.'

'Mixed again, by thunder!' muttered the man, and as he passed down stairs he took great pains to set his feet down on each step like a man who had bet on three of a kind and found a flush taking his money.—Detroit Free Press.

THE GRAY HEAD BY THE HEARTH.

A private letter from a lady who is spending a year among the peasants of Tyrol, says: "The morning after our arrival we were awakened by the sound of a violin and flutes under the window, and hurrying down, found the little house adorned as for a feast—garlands over the door and wreathing a high chair which was set in state.

The table was already covered with gifts, brought by the young people whose music we had heard. The whole neighborhood were kinsfolk, and these gifts came from uncles and cousins in every far-off degree. They were very simple, for the donors are poor—knitted gloves, a shawl, baskets of flowers, jars of fruit, and loaves of bread; but upon all some little message of love was pinned.

'Is there a bride in this house?' I asked of my landlord.

'Ach, nein!' he said. 'We do not make such a bother about our young people. It is the grandmother's birthday.'

The grandmother, in her spectacles, white apron and high velvet cap, was a heroine all day, sitting in state to receive visits, and dealing out slices from a sweet loaf to each one who came. I could not but remember certain grandmothers at home, just as much loved as she, probably, but whose dull, sad lives were never brightened by any such pleasure as this; and I thought we could learn much from these poor mountaineers."—Youth's Companion.

THREE SLICES OF BREAD.

Three slices of bread shown by a flour dealer in Lewiston, Me. (it is a newspaper of that region which tells the story), spoke for themselves. Placed side by side, they shaded very abruptly into three strikingly distinct tints. One was of the hue of Graham and fell into your hand like a half-baked brick. Another was nearly white, and would be greeted with pleasure by a hungry man. The third was so white that snow would have to be bleached to compare with it; moreover, it possessed that spongy texture which is so gratifying to the eater and a source of so much pride to the cook. It threatened to dissolve in one's mouth, and would tempt a gorged epicure. It would not be a strain to say one could distinguish them in the dark. The flour dealer deposed that the three slices were made by three women and from one and the same kind of flour. The cook who produced the first slice was dissatisfied with the flour, while the woman who made the bread last mentioned said she could make good bread out of flour that didn't cost less than $4 a barrel. It is evident that bread cooking is not one of the lost arts, but it is an art which still contains sufficient mystery to puzzle many and confound not a few of the angels who hover over our flour barrels.

In the Tunnel.

By what good chance I cannot tell,
We sat so that I faced her,
And when the tunnel's shadow fell,
I caught her and embraced her.
Said she, half angry, struggling hard
And struggling to draw back,
"I think you'd better call the guard,
Your mouth is off the track!"

But still I held her closer still,
And called her "sweetheart," "sister,"
And still she struggled with a will,
And still I kissed and kissed her.
And as each sweet collision came
I blessed the sweet eclipse
That turned my spirit into flame
And telescoped our lips.

It's all of twenty years gone by,
The facts that I've related,
And my fair tunnel mate and I
Have twenty years been mated,
And she and I are still content,
Though we have long been lashed,
And still we bless the accident
In which we both were "mashed."

VALUE OF A RAILWAY TRAIN.

Few have any conception of the money value of an express train. The handsome locomotive and elegant cars are admired as the train comes puffing into the depot, but when seen from the point of view furnished by the Hartford Courant, the spectator is astonished at the responsibility placed in the hands of an engineer, fireman, conductor and brakeman:

A railroad official, the other day, gave some interesting figures as to the value of the midday express from New York, which was a fair representative of the fast express trains on the consolidated road.

There were an engine, tender, and eight cars. The engine and tender, which are considered together, were valued at $10,500, the baggage car $1000, the postal car $2000, the smoking car $5000, the two ordinary passenger cars $10,000 each, and three palace cars $15,000 each; total $83,000.

This is a low, rather than an excessive, estimate for one of the fast expresses, as some of them, with more cars, are worth $100,000 at least.

The palace cars, put down at $15,000, are, in many cases, worth an average of $18,000. These cars came into use soon after the sleeping coaches, the first being used in 1863. In some instances these cars have cost as high as $25,000 or $30,000, where the interior workmanship was very elaborate.

From the figures given it will be seen that a comfortable dwelling may be built for the cost of an ordinary passenger car, and that the money expended for a palace coach would erect a very handsome brick or brown-stone front residence.

It is an interesting reflection that the safety of one of these costly trains, to say nothing of the passengers, devolves almost wholly upon one man—the engineer.

There are other men, the conductor, baggage master, fireman and three or four brakemen, but the hand upon the lever and the brain directing it have an immense responsibility.

WEIGHT AND YIELD OF EGGS.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman gives the standard yield and weight of eggs for the different varieties of domestic fowl as follows:

Light Brahmas and partridge Cochins, eggs 7 to the pound; they lay, according to treatment and keeping, from 80 to 100 per annum, oftentimes more if kept well. Dark Brahmas 8 to the pound, and about 70 per annum. Black, white and buff Cochins, 8 to the pound; 100 is a large yield per annum. Plymouth Rocks, 8 to the pound, lay 100 per annum. Houdans, 8 to the pound, lay 150 per annum; non-sitters. La Fleche, 7 to the pound, lay 130 per annum. Black Spanish, 7 to the pound, lay 150 per annum. Dominiques 9 to the pound, lay 130 per annum. Games, 9 to the pound, lay 130 per annum. Crevecœurs, 7 to the pound lay 150 per annum. Leghorns, 9 to the pound, lay from 150 to 200 per annum. Hamburgs, 9 to the pound, lay 170 per annum. Polish, 9 to the pound, lay 150 per annum. Bantams, 16 to the pound, lay 60 per annum. Turkeys eggs, 5 to the pound, lay from 30 to 60 per annum. Ducks, eggs vary greatly with different species, but from 5 to 6 to the pound, and from 14 to 28 per annum, according to age and keeping. Geese, 4 to the pound, lay 20 per annum. Guineas, 11 to the pound, lay 60 per annum.

LISTEN, YOUNG MAN.

Be a 'clever fellow.' It is the nicest thing in the world. While your money lasts, all the dead beats will laugh with you, as soon as it is gone they will laugh at you, which makes quite a difference, as you will find. If you do not like this plan, or have not money enough to follow it successfully, you can attain the same end by loafing around waiting for something to turn up. This will take some time longer, but then you can afford to wait for starvation. If you want to hurry up matters, you can waste a good deal of money on tobacco and cigars, and to some extent injure your health. But the great specific that rarely fails to bring not only poverty, but also crime, disease and shame, is to drink intoxicating liquors. It does not matter how you begin, consult your own taste as to that. Wine, cider, beer, whisky, it is all one—no matter where you begin, you will end with gin and whisky and the gutter. This plan has many peculiar advantages. As soon as you are known to be in the habit of taking intoxicating liquors, no matter how small the quantity, men will begin to suspect you, and in a short time will cease to trust you, and then if you have not already accumulated property, you cannot. So, as you will have more time, you can drink more, go down faster and faster, and in a few years die a pauper.

EAT YOUR BREAKFAST FIRST.

Dr. Hall is authority for the following thoughts upon breakfasting before much exercise in the open air, particularly in districts where fever and ague are abundant:

Breakfast should be eaten in the morning before leaving the house for exercise or labor of any description; those who do it will be able to perform more work, and with greater alacrity, than those who work an hour or two before breakfast. Besides this, the average duration of life of those who take breakfast before exercise or work will be a number of years greater than those who do otherwise. Most persons begin to feel weak after having been engaged five or six hours in their ordinary avocations; a good meal reinvigorates; but from the last meal of the day until the next morning there is an interval of some twelve hours; hence the body in a sense is weak, and in proportion cannot resist deleterious agencies, whether of the fierce cold of midwinter or of the poisonous miasm which rests upon the surface of the earth wherever the sun shines upon a blade of vegetation or a heap of offal. This miasm is more solid, more concentrated, and hence more malignant, about sunset and sunrise than any other hour of the twenty-four, because the cold of the night condenses it, and it is on the first few inches above the soil in its most solid form; but as the sun rises, it warms and expands and ascends to a point high enough to be breathed, and being taken into the lungs with the air and swallowed with the saliva into the stomach, all weak and empty as it is, it is greedily drunk in, thrown immediately into the circulation of the blood, and carried to every part of the body, depositing its poisonous influence at the very fountain head of life. If early breakfasts were taken in regions where chills and fever and ague prevail, and if, in addition, a brisk fire were kindled in the family room for an hour, including sunrise and sunset, these troublesome maladies would diminish in any one year, not ten fold but a thousand fold, because the heat of the fire would rarefy the miasmic air instantly, and send it above the breathing point. But it is 'troublesome' to be building fires night and morning all summer; it being no 'trouble,' requiring no effort, to shiver and shake by the hour, weeks and months together.

HOW TO MAKE PEPPERMINT DROPS.

Take a convenient quantity of dry granulated sugar; place it in a pan, having a lip from which the contents may be poured or dropped; add a very little water, just enough to make the sugar a stiff paste, two ounces of water to a pound of sugar being about the proportion; set it over the fire and allow it to nearly boil, keeping it continually stirred; it must not actually come to a full boil, but must be removed from the fire just as the bubbles, denoting the boiling point is reached, begin to rise. Allow the sirup to cool a little, stirring all the time; add strong essence of peppermint to suit the taste, and drop on tins, or sheets of smooth white paper. The dropping is performed by tilting the vessel slightly, so that the contents will slowly run out, and with a small piece of stiff wire the drops may be stroked off on to the tins or paper. They should then be kept in a warm place for a few hours to dry. If desired, a little red coloring may be added just previous to dropping, or a portion may be dropped in a plain white form, and the remainder colored.

There is no reason why peppermint should alone be used with this form of candy, but confectioners usually confine themselves to this flavor. Any flavor may be added, and a great variety of palatable sweets made in the same manner. If desired, these drops may be acidulated by the use of a little tartartic acid flavored with pineapple, lemon, or banana. In the season of fruits, delicious drops may be made by substituting the juice of fresh fruits, as strawberry, raspberry, etc., for the water, and otherwise procee ding as directed. Confectioner and Baker.

His cuffs came down to his knuckles, the parting of his hair was central, his coat was six-buttoned, his trowsers were lean and his voice languid, as he applied for an appointment. 'Aw, is there any vacancy in this department?' he asked. And the old man looked at him pityingly, as it were, and softly patting the youth's noble brow, said, 'Yes, yes, I think there is. Go out into the wide, wide world, my son, and try to fill it before the commissioners run you in.' And the young man turned longingly away, and went, but he cannot understand to this day, why, if there was a vacancy, he didn't get it.—Hawkeye.

The following is taken from a daily paper: 'The 10,000,000 barrels of beer sold last year would have filled a canal twenty-one feet wide and five feet deep, extending from New York to Philadelphia, and it would take a pump throwing thirty gallons a minute running night and day over twenty-one years to pump it out. The Journal.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1882.

It is reported that Senator David Davis, the genial and corpulent president pro tem. of the U. S. Senate, is to be married early in November to Miss Annie Barr, a cultured and wealthy North Carolina lady of about 30 summers.

Gen. Butler is actually displaying some coyness about accepting his nomination to the governorship. He will come around all right, though, depend upon it. Like some other "widdies," he wants a little urging, and an understanding as to who is going to help him foot the campaign bills.

It is believed that Judge Folger, having accepted the nomination for Governor of New York, will resign his position in the cabinet soon, although one report has it that he will retain his place until after election. Assistant Secretary John C. New and Congressman Crowley are talked of as likely to succeed him, though it is difficult to see what especial fitness the latter has for the place. He is a warm friend of the President and a good political worker; qualifications which go a great way, sometimes.

Our political platforms are too long and cumbersome. Ideas are buried under a mass of words which may mean one thing, or may mean another, and all the point is taken off the resolutions by this redundancy of words. Why not try the experiment of assigning the platform-building to some clear-headed journalist, who knows how to draw a pen through superfluities, and has the knack of expressing things in a few concise sentences? A platform molded after that fashion would be worth reading, and stir up some enthusiasm of itself.

The Holyoke Republicans have chosen a solid Whiting delegation to the Congressional convention. So also has Greenfield, the home of the Gazette, which has been working for Congressman Norcross's renomination; and a majority of the delegates thus far chosen are claimed for the Holyoke manufacturer. Several other names are mentioned as candidates, but the contest practically lies between these two men, with the indications in favor of Mr. Whiting. The district will have no occasion for regret, if he is nominated and elected.

The liquor dealers in the West are beginning to open their eyes to the steady growth of the prohibition sentiment among the people, and in place of defiance are now declaring themselves in favor of "abolishing all the abuses incident to the liquor traffic, by a proper system of licensing," etc. When they "abolish all the abuses" incident to the liquor traffic, there will not be any traffic left to license—that's how that matter stands. But people will be glad to see the dealers combining to lift the trade to a "higher standard." There is need enough of all the elevation they will be likely to give it.

The New York Democrats have nominated Mayor Grover Cleveland of Buffalo for Governor. He is a popular man in the western part of the State, and will draw the full party vote, "Boss" Kelly having been received back into full fellowship at last week's convention. This is a big feather in Kelly's cap, after the bitter struggle which has been waged between him and Tilden, and the redoubtable John will doubtless "lay himself out" this fall to show that he can carry the State for his party. But with so good a Republican candidate as Judge Folger, the Republicans will stand a pretty good chance for victory.

The Springfield Republican is making war upon Oliver Ames, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, because his firm for many years made shovels for the Australian market and stamped them "Collins & Co.," the name of a Connecticut firm who subsequently took up the manufacture of shovels, and obtained an injunction forbidding the Ameses to use the name, which had come to them from another firm which failed. The name was regarded by the Ameses as a legitimate trade-mark, and with Mr. Ames's reputation among his neighbors, and wherever he is known, we cannot believe that he had any improper motive in using the stamp.

The Republicans will follow the lead of the Democrats, and hold their next State Convention in Boston, where they can obtain better hotel accommodations. This will be quite a loss to Worcester, but hungry men's stomachs are not to be trifled with, and the Bay State House is said to have served the delegates uncommonly poorly this year. It is not clear that the change of base will be of advantage in any other respect, though the delegates will be so scattered through the city that it will make hard work for the buttonholers. But it will also add materially to the expenses of delegates from the western part of the State, and many worthy men, poor in this world's goods, will be prevented from attending by this fact. The conventions should be held in as central a locality as possible.

The priests in the Springfield diocese presented Bishop O'Reilly with a purse of $6000 last Monday, the 12th anniversary of his consecration. There are now 65 Catholic parishes and 114 places of worship in his diocese, against 30 and 45 respectively, 12 years ago. Nearly 50,000 persons have been confirmed by the bishop in that time.

He will soon remove to Whiting, Kan., with his wife, where he expects to go into business with his son.

Young men who desire to attend an entertainment without paying, should be careful and not represent themselves as officers of the law, as there is a severe penalty for so doing. And if the trick is discovered by the proprietor, they are apt to be summarily ejected, as was the case at Main's show last Thursday evening.

That was a genuine old-fashioned "line storm" which began last week Thursday and continued with but little intermission until Sunday. Enough rain fell to fill the springs and bring the streams up over their banks, and the roads were washed considerably in places, though no serious washouts have been reported in town.

The directors of the Palmer National Bank met yesterday afternoon to declare their semi-annual dividend. The past six months have been more prosperous than usual, even, for the bank, and after paying a 3 per cent dividend there will be $2500 left to carry to the surplus account. The deposits of the bank now average $120,000 or more.

The Palmer Wire Co. has out two handsome new signs, one of them 80 feet long, in letters 34 inches high, which can be easily read from the Boston & Albany Railroad. The other one is on the New London Northern side, 50 feet long, with letters 25 inches high. They are the work of a Brookfield gentleman who, with rare modesty, desires the withholding of his name. But his work speaks for itself.

There is promise of some interesting trotting on the park this afternoon, a race for $200 having been arranged between Jos. Thompson's "Nettie," and S. J. Stone's "Jimmie;" also one for $100 between "Lucy Miller," owned by E. F. Bass, and "Chas. H.," owned by C. H. Robbins. A purse of $25 is also offered for a running race, open to all horses. The races will be called at 2 p. m.

Henry Thayer's barn, adjoining his house on the Wilbraham road, was destroyed by fire a little before noon, Wednesday, with one cow and a large quantity of hay. The loss is estimated at about $800, and there was no insurance. The house caught fire several times, but was saved by the exertions of the neighbors. It is believed that the fire was set by a tramp who had been loitering around the premises.

A recent issue of the Star of Jackson, Mich., speaks in very complimentary terms of G. R. Burleigh, an old Palmer boy, who is business manager of S. K. Burleigh's large retail establishment at Homer, and who the Star says is "a young man in whom is discerned the great desideratum of business success—an urbanity of manner, a desire to please his friends, and a respect for his subordinates."

A little girl at the State Primary School who went to the hospital a few days ago with sore eyes, though otherwise apparently well, was found dead in bed last Monday morning. She sang with the others Sunday evening, and was all right when the nurse was around in the night. It is supposed that there was some trouble with the heart. This is the first death at the school in more than 5½ months, and the fifth for the past year.

Freight Conductor Clapp attempted to jump on a moving train at the B. & A. station in this village last Saturday afternoon, but missed his footing and fell on the track, where he would have been instantly killed had not Conductor Warner, of the Ware road, who was standing near, seized him and pulled him out. It was a very narrow escape, and as it was he received some savage scalp wounds. He was removed to his home at West Springfield.

Michael Welsh, John Lyons and Henry Murphy of Monson were before the district court last Saturday for an assault on Patrick J. Sullivan the 10th inst., but the case was continued until next Monday, at 2 p. m. It is reported that for some time a set of young fellows in that town have been in the habit of spending their Sundays in the woods, drinking and carousing, and occasionally getting into a fight, and that it was in such an affair that Sullivan was bruised so severely.

Section Master McQuaid, of the Boston & Albany road, spent last Saturday night in the cut at Blanchardville with his men, watching the sides of the cut, and had to shovel off about two rods of track which was covered with sand and stones from a land-slide. Had the rain continued much longer there would have been a much more serious slide at that point. There was quite a washout on the road near Becket, which delayed trains several hours, and another one near Russell.

Lawyer Strong has not yet contracted the work for his new block, adjoining the Nassowanno House, but the foundation walls, which are to be partly of brick, are being put in, the stone work by James Calkins of Monson and the brick work by H. E. Hawkes of Springfield. Mr. Strong says that the iron pin alluded to last week was put in some nine years ago by a surveyor employed by Mr. Feeney, and that the site of the new block is clearly covered by the different deeds of the Nassowanno property.

There are to be a few changes in the time table of the New London Northern Railroad next Monday. Mahoney's train, which leaves for New London at 6.40 a. m. and returns at 8.32 p. m., will be taken off. The steamboat train from the south will arrive at 7.30 a. m. instead of 7.27, and on its return trip from the north will reach here at 6.58 p. m. and leave at 7.15, giving time for supper. Wheeler's afternoon train north at 2.04 will go through to Brattleboro, making a direct connection between Boston and that town, by the B. & A. R. R., leaving Boston at 11 a. m. and reaching Brattleboro at 4.20 p. m.

Philip Chaffee, a carpenter employed by F. F. Marcy, had a pretty narrow escape from being run over by the cars last Monday afternoon. He was crossing the track of the New London Northern Railroad, near Marcy's shop, when the engine of the 1 o'clock train from the north hit him and threw him one side, bruising him somewhat, and tearing his clothing considerably, but not seriously injuring him. Had he been nearer the center of the track, the train would undoubtedly have gone over him. The Ware train was backing on the adjoining track at the time, and making so much noise that he did not notice the whistle of the approaching engine.

The 13th annual exhibition of the Tolland Co. East Agricultural Society occurs at Stafford Springs next Thursday and Friday. The managers of this society believe in furnishing their patrons wfth a variety of first-class entertainment, and spare no effort to this end. The consequence is, they always have a crowd. Last year the attendance was fully 7000 people, and this year, with added attractions, a much larger attendance is expected. In addition to the display of stock, farm produce, etc., there is to be a full exhibit of thread-making in the main building by G. Hall, Jr. & Co. of West Willington. The address by John Kelly of New York, the well-known politician, and a very able speaker, will attract many hearers, this being his first appearance in New England. There is also to be a balloon ascension by the aeronaut Carlotta, this being the first ascension of the kind in that county or vicinity. Then there are to be trotting, running and hurdle races, etc., etc., the programme being the most elaborate one ever offered. The New London Northern Railroad will sell excursion tickets at half price from all stations, and the admission to the fair is only 25 cents.

Hampden Council, American Legion of Honor, propose a dramatic and musical entertainment for the last of next month.

A moulders' grand ball will be given at Wight's Hall Oct. 20th, for the benefit of Charlie Couteniash, who has been sick for a year. Music will be furnished by Gardner's orchestra of Springfield, and Alex Deitz of that city will prompt. The committee of arrangements are H. L. Hines, H. F. Griffin and P. J. Glaster.

Patrick Nolan went over the mill dam in a boat last Monday morning. Fortunately he manged to get on a rock some 100 feet below the dam and about 50 feet from shore. The water at this place is so swift that it is impossible for a boat to live in it, and therefore the only hope of rescue was with ropes thrown to him. After two hours' incessant work, a rope was thrown within reach and he was drawn to the shore. He was but slightly injured.

THREE RIVERS.

State Inpector Buxton paid a visit to Palmer mills last week, and found everything all right, as usual.

It has been asked, "Is there a spotter in town?" We believe there are a large number of them, if "spotter" means looking after the liquor sellers to see that they do not sell illegally, and we believe that the would-be sellers so understand it, and either do not sell at all, or try to do it on the sly.

Sandford Converse had 27 sheep killed by a dog or dogs on Monday night. They were appraised at $148, and the town or county will have to pay the bill. A reward should be paid for the detection of the dog, for if it can be proved whose dog it was the owner becomes liable for the amount. We think there are very few dogs in town that would survive if the owners had to pay $148 for them.

Johnnie Moran, a boy about 14 years old, fell through the elevator hatch to the floor below in the Otis Co's. No. 2 mill. The accident was caused by the habit he had of catching hold of the elevator as it was going up, allowing it to raise him from the floor, then dropping back on the self-closing hatch. This time another boy pushed the hatch aside to look through just in time not to catch the Moran boy when he dropped.

The Geo. H. Gilbert Mfg. Co. are about to largely increase their facilities for business at Gilbertville, by the building of a two-story wool-sorting house 80 by 106 feet, also a two-story wool storehouse, 75 by 122 feet. Both are to be located near the track of the Ware River R. R., thus saving considerable expense in handling their wool. They are also to build a four-story addition to their No. 1 mill, 82 by 150 feet. These buildings will give them more than eighty thousand additional square feet of flooring, and will be the means of swelling the number of their employes to more than a thousand. The new buildings and addition will require more than two million bricks.

Magazines, Etc.

The North American Review for October opens with an article by H. M. Hyndman, entitled "The Coming Revolution in England," which gives an account of the agitation now moving among the English working classes tending toward a reconstruction of the whole politico-social fabric of that country. "The Objectionable in Literature," by O. B. Frothingham, portrays the difference between corrupting literature, and that which is simply coarse. "Discoveries at Troy," by Dr. Henry Schliemann, is the story of one year. Senator John I. Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, treats of the rule of "Political Bosses." There is an article of value on "Safety in Railway Travel," by George L. Vose, also an industrial essay on "The Protection of Forests" by Prof. Charles S. Sargent of Harvard College.

The Atlantic for October has a good variety of serials, short stories, poems and essays. There are five chapters of "Two on a Tower," by Thomas Hardy, while Mr. Bishop contributes two more chapters of his faithful discussion of New York social life, under the title of "House of a Merchant Prince." Miss Preston, now in Europe, has a pleasing article, "Among the Sabine Hills;" Lieutenant Cushing concludes his account of the "Nation of the Willows;" Prof. W. T. Hewitt has an article on "University Administration," and there is number eight of "Studies in the South." Poetry, short articles, reviews and the usual contributors' clubs complete the number.

Harper's for October has for frontispiece illustration Abbey's "Autumn," an exquisite drawing, engraved by Closson. The second paper on "Surrey," by Mrs. Lillie, is beautifully illustrated, as indeed are so many of the articles of this number, including Mr. Rideing's "Medical Education in New York," "Certain New York Houses," by M. E. W. Sherwood, Will Carleton's poem, "Flash: The Fireman's Story," etc. W. H. Bishop contributes the first of a series of papers on Southern California, and Col. Higginson his third on American History, in it treating of the "Spanish Discoverers of America." Among other interesting papers will be found Mary Robinson's biographical sketch of the late Dante Gabriel Rossetti; Chief Justice Marshal's eulogy of his wife, written in 1832, and never before published; "The Railway Invasion of Mexico," by Hon. John Bigelow. "Shandon Bells" is continued, and the editorial departments are made up with the customary interesting matter.

The American Agriculturist for October is out in a new and handsome cover, fine paper, and better finished engravings than usual, even. It is a double number, containing a Premium List which will be attractive to clubs, and the whole number is one of interest.

The October number of the Eclectic is one of unusual interest. Among its numerous articles are: "Some Impressions of the United States," by Edward A. Freeman, LL.D.; "Reminiscences of a March;" "Ladies in Iceland;" "A turning Point in the History of Cooperation;" "Personal Recollections about Garibaldi," by Karl Blind; "The Salvation Army;" "The Bairns a' at Rest," by James M. Neilson; "The History of Kissing," by T. F. Thiselton Dyer, M. A.; "Letters from Constantinople;" "Frederick Chopin," by E. J. Whately; "An American View of Ireland," by E. L. Godkin; "Death and Life," by A. P. Stanley; "Literature and Science," by Matthew Arnold; "A San Carlo Superstition;" "Disease Germs;" "Deserted;" Literary Notices, etc. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year.

The Hartford Publishing Co., of Hartford, Ct., announce in another column the publication of an attractive book under the title of "Our Lost Explorers," being an account of the late Jeannette Arctic Expedition. Mr. Raymond L. Newcomb, one of the returned surviving officers of the expedition, having had revision of the work, it may be considered as a correct and valuable record of the most important Arctic expedition that ever sailed from the United States. Mr. Newcomb's narrative of his travels and sojourn among the natives, exiles, and Russians of the Lena valley, and of his winter journey of 6000 miles to St. Petersburg, is both unique and fascinating, and introduces us to novel scenes and interesting people of whom little is known.

Outing, the new and deservedly popular magazine, is now published by the Outing Company, and is a first-class magazine for every family. The October number has a daintily illustrated poem by the editor on the first page, and contributions from Dr. I. W. Eggleston, Mrs. D. H. R. Goodale, Joel Benton and others, with full and lively editorial departments. The publisher announces a strong corps of contributors for future work, including such favorites as Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr, Mrs. D. H. R. Goodale, Miss Elaine Goodale, Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spafford, Mrs. Mary N. Prescott, Mrs. Fanny Foster Clark, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, Charles Ledyard Norton, Joel Benton, Dr. I. W. Eggleston, and others of equal note. The subscription price is one dollar a year, and the place of publication is Albany, N. Y.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

FROM MAJOR DOWNS, Military Instructor, Mt. Pleasant Academy, Sing Sing, N. Y.: During the very cold weather I was suffering with Catarrh. My head and throat ached so severely that I was obliged to give up everything and keep quiet. Ely's Cream Balm was suggested. Within an hour from the first application I felt relieved, the pain began to subside. In two days was entirely cured. W. A. DOWNS. Feb. 15, 1881.

A GENTLEMAN from Orwell, Pa., called my attention to Ely's Cream Balm as a remedy for Catarrh, Hay Fever, &c. He was so earnest in asserting it to be a positive cure (himself having been cured by it) that I purchased a stock. The Balm has already effected a number of cures. P. F. HYATT, Bordentown, N. J. 3

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

THE TOAD.

Formerly the toad was considered a venomous reptile; but in our days its habits have been more carefully observed, and its great value to the pomologist and gardener has been fully established, on account of its propensity for destroying insects, especially those injurious to vegetation. We should, therefore, sedulously cultivate the friendship and crave the assistance of the insectiverous reptiles, including the snake, as well as that of birds. Every tidy housewife detests the cockroach, mice and other vermin. Two or three domesticated toads would keep the coast clear of these and would be found to be more desirable than a cat, as they are wholly free from trespassing on the rights of man as does the cat. The toad is possessed of a timid and retiring nature, loving dark and shady places, but under kind treatment becoming quite tame. Many instances are cited of pet toads remaining several years in a family, and doing valuable services with no other compensation than immunity from persecution. All that is necessary to secure their cooperation, indoor or out, is to provide them cool and safe retreats by day, convenient access to water, and they will go forth to the performance of their nocturnal duties 'without money and without price.' In Europe toads are carried to the cities to market, and are purchased by the horticulturists, who by their aid are enabled to keep in check the multiplication of the insect tribes which prey upon their fruits, etc.—Our Dumb Animals.

In getting out of a tram-car he happened to stumble over the foot of a young lady who was sitting next the door. The damsel, compressing her brow into an awe-inspiring frown, ejaculated, 'You clumsy fellow!' Many men would have looked foolish and apologized, but this one was equal to the occasion. 'My dear young lady,' he exclaimed, 'you should have feet large enough to be seen, and then they wouldn't be trodden upon.'

A little girl was promised by her grandmother her gold watch when she should die. The child appreciated the delicacy of the situation, but after some hints her grandmother was prevailed upon to show her the watch. 'I wonder,' said the little one to her mother as they were leaving the grandmother's house, 'if I shall get the watch in time to wear it at the funeral.'

Yes, my boy, there are fifty-three millions two hundred thousand people in this country. And you are only one of them. Just one. Think of that once in a while, when you get to wondering what would happen to the world if you should die.—Burlington Hawkeye.

The family is a divine institution and is the basis of all social, civil, moral, and religious institutions. Destroy the integrity and purity of the family, and social order, civil government, public morality, civilization, and Christianity will be alike impossible.

A Sunday school teacher asked a pupil how many sacraments there were. 'There ain't any more left.' 'Why, what do you mean?' 'Well, I heard that our sick neighbor received the last sacrament yesterday; so there can't be any left over.

A wee boy beset his mother to talk to him and say something funny. 'How can I?' she asked. 'Don't you see how busy I am baking these pies?' 'Well, you might say, 'Charlie, won't you have a pie?' That would be funny for you.'

Nearly all the farmers in the districts traversed by the recent Iowa cyclone have guarded against future loss of life, in case of such disasters, by digging pits near their houses for places of retreat.

When a man kums to me for advice I find out what kind of advice he wants, and I giv it to him; this satisfies him that he and I are two az smart men az thare is living.—Josh Billings.

Mark Twain says: 'I have seen slower people than I am, more deliberate people than I am, and even quieter, more listless and lazier people than I am. But they were dead.'

A German who was lately married says: 'It vas easier for a needle to valk out of a camel's eye than for a mans to get der lasht vord mit a womans.'

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST!

GOOD SUCCESS TO THE

BOSTON SHOE STORE.

The season is again advancing, and the managers of the Boston Shoe Store are continually receiving new and desirable goods for Spring and Summer trade, and with the patronage given them are surely convincing their customers that the

BEST BOOTS AND SHOES ARE THE CHEAPEST

To buy. Their fine line of Spring goods will far exceed any season they met. They have put in stock a fine line of J. L. Joyce & Co's. Gent's Low and High Cut Side Lace Boots; for fit and style they cannot be equaled. They have a complete line of O. Kendall's Pegged and Sewed Boots, and can fit the broadest as well as the narrowest feet. For these special lines of goods they have the exclusive sale for this town. They have greatly increased their

WALL PAPER DEPARTMENT,

And are prepared to show one of the neatest selections that can be seen in town, as their goods are all new and from the best New England manufactories. In Lamps they have a nice line, and will sell low for cash.

They have also the agency for the

GENUINE

SINGER SEWING MACHINE,

which they will sell for cash or on time. They will also swap and take as part payment old machines. Have always on hand a full supply of MACHINE FINDINGS, such as Shuttles, Needles, Rubbers, &c., &c.

Thanking the public for past favors, and hoping to receive a continuance of the same,
We remain yours truly,

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recomended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

From the Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is at once a most annoying and very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Another striking case is now added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked for him. Toward the end of last January Mr. Lawler called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding him, the Dr. "struck one." He decided that Mr. Lawler should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb. 6," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorders of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1 a bottle. 26

DARBYS

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by
Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia;
Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York;
Jos. LeConte, Columbia, Prof., University, S. C.
Rev. A. J. Battle, Prof., Mercer University;
Rev. Geo. F. Pierce, Bishop M. E. Church.

INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME.

Perfectly harmless. Used internally or externally for man or beast.

The Fluid has been thoroughly tested, and we have abundant evidence that it has done everything here claimed. For fuller information get of your druggist a pamphlet, or send to the proprietors,

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Only One.

Only a baby, so gentle and sweet,
Playfully kicking its tiny pink feet;
By its fond mother so gently caressed,
Slumb'ring at evening upon her warm breast;
Oh, little one, may thy pathway be clear,
May there no clouds in thy sunshine appear.

Only a boy, with his brightness and fun,
Seeming all feelings but pleasure to shun;
Playing with schoolmates at "tag" or base ball,
Quickly obeying the fond mother's call,
Hast'ning to school at the sound of the bell;
Surely no trouble in that heart could dwell.

Only a youth with the future so bright,
But no fond mother is near him to-night.
Urged by companions, his hand holds the glass,
Which to the grave forms a sure, fatal pass;
"Drink it, O, drink it!" the tempter did say—
And the young man, alas! did the Devil obey.

Only a drunkard, all friendless, alone!
Where are the friends of his childhood? all gone!
Homeless, uncared for, no pitying friend
Stands by his pallet to comfort his end;
Night's solemn darkness has closed o'er his head,
And, with the morning, the lost life has fled.

Where is the infant, the fond mother's joy?
Where is the frolicking, laughing school-boy?
Where is the youth that to Satan did yield?
All that remains lies in lone Potter's field.
Only a low mound, deserted, unnamed,
Honors the lost soul that Satan has claimed.

Only a life, with its promise of fame—
Oh, the old story is ever the same!
Mother, watch over your darling to-night,
Lest the effects of Intemperance should blight,
And the foul demon of strong drink destroy
Your own dear idol—your own precious boy!

Three Rivers, Mass. HENRY.

THE RED EAR.

It was October when I came to the Sumac Farm—red rare October, with the maple-trees all dyed in scarlet, the woodland streams choked with dead leaves, and the nuts ripening on the chestnut-boughs; and I can well remember the thrill which went through all my veins at the sight of the glorious country landscape, as the stage driver set me down on the door-step, with my trunk and carpet-bag, just as the sunset, bursting through a shield of lowering clouds blazed across the old house, painting its eaves with orange light, and turning the small window panes to quivering tablets of gold.

For I had been born and brought up in the city and all this wide, wild landscape, colored with autumn forests and scented with dead leaves, was new and marvelous in my sight.

'Do you like it, Cousin Olga?'

Coquettish little Barbara Blake asked the question, as she flitted to and fro, apparently intent upon the arrangement of the supper table, while all the time she kept a bright eye on Walter Mildmay, who sat by the light mending a defective spot in the harness.

'Very much,' I said quietly.

Walter did not look up, but I could feel his quiet eye on me all the time. I wondered what he thought of me. I thought, uneasily, of my dusty dress, my disheveled hair, the stiff, unbecoming linen collar which I had chosen to wear, instead of the lace frill which best suited my face. Not that I wanted him to admire me; but every woman likes to appear to the best advantage, and I was no whit different from the rest of my sex.

I was a Philadelphia shop-girl. You see there was no glamour of romance about my life. I worked for my living, like many another, lived quietly in scant and forlorn lodgings, and felt sadly enough, that my lot in life was to be a chrysalis rather than a butterfly's—until Fayal & Co. failed, and hearing that I was out of employment, my unknown cousins at Sumac Farm wrote for me to come and spend the winter with them.

They welcomed me kindly after their fashion. Uncle Blake gave me a kiss, and remarked dubiously that 'I didn't favor any of the Blakes that ever he knew of.' Barbara, his daughter, wondered why I looked so pale. Jonas brought his pretty young wife—who had been a Mildmay—to greet me; and her brother Walter, who was boarding there, also shook hands politely with me, and 'hoped I should like the country,' in an indifferent way.

The fire of huge logs blazed and crackled in the deep, smoke-blackened chimney-place, and the leaves rustled against the doorstep outside, and a cricket chirped shrilly under the hearth, and it was all so strange—so strange, yet so restful.

After supper they left me all alone. Mrs. Jonas Blake went out to skim the milk. My cousin and his father vanished to attend a 'district school meeting' somewhere. Walter and Barbara had been invisible for some time; and after sitting dreamily for a while before the fire I rose and went out into the kitchen beyond, vaguely desirous of some companionship besides my own.

No one was there, but I heard the sound of voices in the shed at the rear, where Barbara was holding the light for Walter Mildmay to sharpen some edged tool on the grindstone.

Unwittingly I advanced toward the door just in time to hear their words:

'A stiff, ugly, old maid,' said Walter, indifferently. 'A little higher, Barbara, please. If that is the sort of girls they turn out in Philadelphia, I prefer the country specimens!'

I stood rooted to the floor, feeling myself grow hot all over. They went on talking and laughing, but I could not hear a word they said.

Noiselessly I crept back into the house, up to my room, lighted the candle, and looked into the little, muslin-draped glass that hung above the home-made dressing table.

Stiff, ugly, and an old maid! The latter I certainly was not, at four-and-twenty. Stiff, I might be—who could avoid that, in the presence of strangers, surrounded by a domestic atmosphere that was entirely novel to me? And ugly—was I that? I looked in the glass, to see hair banded straight back from a pale, oval face, eyes heavy with weariness, cheeks quite colorless. Did he think I always looked like that? He should see!

So I went to bed and then cried myself to sleep.

The next morning I got up and dressed myself with care. I brushed the soft crimped masses of jet-black hair away from my temples, and fastened a spray of coral-red berries which I had gathered on the roadside, into it, and knotting my loose scarlet silk necktie under my lace collar, I smiled to see the soft glow of color that was returning to my cheeks, the brilliancy to my eyes.

My dress was black cashmere, enlivened here and there by a bow of scarlet ribbon, instead of the gray traveling suit I had worn the evening before, and it fitted me as if I had grown into it.

'I don't think I am quite so ugly as I was last night,' I thought. 'But if Mr. Mildmay doesn't like me, why of course I cannot help it.

So I went down stairs, and Uncle Blake stared at me over his spectacles.

'Mercy on us!' cried Mrs. Jonas; 'what has the girl been doing to herself?'

'Some one must have changed her off while she slept!' said Barbara, running up to me and kissing me.

Walter Mildmay said nothing; he only drank his coffee.

How I enjoyed the next fortnight! The weather was beautiful and balmy beyond all description. We had nutting expeditions and boating parties, and long walks to gather brilliant autumn leaves. At night we sat around the blazing logs, and on the few rainy days, Mrs. Jonas showed me how to make butter, and Barbara took me up into the great garret, where there were chests of old relics, piles of books and papers, and all the antique belongings of a whole century of Blakes.

But all this time Walter Mildmay kept his quiet distance; and to save my life, I could not tell whether or not he still thought me a 'stiff old maid,' or not.

And then came the husking frolic.

The barn was all illuminated by candles stuck in sconces, along the sides—I had never seen so wild and romantic a sight.

The neighborhood gathered to the gala. Mrs. Jonas and Barbara had been baking cake and buttering sandwiches all day, while Uncle Blake had rolled a barrel of sparkling cider close to the barn door. Merry laughter sounded, bright faces glanced to and fro in the Rembrandtesque light of the candles, while ever and anon, the tone of flute and fiddle-tuning up in the barn-loft was plainly audible.

I had been helping Mrs. Jonas to put the icing on the big fruit-cake which held the ring, and it was late when I came into the big sweet-smelling, echoing barn, with my black cashmere dress all sprinkled with cherry-red bows, and a cluster of deep-scarlet autumn leaves in my hair.

'Here's Olga!' cried my cousin Jonas, cheerily. 'Come here little Olga, and sit by me, and I'll give you some ears to husk.'

I laughed and nestled down into the hay close at his side; and just at this moment a storm of merry rustic laughter rose on the air.

'The red ear! the red ear!' they cried, in chorus, clapping their hands and cheering vehemently. 'Walter Mildmay has got the red ear.'

I looked up at Cousin Jonas in bewilderment.

'What is a red ear?' ssid I.

Cousin Jonas laughed.

'What a little greenhorn you are!' said he. The red ear is—'

Just then Walter Mildmay came up and stood before me, the rich maroon-colored ear of corn in his hand. He laid it at my feet.

'I claim my privilege, Olga,' he said.

I looked up at him in amazement.

'I don't understand you,' said I.

The next moment he had stooped over me, and putting both hands lightly on my shoulder, imprinted a kiss on my astonished lips.

I sprang up, feeling myself grow scarlet; I rubbed my lips passionately with my handkerchief, as if to wipe off the insult.

'How dare you?' I cried. 'Oh, I never can forgive you in the world—never, never.'

And then, half-maddened by the noisy laughter of the crowd, the din of jubilant voices, I tore myself from Jonas Blake's detaining hand, and flew out into the starry cold of the outer air. Mrs. Jonas followed me.

'Olga,' she cried, 'What is the matter? Come back.'

'He has insulted me!' I sobbed.

'Insulted you? Oh, what nonsense, Olga!' she said, putting her arm carelessly around my neck. 'He has paid you the highest compliment a man could pay a woman. There is not a girl in the barn to-night, but envies you, child. Don't you know what the red ear means?'

'No,' said I, looking up at her with wondering eyes.

Mrs. Jonas laughed.

'It means that the lucky finder thereof is entitled to kiss the prettiest girl in the room,' said she. 'It has been his privilege from time immemorial; and in this case it means that Walter Mildmay thinks that Olga Blake is the prettiest girl in all that crowd of rustic beauties.'

'Olga, you are not really angry with me, are you?'

It was Mildmay's voice, close to me. Mrs. Jonas made some explanation about the cake she had promised to cut, and slipped away into the darkness, leaving us alone.

'Angry?' I repeated. 'Yes, I was angry. But I didn't know—no one had told me—'

'About our rustic usages? But you will forgive me, Olga?'

My presence of mind was slowly coming back to me. I drew my hand away from his.

'But you didn't seriously think me—pretty?' said I.

'Do you want me to say what I seriously did think?' he asked.

'Yes, said I, laughing. 'The truth, now; the whole truth, and nothing but the truth!'

'Then,' said he, 'I thought you the sweetest, prettiest, most actually perfect creature that Providence ever made!'

'Not at all!' I retorted, demurely. 'I am a 'stiff, ugly old maid.' And if this is the sort of girl they turn out in Philadelphia you prefer the country specimens!'

I could see the color flood his face, even in the starlight.

'Olga,' said he, 'did you hear that?'

'I did hear it, Walter,' I responded.

'I was a fool—a rash, talkative, indiscreet fool!' said he. 'Whatever my first impression may have been, I think very differently now. Dear Olga, may I say all there is in my heart?'

'I think we had better go to the barn now,' I said quietly.

'And I think we'd better not!' pleaded Walter, gently venturing to detain me. 'Listen, Olga. Even the most wretched criminal that stands at the bar is entitled to insist upon a hearing in his own defense. Shall I be less favored than he?'

'Well,' I hesitated, 'if you really have anything to say—'

When we came back into the barn the husking was over, the debris was all cleared away, and they were dancing to the rude music of the band—'Killarney,' I believe, was the air. My cheeks were burning, my eyes shone; my heart danced, also, to the wild, swaying music.

Mrs. Jonas looked keenly at me.

'Ah!' said she, 'I thought it would be. You are engaged? Oh, I am so glad! For your sake and Walter's too!'

'And so am I,' said I quietly.

I am a farmer's wife now, and live in a little brown cottage near Sumac Farm. And, fancifully tied with blue ribbon, over the parlor mantel, hangs an ear of corn—a red ear.

And Walter says that as long as we both live we shall have a yearly husking frolic in the new barn we are building.

MYSTERIES OF THE SURF.

The editor of the Atlanta Constitution recently visited a fashionable seaside resort—presumably for the first time—and gives his impressions to his paper in clean cut style, in this wise:

Surf bathing is a revelation! I went in yesterday with a lovely lady from the north, with whom I had a short acquaintance, although I had seen a good deal of her. As we stood awaiting the coming of a huge wave she clutched my arm and poising herself on one foot, bended the other leg and pulled her stocking over her knee trying vainly to cover a strip of white. She thought nothing of it—neither did I. In an instant the wave was on us and we were riding the swell as happy as a pair of ducks. That evening this lady went sailing with the same party that had been bathing with her in the morning. As she stepped over the side of the boat she exposed about six inches of her pretty silk stockings, and her face was crimson with shame and mortification. Now why this difference? It was exactly the same limb that had been exposed to the knee all the morning without any thought of confusion. As I came into the hotel corridor yesterday a young lady exclaimed:

'Shut the door quick! Somebody is coming!'

She had put on her bathing suit for the first time and was horrified that a man should see her in such a fix. A half an hour later she and I were lying on the beach, the waves purling over us at every throb of the sea, and she, with her shapely figure bended, was writing her name in the sand with her toes, while her merry laugh rang above the roar of the waves.

But if the dressing on the beach and the unconsciousness with which the most modest of girls stand the exposure consequent upon it, is remarkable, the conduct of a crowd in bathing is still more so. That is the miracle of social life I think. The girls clad in this pretty garment—the passing wave outlining every curve of the body—with the warm flesh glowing and throbbing beneath the single garment—the girls thus attired run hand in hand into the water with their sweethearts, and romp and frolic, and are ducked and hauled out by the feet, or catch the fellows around the neck as a big wave comes—and yet there is not the slightest purient suggestion and no hint of gallantry. I cannot conceive of a sentimental attitude among the breakers.

I am compelled to confess that a month at the seaside does not confirm the general idea of female symmetry that all gallant men, are supposed to entertain. It is the rarest thing to find a girl with straight limbs, graceful carriage, firm flesh, full chest and unrestrained attitudes and poses. In a majority of cases they are wabbly and uncertain; with a stoop in the shoulders, a mincing step, toes turned in (the number of pigeon-toed girls developed here is positively alarming) and general debility of gait and flabbiness of attitude.

I noted at one of the seaside resorts several days ago the handsomest woman I ever saw on the beach. She was tall and slender but divinely formed. Her pretty head was poised like a queen's upon a swan-like neck that swelled into a snowy bust and shoulders. A bathing shirt loosely tied around her neck and without sleeves, gave perfect play to her superb body. Black silk stockings and feet that left perfectly outlined foot-prints set regularly in the sand at about thirty degrees divergence. There was something utterly dwarfing her escort, she seemed utterly disregardful of his presence, and when the foam clustered about her knees, raised her gleaming arms above her head and went like a flash into the body of an incoming breaker.

Just think of this schedule for an August day. A fumble in the waves in the morning, a shower bath in the spray, a ride on the billows, a swim out to the buoy, tossing pretty girls about the salt water, a header or two under the surface as a finish, a walk to the bath houses with an indescribable glow pervading the whole system, a leisurely toilet with the salt spray drying on the flesh and making it acrid and cool. Up stairs to bed and there with half open eyes to muse upon the mercy of the Lord, until the senses have yielded to the influence of the drowsy god, and the waves that break upon the beach conjure from the heart of a deep and sweet sleep the memory of a baby cradled in its mother's arms and soothed by a lullaby from her loving lips.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

The other night, says a watering place correspondent, I overheard a real pretty piece of love's labor won, and it made my heart beat faster and brought back memories of the past. It happened on the dark end of the piazza, next to my open window:

'Who do you love?' said he, ungrammatically.

'Papa,' said she, innocently, with a coo.

'Who else?' said he.

'Mamma,' said she.

'Who else?'

'Brother.'

'Who else?'

'Sister.'

'Who else?'

'Uncle.'

'Who else?'

'Aunty.'

'Who else?'

'Oo'—and then I heard a whalebone snap and a peculiarly gluggity, ging, ging sound that didn't need a dictionary for translation. Ah, love's young dream, go on, go on; there will be an awakening some morning about 3 o'clock in the future, when a bottle of paregoric and a plaintive wail will recall the hours that have been, but are no more.

Up at Tallula Falls last week was Mrs. Spriggins from this county. She had her little child with her, which could toddle about and was venturesome, and caused her great anxiety in the absence of Spriggins. She remarked to a friend: 'I wouldn't have that child fall over the precipice and get killed for anything, because I would never hear the last of it from Spriggins.'—Hartwell (Ga.) Sun.

A recent homily on married happiness says 'married folks would be happier if they kissed and made up after every quarrel.' The writer has no basis for his argument. Married folks do not quarrel. It is lovers only who quarrel. Married folks fight. If you don't believe it get married.—New Haven Register.

An old lady hearing that John Bright contemplated visiting this country hoped that he wouldn't bring his disease with him.—Norristown Herald.

Some Time.

"Some time," the blue-eyed maiden cried,
"Some time I'll be a rich man's bride,
I'll have his gold, when he is old,
And grandly in a coach I'll ride."

"Some time," the brown-eyed maiden cried,
And blushing, turned her head aside,
"(God grant it me!) I'll married be,
To him whom Heaven shall provide."

The blue-eyed maiden had her way,
She married one both rich and gray,
And when he died she took his pride,
But that is all she took—they say.

A handsome lover came, one day,
And bore the brown-eyed maid away.
He was her life, she was his wife;
What more is there to ask, or say?

HOW TO MESMERIZE.

A recent writer on the mysteries of mesmerism, says: "I lay it down as a matter which can be verified by all who are curious enough to try it, that the mesmeric conditions can be produced without the supposition of a subtle fluid, without the use of the cabalistic passes of the mesmerist, without the bouquet, the magnetic rod, or any of the mysterious means employed by the professionals to heighten the effect of what would be too simple and too unattractive if performed straightforwardly. The directions are these: Place the person to be operated on naturally in a chair. With your left hand suspend by a string, about a foot from the eyes, some small object, a dark marble, or a bright steel ball, or a diamond—it matters not what, though something bright is, perhaps, preferable. Direct the subject to fasten his eyes and concentrate his attention on the object. Slowly raise your left hand until the object is as far above the eyes of the patient as is compatible with his gazing steadily at it. Watch his eyes. At first you will see the pupils contract, but after a few seconds they will expand rapidly. When they are at the point of greatest expansion, move the first two fingers of your right hand from the object directly toward the eyes, the fingers being separated, forklike, to embrace both eyes. As the fingers approach the eyes will close, and the subject will be unable to open them. After a quarter of a minute the subject will be thoroughly under control, so that the operator may make him believe whatever he tells him. Left quiet, the subject will sink into a profound torpor, during which his ears may be pierced, his cheeks sewed to his nose, and even a finger cut off, without pain. To arouse him—and this is an important step—wind, either from a hand-bellows or a fan, should be directed against his eyes, or else his eyes should be tickled with a feather. The rationale of this method is simple. The fixed stare of the subject fatigues his retinal nerves, and, when the operator's fingers approach the eyelids close, as eyelids always do when eyes are threatened. But the fatigue of the nerves has produced muscular fatigue as well, transient paralysis in the eyelids has resulted, and they cannot be opened. The eyelids being, then, closed, the delicate frontal nerves exhausted, and the mind made vacant by monotonous attention to one object, the patient is in a condition to fall asleep—and he does fall asleep. He is now ready to dream. The only thing remaining to do is to make him dream. But how is this to be effected? Dreaming, as has long been determined, is the result of external suggestion. Dr. Gregory, to illustrate, having been thinking of Vesuvius, went to bed with a jug of hot water at his feet, and dreamed that he was climbing the sides of the burning mountain. Dr. Reid read a book on the Indians, put a blister to his head on retiring, and thought in his sleep that he was being scalped. Both these dreams, as all others are, were caused by suggestions offered externally. These suggestions, being received while the directing power, the common sense of the mind, was in abeyance owing to sleep, were interpreted very erroneously, yet, according to plain laws of association. The hot water, in the one case, called up the previous subject of thought, Vesuvius; the stinging blister, in the other, the equally stinging scalping-knife. It is now easy to see how the sleeping subject may be made to accept as truth whatever he is told.

BAD FOR MULDOON.

A citizen called recently at the water register's office, and introduced himself and his business by saying:

'I'm Misther Jerry Muldoon. My cellar is full of water, and my hins will be drowned if it isn't fixed; so I want you to fix it.'

Mr. Muldoon was informed that nothing could be done for him there. Two or three days later he reappeared.

'I come agin to see about that cellar,' said he; 'it's worse than ever.'

'But we told you the other day, Mr. Muldoon, that we could not do anything about it here.'

'Yes, but my cellar must be fixed or my hins will all be drowned.'

'Well, Mr. Muldoon, did you see the mayor about the matter?'

'Indade and I did,' replied Mr. Muldoon.

'And what did the mayor say?'

'What did he say is it? 'Misther Muldoon,' says he, 'why don't you kape ducks?'

It must have been in Memphis. Moses, the younger, sat in the store reading the evening paper, and all of a sudden he called out: 'Fadder! Fadder!' 'Vat ish it, my son?' 'A case of yellow fever only six miles away!' 'Moses!' 'Yes, fadder.' 'Pegin to pack up dem coats and wests! By to-morrow dot yellow fever vill be in town un vill be telegraphed to New York, un by der nexd day ve mushd fail und offer to pay twenty cents on der tollar. I vas looking for it all last veek.'—Wall Street News.

A California editor, who has evidently tried it, says there is an enticing romance associated with the wild nomadic idea of camping out which induces many people to adopt that mode of travel in spending the summer vacation. In reality, however, it is an occupation fit only for barbarians. It is a weak attempt to return to barbarism, which rarely confers a real rest or pleasure, and more often induces rheumatism and exposes the camper to malarial fevers. In short, it is a snare and a delusion.

A young lady was showing an elderly woman a beautiful cluster diamond ring, a present, when the old lady dropped her spectacles to the end of her nose, and exclaimed: 'Lor' sakes! I thought it was a seed wart!'

The new Duchess of Westminster, wife of one of the richest men in Europe, was married in a dress of white foulard, costing seventy-five cents a yard.

FASHION NOTES.

Diagonal rows of narrow bias ruffles are the new trimming for the foot of silk skirts.

Striped plush is blocked into shape as a lining for the wide brims of felt hats.

Sicilienne and Irish poplin are coming into fashion along with other repped goods.

Leather lace with leaves of leather on twine ficelle lace is a novelty for trimming bonnets.

Brocades will be limited to velvets for the approaching season; plain goods will be preferred in silk and woolen stuffs.

Trained dresses that have been but little used during the summer have reappeared at Newport and Saratoga receptions.

Cashmere and cloth with Saxony embroidery, soutache braiding, or plain stitching, will make up the bulk of new autumn costumes.

Turkish and India embroideries of soft, dull, yet rich coloring will trim the self-colored cashmere and cloth dresses worn later in the season.

New wool goods have ball figures three inches wide, of a shade so nearly like that of the stuff that the whole fabric appears to be plain at the first glance.

The long gauze veils formerly used here, but now out of style, are worn in Europe and called American veils. Meanwhile the English mask veil of red tulle is adopted here.

New bonnets and hats for the season between summer and winter have the brim of summer straw with a wintry velvet crown. Styles for the demi-season are otherwise well defined.

The pelisse to be worn next winter is precisely like the long plain redingotes worn two years ago. It is made of cloth and trimmed with braid down the front and back, but not around the skirt.

India cashmere shawls of great value, and many of which are heirlooms, are most ruthlessly cut by dressmakers to make short "visites." It is said that an ulster has lately been made of a shawl that cost $500.

Milliners select the best feathers of eight birds to make a single turban. Blue jays, blackbirds, magpies, crows, partridges, hawks, wild ducks, pigeons, swallows and many other familiarly known birds are stripped of their feathers to minister to the new craze.

The stylish wraps for the first cool days will be braided cloth jackets for plain toilets, and ficelle-colored cloth mantles trimmed with lace and pompons of the same shade for dressy toilets.

The only beaded trimmings among new goods are "solid" passementeries that show nothing but beads, but there are many sizes and shapes, such as bugles, flat nail-heads, large balls, and the smallest beads like seed pearls.

The European custom of carrying infants on lace-trimmed pillows is adopted by American mothers; and the nurse wears an Alsace cap with a bow of ribbon a fourth of a yard wide, with ends that hang behind nearly to her feet. The nurse's dress is of the color used for lining the lace of the baby's pillow.

A great deal of dull red is seen on the newly-imported costumes, and a touch of red is in almost all toilets, though it may be only a copper-red silk neckerchief, a flamingo's breast on the turban or terra-cotta gloves.

White with gold, white with silver, lilac and pansy shades, are the colors for dinner and evening dresses worn at Newport. White, pure and simple, is losing favor because it has been so generally worn during the summer, and it is now usually accompanied by red and yellow.

The new braid embroidery differs from that so familiar to every lady by having the narrow braid set up on one edge in what is called 'knife-blade' fashion to make the figures appear in relief on the fabric. Amazon cloth is the most suitable material for braiding; cashmere is not firm enough, and this work upon it has a drawn look that is not admired.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE BAGGAGE MASTER'S FRIEND.

According to a reporter of that city, Miss Susan B. Anthony left St. Louis the other day for Leavenworth with two medium sized trunks for baggage. At first the baggage master objected to checking them both on a single ticket, and demanded pay for extra weight. 'But,' said she, 'they together weigh less than the ordinary sized 'Saratoga.' I distribute the weight in this way purposely to save the man who does the lifting.' The clerk looked at her incredulously. 'And you tell me seriously that you do this simply out of consideration for the baggage men?' 'I do.' 'How long have you done it?' 'All my life. I never purchased a large trunk, for fear I might add to the over-burdened baggage man's afflictions.' The clerk walked off and conferred with the head of the department. Then the two returned together. 'Do I understand,' said the chief, 'that you, of all women, have been the first to show humanity toward railroad people?' 'That is the tenet of my creed.' 'Check that baggage,' said the chief, with emphasis; 'and when you run for office, Miss Anthony, you shall have my vote.' 'Mine, too,' echoed the clerk, handing her the checks, and the trio parted, happy.

A LADY'S REBUKE.—A lady, elegantly attired, upon entering a horse car was tendered half a dozen seats by as many polite, gentlemanly occupants. She accepted one. Presently a poor colored woman, aged and overworked, entered the car with a clothes basket. Not a polite gentleman rose. The rich lady laid her dainty glove on the wrinkled hand and quietly seated poor Africa in her place, arranging the basket conveniently at her feet. The male indifference fled at once. There were seats for the elegant lady on the right and left, which she frigidly declined. After a moment a large, fine-looking man rose, and touching his hat said gravely, while the color deepened in his face, 'I deserved your rebuke. Will you kindly take my seat?' She accepted his apology and seat.

'Vat ees your name?' inquired a German grocer of a new customer. 'My name is Cox,' was the reply. 'How vas dot shpeldt?' 'Why, C-o-x!' 'Yah, yah; das weiss ich schon; but how you shpeldt dot x?' persisted the puzzled Dutchman.

When a man knows he is in the right and is obstinate, he is a Christian; but when he knows he is in the wrong and is still obstinate, he is a fool.

A boy asked his father the meaning of tempus fugit. The old gentleman said he didn't know certain, but it was something about fly time.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1882.

MR. BISHOP accepts his nomination in a short and clear-cut letter, briefly reviewing the principles of the party, and announcing that if elected he will endeavor to administer his trust "in the light of these principles, with economy, simplicity and efficiency." Mr. Bishop is a concise writer. What a pity that he could not have prepared the Worcester platform!

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has been indulging in his favorite sport of fishing, for the past week or more, at Alexandria Bay, and it is said that when he throws his line the fish bite almost as well as the politicians and office-seekers do when he is in Washington. Next Wednesday the President goes to Boston, and all the State militia are to be called out to receive and escort him safely through the streets of the Hub. On Thursday he will attend the Webster exercises at Marshfield.

HON. WILLIAM WHITING of Holyoke was nominated for Congress at the 11th district convention at Greenfield, Tuesday, on the first formal ballot, having 79 votes to 35 for Amasa Norcross, the present incumbent, 22 for D. W. Bond and 14 for Henry Winn. The district is to be congratulated on its choice. Mr. Whiting is a clean, level-headed, able man, with a capacity to worthily represent his district and the State at Washington, and we believe he will do it, every time.

ONLY about 1000 Mormons have been disfranchised, it is understood, by the new registration, which excludes polygamists. This leaves some 34,000 Mormon voters in Utah who can still fill the offices with their own men and send a Mormon delegate to Congress, as there are not over 10,000 Gentile voters in the territory. This will do, perhaps, for a beginning, but either the Edmunds bill has not been very closely applied, or a much finer comb than that must be devised to clean out the Mormon vermin.

SECRETARY FOLGER has written a lengthy letter accepting his nomination as Governor of New York. He recognizes and rebukes the frauds by which his nomination was secured, but concludes that it is too late to call another convention, and so accepts, to "save the party." But it is by no means certain that he will succeed. Judge Folger is himself above suspicion, but the "bossing" of the politics of the State by the friends of the administration, and their dishonesty, is causing a serious revolt, led by such men as Geo. W. Curtis, Sherman S. Rogers, and many others, which promises poorly for the success of the party in that State. A. B. Hepburn, nominated by the State convention for Congressman-at-large, declines to run, believing that a new convention should be called.

IN 1879, when Butler last ran for Governor, the vote stood as follows: Long 122,757, Butler 109,149, Adams 9989, Eddy 1645, scattering 108. Long's majority over Butler, 13,602; over all, 1860. We doubt very much whether Butler can poll the full Democratic vote this year, for a good many of the old-liners are more likely not to vote at all, than to vote for him; and even if he could, it is hard to see any chance for his election. Republicans and Independents will certainly shun him, when they can vote for Bishop, a man whose public record stands out so clearly and honorably when compared with Butler's as to seriously dwarf the latter, and completely spike all of the General's campaign guns. The Republicans will go solidly for Bishop, that's certain—and that will elect him.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Henry Ward Beecher will not vote for Folger.

Congressmen Rice and Russell have been renominated by acclamation.

The Republican county convention will be held at Springfield on the 18th inst.

Hon. R. T. Davis of Fall River has been nominated to succeed Congressman Crapo.

It is intimated that Senator Jones of Nevada will be the next secretary of the treasury.

Speaker Noyes will not run for the Legislature again, and Clerk Marden would like his place.

The world moves. Jay Hubbell begins to explain that his threatening assessment circulars do not mean anything.

The Connecticut town elections on Monday resulted in votes favoring liquor licenses in a majority of the towns.

The Greenbackers of the 7th district have nominated E. Moody Boynton for Congress. He must appreciate the high honor.

Seventy-two speakers have been engaged by the Republican State Committee for the campaign, including both the Maine senators.

The Connecticut Democrats have nominated Thomas M. Waller of New London for Governor, and adopted an interminably long platform.

Oliver Ames and Edgar J. Sherman, candidates for lieutenant governor and attorney general respectively, accept their nomination briefly with thanks.

It is given out that ex-Secretary Blaine will not seek the next Presidential nomination, but "would not decline it if tendered him." You just bet he wouldn't.

The Democrats are growing uneasy because of Butler's delay in accepting his nomination. They would be terribly "broke up" if he should decline. But he won't.

Half a million medallions of Gen. Butler are being made for him at Chicopee, it is said. They are probably to be worn by the faithful. Imagine Judge Abbott with one around his neck!

It took the Republicans of the 6th district two days and nights, with 131 ballots, to nominate a candidate for Congress. Elisha Converse of Malden is the man. His principal competitors were Henry Cabot Lodge and Rufus S. Frost. It is said that Lodge was killed by too much wire-pulling and too free use of money.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Frosty mornings.

Have you seen the new comet yet?

A. L. Hills has been off on a short trip to Sag Harbor this week.

Mrs. E. S. Brooks and daughter and Miss Willie Edgerton are spending a week or so at Boston.

E. Calkins and J. B. Shaw are taking the annual inventory at the State Primary School.

The new time table of the New London Northern Railroad will be found in another column.

When that new union station is built, will it have a clock tower, with a good clock in it? We hope so.

The trustees of the savings bank will hold their quarterly meeting at the banking rooms next Monday, at 10 a. m.

The trustees of the State Primary School had a meeting at the institution last night, and spent the night there.

Rev. P. Hunter, Jr., of the Hartford Theological Seminary, will preach at the Congregational church to-morrow.

Hon. C. L. Gardner and family will start next Monday on a three weeks' trip to Iowa and other parts of the West.

Section Master McQuaid, of the Boston & Albany Railroad, started on Thursday for a week's vacation at his old home in Vermont.

Boston & Albany Railroad stock is now selling at 175. It don't seem to have depreciated much in value since the State sold out its share.

R. L. Hathaway is canvassing the town with the life of the late Rev. E. H. Chapin, D. D., of New York, which is meeting with a large sale.

John Kelly of New York, the Tammany chief, passed through Palmer yesterday, on his way to and from Stafford Springs, where he addressed the farmers.

R. M. Porter of Springfield has the contract for building L. E. Moore's new house on Knox street, and begins work at once. The slating will be done by W. H. Hitchcock.

Hitchcock, the shoemaker, has out a new sign. So also has Milligan, the shoe dealer, and the Mansion House has a couple of new ones on the Walnut street side of the block.

E. J. Wood has, in competition with Springfield parties, secured the contract to furnish and hang the paper in the six new blocks at Three Rivers, built this season by the Palmer Mill.

Landlord S. J. Stone, of the Mansion House, entertained the Boudsville band with an oyster supper last Saturday evening, and the band played several airs on the balcony of the hotel.

Another trot has been arranged to come off on the park in this place next week Saturday, this time between Joseph Thompson's "Nettie" and A. J. Northrop's six-years-old mare, for a purse of $500.

Ole Crawford wrenched his back by an unlucky slip while unloading express matter at Brattleboro last Saturday, and has been laying off this week, to give his spinal column a chance to stiffen up again.

Lawyer Strong has concluded to set his new Main street block four feet further back from the street than was originally intended, bringing it in line with the adjoining buildings, and allowing room for a wider sidewalk.

Nine ladies sat down together to supper in this village Thursday evening, whose ages aggregate seven hundred and five years. For jollity and wit it would be difficult to assemble a like number who would excel these.

Now for hunting. The law is off on woodcock, upland plover, partridges, pigeons, wood duck, gray squirrels and rabbits, and the hunter who is so fortunate as to come across any of these may bag them, if his aim is good and he is near enough.

J. W. Mason of this place has the sympathy of many friends in the double bereavement which has come to him in the death this week of his mother and one sister; while another sister is very low with consumption. Mr. Mason started for Chicago last evening.

The pulpit in the Baptist church has been brought down and forward to the edge of the main platform, and the small platform on which it previously stood removed, so that the preacher can now step around untrammeled by the fear of going off the platform in an unguarded moment.

Hampden chapter of Masons had an exemplification of work Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the visit of D. D. G. M. Farnsworth of Worcester, after which, to the number of over 30, they sat down to a nice supper prepared by Landlord Stone of the Nassowanno House.

There were one or two omissions in the awards of premiums on poultry at the recent agricultural fair, as at first reported. As corrected, Rev. O. R. Hunt of this place receives the first premium of $2 for Plymouth Rocks, and G. A. Holcomb is awarded a gratuity of $1 for Game Fowls.

There were 74 guests registered at the Nassowanno House on Wednesday, and over 40 the day before. A good many of the more pretentious hotels in the cities would be glad to show as good a register as that, but there are quantities of them which do not begin to furnish as excellent accommodations in every respect as does mine host Stone.

P. B. Johnson of this place has been awarded the contract for building the new Congregational church at Holyoke, which is to be of Longmeadow freestone. The contract price is $50,300, though the frescoing, heating, etc., will carry the cost up to $60,000. Work will be begun at once, and it will probably take a year and a half to complete it.

The addition to the post office is now receiving the finishing touches at the painters' hands, and will be ready for occupancy in a few days. Postmaster Knox has not perfected his plans yet, but will probably put in an entirely new set of boxes, and if the room will allow, will make the new entrance the only one to the office, having the boxes face toward Walnut street.

John H. Galleher, the popular freight clerk at the Boston & Albany freight office, has resigned his position, and will in a few days remove to Norwich, where he becomes a member of the new firm of Welden, Stark & Co., young men who have just bought out the dry goods store of C. B. Platt & Co. Mr. Galleher's successor in the freight office will be George A. Rice of Westfield, formerly of the New London Northern freight office in this place.

Administration was granted at Tuesday's session of the probate court, in Springfield, on the estates of Mary O'Neal of Palmer, Patrick M. Shea administrator; Martha W. Bosworth of Palmer, Helen K. Dixon administratrix. Wills approved of Lucy McLean of Ludlow, Francis F. McLean executor; Asa J. Beebe of Monson, C. R. Dudley executor. S. S. Taft was appointed guardian of George A. Robbins of Holland, and Ellen O'Neal of Katie, Lizzie and Mary O'Neal of Palmer.

The Clipper base ball club of Ware and the East Brookfields came together on the park in this village last Saturday afternoon, and played a game of ball, in which the East Brookfields were victorious. The Clippers led for awhile, and but for loose playing would undoubtedly have won the game. Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed by the friends of the Clippers at some of the umpire's decisions, but on the whole it is generally believed that he was as partial to one club as the other.

The five-mile race between Jos. Thompson's "Nettie" and S. J. Stone's "Jimmie" drew a crowd of about 200 to the park last Saturday afternoon, and was won by "Nettie," she taking the lead at the start and keeping it through the race. The time made was about 17 minutes. After this race there was a trot between two horses, "Roxy" and "Slippery Elm," owners unknown, which "Roxy" won in three straight heats. Time 3, 3.01, 3.02. The other horses advertised did not put in an appearance, and the running race was given up, there being no entries.

Joseph Baum, an attache of Main's circus, was sent to jail last week Friday by Judge Shaw, for larceny of shirts from the clothesline of Samuel Brown. On Saturday Eugene Shorley, for assault on Emma Miller, was fined $1 and costs; appealed. In the matter of the Sunday assault upon Patrick J. Sullivan of Monson, by Michael Welsh, John Lyons and Henry Murphy, the court on Wednesday discharged the first-named, finding the others guilty, and ordered a fine of $3, and costs divided between them. The court remarked that all the parties, complainant, defendants and witnesses, deserved punishment for their flagrant violation of the Sunday law.

The following, from an exchange, is so eminently sensible, that we copy it for the consideration of our readers, especially the business men: "In all towns where a newspaper is published, every man should advertise in it, even if nothing more than a card, stating his name and the business he is engaged in. It not only pays the advertiser, but lets the people at a distance know the town you reside in has a live and prosperous community of business men. A local paper which has but few announcements of local business men gives a bad impression to strangers, and although there may be a good number of merchants in the village, he at once concludes that it is a dead place, and leaves without further comment, or never comes to town because of the same impression. The local paper travels into nearly every State in the Union, and, first or last, falls into the hands of many enterprising business men, who are either attracted to the place or repulsed, according as the merchants are represented in its columns."

LUDLOW.

Albert Lyon has bought the farm known as the Dr. Caswell farm, for $1700.

THREE RIVERS.

The Three Rivers base ball club, champions of the town of Palmer for 1882, play no more this season. Their catcher, Daniel S. Merrill, was lately married, but will be ready to play again next season.

BRIMFIELD.

Henry F. Brown was elected a member of the district committee at the congressional convention in Worcester, Wednesday. Brimfield and her neighbors on the eastern border of Hampden county are not very well pleased at being set off to the 10th district, and they feel pretty lonesome and homesick.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

The Republican caucus is called for Wednesday evening, Oct. 11th, at 7½ o'clock, at Music hall, to choose delegates to the congressional, councilor, senatorial, county and representative conventions.

On the 20th ult. Eloise Stone entertained her friends on her 6th birthday. The party of little ones enjoyed the afternoon very much, taking their departure after tea, leaving behind them numerous pretty presents.

WILBRAHAM.

Pieria and Philo held an ice cream festival at Fisk Hall Tuesday evening, which was well attended.

Mrs. R. R. Wright and children of Denver, Col., is spending a few weeks with her father-in-law, R. R. Wright, Sr.

The Congregational society have voted to invite Rev. Rufus Underwood to labor with the church in the capacity of an evangelist, and assist the pastor, Rev. M. S. Howard, in a series of special meetings to be held a few weeks the coming season.

BELCHERTOWN.

The annual cattle show on Tuesday was a success as usual, and some 3000 people were on hand to enjoy the sights. In consequence of some local rivalries there were three bands, three public dinners, and two agricultural balls, but this superabundance of good things seemed to detract nothing from the enjoyment of the day. There was a good display of cattle, and the hall exhibition was better than usual. In the afternoon there was an interesting bicycle race, and a general parade of vehicles, in which everybody participated.

WALES.

The Hegan mill has shut down for a month to put in a new iron wheel in place of the old wooden one.

Eden D. Shaw has rented the Valley mill of his brother, Elijah Shaw, and will at once stock it and continue to make cloth.

The assessors figure up the total valuation of the town at $378,514—real estate $272,475, personal $106,039. Rate of taxation $13.40. The number of polls is 263.

A tenement house owned by Elijah Shaw and occupid by Joseph Gouly was found to be on fire at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The fire was discovered by neighbors, who saw smoke coming out of the chamber windows. It originated between the clapboards and the plastered ceiling, which was perfectly tight. The fire ran up between two studs to the attic, and but for timely assistance the house would have been burned. The house was damaged about $50 worth. The cause of the fire was attributed to rats, as several matches were found in the ceiling near by, in a rat's nest made of cotton, nuts, shells, etc.

WARREN.

Dr. Gay has purchased J. B. Gould's house on Maple street.

The farmers have raised on their milk to thirty-five cents a can at the milk depot.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" in the town hall Friday evening had a good house, as usual.

Dr. Wm. H. Shepard, of Westminister, has been spending a few days in town, being out of health and unable to practice.

The members of Post 63, G. A. R., had an entertainment in the town hall Thursday evening, which consisted of singing, recitations, tableaux, etc.

The musical society met at Brigham's hall Tuesday evening, and organized for the coming winter. It is hoped there may be a good attendance this season.

The Star course of lectures opens the 16th inst. with Miss Ella Chamberlain and the Amherst Glee Club, who were much enjoyed at their concert last winter here.

The remains of Mr. Demond of Spencer were brought here and interred in our cemetery. He will be greatly missed from his home and friends, and those with whom he has been associated.

THORNDIKE.

A fence is soon to surround the new school house.

The new tenement opposite the new mill is nearly completed.

The two tenement houses on the new street will be finished by the beginning of next month.

The public schools in the village have now an intermission at noon from 11.30 a. m. to 1 p. m., to accommodate children living at a distance.

Means have been appropriated by the Congregational Sunday school to refurnish its library. The penny contribution for benevolent objects is over $50.

"Extremes meet," but it is very rare that our factories are troubled for want of water one day, with back water the next. The Ware River suddenly rose a week ago last Sunday morning, from the low to the high water mark. It is seldom higher in the spring freshets.

Many repairs are being done by property owners, by way of shingling and painting. The town fathers have done an excellent job in retouching the bridges by the old mill. The Thorndike Co. have also been painting some of their buildings. It would be a very fine thing for the external improvement of the village if this spirit were more contagious.

WARE AND VICINITY.

Miss Buffington, teacher at East street, is sick, and Miss Emma Glines is acting as substitute.

G. D. Utley is putting up a nice two-tenement house on land recently purchased on Church street.

Michael J. McArdle has been convicted of selling liquor at the Barre cattle show, and fined $50 and costs.

Levi W. Robinson has resigned the office of deputy sheriff, to take effect when his successor is appointed, which has not been done as yet.

Miss Hannah Lanagan, who died on Sunday last, aged 94, was supposed to be the oldest person in town, but there is one other who claims to be 97.

The Methodist society have graded the lot recently bought adjoining their church, put up a new fence, and are about to commence some needed repairs on the church.

The Good Templars had their first open meeting of the season last Monday night. It is proposed to hold them each month, the exercises consisting of singing, speaking, etc.

The exceptions of Owen F. McMahon have been overruled by the supreme judicial court, and he will be brought before the court in December for sentence. This was one of the liquor cases which were tried at Northampton last June, which called forth the remark that our selectmen had been badly sold in making the prosecution.

The New Haven papers have an extensive account of the marriage of Dr. E. H. Guild of Ware and Miss Laura E. Maslen, at her home in New Haven, at 6 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 27th, E. H. Gilbert of Ware acting as "best man." The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. S. Lines, of St. Paul's church. The house was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. The large number of bridal presents were of unusual elegance and beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Guild left New Haven the same evening for New York, returning to their home in Ware on Tuesday of this week. A grand reception was given to the newly-married couple at their residence on Pleasant street Thursday evening.

Our community were saddened on Monday morning by the intelligence of the death of Walter L. Demond, cashier of the Spencer National Bank, early Sunday morning, at the age of 34. Although he had resided in Spencer for some years, Ware people seemed loth to give him up to that place, somehow feeling that his home was here, where he had spent his early days. He was for some time the local editor of the STANDARD, and correspondent for the Springfield Republican. The following, which we all know to be true, we quote from Monday's Republican: In the death of Walter L. Demond, cashier of the Spencer National Bank, early yesterday morning at the age of 34, after some months of failing health because of Bright's disease, that community loses a citizen of irreproachable character and more than ordinary ability, a man who by his sunny temperament and ingenuous nature could not help winning friends. He was the youngest member of one of Ware's best known and most respected families, and was educated in the local schools and at Monson academy. He was particularly fortunate in gaining his business training in the Ware National Bank under such a man as William Hyde, and he became assistant cashier of that institution not long after reaching his majority, being transferred a few years later to the charge of the Spencer bank. He was faithful to all his trusts and noted for a scrupulous nicety in busines matters and a conscientiousness which entered into all the relations of life. He was an enthusiastic worker in the church and Sunday school. He leaves a widow and three children.

THIRTY-FOUR drunkards were arrested on the grounds of the Bristol County Agricultural Society at its recent fair in Taunton, and Judge Fox, before whom they were brought, animadverted severely upon the selling of liquor on the fair grounds, saying that the society, "instead of receiving a bounty from the State as a beneficent institution, ought to be indicted for keeping a liquor and a gambling nuisance." The officers are naturally stirred up by this arraignment, but they do not disprove it, and any agricultural society which permits liquor to be sold on its grounds certainly ought to be indicted.

The supreme court of Connecticut has decided that women are eligible to membership in the bar of that State, and Mary Hall, by virtue of this decision, will be admitted to practice law in Hartford county. Women have been already admitted to practise law in Missouri, California, and the District of Columbia, and may practice before the supreme court of the United States after three years' practice in the highest courts of any State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia.

Dea. Edwin Chase, a leading citizen and lumber dealer of Holyoke, died last week Friday, at the age of 69 years, of paralysis. Dea. Chase was a prominent and active Baptist, and was one of the founders of the Second Baptist church in that city. A genial, wholesouled and earnest man, he was always ready for any duty, and for many years had made a point of being on hand in the church vestibule, Sundays, ready to welcome every comer with a pleasant word and cordial hand-grasp. He had filled many offices of trust, including those of county commissioner and councilor, and filled them well. He leaves a wife and seven children, one of whom, Henry A., succeeded him in the office of county commissioner, which he now occupies.

Bridgewater people are much exercised over the marriage last week in Providence of Henry A. Blake and Carrie E. The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Benson recently proved in the case of Emperor William and others that in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times. o

The reason why E. Brigham & Son are headquarters for fine clothing in Springfield is because they do keep a finer line of overcoats and suits in their ready-made department than any place in the city. Ladies who have visited their youth's and boy's department have expressed their surprise at the elegant fit they can get for their boys. One lady remarked: "Boys' ready-made suits generally seem to be made for fat boys; yours fit as if the boy had been measured for them." They ask all who purpose buying ready-made suits and who appreciate a good fit to give them a call. Material and workmanship as good as custom; but these goods were made up in dull times and bought in large lots for cash, therefore they can sell them to you at a bargain—little more than you would pay for trash.

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that

STEINWAY & SONS

Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of

PIANOS AND ORGANS

Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

The Impossible.

Man cannot draw water from an empty well,
Or trace the stories that gossips tell,
Or gather the sounds of a pealing bell.

Man can never stop the billows' roar,
Nor chain the winds till they blow no more,
Nor drive true love from a maiden's door.

Man cannot o'ertake a fleeting lie,
Change his wheat to a field of rye,
Or call back years that have gone by.

Man can never bribe old father Time,
Gain the height of a peak that he cannot climb,
Or trust the hand that hath done a crime.

Man cannot a cruel word recall,
Fetter a thought, be it great or small,
Or honey extract from a drop of gall.

Man can never backward turn the tide,
Or count the stars that are scattered wide,
Or find in a fool a trusty guide.

Man cannot reap fruit from worthless seed,
Rely for strength on a broken reed,
Or gain a heart he has caused to bleed.

Man can never hope true peace to win,
Pleasure without and joy within,
Living a thoughtless life of sin.

RECREATIONS OF CHILDREN.

The utter abandonment of children to sport, whenever they are allowed unguarded recreation, is an evident reason why they so profit by their play; why they far outgo older persons in elastic recoveries from illness. The soul of childhood, in its little, fresh grown, and growing body, is not yet deeply intensified and wearied by maturer efforts or disappointments.

Undoubtedly another reason of their elastic rebound when set free from study, illness, or work, is that the clothing of children, especially little girls, is lighter and looser than that of women. What is so pretty in costume as the child's simple yoke with its gathered and flowing, or flying skirt, light and untrimmed, that sometimes, by fashion's happiest freak, is the midsummer garb of the little one. The shoulder-bows weigh no more than Cupid's wings, not with the addition of the ribbon that is woven into the braided hair, and has streamers that wave on the wind—the pennant of childhood—or is tied around the head, a classic band, to confine the abundant hair that is unruly from its very vitality.

Art has devised no better apparatus for the exercise of the juvenile muscle, wealth has no grander gymnastic hall, science has invented no equal ventilation and no method of warming the young gymnast, than are provided by Nature the builder, who furnished the dense and wild woods of the mountain; the giant grape-vine for a jumping-rope that costs nothing but the delight of discovering it; and for a swing, the stout vine severed but not detached, or better, the long limb of a vigorous tree. Then it is a climb and a jump, or a bounce and a companion's push—and off we go—off, off; starting from near earth, and swinging away out on the steep hill-side, over depths that deepen with every inch we sail. Then come the laugh and the ho! and hallo! and it all disturbs no one, and scares no one but the birds and the squirrels. That is the sort of air that paints the lips and the cheek with the best of flesh tints, and makes the big broad Men of the Mountains; and makes the fit mothers of Presidents and statesmen—makes mothers of genius and power.—Anna Ballard, in Outing for October.

WHISTLING.

If the mere act of whistling can help and cheer a man so much why should it be denied to a woman? If whistling will drive away the blues and be company for a lonesome person, surely women have much more need of its services than their brothers, for to them come many more such occasions than to men. There are many who have not the gift of song. Why shonld they not whistle as they rock the cradle or perform their household duties, or accompany themselves on the piano? But there is a physical or hygienic advantage in whistling which should excuse it against all the canons of propriety or "good form." It is often remarked that the average girl is so narrow-chested, and in that respect compares so unfavorably with her brother. May this not be due in some measure to this habit of whistling which every boy acquires as soon as he arrives at the dignity of pants, and girls seldom do? Let any one try for five minutes the inhaling and exhaling of the breath as occurs in the act of whistling, and the effect on the lungs and chest cannot fail to be noticed. A daily practice of this kind would be of more benefit than all the patent inspirators and chest expanders in the market. An eminent medical authority says, 'All the men whose business is to try the wind instruments made at the various factories before sending them off for sale, are, without exception, free from pulmonary affections. I have known many who, when entering upon this calling, were very delicate, and who, nevertheless, though their duty obliged them to blow for hours together, enjoyed perfect health after a certain time.' The action of blowing wind instruments is the same as that of whistling, consequently the effect should be the same, according to the amount of exercise taken.—Phrenological Journal.

It was a Boston lady who described her faithless lover's mouth as 'stretching across the wide desolation of his face, the sepulchre of ice cream and geyser of falsehood.'—Vanity Fair.

Simpson says that when he asked the girl who is now his wife, to marry him, she said: 'I don't mind,' and that she never minded.

The greatest evidence of demoralization is the respect paid to wealth.

What we are at home is a pretty sure test of what we really are.

A nod from a millionaire is a breakfast for a fool.

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

For GEN. DODGE'S bran' new book, entitled

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

AGENTS! This grand book is now outselling all others 10 to 1. No competition. Agents average 10 to 20 orders a day. We want 1000 more agents at once. Exclusive territory and special terms given. Our large circulars with full particulars sent free. A fine specimen plate sent in addition for a 3-cent stamp. Address the sole publishers, A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., 16w27 HARTFORD, CONN.

FOR SALE OR TO RENT!

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD.

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST!

GOOD SUCCESS TO THE

BOSTON SHOE STORE.

The season is again advancing, and the managers of the Boston Shoe Store are continually receiving new and desirable goods for Spring and Summer trade, and with the patronage given them are surely convincing their customers that the

BEST BOOTS AND SHOES ARE THE CHEAPEST

To buy. Their fine line of Spring goods will far exceed any season they met. They have put in stock a fine line of J. L. Joyce & Co's. Gent's Low and High Cut Side Lace Boots; for fit and style they cannot be equaled. They have a complete line of O. Kendall's Pegged and Sewed Boots, and can fit the broadest as well as the narrowest feet. For these special lines of goods they have the exclusive sale for this town. They have greatly increased their

WALL PAPER DEPARTMENT,

And are prepared to show one of the neatest selections that can be seen in town, as their goods are all new and from the best New England manufactories. In Lamps they have a nice line, and will sell low for cash.

They have also the agency for the

GENUINE

SINGER SEWING MACHINE,

which they will sell for cash or on time. They will also swap and take as part payment old machines. Have always on hand a full supply of MACHINE FINDINGS, such as Shuttles, Needles, Rubbers, &c., &c.

Thanking the public for past favors, and hoping to receive a continuance of the same,

We remain yours truly,

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its healing effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

From the Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is at once a most annoying and very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Another striking case is now added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked for him. Toward the end of last January Mr. Lawler called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding him, the Dr. "struck stone." He decided that Mr. Lawler should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb. 6," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorders of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1 a bottle. 26

DARBYS

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by
Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia;
Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York;

FINE JOB PRINTING AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

Madam PaDro, LADIES' HAIR DRESSING and SHAMPOOING ROOMS. Plain & Ornamental. Hair work made to order. 310 Main St., Springfield.

Somebody's Mother.

The woman was old, and ragged and gray,
And bent with the chill of the winter's day;

The street was wet with the recent snow,
And the woman's feet were aged and slow.

She stood at the crossing and waited long,
Alone, uncared for, amid a throng

Of human beings who passed her by,
Nor heeded the glance of her anxious eye.

Down the street with laughter and shout,
Glad in the freedom of school let out,

Came the boys like a flock of sheep,
Hailing the snow piled high and deep.

Past the woman so old and gray,
Hastened the children on their way,

Nor offered a helping hand to her
So meek, so timid, afraid to stir

Lest the carriage wheels or horses' feet
Should crowd her down in the slippery street.

At last came one of the merry troop—
The gayest laddie of all the group.

He paused beside her and whispered low:
"I'll help you across if you wish to go."

Her aged hand on his strong young arm
She placed, and, without a hurt or harm,

He guided the trembling feet along,
Proud that his own were firm and strong.

Then back again to his friends he went,
His young heart happy and well content.

"She's somebody's mother, boy's, you know,
For all she's old, and poor and slow;

"And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand,

"If ever she's old, and poor, and gray,
When her own dear boy is far away."

And "somebody's mother" bowed low her head
In her home that night, and the prayer she said

Was "God be kind to the noble boy
Who is somebody's son, and pride, and joy."

SANDY JIM.

'Tain't no more use'n 'twould be to send mission'ries to the monkeys,' said Sarah Ann, as the door closed after the master of the house.

'What is of no use, Sarah Ann?' I asked, with interest; for Sarah Ann is a woman of somewhat original opinions.

'Why, tryin' to help such people as Sandy Jim and his mother,' said she. 'It's like throwing sugar into the sea; if you should put in a thousand barrels at once, I don't s'pose you'd change the taste—anyhow, 'twould be salt as ever the next time it came up; and that's just as much good as 'twill do tryin' to sweeten Sandy Jim. He's bad through and through, and Mr. Keepon's wastin' his sugar on him.'

'I'm afraid that's literal truth, Sarah Ann,' said I, knowing that Josiah had that morning taken half a dollar's worth of sugar and a pound of tea to Sandy Jim's mother— for Josiah is one of those unselfish men who will put themselves to any amount of inconvenience for the sake of doing a kindness. It is one of his pet theories that any heart, however hardened, may be reached and helped, if only the right influences can be brought to bear upon it; and he is constantly putting his theory to test in his work among the street Arabs. To one he appeals through books, to another through music; and he seemed to think that the surest way of reaching Sandy Jim was through sugar and tea for his mother.

Jim was an overgrown, sallow complexioned boy of fourteen, with yellow hair, and dull protruding eyes. Altogether, he was to look at, one of the most disagreeable specimens of boyhood that I have ever encountered. Our acquaintance with him began at the wharf. We had gone to the boat to say good-by to a party of friends, and as we stood exchanging the last words, a splash was heard at the side of the vessel, followed instantly with the cry, 'A child overboard!' Before we had fairly comprehended that it was our own little Phil, a gaunt figure leaped from the pier, and the next instant the child was handed up to Josiah, dripping and frightened, but otherwise unharmed; and from that day to this, though he rewarded him at the time with a five-dollar bill, Josiah has always seemed to feel that Sandy Jim has a claim upon us.

'He saved our boy, Deborah, and we must do what we can to save him,' he said one day, when I was inclined to remonstrate on what seemed to me a waste of kindness, as well as of sugar and tea.

'If there was anything to him to save, it might be worth while,' said Sarah Ann, who always felt privileged to speak her mind, and who had been particularly incensed with what she calls Jim's 'coolness;' for not content with our free-will offerings, Jim boldly presented himself at least once a week to ask for additional contributions. 'If he hed a sperit worth savin', he'd be above such meanness; and as for his mother, she ain't washed for us once this summer that there wasn't something missin' when she was through.'

But Josiah refused to be discouraged. He started Jim in business as a bootblack, and prevailed upon him, with the promise of a new suit of clothes, to attend both his night school and Bible class. In fact, he constituted himself the boy's guardian, and, though he had to bail him out of prison, where he had been lodged for disorderly conduct, he did not abandon the hope of ever reclaiming him.

'There must be something in him worth saving, or he would never have dashed into the water as he did after Phil,' he said, in answer to Sarah Ann's argument; and when I looked at Phil, my precious darling, I, too, was moved with a desire to rescue him, and for Jim's sake was willing to continue to employ his mother, in spite of sundry missing articles and Sarah Ann's expostulations.

But this labor of love came suddenly to an end. One day as we sat at breakfast, the morning paper—that merciless revealer of the wickedness of the world—brought an account of a robbery that had been committed the previous night, and named Sandy Jim and his mother as the chief offenders.

'I shall go at once and see if there is any truth in it,' said Josiah, pushing back his chair; 'it doesn't seem possible Jim would do it.'

But on reaching the wretched hovel that Jim and his mother called 'home,' he found that their guilt had been clearly proved, and that the mother had already been taken to prison, while Jim had cheated justice by taking himself to parts unknown.

'I told you so!' cried Sarah Ann, with the triumph of an astute and narrow mind; 'I knew well enough how it would end.'

And I must confess that I, too, was inclined to feel that it was only what might have been expected, but Josiah's look of disappointment kept me silent.

'I had no strong hopes for the mother, but I did think perhaps we could save the boy,' he said regretfully.

A year went by, and Sandy Jim and his mother ceased to be mentioned in the family except by Sarah Ann, who could not resist the temptation occasionally to refer to them as an example of misplaced confidence, when there came, one evening, a messenger from the city prison, saying that one of the prisoners was lying at the point of death, and wanted to see Mr. Keepon.

'You had better go with me, my dear,' said Josiah; and when we reached the prison we found that it was Sandy Jim's mother who had sent the message.

'I know'd you'd come!' she cried seizing Josiah's hand. 'He's been here every week to see me, ma'am, and he's been so patient like and forgivin' to me, that I can't help feelin' may be the Lord'll be patient and forgivin' too.'

It touched me to know that Josiah had kept right on without saying a word to any one; but it was like him.

'Perhaps it has not been quite in vain, after all,' he said, wistfully, as we followed the old woman to her grave; 'but I did want to save Jim.'

Some three years later we were journeying westward, and during a temporary delay, one of the brakemen chanced to pass through the car which our party was occupying. He was a tall young man, with something painfully familiar in his carroty head and protruding eyes.

'How much he looks like Sandy Jim!' I said to myself; and at that moment, catching sight of Josiah, his sallow face lighted up, and springing forward, with both hands outstretched, he exclaimed:

'Maybe you don't know me, Mr. Keepon, but I know you. I'm Jim—'Sandy Jim' as they used to call me, Mr. Keepon; but I ain't exactly the same boy that I was in those days, sir. After I had got away, says I to myself, 'You'd ought to be ashamed of yourself, Sandy,' sez I, 'and he a-prayin' and a-workin' for you, day in and day out!' and with that I just made up my mind to take a new start, and the Lord helpin' me, sir, I mean to continue.'

There was a shriek from the engine, and Sandy Jim, with a farewell grip of Josiah's hand, hastened back to his post, while Josiah drew out his handkerchief and turned his face to the window.

'He's one of the steadiest hands on the road,' said the conductor, in answer to our inquiries concerning Jim, 'and he's been working for us two years and over.' I'll take it back,' said Sarah Ann, when she heard the story. 'I never had no faith in that verse about 'castin' bread on the water;' it allers seemed to me a good deal more likely to go to the bottom than it was to come to you; but it kinder seems as if it had come true for once, in Sandy Jim's case.'—Good Work.

RAKING IN THE POT.

For several years many of the residents of a certain village in Pennsylvania had been predicting that old man S. was slowly dying of consumption, and in March last bets of three to one were freely offered that he would not outlive the summer. About the first of April the old man went to Philadelphia to be examined by the doctors to see if his case was as bad as thought for, and after an absence of several days he returned very quietly, called his eldest son in from the barn, and said:

'Peter, it is generally believed by our neighbors that I have consumption.'

'Yes, father.'

'And that a few more weeks will plant me under the daisies.'

'That's what they say, father.'

'Well, you get up early to-morrow and you go out and bet my watch and my horse and my gun and my buggy and this house and lot, and all the money we can scrape up and borrow, that I don't turn up my toes for a year. Bet even; bet two to one; bet any way you can, for Providence has sent up this occasion as a harvest.'

'But we may lose, father!'

'Lose, you idi't! Why, we'll scoop in every dollar that this town can raise, for seven different doctors agreed that I've got the dyspepsy instead of consumption, and am good for a dozen years yet!'—Wall Street News.

POULTRY-YARD TALK.

A young cock and a hen were speaking of the size of eggs. Said the cock:

'I once laid an egg—'

'Oh, you did!' interrupted the hen, with a derisive cackle. 'Pray how did you manage it?'

The cock felt injured in his self-esteem, and turning his back upon the hen, addressed himself to a brood of young chickens:

'I once laid an egg—'

The chickens chirped incredulously and passed on. The insulted bird reddened in the wattles with indignation, and strutting up to the patriarch of the entire barn-yard, repeated his assertion. The patriarch nodded gravely, as if the feat were an every-day affair, and the other continued:

'I once laid an egg alongside a watermelon, and compared the two. The vegetable was considerably the larger.'

This fable is intended to show the absurdity of not hearing all a man has to say before you reply.

Dust mixed with air is found to be, under certain conditions, a dangerous explosive. Thus if a large log of wood were ignited, it might be a week before it would be entirely consumed; split up into cord wood, and piled up loosely, it would, perhaps, burn in less than an hour; cut into shavings and allow a strong wind to throw them into the air—or in any way keep the chips comparatively well separated from each other—and the log would perhaps be consumed in two or three minutes; but if ground up into fine dust or powder, and blown in such a manner that each particle is surrounded by air, it would burn in less than a second.

The following touching illustration of the beauty of a sympathetic spirit is chronicled by the Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph: On a recent Sunday evening a stranger, tired and dusty, leaned against a lamp post at Rochester, while he inquired the distance to Farmington. 'Eight miles,' said a boy. 'Are you sure it is as far as that?' The boy, with his big heart overflowing with the milk of human kindness, replied, 'Well, seeing you are pretty all-fired tired, I will call it seven miles.'

Early Rising. Archbishop Whately was one day asked if he rose early. He replied that once he did, but he was so proud all the morning, and so sleepy all the afternoon, that he determined never to do it again.

'Alas! that so many people look upon religion simply as a fire-escape!' exclaims a Southern preacher.

Forfeits.

They sent him round the circle fair,
To bow before the prettiest there.
I'm bound to say the choice he made
A creditable taste displayed;
Although—I can't say what it meant—
The little maid looked ill-content.

His task was then anew begun—
To kneel before the wittiest one.
Once more that little maid sought he,
And went him down upon his knee.
She bent her eyes upon the floor—
I think she thought the game a bore.

He circled then—his sweet behest
To kiss the one he loved the best.
For all she frowned, for all she chid,
He kissed the little maid, he did.
And then—though why I can't decide—
The little maid looked satisfied.

A GOOD READER.

There is one accomplishment, in particular, which I would earnestly recommend to you.

Cultivate assiduously the ability to read well. I stop to particularize this, because it is so elegant, charming, and lady-like an accomplishment. Where one person is really interested by music, twenty are pleased by good reading. Where one person is capable of becoming a skillful musician, twenty may become good readers. Where there is one occasion suitable for the exercise of musical talent, there are twenty for that of good reading.

The culture of the voice necessary for reading well gives a delightful charm to the same voice in conversation. Good reading is the natural exponent and vehicle of all good things. It is the most effective of all commentaries upon the works of genius. It seems to bring dead authors to life again, and makes us sit down familiarly with the great and good of all ages.

Did you ever notice what life and power the Holy Scriptures have when well read? Have you ever heard the wonderful effects produced by Elizabeth Fry on the criminals of Newgate, by simply reading to them the parable of the Prodigal Son? Princess and peers of the realm, it is said, counted it a privilege to stand in the dismal corridors, among felons and murderers, merely to share with them the privilege of witnessing the marvelous pathos which genius, taste, and culture could infuse into that simple story.

What a fascination there is in really good reading! What a power it gives one! In the hospital, in the chamber of the invalid, in the nursery, in the domestic and in the social circles, amongst chosen friends and companions, how it enables you to minister to the amusement, the comfort, the pleasure of dear ones, as no other accomplishment can. No instrument of man's devising can reach the heart as does that most wonderful instrument, the human voice. It is God's special gift and endowment to his chosen creatures. Fold it not away in a napkin.

If you would double the value of all your other acquisitions, if you would add immeasurably to your own enjoyment and to your power of promoting the enjoyment of others, cultivate with incessant care this divine gift. No music below the skies is equal to that of pure, silvery speech from the lips of a man or woman of high culture.—John S. Hart.

KICKING FROLICS.

Our grandparents were hard workers. With them neither the farm nor the house knew aught of labor-saving machines. It was rough work for the men out of doors and it was hard work for the women in doors. Families thought to better themselves by moving out West. It was jumping from the frying-pan into the fire. Indians put a rifle on the farmer's shoulder, and necessity forced his faithful wife to seek out many inventions. She clothed her children in tow frocks, and dressed herself and husband in linsey-woolsey, if she could get wool to mix with the flax. As her sheep increased she made their wool into flannels. But there were no fulling-mills, and so her woman's wit invented 'kicking frolics' for fulling her flannels. She invited all the men in the neighborhood to visit her cabin on a certain evening. They came to find a mass of woolen web, saturated with soap and water, in the center of the washed cabin floor. Seating themselves about the soapy mass, with naked feet and rolled-up trousers, they began kicking it vigorously. The desire to kick the hardest kept the living fulling-mill at its best work, while laughing women poured soap and water on the woolen mass. The spirit of fun and frolic prevailed, and many feet made light work. At last, when the flannel had been thoroughly fulled, and the men and women saturated with soap and water, a homely supper was served, and the 'kicking frolic' closed up.

COULDN'T MAKE HIM HEAR.

'I doan' know vhat I shall do mit dat telervone uff mine,' observed a citizen as he entered the headquarters of the company recently and sat down in a discouraged way.

'Out of order, is it?'

'Sometimes it vhas, und sometimes it vhas all right. If I go to shpeak mit der coal man, or der City Hall, or der butcher, it vhas all right, und I can hear efery word. If somebody vants to order my peer I get der name shust as blain as daylight.'

'And when does it fail?'

'Vhell, shust like two hours ago. A saloon man he owes me $18, und I rings him oop und calls oud: 'Hello! hello! I likes dot monish to-day!' Den he vhants to know who I am, und he says he can't catch der name. I dell him oafer und oafer, und by und by he calls oud dat he doan' deal in watermelons, und dot he goes in to pave Gratiot street, und dot he is sorry he can't sign my bedition to der Council. Den I haf to go all oafer again, und he dells me to shtand back, und come closer, und to shpeak louder, und at lasht he gets mad und dells me dot if I call him a dandy again he'll proke my head. It's no use—I can't make one of my customers hear me. If someding doan' ail my telervone it may be ash my voice is giving out. I vish you vould oxamine me und see if I had petter let my son Shon do der talking vile I keep der pooks.'

Hundreds of thousands of men die annually from strong drink.—Kansas Prohibitionist. We never undertake to criticise any other editor, but we do not believe that any man can die annually. Annually means every year, and no man can die every year for any great length of time, unless he has a great deal of practice and experience at the business.—Texas Siftings.

A Political Point—She cuddled up close to him and said with a sigh, 'Pa believes in free trade, but I am in favor of protection.' He ordered a dress suit the next morning.

HE CONQUERED.

Congregations are often brought to the brink of an explosion of mirth without knowing it. Such was the case in a Hartford church recently. The godly and eloquent pastor was in the midst of his powerful discourse. The large congregation hung upon his lips as he moved up to the climax of his argument. He, himself, was deeply absorbed in his work, as his ringing voice and forcible action showed.

Just then he somehow became aware of a distraction near at hand, and, glancing obliquely, espied a colossal wasp perched upon his left shoulder. A second glance was conclusive. The wasp was bridling and humping himself in a manner that meant mischief. He was in no haste, but, as if knowing his advantage, he leisurely performed those agile and ominous gymnastics which are the preparations and signals of assault. He would torment the helpless minister before stabbing him. All this the parson comprehended with concealed terror, meanwhile pushing along the vigor of his speech, and keeping up the boom of his discourse.

Mysterious is the complex movement of the human mind. Futile was the intimidation, fugacious the hope, vain the plan, fatal the delay, of that wasp. Procrastination and pride were his destruction. An inspiration seized the parson, now working double lines of thought. His plan was formed and executed with such a rapidity and success that the congregation were ignorant of the splendid strategy. Raising his voice to an unwonted strain, he swung his right arm around to that left shoulder, plucked the astonished wasp therefrom, placed him upon the desk, and, shouting in stentorian tones, 'Yes, my beloved hearers!' brought his clenched fist down upon the precise spot whereon his enemy lay with an energy that made the Bible leap, raised a cloud of dust from the cushion, and carried complete conviction both to the body of the wasp and the minds and hearts of the spellbound congregation. It was the climax of his discourse. So instantaneous was the manœuver executed that no one detected the real occasion of it, and the edified hearers remarked to one another, as they left the church, the uncommon earnestness and vigor of their beloved pastor's delivery that day.

LOGGING IN NEVADA.

A chute is laid from the river's brink up the steep mountains to the railroad, and while we are felling it, the monster logs are rushing, thundering, flying, leaping down the declivity. They come with the speed of a thunderbolt and somewhat of its roar. A track of smoke and fire follows them—fire struck by the friction with the chute logs. They descend the 1700 feet of the chute in fourteen seconds. In doing so they drop 700 feet perpendicularly. They strike the deep water with a report that can be heard a mile distant. Logs fired from a cannon could scarcely have a greater velocity than they have at the foot of the chute. The average velocity is over 100 feet in a second throughout the entire distance, and at the instant they leap from the mouth their speed is 200 feet per second.

A sugar-pine log sometimes weighs ten tons. What a missile! How the water is dashed into the air. Like a grand plume of diamonds and rainbows the feathery spray is hurled to the height of 100 feet. It forms the grandest fountain ever beheld. How the waters foam and seethe, and lash against the shore! One log having spent its force by its mad plunge into the deep waters, had floated so as to be at right angles with the path of the descending monsters. The mouth of the chute is perhaps fifteen feet above the surface of the water. A huge log, hurled from the chute, cleaves the air and alights on the floating log. You know how a bullet glances; but can you imagine a saw-log glancing? The end strikes with a heavy shock, but glides quickly past for a short distance, then with a crash like the reverberation of artillery, the falling log springs vertically into the air and with a curve like a rocket falls into the water, a long distance from the log it struck.—Detroit Free Press.

THE SWEETEST JOYS.

Very many of the sweetest joys of Christian hearts are songs which have been learned in the bitterness of trial. It is said of a little bird that he will never learn to sing the song his master will have him sing while it is light in his cage. He learns a snatch of every song he hears, but will not learn a full, separate melody of his own. And the master covers the cage and makes it dark all about the bird, and then he listens and learns the one song that is taught him, until his heart is full of it. Then, ever after, he sings that song in the light. With many of us it is as with the bird. The Master has a song He wants to teach us, but we learn only a strain of it, a note here and there, while we catch up snatches of the world's songs and sing them with it. Then He comes and makes it dark about us till we learn the sweet melody He would teach us. Many of the loveliest songs of peace and trust sung by God's children in this world, they have been taught in the darkened chambers of sorrow.—Christian Weekly.

'How did you come to get in jail?' asked a gentleman of a negro he saw behind the bars. 'Dey put me in heah fo' borryin' money from a friend.' 'Why, they can't do that, it is no crime to borrow money.' 'Yes, boss, but yer see I had ter knock him down several times before he would loan it ter me, an' then I had ter take it outen his pocket myself.' That is what Hubbell would call a voluntary contribution.—Texas Siftings.

Here is a new—at least not very old—story of Tom Marshall. Said the Woodford orator to a man whose wife he disliked: 'Bill, your wife is an ugly woman.' 'Well,' replied Bill, flushing up, 'that is her privilege.' 'Yes,' said Tom, 'but she abuses the privilege.'

The following 'notis' was recently posted in a church down in Darlington county, South Carolina: 'Notis Ther Will Bee A Gren Back Laber Meating At this Place on the 16 at 3 o'clock P M all hoo wants to soport the in dipenent ticket will Please at ten Promly.'

The daughter of a cattle king has just returned from Paris, where she says she has walked through the Toorralooral, and visited shottoe where she saw the statues of Physic and Catherine de Medical.—Boomerang.

Oh, that's too much of a good thing,' as the cat said when she fell into a pail of milk.

'Please hang up,' is the polite telephonic for 'hold your tongue.'

The Journal.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1882.

HOLYOKE now has a daily paper, the proprietors of the Transcript having begun the publication of a daily edition on Monday. The new paper is a five-column folio, neat and newsy, and its publishers have enough energy and the city a sufficient population to insure its success.

ARCHITECTS have decided that the stone-groined ceiling of the Assembly chamber in the capitol at Albany must be replaced with wood, or somebody will get hurt by its fall. And this in a new and yet incomplete building. This structure promises to be even more of an elephant than the Brooklyn bridge.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR had an imposing and enthusiastic reception at Boston, Wednesday. There was a grand parade in the forenoon, a public reception at Faneuil Hall in the afternoon, and a banquet and full dress reception at the Hotel Brunswick in the evening. On Thursday the President attended the Webster memorial exercises at Marshfield.

AT the congressional convention next week there will be nothing to do but renominate Congressman Robinson by acclamation. Councilor Woods having held his office for two terms will make room for somebody else, and it is generally understood that Wellington Smith of Lee is to be his successor. The county and senatorial conventions will renominate the present incumbents, of course, all of whom deserve and will receive a re-election. None of the conventions, it will be seen, will be overburdened with work.

OHIO was carried by the Democrats in Tuesday's election, by a majority of some 25,000. Speaker Keifer was re-elected, but the Democrats have gained ten members of Congress, and unless there are Republican gains in the elections still to come, the next House will be Democratic. The last Republican Legislature passed a law closing the liquor saloons on Sunday, and attempted to place a tax upon them. This caused a defection among the Germans, who united with the liquor interest and carried the State for free beer and no Sunday.

FRANK JAMES, the last of the notorious band of Missouri outlaws, walked into Gov. Crittenden's office last week Thursday and gave himself up. Having robbed and murdered people to his heart's content, or at least until the country was getting altogether too hot for him, this eminent cut-throat now surrenders through "consideration for his family and a desire to retrieve his name." He asks for amnesty, and expects to get it—and we wouldn't be surprised if he did. Just now he is the lion of the day, and people of every degree of prominence are calling upon him in jail. The Missourians are a queer people, surely.

GEN. BUTLER has concluded to accept his nomination to the governorship, as we all knew he would. His letter of acceptance appeared last Sunday, and we venture to say it was one of the most surprising sermons of the day to those who read it. The letter to the Democrats fills two columns and a half, and is devoted almost wholly to the discussion of national affairs, hardly a sixth of its space being given to State matters. It is really a very tame affair for the General to write, and his single attempt to arraign the Republicans of this State for extravagance and increasing taxation is a pitiable failure, and shows the utter lack of "issues" for him to tackle. The nomination of Mr. Bishop has in fact spiked every one of his guns. He knows it, and his letter shows it. In accepting the nomination of the Greenbackers he kindly tells them their mission in behalf of the greenback is done, and reminds the laboring classes what a good friend to them he always has been, is, and always will be. The General always promises well; but unfortunately for him his record belies his words.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Butler's letter shows the mellowing effects of old age.

The Hartford Democrats have nominated ex-Senator W. W. Eaton for Congress.

Gov. Long was nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the 2d district on Wednesday.

The Republican town and city committees are to have a consultation at Boston next Monday.

It is rumored that Judge Folger will remain in the cabinet until after election. "A bird in the hand," etc.

Editor Haskell of the Boston Herald declines to run for Congress. He has bigger business on hand.

Hubbell's assessment circulars are said to have brought in $400,000. An account of how the money is expended would make interesting reading.

The Republicans of the 7th district have nominated and will elect Editor Hall of Greenfield to the Governor's council, a position he will fill worthily.

The Republican campaign was opened with a big rally at Boston Monday evening, with addresses by Gov. Long, Mr. Bishop, Congressmen Crapo and Robinson, and Gen. Woodford of New York.

Whittaker, the colored ex-cadet, is trying to secure an election to Congress from South Carolina, as a Democrat. We doubt if his cropped ears are of enough importance to elect him—and he never would have been heard of but for them.

Ex-Mayor Powers of Springfield will entertain Candidate Bishop next Thursday, and in the evening will give a reception, at which Gov. Long and prominent Republicans from all parts of the State will be present. The party will visit Holyoke Friday, and in the evening there will be a grand rally in the city hall at Springfield.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Choice New Oleans molasses at Weld & Longley's.

Shoats for sale by F. M. Eager.

Don't make a mistake in buying rubber boots this season; don't be deceived as you were a year ago, but go to Milligan's for reliable rubber goods of every description.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Rev. E. A. Perry, of St. Paul's church, exchanged pulpits last Sunday with Rev. J. K. Mason of Springfield.

The selectmen will be at the town hall next Tuesday, at one o'clock p. m., for the purpose of revising the voters' list.

Pumpkin pies are about due, but the pumpkins themselves seem to be rather scarce this year. Squashes, too, are few and far between.

Rev. E. A. Perry will begin to-morrow evening a course of lectures to young people. Topic for to-morrow evening, "Books and Reading."

Many farmers will cut a good crop of rowen this fall from fields which looked as though every spear of grass was dead, before the recent rains gave it such a remarkable start.

M. Barrett, baggage master on Sedgwick's train, has bought a lot of C. E. Dewey in rear of Mr. Kurtz's on South Main street, and is laying the foundation for a dwelling house.

Conductor Hastings, of the New London Northern Railroad, is at Milwaukee, Wis., this week, attending a convention of conductors. He will be away for a couple of weeks or so.

A Republican caucus, for the election of delegates to the congressional, councilor, county and senatorial conventions will be held at the town house next Monday evening.

The 2d regiment passed through Palmer on a special train early Wednesday morning, on its way to Boston, to participate in the ceremonies attendant upon the reception of President Arthur.

The Connecticut railroad commissioners made their regular official tour of inspection over the New London Northern Railroad, in a special train from Palmer to New London on Wednesday.

The Palmer Wire Co. are now employing about sixty men, and are getting out five tons of finished wire a day, and some fourteen tons of partly finished. The mills are kept running night and day.

Thomas Lodge responds to a call for help by the Masonic fraternity at Pensacola, Fla., who have incurred a heavy debt in furnishing medicines and care for the yellow fever sufferers and in burying the many dead.

C. L. Saunders has removed his harness shop from Hitchcock's shoe shop to the store adjoining the JOURNAL office, formerly occupied by Miss McDonnell's millinery establishment, where he has the needed room for his increasing business.

A trot for a purse of $1000 is quite a rarity on the Palmer park, and the race announced for this afternoon, between Joseph Thompson's and A. J. Northrop's horses, for that sum, is therefore likely to draw a sizable crowd of interested spectators.

The Eastern Hampden Medical Society met with the Millers River Society at Dr. Towne's in Enfield, last Saturday. Dr. Stowe read an interesting paper on the "Germ Theory," and papers on "Inflammation" were read by Drs. Snow and Goddard.

Geo. C. Capron, of the Andover Theological Seminary, will preach at the Congregational church to-morrow. Rev. Mr. Hunter, who was announced for last Sunday, was not able to come, and the pulpit was occupied by Prof. C. E. Bissell of Hartford.

Isn't it about time another lantern was placed in the Commercial street dark hole under the railroad? The old lantern has been broken and unused for some time, and it is a most uncanny place in the night-time, without a ray of light to guide the wayfarer.

Mrs. I. C. Burleigh of Hampden was thrown from her wagon on Main street last Monday afternoon, and considerably bruised, though fortunately not seriously injured. The horse, which ran only a short distance, turned the buggy completely over, but it was not materially harmed.

In consequence of the steadily increasing business at the telephone office, a new switch board is to be put in within a few days, which will accommodate 35 wires, 10 more than the present one. It is expected that Bondsville and Belchertown will soon be brought into connection with this office.

Farmers are putting in winter supplies of potatoes at a dollar a bushel. The tubers are not as scarce as it was thought they would be during the drouth, and it is quite possible that they will drop still lower in price later in the season. They are already selling for less than a dollar in some places.

People who have not seen the comet yet will have to wake up early some morning soon, or they will lose sight of it altogether, for it is going from us at the gentle rate of 2,500,000 miles a day. This is known as Cruls's comet, having been discovered by Dr. L. Cruls, of the observatory at Rio Janeiro.

The raising of Main street, between Central and Commercial streets, is an improvement of a questionable nature, because of the amount of sand in the material used. If it does not pack down harder than it now seems likely to, people will be in favor of scraping off the filling and traveling once more on the old hard road-bed.

It is reported that Hampden, Wilbraham and Ludlow are each claimants for the representative nomination in this district this year. Hampden has had no representative since her separation from Wilbraham, and naturally thinks her claim the best. Since the present district was arranged, in 1876, Palmer has had three representatives, Wilbraham two and Ludlow one.

The leaves are taking on their varied autumn coloring, and the hills about us are fast assuming their brightest and most gorgeous hues. Now is the time to enjoy Nature in her most glowing colors, and a day spent among the hills or on some mountain will furnish an amount of enjoyment in the way of charming views and invigorating air obtainable at no other season of the year.

Postmaster Knox has ordered 400 new call boxes and 100 lock boxes with which to refurnish the post office when the alterations in the room are completed. The new boxes will be of the latest style, with wire bottoms, to prevent the accumulation of dust, and will certainly be a marked improvement over the old boxes, which have done service for more years than the memory of man can recall.

President Arthur passed through here on his way from Boston to Springfield yesterday afternoon, on the 1.24 express. An immense crowd gathered at the depot in the hopes of getting a glimpse of him. He was brought out by Dr. Holbrook, and introduced to the crowd, who gave three cheers. He made a few remarks, and as the train moved away Secretary Lincoln was introduced. He also got three cheers, and a good share of Palmer rejoices in having seen the President.

It will soon be time for the voters of this district to decide who shall represent them in the Legislature next winter. The system of alternating the office between this and the other towns in the district has been followed so regularly that it will probably be continued for some time in the future. It is a very good plan if the district is so unfortunate as to have a poor representative, but when we have a good one, as we usually do, it works greatly to our disadvantage. If experience is of advantage anywhere, it certainly is in the Legislature. It takes at least half of an ordinary session for a new man to "learn the ropes" of legislative work and rules, and when a district sends a new man every year, we have a series of beginners only, and no finished legislators. This is one great reason why country towns exert no more influence on legislation. In some places this is understood, and representatives are returned once, twice, and even many times. We hope this district may learn the advantage of this plan ere long.

DISTRICT COURT.

Oct. 7—Levi and George Peck, for assault upon Guy J. Goodwill, paid fine and costs amounting to $20.41.

Frank Gilbert of Ware, driver of the West Warren coach, for assault upon a passenger, paid fine and costs of $14.79.

9—J. J. Sugrue of Thorndike, for illegal liquor keeping, was fined $50 and costs, but appealed to the superior court.

Maurice Herring, for being a common drunkard, was sent to the house of correction for three months.

10—Matthew Kaine and H. C. Shaw each paid fine and costs of $4.83 for drunkenness.

12—Patrick Watts for assault paid fine and costs of $8.63.

LUDLOW.

The Republicans meet at the Ludlow Mills school house next Thursday to choose delegates to the various conventions.

THORNDIKE.

The Sharps of this village think that the Three Rivers club is a little fast in claiming the base ball championship of the town, and say they have won the most games, while the Three Rivers club has defeated them only once.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

At the Republican caucus held Wednesday night the following delegates were chosen: Councilor and Congressional, H. Cutler and Dr. S. Foskit; senatorial, F. E. Clark, A. A. Phelps; county, Ira G. Potter, Henry Clark; representative, C. E. Peck, C. H. Cutler, Dr. G. M. Steele, R. R. Wright.

HAMPDEN.

There is talk of placing a $450 clock on the tower of the Congregational church, and a subscription paper for the purpose is being circulated.

The Republicans have chosen these delegates to the various conventions: Senatorial, A. H. Thompson; councilor, William R. Sessions; county, A. B. Newell; representative, William R. Sessions, Andrew Beebe, Charles H. Burleigh.

WILBRAHAM.

The Junior class of the academy held a reception in Philo Hall Saturday evening.

The "Willing Workers" of the Congregational church meet with Mrs. Laura Warner this afternoon.

The Wesleyan base ball club mourns because other clubs in their vicinity are afraid to play with them.

Rev. F. H. Wheeler of East Wilbraham, a former student of the academy has gone to Dakota, to join the Dakota mission conference.

Several of the parishioners of Rev. M. S. Howard met at the chapel of the Congregational church Thursday evening and sending for the pastor presented him with $81 as a token of their good will, H. M. Bliss making the presentation speech. Remarks were made by others present, and happily responded to by Mr. Howard.

WEST WARREN.

Real estate Broker Rockwell has returned from his Western trip.

A. H. Converse has been enlarging and making extensive repairs in his blacksmith shop on Central street.

James C. Grant's fifteen-months-old child was severely scalded recently by tipping over a kettle of hot water. The skin was taken from its arms and legs, and its body partially burned.

B. W. Harmon, formerly paymaster and book-keeper for the Warren cotton mills, and recently with Harmon & Deardon, Springfield, has bought out a gentlemen's furnishing store in Portland, Me.

Mrs. M. J. Kerigan has opened a millinery store in her rooms in J. B. Lombard's house on Main street. This makes the third millinery store in the village, and the fair sex ought to be well supplied with hats, bonnets and trimmings.

BONDSVILLE.

Fred Alden, a former baggage master here, goes to Enfield to take charge of the station there.

Upon the 18th inst. the Methodist society hold their annual festival. A good deal of interest is displayed, and a pleasing and entertaining programme for the evening is promised.

The number of pupils attending school in this village was never larger than at present. The average for the four rooms is 47. The first primary, with only seating capacity for 64, has to accommodate 73 little ones.

Mr. Ryther has just put the finishing touches to Merrick Whitney's new block. In the upper story Mr. Whitney has finished for himself a tenement, which is very pleasant and a model of convenience. In the lower story there are three different apartments. In one of these Mrs. Whitney has millinery. She has just opened a new stock of goods. On account of her fine accommodations she is enabled to keep a larger variety and assortment than heretofore. In another room A. M. Bond has a nice tin shop, under the charge of C. B. Page, who carries on a flourishing business. The third room is unoccupied at present. E. F. Towne has, in the basement, opened a market for meat and canned goods.

WARREN.

Mr. Kelly has opened a law office in Tripp's block.

A reunion of the Col. Blackmer family was held in Brigham's hall Thursday.

There will be a harvest concert in the Congregational church Sunday evening.

The public library, after having been cleaned and painted, is again open to the people.

Joseph Kingman, from Amherst College, is with his friends in town, sick with a slow fever.

J. W. Chadsey is the chairman and E. F. Strickland the secretary of the Republican town committee.

Those who wish to see the comet must rise at five o'clock in the morning, and they will have their wish gratified, as it is visible in the eastern horizon.

Next Monday evening the Amherst college quartette, and Miss Ella Chamberlain, the whistling soloist, give the first entertainment in the lecture course.

The old cheese factory, which had been made into tenement houses, took fire Sunday morning, and was mostly destroyed. It was occupied by eight families, who lost most of their household goods. The building was owned by Allen Day, Giles Blodgett and Mark Burroughs.

BRIMFIELD.

The Republicans have chosen delegates as follows: To councilor convention, Henry F. Brown, Edward B. Brown; county, James S. Blair, Edward Bliss; first senatorial, Arthur B. Brown, Louis S. Brown.

The semi-annual meeting of the Brookfield Association Conference of Churches will be held at Brimfield Oct. 17th and 18th. The following is the order of exercises: Tuesday, devotional service, conducted by Rev. C. E. Stebbins of Brookfield; organization and other business; discussion upon the relation of the churches to missions, opened by Dr. A. E. P. Perkins of Ware; prayer and praise meeting; annual report of Sabbath schools; essay—"How shall we make our Sunday School Work More Effective?" by Rev. J. F. Forbes of Warren, discussion to follow; discussion—"The Early Conversion of Children, opened by Rev. J. Danielson of Southbridge. Tuesday evening, at 7, sermon by Rev. S. Haywood of Globe Village. Wednesday, devotional service, led by W. D. Brown of Gilbertville, followed by reports of contributions; miscellaneous business; meeting of Woman's Board of Missions in ladies' parlor; foreign missions, address by Rev. J. L. Atkinson, missionary from Japan; sermon, by Rev. J. F. Gaylord of Barre; communion.

MONSON.

The Y. M. S. Club had a social dance at Green's hall last (Friday) evening, with music by Reilly's orchestra of Thorndike.

A social assembly will be held at Central Hall next Friday evening, Bacon & Kenfield's orchestra furnishing music for dancing, with J. L. Bacon prompter.

Prof. Green, from Boston, will meet the teachers of the public schools next Friday, at a quarter before three o'clock, and give a lecture on drawing, in the grammar school room in the north part of the village.

Rev. B. F. Eaton of Brighton will preach to-morrow in Central Hall at 2 and 7 p. m. Subject, afternoon, "The Inward Ideal and the Outward Life;" evening, "Universalism, the Grandest Conception of the Human Mind."

Wednesday evening the teachers of the public schools held the second meeting of the term, in the grammar school room, and discussed the methods of teaching arithmetic. Next meeting in two weeks; subject, "How to Teach Penmanship."

The annual meeting of the Hampden County Conference of Congregational churches will be held with the Olivet church in Springfield, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 24th and 25th. The programme is one of unusual attractions, and a very full meeting is expected.

At a meeting of the friends of the First Universalist Parish, held at the residence of H. Chapin last Thursday evening, a parish social was formed, for the purpose of providing such entertainments as may seem best during the winter. The next meeting of the circle will be held with Mrs. H. Chapin on Thursday evening of next week, to which all are cordially invited.

THREE RIVERS.

Rev. W. L. Noyes exchanged with Rev. Mr. Coyle of the Union church, Ludlow Mills, last Sunday morning.

There will be a baptism at the Baptist church on Sunday, immediately after the forenoon service, if the weather is pleasant.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Noyes of the Union church gave a very interesting account of the meeting of the American Board of Foreign Missions at Portland last week, which he attended.

Rev. O. R. Hunt, of Palmer, will deliver a lecture in the Baptist church next Wednesday evening, on "Marriage, and Reasons of Unhappiness in It." After the lecture there will be a harvest supper in the vestry.

The new band stand erected on the common for the Three Rivers Cornet Band, and which would have been dedicated long ago had it not been for the sickness and death of Henry Dumas, the leader, will be dedicated Saturday evening of next week by a concert by the local band, assisted by the Boston Duck Cornet Band of Bondsville. Since the death of Mr. Dumas the band has reorganized with Joseph Gokey prest., Fred A. Upham sec., E. C. Bryan treas., and Stephen Gokey leader.

Father Chiniquy of Chicago lectured in the Union church on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week. His subjects were "Why I left the Church of Rome," and "The Bible." The church was filled to its utmost capacity, more than half of the audience being French Canadian Catholics. Father Chiniquy spoke with great feeling and eloquence, and held the attention of his audience every moment. Many of them were greatly moved when he was telling his experience and inviting his hearers to come to the Savior who had saved him, and to whom they must come if they would be saved. Father Chiniquy is 74 years old, and was for 25 years a Catholic priest. He now offers $6000 to any Catholic priest who will discuss the doctrines of the Church of Rome with him from the same platform, before the public. He also spoke in the same church last (Friday) evening, on "Auricular Confession" and "Purgatory."

WARE AND VICINITY.

The Reform Club was reorganized on Thursday evening.

There is to be a Democratic caucus at Music Hall this (Saturday) evening, to choose delegates to the Congressional, councilor and senatorial conventions.

The Clippers have declined the challenge of the East Brookfields to play for $100 a side at Palmer this week. The Clippers positively decline to play for money.

Austin Pratt was not so severely injured by collision with a bridge while stealing a ride on the Boston & Albany R. R., but his companion has since died from the effects of his injuries.

The Wesleyans beat the Firemen last Saturday, 9 to 5. The game was one of the most quiet and orderly that has been played here this season, especially noted for the lack of disputes or ungentlemanly conduct.

The Clipper base ball club are to hold a dance at Music Hall next Thursday evening. The members of clubs are to appear in uniform, the North Brookfield Orchestra are to furnish music, and it is expected it will be the dance of the season.

The good work of temperance still goes on. Raids were made on the premises of Owen F. McMahon and Michael J. McArdle last week Saturday and liquor found in both places. All good temperance people should do all in their power to sustain our selectmen in this good work, and if any know of their neighbors being in any way connected with the traffic, they should let it be known.

The exercises at the French Catholic church on Sunday were of unusual interest, Bishop O'Reilly making his first apostolic visit to this church, confirming 180 boys and girls. The church was filled to overflowing, many not being able to get in. Fathers Peltier of Gilbertville, Lynch of Thorndike and Moyes of Warren were present. In the afternoon the consecration ceremonies of St. Mary's cemetery took place, a large procession going from the church to the cemetery.

William Manning Lowe, member of Congress from Alabama, died at his home in Huntsville Thursday.

LETTER FROM SPRINGFIELD.

Correspondence of the Journal.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 12, 1882.

There is but little stir, politically, at the county seat this season; hardly enough as yet to make a canvass interesting, though there is time enough before election to arouse the lion if anybody cares to take the risk of being bitten. It is conceded, I believe, that no one desires to measure swords in the Republican conventions with Register Russell, or County Treasurer Bridge; and I do not hear that anybody wants County Commissioner Clark's place; therefore unless there are dark horses in the stable to trot out at the opportune moment, these three county officials will have a clear track over the course. But little, either, is said about city officers for the coming term. It is understood that Mayor Ladd would like a vindication, but he will hardly get it. His party feel that he has jostled their corner stone by appointing a marshal unfavorable to the liquor interest, and will not renominate him, and the Republicans do not appreciate his services enough to make him their standard bearer. Who is to succeed him is yet an open question. All eyes turn lovingly toward Uncle John Olmstead to lead them through the Red Sea next year, but that gentleman gives no encouragement that he will consent to be a candidate. Ex-Mayor Powers is understood to be willing, but up to date there is no response except "No, I thank you." Until the question of mayor looms up of course nothing will be done about arranging the slate for aldermen and councilmen.

Since City Marshal Rice's acquittal before the United States Court on the charge of violating law by opening a letter addressed to another, his friends feel that the city should reimburse him for the expense of the trial, inasmuch as he claims that it was in the interest of maintaining law that he exposed himself. From his standpoint the request is not unreasonable. But, unfortunately, our citizens do not see it as he does, and an attempt to take four or five hundred dollars from the city treasury for this purpose will be resisted to the utmost. While a majority of our taxpayers are glad the marshal was acquitted, because they believe the case was instigated by the liquor interest, which the marshal by his pluck in enforcing law made uncomfortable, they do not care to establish a precedent that will encourage future marshals to open letters which belong to others, by paying the expenses of this suit. The safest and best way for his friends to assist the marshal will be, to pass the hat around quietly and gather in enough to pay his court bills, and make as little stir about it as possible.

General Butler's letter of acceptance does not strike fire in this section as some expected it would. Nothing from the General moves the multitude like his presence, and unless he visits us so the boys can see him swab the perspiration from his brow with his bandanna, as he discusses the momentous questions of State policy, he need not expect any enthusiasm in his canvass this way. In this respect, at least, the General and St. Paul differ; with the latter his personal presence was not as impressive as his letters, while Butler's manuscript fails to electrify as does his bodily appearance. However, considering the little there was to be said, the would-be Governor makes the most of the case, and the letter, especially his views on free trade, makes very good reading for Indian summer evenings. It is gratifying to note the changed countenance of the old-line Connecticut River Democrats since the General's last appearance on the stump in this State, as they speak of his hopes and prospects this year. When he was an independent gubernatorial candidate three years ago, nothing made them so mad as the name of Butler; now they smile as they wish the old man could be governor once, "just to see what he would do." Poor fellows, they can never have their desire gratified. General Butler will not get 110,000 votes for governor of this State again, or come within 25,000 of being elected. He will be gathered to his fathers without ever seeing the land of milk and honey his heart hankers for so much; this will be his last opportunity to canter over the Commonwealth to invite the boys to rally for him. His name hereafter will have no charm, and excite no apprehension, in political conventions.

A. Blodgett, a first-class tailor of twenty-five years' experience in cutting, has taken rooms at 322½ Main St., Springfield, over Carter & Cooley's. Gentlemen will be sure of stylish fits and honest work there.

* C. N. Stimpson, at 396 Main St., Springfield, can show you the best bargain in that city. A Henry F. Miller piano, rosewood case, four round corners, over strung, damper, all improvements, and in perfect order, for only $200.

Foster, Babbitt & Chapin, "the Three Clothiers," of Springfield, offer in another column a very great temptation to visit them. Read their prices on suits, overcoats and children's clothing. They seem to be leading the trade in suits for boys.

"'Our Job' lot or best kip boots at the price of ordinary split leather, and our $2000 worth of rubbers and rubber boots bought before the rise, which we are still selling at old prices, are attractractions that tell."—[From O. D. Morse's "Fall Circular" to the "Honest Yeomanry," &c. Dated Springfield, Oct., 1882.

Do you know that Henry Keyes & Co., Springfield, are selling their men's and boys' clothing this season at a great reduction in prices? Fall overcoats at $3, $5, $8, $10, been selling at almost double the money. Men's and boys' suits at $2, $3, $5, $10, $12, been selling 50 per cent higher. Underwear, all colors, at 25c., 50c., 65c., and $1.00. You will save money by visiting them.

The best hair preparation in the market for restoring gray hair to its original color is Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer. Try it!

There is one thing certain, however, call it malaria or what you may, and it generally comes without calling, where ill health does exist Simmons Liver Regulator will restore it.

SHILOH'S CURE WILL immediately relieve croup, whooping cough and bronchitis. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, whooping cough, influenza, consumption, and all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. 1y3

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cts. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Edward Everett and Edwin M. Stanton died with apoplexy, a disease often mistaken for heart disease. The two complaints are, nevertheless, essentially different. "Apoplexy is a loss of voluntary motion and sensation, caused by pressure on the brain." For 30 years past, Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator has always cured heart disease and its kindred troubles.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria and Canker Mouth. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.—Whenever you are assailed by internal or external pain, ache or ailment, don't wait to experiment, but apply RENNE'S PAIN KILLING MAGIC OIL, which will relieve you as if by magic. It is a most reliable remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Diseases, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, etc. No household, workshop or factory is safe without it. Give it a trial, Sold by all dealers in medicine. 4w28

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief? Price 10c., 50c. and $1.00. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Perfection.

Herrick's Sugar Coated Vegetable Liver Pills are really "perfection," because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, sudorific and alterative at the same time. With these rare pills in your house you can do without salts, seidlitz powders, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna, and so on. You want none of these. Herrick's Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and what is better may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman or child as the robust man. 3w27

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Benson recently proved in the case of Emperor William and others that in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times. o

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

REMEMBER that every one suffering from Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, have a cure at hand in Ely's Cream Balm. Price 50 cents Apply into nostrils with little finger.

I was troubled with Chronic Catarrh and gathering in the head, was very deaf at times and had discharges from my ears, besides being unable to breathe through my nose. Before the second bottle of Ely's Cream Balm was exhausted I was cured, and to-day enjoy sound health. C. J. CORBIN, 923 Chestnut St., Field Manager Philadelphia Pub. House, Pa.

ELY'S CREAM BALM cured me of Catarrh of many years' standing—restored my sense of smell. For cold in the head it works like magic. E. H. SHERWOOD, National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J. (4)

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Peruvian Syrup cures dyspepsia, general debility, liver complaint, boils, humors, chronic diarrhœa, nervous affections, female complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood. 1y3

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

Dress Goods Department!

We have just landed our second importation of "Fancy Dress Goods" and Black Cashmeres. Without any doubt the largest assortment ever shown in New England. No house in Boston shows so large a line on their retail counters as we do, and we guarantee our prices much under New York or Boston. Getting them direct from the manufacturers, we are able to sell at much smaller profit, our expenses being much less than New York or Boston houses.

We offer a large variety of combination effects in all wool, silk and wool, and brocades. They make up more stylish than anything that has been produced for many seasons. We have just put on our counter

EXTRAORDINARY BARGAINS

—IN—

Dress Goods.

45-inch all-wool Brocades at 50c., never sold in Springfield under $1 to $1.25. This was a lot of goods we bought from a French importer at less than half price, to close the consignment. You will find all the most desirable shades for Fall wear. This is a splendid thing for misses and young ladies' suits. Every lady should examine it before it is gone. IT NEVER CAN BE DUPLICATED.

Immense stock Black and Colored Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Brocades, Satins and Brocade Velvets. All our own importation.

Ladies will find our Dress Goods and Silks much under the usual Springfield retail prices.

We have opened an elegant line of Paris and Berlin garments, Silk Suits, Wool Suits, in great variety at about the price it would cost you to get them made here.

The ladies will remember that our prices are much under the prices in Palmer.

☞ All are invited to examine.

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that

STEINWAY & SONS

Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of

PIANOS AND ORGANS

Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

A Song of Autumn.

All through the golden weather
Until the autumn fell,
Our lives went by together
So wildly and so well.

But autumn's wind uncloses
The heart of all your flowers;
I think as with the roses,
So hath it been with ours.

Like some divided river
Your ways and mine will be,
To drift apart forever,
Forever till the sea.

And yet for one word spoken,
One whisper of regret,
The dream had not been broken,
And love were with us yet.

CONSTRUCTION OF SILOS.

So far as silos constructed last season have come under our observation, says the Boston Journal of Chemistry, they have not withstood well the combined action of acetic acid and water and moisture. This relates to silos constructed of stone under ground and plastered with hydraulic cement. The cement, under the combined action of acid and external water, will crumble and fall off, leaving wide areas of the wall in a denuded condition.

In all silos acetic acid is developed to a greater or less extent, and this, in the form of vapor, comes in contact with the lime in the cement, and forms a fixed salt, an acetate. When this occurs, the wall is weakened, and falls as soon as the contents of the silo are removed. It should be known that cemented walls are not impervious to the inflow of water. Although cisterns will hold water, if left empty in wet places, water will find its way through from without, and numerous silos constructed on the sides of hills where there are springs were found to have several feet of water in them last spring. Considerable loss resulted from this cause. All silos should be constructed with drains, and it is very important that the drains should be trapped, so as to prevent a current of air from passing in under the contents of the silo.

As a rule, where silos are constructed under ground, it will be better to plank them inside of a rough, dry wall. The planks will last many years and need but few repairs.

If ensilage is to hold its place in popular estimation, much is to be learned in regard to the construction of pits and in methods of ensilaging. There is little doubt but that the cutting process which is so expensive and laborious may be dispensed with, and it will be found that it is better to partially dry the fodder in the field before putting it into the pits. If 25 per cent of the water is removed, it will cost much less to handle the fodder, and the value will not be in the least diminished.

THE LADY AND THE BEE.—An æsthetic young dame on Madison street poked her pretty nose into the heart of a waving sunflower in the back yard of the family mansion to inhale its sweet perfume—perfume of the flower, not the back yard. A busy little bee was then and there in the heart, as aforesaid, engaged in a similar pursuit. Resenting the intrusion of the pretty nose, as above described, the b. l. b. turned with mule-like precision his business end outward and stung that p. n. Tableaux—The bee died, of course, and the æsthetic y. d. goes around the house bearing between her eyes and dimpled chin a profusion which resembles a fat plaque, painted in beautiful shades of yellowish, brown, arnica-tinged stripes upon a flesh-colored back-ground. This artistic development is not liable to become the rage, albeit the æsthetic young dame is one.—Peoria Transcript.

A local paper gives an account of a very intelligent dog in Wiltshire, Eng. The animal was in the habit of going every day to the railroad, and as the train passed, the guard threw out a Standard for a clergyman who lived hard by, which the dog seized in his teeth and carried to his master. One day the dog came back to the rectory without a paper. On inquiry the guard insisted that he had acted as usual, but on making a search it was found that a Daily Telegraph, and not a Standard, had been thrown out, and the dog had refused to have anything to do with it.

A guest at the table of a boarding-house on the Catskill mountains, who was about to attack a piece of dried-apple pie, addressed the landlady, and said, 'Do you think you could furnish me with a bit of cheese?' 'I don't know whether there is any,' she answered, in a cast-iron tone of voice, 'but if you'll have a little patience I'll send a waiter to look through the mouse-traps and see.'—Brooklyn Eagle.

A young city gent, dressed in a faultless suit and a pair of shoes which tapered to a point in the most modern style, was visiting in a rural district. A bright little four-years-old boy looked him over till his eyes rested on those shoes. He looked at his own chubby feet and then at the visitor's, and then, looking up, said, 'Mister, is your toes all cutted off but one?'—Troy Times.

A teacher was instructing his class in natural history. 'To what class of birds does the hawk belong?' he asked. 'To the birds of prey,' was the reply. 'And to what class does the quail belong?' There was a pause. The teacher repeated the question. 'Where does the quail belong?' 'On toast!' yelled the hungry boy at the foot of the class.

It is recommended as a new field for stamp, button and card collectors that they turn their attention to gathering knot-holes; the variety is endless, and some of them have histories rivaling that of a telescope.

A Kentucky editor announces that he has discovered why a woman always leaves a big margin at the head and along the side of the sheet on which she is writing. It is to finish her letter on.

Six-years-old Fannie had eaten heartily, finishing her dessert with a full supply of ice cream. Her mixture of sensations was thus expressed: 'Oh dear, I'm so tight I can't shiver!'

A fastidious youth explains that kisses are better enjoyed after dark, because they taste better than they look.

Occasions do not make a man frail, but they show what he is.—Thomas a Kempis.

It is not calling your neighbor names that settles a question.—Disraeli.

Dare to be true; nothing can need a lie.—George Herbert.

Grumblers never work, and workers never grumble.

"When I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering inquiries."

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

For GEN. DODGE'S bran' new book, entitled

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

AGENTS! This grand book is now outselling all others 10 to 1. No competition. Agents average 10 to 20 orders a day. We want 1000 more agents at once. Exclusive territory and special terms given. ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

NOTHING SHORT OF UNMISTAKABLE BENEFITS

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick.

From the Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is at once a most annoying and very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Another striking case is now added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked for him. Toward the end of last January Mr. Lawler called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding him, the Dr. "struck stone." He decided that Mr. Lawler should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy—The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb. 6," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorders of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1 a bottle. 26

Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by
Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia;
Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York;

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Don't Crowd.

Don't crowd; this world is broad enough
For you as well as me;
The doors of art are open wide—
The realm of thought is free;
Of all earth's places you are right
To choose the best you can,
Provided that you do not try
To crowd some other man.

What matter though you scarce can count
Your piles of golden ore,
While he can hardly strive to keep
Gaunt famine from his door.
Of willing hands and honest heart
Alone should man be proud;
Then give him all the room he needs,
And never try to crowd.

Don't crowd, proud miss; your dainty silk
Will glisten none the less
Because it comes in contact with
A beggar's tattered dress;
This lovely world was never made
For you and I alone;
A pauper has a right to tread
The pathway to a throne.

Don't crowd the good from out your heart,
By fostering all that's bad;
But give to every virtue room—
The best that may be had;
Be each day's record such a one
That you may well be proud;
Give each his right—give each his room,
And never try to crowd.

THE DOUBLE LESSON.

'Have you told the whole truth now, Lillian, about the man I saw you talking with upon the bridge?—the whole truth, remember.'

'Yes, indeed, Reginald,' looking at him piteously, with her forget-me-not eyes swimming in tears and her little childish hands clasped in supplication.

'I wish I could believe you, but I don't; and that is all there is of it,' groaned Reginald Trevor, starting up and beginning to pace the floor angrily, while his fragile little wife sobbed aloud in her excitement and terror. 'If you did not meet that man by appointment what made you pretend to have a headache to get rid of coming to tea? and what made you when we were all well down at the table, go stealing out of the back way, instead of the front, and walk straight there, and nowhere else? And what made you look so scared when you saw me? Tell me that, will you?'

'I—I thought the air might do me good, and I didn't want to disturb you. Indeed, indeed, it is true, Regie, dear.'

'And what made your polite acquaintance turn and go off as though he had been shot out of a gun, the moment he saw me coming? No, no, Lilly, it won't do. Your very terror now contradicts your story. Will you tell me the truth, or shall I wring it out of that man?'

Lilly rose to her feet trembling, her tender face waxen white, but strangely calm. 'If you will let me, I will go back to my aunt, Reginald. That is the best place for me now.'

Reginald Trevor's stern, handsome face grew a shade paler, and his hand clenched and unclenched nervously. If he only could believe her, his little snowdrop that he had sheltered in his bosom, and whose purity and truth he would have made an oath by.

'Will you tell me that man's name, Lilly?' he asked more gently.

'No, Reginald,' was the firm reply. 'You doubted me. I will not put it in your power to question another concerning me.'

'I will find him nevertheless. I should know his sneaking handsome face among a thousand,' cried Reginald passionately, as Lilly, pale, but stately as a queen, swept past him to the door.

She was back again shortly, dressed for the street, and looking like a snowy water lily in her soft white wrappings, with her dove eyes and colorless face. She paused beside the door.

'Have you any objections to my going to my aunt's?' she asked.

Reginald strode across the room with his back to the door. He did not answer. She crossed the apartment, and just touched his arm with her hand.

'Have you any objections to my going to my aunt's?'

'Will you tell me that man's name?'

A faint tremor crept round Lilly's lips, but she looked him steadily in the face and answered, 'No.'

'The sooner you go to your aunt's then, and the longer you stay, the better I shall be pleased,' he said with cold bitterness.

With a deep inward sigh, the wife turned swiftly away, nor paused till she rang the bell of a handsome residence a few streets off.

A sprightly little lady, whose resemblance to Lilly marked her at once for that aunt who almost since her babyhood supplied a mother's place to the orphan, rose eagerly from under the soft glow of the astral lamp at sight of her.

'Why, Lilly!' was her dismayed ejaculation.

'Dear auntie, don't question me, please. I've quarreled with Reginald, and that is all,' Lilly said, hysterically.

'But, Lilly—'

'Aunt Myra, it can't be helped now, and I dare say I was just as much to blame as he was. Let it settle itself, won't you?'

Aunt Myra looked as though she doubted the chances of such an event, but she said no more. She knew something of Lilly's firmness.

The matter indeed did not seem inclined to settle itself in a hurry. Lilly watched in vain for some sign from her husband. She sent for her trunk in the course of a day, and it came without a word.

A week passed, and though Lilly grew paler day by day, and Reginald more desolate, neither gave one sign to the other. As Reginald was returning from the post-office one evening, through the dim street,—for there were no lamps—he found himself behind two men, who were talking in low but sufficiently distinct tones. It was some moments before he took enough note of their conversation to discover that they were talking of him.

'Disgraceful!' said one. 'I should think so; and I haven't a doubt myself, that Trevor is the one to blame. He was always a haughty, jealous, tyrannical fellow. Lilly Ramsay was a great deal too good for him.'

'I don't know about that. Trevor has his good qualities—a trifle too proud, perhaps, and inclined to be jealous we used to think, but a good fellow.'

'I wouldn't swear by the goodness of any fellow that would quarrel this way with a girl like Lilly Ramsay within six months after he had married her. When a man takes a woman to love, cherish and protect, he doesn't do it, to my notion, by making his house so hot that she has to stay out of it.'

Reginald Trevor quickened his pace and passed unrecognized. He had heard enough to irritate him excessively. There might not be one particle of justification for these men speaking as they did of him; but as he paced angrily homeward, the words kept recurring to him, 'Haughty, jealous, tyrannical.' Was that Lilly's opinion of him he wondered.

He walked round by Mrs. Ransom's house, keeping upon the opposite side of the way, and regarding the house stealthily as he passed, though it was too dark for any one to see him. At the corner he even hesitated as a slender shadow crossed the blind, which might be Lilly's. Then murmuring: 'No; I told her the longer she stayed the better I should be pleased; and so I shall, until she comes to her senses!' He hurried gloomily home.

But his fate was not in his own hands. That night his house was entered by thieves, and though he succeeded in routing them he was so severely injured by a blow upon the head from some instrument in the hands of one of them that for days his life was considered exceedingly doubtful.

The news came upon Lilly without warning. She was bending over some sewing—not sewing the stiches, for tears.

She put down her sewing almost with a smile. 'Aunty,' she said, 'that means me. God is better to Regie and I than we deserve. He won't die; trust me for that.'

Reginald Trevor did not die; and good Doctor Moselle, who surmised something of the state of things, told him very plainly that he owed his life more to his wife than to his doctor.

'Was I haughty, jealous and tyrannical?' was Reginald's first question of Lilly as he feebly drew her little hand to his lips.

Those very words had haunted his delirium. Lilly smiled through her tears.

'Not more than I was foolish and willful' she said gently. 'The man you saw me talking with was the husband of my sister who lives in Iowa. He is a bad fellow you know. I spoke to him reluctantly, and I did not want to meet him. I had no idea of meeting him when I went out, and if you had not lost your temper so soon I should have told you all about it. Shall we begin again, Regie?'

'My darling, yes!'

A COW THAT TAUGHT THEOLOGY.

'Now, deacon, I've just one word to say. I can't bear our preaching! I get no good. There is so much in it that I don't want that I grow lean on it. I lose my time and my pains.'

'Brother Bunnel, come here. There's my cow 'Thankful'—she can teach you theology.'

'A cow teach theology! What do you mean?'

'Now see, I have just thrown her a forkfull of hay. Just watch her. There now! She has found a stick—you know sticks will get into the hay—and see how she tosses it to one side and goes on to eat what is good. There again! She has found a burdock, and she has thrown it to one side and goes on eating. And there! She does not relish that bunch of daises, and leaves them and goes on eating. Before morning she will have cleared the manger of all save a few sticks and weeds, and she will give milk. There's milk in that hay, and she knows how to get it out, albeit there may be now and then a stick or weed which she leaves. But if she refused to eat, and spent the time scolding about the fodder, she too, would grow lean, and the milk would dry up. Just so with our preaching. Let the old cow teach you. Get all the good you can out of it, and leave the rest. You will find a good deal of nourishment in it.'

ONE LITTLE FINAL FAVOR.

He had never told his love, for their acquaintance had been a very short one; and when suddenly he had placed her arms around his neck and imprinted a huge kiss upon her rosebud mouth she was naturally startled.

'Sir!' she said, 'this is insufferable!'

'Forgive me!' he cried; 'I was mad to act thus; I beseech you pardon me!'

'No, I can never forgive you—never! You have forfeited my friendship; you must leave me at once and forever!'

Vainly he pleaded; she was obdurate; so glaring an offense could never be condoned.

And so he said he would go; his whole life would be embittered, for he felt that her image could never be effaced from his heart.

'I will go,' he said, sadly; 'but before I leave there is one boon that I would ask; I feel that I am not unreasonable in desiring and expecting that you will grant this one little favor.'

'What is it?' she asked, gently, touched by his emotion.

'Won't you please take your arms from around my neck?'

A PLEASANT EXPERIMENT WITH SALT.

Do you want to grow salt, and at the same time have an interesting, handsome ornament? The proceeding is a novel chemical experiment that may be tried by any one. Put in a goblet one table-spoonful of salt and one spoonful of bluing; fill the goblet two-thirds full of water and set in a position where it will have plenty of warmth and sunlight. In a little while sparkling crystals will commence forming on the outside of the glass, and it is both a novel and interesting sight to watch it gradually growing day by day until the outside of the goblet is entirely covered with beautiful white crystals. Another variation of this beautiful experiment would be to take a goblet with the base broken off and fasten it in the center of a thin piece of board, which may be round, square or oblong. After the crystals have formed on the glass, set it on a tiny wall-bracket and place a bright holiday or birthday card in front of it; this will hide the base, on which no crystals will form. After this is done fill the goblet with flowers or dried grasses, and you will have a vase which will cost comparatively little, and in reality adds to the bric-a-brac of the room. —Troy Times.

A quality of California redwood is its ready absorption of water when heated, which for a time makes it almost fireproof. The quickness with which fires are extinguished in San Francisco has often been remarked, and the celerity with which blazing buildings are often transformed into charred remnants is greatly facilitated by the entire lack of the resinous element in the redwood timber.

Legal adviser (drawing up the old gentleman's will): Um—seems a pity you should cut off your son with a shilling. But if you're determined—hem!—what about the pictures.' You have a very valuable collection, sir? Crusty invalid: Oh, drat the pictures! Leave 'em to the blind asylum!'

'They tell me, you have had some money left you,' said Brown. 'Yes,' replied Fogg, sadly, 'it left me long ago.'

Like His Dad.

I hear his mother's chiding voice,
"How came your trousers torn?
And black as ink, sir, is your shirt
You put on clean this morn.

"Your feet are wet, too, I declare;
You're muddy to your knees;
It is too bad; you only care
Your mother, sir, to tease.

"And those nice shoes, your Sunday best,
That but three times you've worn,
And scratched and scraped and all run down,
The heel of one is gone.

"Your hair is twisted in a snarl,
And just look at that hand!
It looks as though 'twere never washed—
How dare you say 'tis tanned?

"You've been a fishing, sir, I guess—
What! been to see the match?
You'll have a fit of sickness, sir;
A pretty cold you'll catch."

And then she talks for half an hour
And only stops to say,
"Your father'll hear of this to-night;
What do you think he'll say?"

My friends in complimentary way
Declare to me they see
A close resemblance—very marked—
Between the boy and me.

But nothing that they see in him
In either form or face
Bespeak my son as do his pranks—
In these my own I trace.

And why should I at tattered clothes
Or dirty ones repine?
In him I live my youth again—
God bless the boy! he's mine!

POOR SIBYL!

'God help me now!'

Sibyl Sartoris, as she stood beneath the grateful shade of the locust trees that sensuous day in June, when the kissing winds of summer were balmy with the perfume of the rose leaves that the storm of the previous evening had scattered along the graveled walks of Coastcliff Castle, spoke these words in a dreamy, languid fashion.

'Heaven alone knows how I have suffered for your sake, Bertram McMurtry,' the girl said, plucking, as she spoke, a blossom from the bush that was flaunting its scarlet beauties so saucily against the vivid green of the close-trimmed lawn. 'And you little rose leaf,' she continued, pressing the velvety petals of the flower against lips that were equally soft and crimson, 'you would not, if you could, even whisper my secret to the world, for you, too, have troubles and are buffeted about by the cruel winds that blow so rudely against my pretty face. Not even the star-eyed pansies or the modest violets that nod so demurely in the summer zephyrs shall know my secret,' and with a little laugh that was half a sob Sibyl started for the melon patch.

But ere the little bunionless feet that peeped out so coquettishly from beneath the fleecy white dress had taken many steps Sibyl felt a touch upon her off shoulder. Turning suddenly, she stood face to face with Bertram McMurtry. He was a strong, manly fellow, and the rich, bock-beer tones of his voice thrilled her very blood.

'Why are you sad?' he asked.

The pretty red lips are drooping now, and the hazel eyes dimmed by tears that cannot be repressed.

'Do you still love me, Bertram?' she asks.

'You know I love you dearly,' he replies.

'As much as you did last Thursday?'—and the pretty face looks into his with a pleading expression that shows how she has staked her all upon that love.

'Just as much,' he answers, drawing her lithe form over in his ward.

'Then,' she says, 'I will tell you everything. And, oh, I am so desolate, Bertram, so desolate.'

'What is the matter, my darling?' he asks, bending over her in alarm.

'All is lost,' she says. 'All, all!'

'All what?'

Nestling close to the man whose matinee tickets she loves, Sibyl says in low, agonized tones: 'All my chewing gum!' and then her head falls upon his shoulder amid a storm of sobs.—Chicago Tribune.

RAILWAYS IN AUSTRIA.

The railway stations of Austria are as nearly perfect as man's ingenuity can make them. Those in Vienna are especially remarkable for the beauty of their interior decoration, for the handsomest stones and marbles employed in the stair-cases and in the arcades, for the beautiful maps, veritable works of art which are painted on the walls, and for the civility and intelligence of their employes. After a journey along the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean railway, where even the smallest workman seems to fancy that the traveler is merely a bale of merchandise, to be treated with absolute indifference as to feeling, a journey over the Austrian railway is a refined pleasure. It is true that there is a bit of servility, always distasteful to the American mind, in which the uniformed conductor gives you the military salute and in which he vouchsafes, at every stopping place, any important bits of information, for which he expects at the end of his route a trifling gratuity. The golden mean of railway traveling is certainly to be found between the extreme complaisance of the Austrians and the boorish indifference found on some of our western railways.

"I BEG YOUR PARDON."

A civil word is the cheapest thing in the world, and yet it is a thing which the young and happy rarely give to their inferiors. See the effect of civility on a rough little street boy. The other evening a young lady abruptly turned the corner, and very rudely ran against a boy who was small and ragged and freckled. Stopping as soon as she could, she turned to him and said, 'I beg your pardon. Indeed I am very sorry.' The small, ragged and freckled boy looked up in blank amazement for an instant; then, taking off about three-fourths of a cap, he bowed very low, and answered, 'You can have my parding, and welcome, miss, and yer may run agin me and knock me clean down, and I won't say a word.' After the young lady had passed on, he turned to a comrade and said, half apologetically, 'I never had any one ask my parding, and it kind o' took me off my feet.'

A traveler was leaning at night against a railing at the Harper's Ferry railroad station. A locomotive came along, and he sprang lightly over the rail to escape possible danger. He thought it was a meadow on the other side, but knew his mistake when he struck in a muddy stream forty feet below. On being asked his name, 'I would't tell you for $1000,' he replied; 'describe me simply as a fool.'

A soft ant, sir, turneth away a picknicker from the custard pie.

REGULARITY OF RISING.

The individual who accustoms himself to rising regularly at a certain hour every day can generally accomplish pretty much what he desires to accomplish. He lives with system. If we are thus regular—that is, if we can habitually depend on ourselves to get up in the morning when we know we ought—then a good deal of latitude may be allowed us both as to the time we go to bed, and as to the regularity with which we adhere to it. Such latitude can never become license so long as it is thus rigidly attached to the condition of unfailing regularity in the morning. In that case, the time for going to bed will simply be the time that will give us the quantity of sleep we require before getting up. The quantity each must judge for himself. Happily, with healthy persons the hours between going to bed and rising are the measure of sleep. Probably most people take a larger measure of sleep than they absolutely require, though it is not easy to determine what it should be, and we do not all want the same. It is simply a question of health. No one has any right to curtail his hours of rest habitually, so as to injure that. But sleep, although 'tired nature's sweet restorer,' is not the only recreative agency that fits us for our work, and it is quite possible that at least occasionally the curtailment of the period of rest may be more than compensated from other sources of refreshment and renovation. Men vary in their requirements. One man may sleep the clock round and not be so invigorated for duty as another who has slept scarce half the time, because one has lain down in an unhealthy frame of mind, while the other has gone to bed with a mind cheerful and contented—refreshed, it may be, with some wholesome intercourse. And for the same reason, because what is really healthy must be healthy for the mind, it is miserable compensation for encroaching on the needful hours of rest, to close the day with amusements that tend to dissipate and enervate the mind, even though—which is sometimes but not generally the case—we never allow them to interfere with our regularity in the morning. In the end we must pay the price of all such imprudences.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

An amusing story is told of a little fellow named Artie, one of three brothers, whose parents had brought them up to be brave and self-reliant. He couldn't do much, but what he could do he did with all his might.

And as their parents were Methodists of the good old-fashioned kind, the boys were in the habit of hearing—at such times—the hearty 'Amen' break forth from their father's lips if the sermon was particularly enjoyable.

One cold Sabbath day these children were left at home, with many cautions to be careful.

Hardly had the parents left ere the woodwork near the stove-pipe was discovered to be on fire, and out of the children's reach; but, with wonderful activity and energy the eldest climbed upon the table and put out the flames.

When the father and mother returned they shuddered to see the danger to which they had been exposed, and with thankful hearts praised them for their courage.

'How did you manage, Tommy, to reach the fire?' asked their father.

'Why,' said Tommy, 'I pushed the table up to the wall and got upon that.'

'And did you help brother, Jimmy?' to the next.

'Yes, sir; I brought him a pail of water and handed him the dipper.'

'And what did you do?' said the proud father to his pet, the youngest of the group.

'Well, papa,' said Artie, 'you see I was too small to help put the fire out, so I just stood by and hollered "Amen."'

A mischievous Milwaukee boy, just before the return of his mother from a summer resort, filled his father's room with feminine apparel. The boy says: 'I slipped up stairs and looked over the banisters. Ma said something about heavens and earth, and where is the huzzy, and a lot of things that I couldn't hear, and pa swore and said it's no such thing, and the door slammed and they talked for two hours.'

A Dakota girl advertises as follows:—'I mean business. If there is any young man in this county who has as much sand in him as a plug of tobacco, I want to hear from him. I have a free claim and homestead, am a good cook and not afraid to work, and am willing to do my part. If any man with a like amount of land and decent face and carcass wants a good wife, I can fill the bill.'

In Western New Mexico is a deposit of petrified agate, like trees, the largest of which, it is said, are seven feet in diameter, and the longest one is exposed a length of sixty-five feet above the ground. These fossil trees lie mostly in a horizontal position. The formation in which they are found is a purple-colored deposit, strongly impregnated with alkali.

Chicago is the greatest lumber market in the world. The single item of sawed lumber received there in 1881 would lay an inch flooring fourteen feet wide round the earth at the equator. The amount of lumber manufactured in the three State of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota during 1881 would lay such a floor fifty feet wide.

The value of advertising was never better illustrated than in the case of a Kansas man, a short time ago. A farmer desiring additional harvest hands, went to town and inserted an advertisement for two boys; when he went home that night he found that his wife had presented him with twins. There's nothing like advertising.

It is a common practice in Philadelphia to take children to the gasworks to be treated for whooping cough. There the little ones are held over the purifying pans to breathe the mingled fumes of ammonia and sulphur. This affords relief by clearing the air passages, and the physicians recommend it.

Fred just returned from a long journey, to his brother who had just got married:) 'I say, Jack, what did you marry that frightfully ugly woman for?' Jack: 'I did not look at her exterior—it was for her inward beauty that I married her.' Fred: 'For goodness' sake, Jack, turn her inside out.'

'Seventy berths in the ladies' cabin!' exclaimed Fogg, after hearing a description of the Old Colony steamer. 'Great Scott! but there must have been a terrible squall about that time!'

The Journal.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1882.

SOME of the leading New England Congregationalists have become dissatisfied with the manner in which their denominational paper, the Congregationalist, is conducted, and have raised about $100,000 with which to start a new paper, to be edited, it is said, by Rev. Dr. Spaulding of Dover, N. H., and in which there shall be allowed a somewhat freer discussion of doctrinal matters than is now permitted in the Congregationalist. It is an easy matter to start a new paper. The rub will come when the "barrel" is exhausted, and the paper must depend upon its patrons for support. Then is the time when its projectors may find their experience to be a very dear teacher.

THE good work instituted by Postmaster General James in cutting down the expenses and wastes in his department shows itself in a surplus of some two million dollars on its last year's business. It is understood that Postmaster General Howe will in his annual report recommend the establishment of postal telegraphy and postal savings banks, but will ignore the two-cent letter postage question. The people have been long accustomed to an annual deficit of several millions in this department, and now that it is self-sustaining there is no reason why two-cent letter postage should not be adopted. A deficit would probably ensue for a few years, but it would be a reduction in taxation which would come home to the hearts and purses of nearly every man and woman in the country, and the increased business which would follow would soon balance the shortage.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Ex-Councilor Edwards of Northampton is the Democratic nominee for Congress from the 11th district.

Cameron's agents in Pennsylvania are charged with direct attempts at bribery. Every such attempt will cost the Cameron party many votes, as it should.

According to Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, the interests of temperance, prohibition and morals can be promoted only by voting for Charles Almy for Governor.

The Boston Globe is up to its old game of brag, and talks as though Butler was already as good as elected. It would seem as though this kind of talk must become tiresome even to itself.

The Republican conference of chairmen of town and city committees at Boston, Tuesday, called out a large attendance, and encouraging reports were given of the party's prospects in all parts of the State.

Congressman Robinson was renominated by acclamation at Chester, Wednesday, and Wellington Smith of Lee was nominated for councilor in the same way, both conventions doing up their work in short meter.

It is believed that a good many Democrats will manifest their disapproval of Butler, and at the same time their appreciation of the faithful and intelligent public services of Robert R. Bishop, by voting for the latter for Governor.

Gov. Long, in his letter accepting his nomination to Congress, indorses civil service reform in such an emphatic manner that it is clear enough where he stands, and we shall be surprised if he is not heard from on the subject before he has been long in Congress.

Gen. Butler addressed two large and enthusiastic audiences at Boston Monday evening, spoke to a large crowd at Worcester Wednesday evening, and will address his admirers at Springfield to-night. The General will confine his platform efforts this year to the large cities, where the most of his strength lies.

Editor Gere of Northampton, who seemed to be the coming man for senator from that district, declines to be a candidate, and says that he has no ambition for any office whatever, adding, with the true journalistic spirit: "I have plenty of work at home to occupy all my time,—work that is always a pleasure, and that has none of the annoyances and wearinesses incident to strife for office, and none of the vexations of office-holding itself."

Alvin Barrrus of Goshen was nominated for senator by the Republicans at Northampton on Wednesday. In the county convention E. A. Edwards of Southampton was nominated for county commissioner, H. B. Billings of Hatfield for register of deeds, W. H. Platt of Northampton for clerk of courts, and Lewis Warner of Northampton, the present Democratic incumbent, for county treasurer.

The county convention at Springfield on Wednesday renominated County Commissioner Clark and the other officers by acclamation, and appointed this county committee: Springfield, L. S. Stowe and H. P. Stone; Holyoke, George H. Smith and W. H. Loomis; Agawam, J. W. Moore; Blandford, S. A. Bartholomeow; Chester, George Pease; Chicopee, W. G. White; Granville, Silas Noble; Hampden, W. R. Sessions; Holland, W. L. Webber; Longmeadow, T. F. Cordis; Ludlow, C. B. J. Root; Monson, A. A. Gage; Montgomery, George L. Moore; Palmer, S. S. Taft; Russell, G. S. Bryant; Southwick, Edwin Gilbert; Tolland, H. B. Twining; Wales, H. A. McFarland; Westfield, W. H. Foot; West Springfield, Reuben Brooks; Wilbraham, Stebbins Fosket.

Ex-Mayor Powers's house in Springfield was thrown open Thursday evening to between four and five hundred citizens of that city and adjoining towns, who availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy Mr. Powers's princely hospitality, and shake hands with the next Governor, Robert R. Bishop. Mr. Ames, the nominee for lieutenant governor, Senator Hoar, Congressman Robinson, Congressman-to-be Wm. Whiting, Wellington Smith, nominee for councilor, Senators Haile and Bennett, and many other prominent men were present. Refreshments were served in a large tent on the lawn, and the reception was a delightful social occasion in every respect, while Mr. Bishop made a most favorable impression on all present. Mr. Bishop gave a public reception at the Massasoit House yesterday afternoon, and spoke at the city hall rally in the evening.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Weld & Longley's teas and coffees always suit.

For Sale—Two desirable sitting-room stoves, good as new. W. R. Milligan.

It is confidentially understood that Milligan expects a lively trade in boots and shoes this fall.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

M. Fox has out a new sign.

Full moon again next Thursday.

The grass is nearly as green as in June.

We had some fine October air yesterday.

A fresh coat of paint adorns Mr. Winter's house.

Still more rain. The springs ought to be well filled this fall.

A bagpiper and cornetist were making music in our streets the first of the week.

Rev. A. W. Colver of Woodbury, Ct., is to preach at the Congregational church on Sunday.

There is to be a public sale of carriages from a Cincinnati manufactory, in this village to-day.

The subject of Rev. E. A. Perry's Sunday evening lecture will be "Young People and Politics."

Wednesday was a scorcher for this time of year, the thermometer getting up into the eighties in the shade.

E. Calkins and wife are off on a vacation trip to New Haven, and will go as far as Passaic, N. J., before their return.

H. P. Holden, James Kerigan and Fred Ruggles have been drawn as jurors for the approaching civil term of the superior court.

The dramatic club had a meeting Wednesday evening, and voted to give an entertainment at Wales Hall Thanksgiving evening, when they will present the drama "Caste."

The Spencer Sun claims that the youngest cashier in the State is at the national bank in that town, his age being 23, but we can go them one, or rather two, better, for W. C. Dewey, cashier of the Palmer National Bank, is but 21 years of age.

Rev. George Hughes of North Brookfield is canvassing the town for Gen. Dodge's interesting new book, "Thirty-three Years Among our Wild Indians," which is probably the most interesting and reliable book on Indian life ever published.

Dr. Stowe has had charge of a case of shingles this week—in fact, of several cases. The carpenters have been spreading them over the roof of his house, and the doctor's treatment didn't prove half so efficacious in checking their spread as the rain did.

Gen. Hazen, chief of the signal service bureau announces that warning of approaching frosts will be sent to the districts threatened as early as possible before their occurrence, and farmers and others in this vicinity can find out what the prospect is by inquiring at the telegraph office.

A meeting of persons interested in the organization of a literary club was called at the house of Rev. E. A. Perry last (Friday) evening, and it is hoped that there will be a sufficient interest in the subject to insure the organization of a large and active society for mutual improvement and pleasure during the approaching winter evenings.

Don't the Boston & Albany Railroad managers propose to give the people along their road an opportunity to attend the Boston fair at reduced rates? A good many people would be glad to attend if they could go to Boston at cheap excursion rates, and the road can well afford to give them the opportunity to do so. But it must be done soon if at all.

Gen. John L. Swift was announced to speak at Wales Hall Thursday evening, and the Republicans engaged the Three Rivers band to furnish music for the occasion, but the rain caused a postponement of the meeting to next Saturday evening, when a good turn-out is expected. Gen. Swift is a capital speaker, and always says something worth hearing.

George H. Fisherdick, the farmer at the State Primary School, is taking the first vacation he has had in thirteen years, having started this week, with his wife, on a trip to Wisconsin and other parts of the West, for an absence of some six weeks. Mr. Fisherdick has been at the institution the most of the time since it was established, and has had but few vacations.

Geo. W. Randall was chosen moderator at the Republican caucus on Monday evening, and W. W. Leach secretary. Delegates to the different conventions were elected, as follows: Congressional and councilor, Geo. W. Randall, Dr. Wm. Holbrook, F. A. Packard; county, G. W. Randall, S. S. Taft, C. B. Fisk; senatorial, Dr. S. Ruggles, E. G. Murdock, W. W. Leach.

Complaint is made that some persons are in the habit of making a thoroughfare of the cemetery in this village, and are not very particular as to keeping in the paths, but go across the lots and graves in a lawless manner, wearing the turf and spoiling the mounds. Anybody who has no more respect for the dead than this, should be made to regard the rights of the living by a little application of the law.

Elder H. C. Smith has for some time felt the need of a housekeeper, and Mrs. Susan Willard was publicly recognized as such on Thursday evening, the marriage ceremony being performed by Rev. O. R. Hunt. The people of Mr. Smith's charge evidently thought he needed a timekeeper as well as a housekeeper, and among many other useful articles, presented him with a good stem-winding watch.

The rain of last Saturday necessitated the postponement of the trot between Joseph Thompson's "Nettie" and A. J. Northrop's colt to Monday afternoon, when the race was won by the latter in three straight heats, time 2.51½, 2.53, 2.52½. The race was for a purse of $1000, and considerable interest was manifested, though only about one hundred cared enough to witness it to pay the half-dollar charged for admittance to the park.

Wm. A. Thompson is at work on the foundation for the new woolen mill at the south end of the village, and will soon have it ready for the superstructure. Mr. Holden has changed his plans somewhat, having concluded to build his mill of brick instead of wood, and will erect a four-story mill, 100 by 42 feet, with boiler, engine, dye and picker rooms outside. This will require some 400,000 bricks, which are already purchased, and the work is to be pushed as rapidly as possible, in the hope of getting the walls up and covered before winter settles in.

The annual meeting of the Hampden Conference of Congregational churches will begin at the Olivet church, Springfield, next Tuesday, at 9.30 a. m. After organizing, there will be written reports from the churches, followed by discussions and other business. At 2 p. m. will occur the anniversary of the Benevolent Association, with the treasurer's report, and brief addresses in behalf of the various benevolent societies. This will be followed by the meeting of the Woman's Board, and a discussion of the Sunday School work in the conference. In the evening, at 7 o'clock, there will be a praise meeting, followed by a discussion of the question, "To what extent do the changed conditions of society require changes in the methods of christian work?" Discussion opened by Rev. J. E. Hurlbut. Wednesday's exercises will open with a devotional service at 8.30 a. m. At 9.30 there will be reports from fellowship meetings, and at 10 a discussion: "How to Save the Young People," opened by Rev. E. H. Byington, D. D.; and "How to Save those of Mature Life," opened by Rev. Washington Gladden, D. D. At 2 p. m. there will be a sermon by Rev. L. H. Blake, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered.

Postmaster Knox has received the new boxes ordered last week, and has now decided upon a plan for remodeling the office which will give to the village a post office more in accordance with its requirements than anything we have had in many years. It was found to be a difficult matter to arrange the office satisfactorily in its present positon, and Mr Knox has accordingly taken the front part of the store, heretofore occupied by Hitchcock's news room, and will move the office forward into that part of the room as soon as it can be made ready. A partition has been placed across the store, just in front of the present line of post office boxes, making a room in front 21 feet wide by some 30 in depth, for the use of the post office. This will give ample room for the accommodation of the public and the office, which will be arranged so that the mails will be taken in and out through the rear. The recently-built addition, and the space now devoted to the post office, will be used by Mr. Hitchcock for his news room. The new letter boxes have black walnut fronts, and when in position in the new room will make an office with which the people may well feel pleased.

DISTRICT COURT.

A case of fiendish cruelty was brought to light on Monday by the arrest of Mrs. Ellen Duncan, wife of C. N. Duncan, the shoemaker, for terribly mutilating her five-years-old step-son Alfred. The little fellow tells a straightforward story of his step-mother's inhuman butchery, but Mrs. Duncan denies the charge, and claims that the boy did it himself! The little fellow has suffered greatly, and his life has been despaired of at times, but he is now somewhat more comfortable, and it is believed that he will recover. Mrs. Duncan was brought before the court on the charge of mayhem, but the hearing was continued to Nov. 1st, bail being furnished in the sum of $1000.

John P. Dunn was arraigned on Monday, on three charges of illegal liquor selling. There were also two cases each against Michael Cunningham and Wm. Thompson, and one against Patrick Griffin, for the same offense. Dunn's cases were continued to yesterday, and the others will be heard to-day. On Wednesday Thomas Breen of Springfield paid $5.98 for drunkenness.

John P. Dunn's trial yesterday morning resulted in a fine of $100 for illegal keeping of liquor, and $50 each on two counts for selling same. He appealed.

BONDSVILLE.

Game appears to be plenty upon Quarry Hill, over three hundred gray squirrels having been taken there. One party has shot fifty-one during the season.

Bondsville seems to be growing. Warren Bond has broken ground for a new house opposite Mr. Knowlton's, and several new buildings are talked of, upon the other side of the river, above Mr. Whitney's block.

The original contract for the grading and stone work of the new mill is nearly completed. A brick wheel-house is in process of construction, and this is probably the extent of the work to be done there this fall.

BRIMFIELD.

Horace E. Janes has been drawn as juror for the October term of the superior court.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, there was a very full attendance of clergymen and other delegates, at the meeting of the Brookfield Association on Tuesday and Wednesday. Thirteen clergymen of the association were present, with the usual lay delegates. The order of exercises was carried out, with the exception that the sermon on Wednesday forenoon was by Rev. J. Danielson of Southbridge, Rev. J. F. Gaylord of Barre not being able to be present. Dinner was furnished by the ladies of the society for about 150 persons on Tuesday, also supper for all who remained for the evening service, and dinner for about the same number at the close of the meeting Wednesday.

Halford; Dorothy Dobbins, Miss Nora Manane; Goody Hobbs, Miss Lilla Richmond.

THREE RIVERS.

Mr. Editor:—It was our pleasure to listen to a most admirable lecture Wednesday evening delivered by Rev. O. R. Hunt of your village, in the Baptist church of this place. Many more should have heard it, as it is calculated to do much good in presenting the all-important subject of marriage in the true light. It is to be hoped he may be called upon to deliver it in many places before churches and societies. The harvest supper which followed was well patronized, and the ladies' society did themselves credit in providing for and waiting upnn their guests. A handsome sum was realized. COM.

The second nine of Three Rivers stand second for championship of the town of Palmer, having played three match games with the only club in town that the Sharps of Thorndike have beaten, and defeated them twice out of the three, while the Sharps have beaten them but once, and have been challenged by the Three Rivers second nine but did not accept. Therefore instead of the Sharps standing first, as they claimed in last-week's JOURNAL, the Three Rivers club, which has beaten the Sharps three games in succession and the Palmers once, claim the championship, and the second nine of Three Rivers the second place, while the Sharps can only claim third position until they accept the challenge from the Second nine of Three Rivers and beat them.

WARE AND VICINITY.

Elijah Hathaway has sold his place in the northwest part of Ware to Joseph Patoe and his brother-in-law, for $1200.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union have reorganized with the following officers: Mrs. T. D. Winslow, Pres.; Mrs. H. Ramsdell, Vice Pres.; Mrs. H. P. Billings, Sec.; Mrs. L. M. Hills, treasurer; Miss Ida Lewis, organist.

It seems a pity that the insurance companies in town should have refused the offer of 15 of our best young men to form a protective company for service at fires, in saving goods, on condition that the insurance companies furnish the necessary outfit.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society connected with the M. E. church made choice of the following officers at their annual meeting: President, Mrs. B. B. Sibley; vice president, Mrs. C. Ormsby; rec. sec., Anna Strahan; cor. sec., Della Sibley; treas., Emma Crowell.

As the evenings are getting long the round table microscopic soirees given by C. W. Eddy are in order. The Sunday school class of Miss S. Waterman were pleasantly entertained in viewing the wonders and beauties revealed by the microscope at her residence last Saturday evening.

The public were startled Tuesday morning by the announcement of the death of Luther Chapin, as but few had heard of his illness. He was one of our old and highly esteemed citizens, quiet and unobtrusive, but had represented the town in the Legislature, and filled other positions of trust. He was buried on Thursday, the 77th anniversary of his birth.

It is reported that Austin Pratt, who was injured while stealing a ride on the Boston & Albany R. R., was doing it to escape from parties in Spencer who were after him to do him personal violence, as it had leaked out that he had been playing the "spotter" on several liquor dealers there. He has since returned to testify, and seven dealers have been convicted through his instrumentality.

Mrs. Sheehan, better known as "Chicago," has been arrested the past week for keeping liquor with intent to sell, Bridget McMahon on two complaints for selling, and Owen F. McMahon on the two complaints of keeping a liquor nuisance and keeping liquor with intent to sell. At the trial yesterday morning McMahon pleaded guilty, and paid $200 and costs on two counts, but on the third sentence was suspended. Mrs. Sheehan paid $50 and costs and promised to leave town.

Fire was discovered last week Friday night about 11.30 o'clock, in the house on West Main street owned by Chas. S. Osborn of Palmer. It had been recently sold to him by Henry F. Barnes, and had been unoccupied for about three weeks. The firemen promptly responded to the alarm, and had the fire extinguished before the building was entirely destroyed, although what was left was of no value. At this fire, as well as at nearly every one we have, the need of a hook and ladder truck is seen, and we think the time is not far distant when the district will own such a piece of apparatus. The fire was no doubt of incendiary origin. Insured for $1500.

We copy the following from the New York Commercial Bulletin: "Messrs. Bliss, Fabyan & Co. are showing a large and varied line of summer gauze shirts, the production of the Otis Company, in all qualities, from the finest to the lowest. Among the specialties in this line may be mentioned some very fine brown Balbriggan shirts, in men's and women's sizes, with French collarette finish at the neck; also, a choice assortment of very fine and tastefully finished white and brown real Lisle thread shirts in men's and women's sizes. The above goods are the best of their class ever produced in this country, and their manufacture reflects great credit upon the Otis Company."

Magazines, Etc.

The Atlantic Monthly for November has an interesting and characteristic paper by Charles Dudley Warner, describing "A Ride in Spain;" also, a practical treatise of the Indian question by George S. Wilson, suggesting what seemed to him the best answer to the question "How Shall the American Savage be Civilized?" The ninth in the excellent series of papers, "Studies in the South," contains much that the people of the country ought to know, and knowing, can feel and act more intelligently and justly toward the South. The serials, Mr. Hardy's "Two on a Tower," and Mr. Bishop's "House of a Merchant Prince," increase in interest as they evidently approach completion. The number contains the usual amount of poems, reviews and essays, and for the coming year the magazine gives promise of being particularly attractive.

The North American Review for November presents a diversified table of contents. "English Views of Free Trade," by Hon. John Welsh of Philadelphia, is a forcible exposition of the difference between the economic situation of England and the United States. Joseph Neilson, Chief Judge of the Brooklyn City Court, writes of "Disorder in Court-Rooms," a subject of profound interest to good citizens, and especially so now in view of certain recent occurrences. Dr. Wm. A. Hammond offers "A Problem for Sociologists," the problem being to determine the degree of responsibility of persons affected by certain forms of insanity. "The Industrial Value of Woman," by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, is an able reply to an article recently published on "Woman's Work and Woman's Wages." "Advantages of the Jury System," by Dwight Foster, will command the attention of every thoughtful citizen, being a defense of an institution which it is becoming the fashion to belittle and decry. The remaining articles are, "Safety in Theatres," by Steele Mackaye; "The Pretentions of Journalism," by Rev. Geo. T. Rider; and a symposium on "The Suppression of Vice," by Anthony Comstock, O. B. Frothingham and Rev. J. M. Buckley.

Miller piano, four round corners, carved legs and all right, for $200; and a very fine Chickering piano, four round corners, heavy mouldings, carved legs and very handsome case, and in perfect condition, at the remarkably low price of $228.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

In their thirst for knowledge professional men have been recently much engaged in vivisection, which means the cutting up of living animals. The practice seems brutal, even at its best. Dissection, or the cutting up of the dead, has ever been productive of good. An autopsy often reveals hidden diseases and brings out startling facts. Here is a case in point: "Out of more than 500 dissections witnessed by the renowned Dr. Clendenning, about one-third presented signs of heart disease." As a matter of fact Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator is the only cure, so far discovered, for this disease. At druggists.

WILL YOU SUFFER with dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer

If, after a fair test, you are not cured of your cough by using King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam, then the druggist from whom you bought will refund the money paid. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m30

CATARRH CURED, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cts. Nasal Injector free. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.—Whenever you are assailed by internal or external pain, ache or ailment, don't wait to experiment, but apply RENNE'S PAIN KILLING MAGIC OIL, which will relieve you as if by magic. It is a most reliable remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Diseases, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, etc. No household, workshop or factory is safe without it. Give it a trial. Sold by all dealers in medicine. 4w28

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, whooping cough, influenza, consumption, and all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. 1y3

The best evidence of success is success, and that is why King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam has had such an enormous sale, for it positively cures the severest coughs, colds, &c. Always giving perfect satisfaction. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m30

The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Benson recently proved in the case of Emperor William and others that in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times. o

MORSE'S LIVER PILLS cure dizziness, headache, constipation, and all diseases arising from the liver. Put up in glass bottles. Price 20 cents. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m30

REMEMBER that every one suffering from Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, have a cure at hand in Ely's Cream Balm. Price 50 cents Apply into nostrils with little finger.

I was troubled with Chronic Catarrh and gathering in the head, was very deaf at times and had discharges from my ears, besides being unable to breathe through my nose. Before the second bottle of Ely's Cream Balm was exhausted I was cured, and to-day enjoy sound health. C. J. CORBIN, 923 Chestnut St., Field Manager Philadelphia Pub. House, Pa.

ELY'S CREAM BALM cured me of Catarrh of many years' standing—restored my sense of smell. For cold in the head it works like magic. E. H. SHERWOOD, National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J. (4)

JAS. H. FROST, DRUGGIST, WORCESTER, MASS., when ordering King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam, writes, I never sold a remedy for coughs the use of which is attended with such beneficial results. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m30

Peruvian Syrup cures dyspepsia, general debility, liver complaint, boils, humors, chronic diarrhœa, nervous affections, female complaints, and all diseases origmating in a bad state of the blood. 1y3

Free of Cost.

All persons wishing to test the merits of a great remedy—one that will positively cure consumption, coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, or any affliction of the throat or lungs—are requested to call at G. L. Hitchcock's drug store and get a trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, free of cost, which will show you what a regular dollar size bottle will do. 1y30

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it, Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

Dress Goods Department!

We have just landed our second importation of "Fancy Dress Goods" and Black Cashmeres. Without any doubt the largest assortment ever shown in New England. No house in Boston shows so large a line on their retail counters as we do, and we guarantee our prices much under New York or Boston. Getting them direct from the manufacturers, we are able to sell at much smaller profit, our expenses being much less than New York or Boston houses.

We offer a large variety of combination effects in all wool, silk and wool, and brocades. They make up more stylish than anything that has been produced for many seasons. We have just put on our counter

EXTRAORDINARY BARGAINS

—IN—

Dress Goods.

45-inch all-wool Brocades at 50c., never sold in Springfield under $1 to $1.25. This was a lot of goods we bought from a French importer at less than half price, to close the consignment. You will find all the most desirable shades for Fall wear. This is a splendid thing for misses and young ladies' suits. Every lady should examine it before it is gone. IT NEVER CAN BE DUPLICATED.

Immense stock Black and Colored Silks, Velvets, Plushes, Brocades, Satins and Brocade Velvets. All our own importation.

Ladies will find our Dress Goods and Silks much under the usual Springfield retail prices.

We have opened an elegant line of Paris and Berlin garments, Silk Suits, Wool Suits, in great variety at about the price it would cost you to get them made here.

The ladies will remember that our prices are much under the prices in Palmer.

☞ All are invited to examine.

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that

STEINWAY & SONS

Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of

PIANOS AND ORGANS

Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

That makes her life a dream?
Where are the rosy toes,
And blessed little nose,
And dimpled hands and feet,
The models all complete,
Which nature can't excel?
Ask mother—she can tell!

Who is the grandest king,
Or queen, or anything
That may be great or high?
Who wandered from the sky,
The best of girls or boys,
To be her joy of joys?
You guess—the baby? Well,
Ask mother—she can tell!

HINTS ABOUT FARM BUILDINGS.

A writer in the Country Gentleman gives some very sensible advice to farmers about not putting all their available capital into expensive and showy farm buildings. He says: 'Now, in regard to farm buildings generally, a large amount has been sunk and lost in too costly construction. If the housing of an animal costs as much or more than its own intrinsic value as a producer of milk, butter, or meat, the expense is excessive. What should be a reasonable charge for this service is of course a question which admits of some latitude. It may help its solution very much to reach a basis upon which the lowest possible cost may be calculated. I have concluded that this basis may be made upon the estimate of $10 for the perfectly comfortable, safe, convenient and permanent lodging of each horse or cow on the farm, and not more than $10 per ton, and in many cases not more than half as much, for the safe storage of all the crops grown upon the farm. At ten per cent for interest and depreciation, this would be an annual charge of $1 per cow or horse, and no more than ten cents for each sheep, and $1 per ton for hay or grain per annum. It may be granted, as an economical axiom, that if it costs less to replace a building four times for four periods of ten years each, than to build one that will last forty years, it is cheaper to use the less costly buildings. But there is a still more favorable view of this question; for if a set of farm buildings costing $1000 can be equally serviceable, except in point of durability, as a set costing $4000, the farmer has the use of $3000 as active capital, and any good farmer should be able to make it more than to restore the cheaper buildings, which in this case will be rebuilt out of the income of only a fourth part of what the more expensive building would have cost, leaving a handsome surplus as profit on the operation.'

A plucky woman in Cohoes got rid of a belligerent negro tramp in short order the other day. Perceiving from his actions that he was determined to rob the house as soon as he had finished a generous dinner which she had set before him, she quietly took a revolver from a drawer in the sewing machine, at which she was sitting, and held it within the range of his vision. The negro laughed and said he wasn't afraid of a pistol in any woman's hand, and he was willing, furthermore, to bet that it wasn't loaded.—'Oh, yes, it is loaded,' she replied. 'I put in six cartridges myself this morning, and if you'll keep your eye on that knothole across the room for a moment you'll soon see whether I know how to shoot.' She aimed, fired, and hit the mark, and then said: 'Now get out of that door as lively as you can, or the next shot will be at you.' He 'got.'

In the steam car the other day was a bright little four-year-old lady. An elderly gentleman, a few seats back, every time the little one turned around, would shake his finger, or duck his head, or 'cluck,' or do some one of the score of things that are supposed to be especially pleasing to babies. The little girl answered all these kindly attentions with a vacant stare, until, apparently surfeited and grown tired of them, she exclaimed, in a voice loud enough to be heard half through the car, 'Mamma, I really believe that old fool is trying to make love to me.'

A prominent Austin politician woke up his colored man a few nights ago and told him to search the house, as he was sure there was a burglar on the premises. The darkey hunted the house all over and reported as follows: 'Colonel I has hunted from top to bottom, aud if dar is a 'spishous character 'ceptin' you in de house, I can't find him.'—Texas Siftings.

It was Mike's third appearance in court within thirty days, and in reply to his usual appeal for clemency the magistrate impatiently observed: 'It's no use, Mike; you're good for nothing.' 'It's not me shtyle to be braggin',' retorted Mike, 'but if yer honor will borry a pair of shillalies and step outside wid me I'll make it inconvaynient for ye to howld that opinion.'—Brooklyn Eagle.

A correspondent asks: 'What time of the year do the days begin to shorten?' When you have a note in bank. A note in bank is the great annihilator of time. The days are crowded together in thin layers and the nights are like a smear from a blacking brush.—Arkansas Traveler.

An old lady from one of the rural districts astonished a clerk in one of the stores by inquiring if he had any 'yaller developments sich as they did up letters in.'

Chief Justice Coleridge of England says that four-fifths of the crime that comes into court results from drink for which Britishers pay over $500,000,000 a year.

Old, but good: Why is the earth like a school blackboard? Because the children of men multiply upon the face of it.

'Fat Boy'—No, you cannot raise chickens from egg-plants. You might as well try to raise calves from a cowcatcher.

A little Southern boy, when asked if his father had a good mule, mournfully replied, 'One end of him is good.'

Nature has given us two ears and but one tongue, in order that we may repeat but one half of what we hear.

Embroidered mustard plasters are now recognized as a necessary feature of æsthetic medication.

The receiving teller—The last woman in the sewing society.

"When I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering inquiries."—Hon. William Taylor, Boston. o

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

For GEN. DODGE'S bran' new book, entitled

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

AGENTS! This grand book is now outselling all others 10 to 1. No competition. Agents average 10 to 20 orders a day. We want 1000 more agents at once. Exclusive territory and special terms given. Our large circulars with full particulars sent free. A fine specimen plate sent in addition for a 3-cent stamp. Address the sole publishers, A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., 16w27 HARTFORD, CONN.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checke , and a new growth will be produced in all c ses where the follices are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

DURING THE LATE WAR

THE GOVERNMENT MADE ITS BEST ARMS AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—WHAT MR. DAVID CLARK, INSPECTOR U. S. ARMORY THERE, RECOMMENDS.

Your reporter found Inspector Clark at his office on the Armory grounds busily examining "receivers" for the regulation army rifles. However, he was as willing to say a word for the merits of health and strength restoratives as to prove the merits of implements of death. He said: "My business keeps me closely confined to the Armory and in doors. As a result, I've suffered considerably from indigestion and biliousness, but I find that Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is a most excellent medicine for these complaints. I most cordlally recommend it, for I am acquainted with its worth. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is used a great deal by the machinists in the U. S. Armory here."

While FAVORITE REMEDY is a specific in Kidney and Bladder diseases, it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders and Constipation of the Bowels. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, FAVORITE REMEDY, he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to office practice. He treats all diseases and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery. 4w31

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.

October.

Oh! suns and skies and clouds of June,
And flowers of June together,
Ye cannot rival for an hour
October's bright blue weather.

When loud the humble-bee makes haste—
Belated, thriftless vagrant—
And golden-rod is dying fast,
And lanes with grapes are fragrant;

When gentians roll their fringes tight,
To save them from the morning,
And chestnuts fall from prickly burrs
Without a sound of warning;

When on the ground red apples lie
In piles like jewels shining,
And redder still on old stone walls
Are leaves of woodbine twining;

When all the lovely wayside things,
Their white-winged seeds are sowing,
And in the fields, still green and fair,
Late aftermaths are growing;

When springs run low, and on the brooks
In idle, golden freighting,
Bright leaves sink noiseless in the hush
Of woods, for winter waiting;

When comrades seek sweet country haunts,
By twos and twos together,
And count, like misers, hour by hour,
October's bright blue weather;—

Oh! suns and skies and flowers of June,
Count all your boasts together,
Love loveth best, of all the year,
October's bright blue weather.

ROMANCE OF A POSTAGE STAMP.

I breathed more freely after it was over. It was a temptation resisted—but I felt better after having done it. As I was assorting the letters, preparatory to putting them in the mail bag for New York, one letter turned and sent a jealous shock through me that sent my heart throbbing and my brain swimming with a sudden dizziness. I might have expected to have seen it there, but not the less did it affect me when I did see it—'Joseph Norris, India Dock, New York'—that was the address—and I knew that it was his. I had a dear little note, in that same handwriting, next to my heart then—a few graceful words thanking me for a book I had sent her—a little note that I had read over countless times and kissed it often, wondering would it displease her to know how fondly I cherished it. I thrust the hateful letter out of my sight, and leaning my head on the table, lived over again the hopes, the fears, the wretchedness of the last twenty-four hours.

The day before, while distributing the matter, I came across a letter addressed to myself, and on opening it I found that, through the generosity of a distant relative, whose name I bore, I had been left in California an inheritance of $20,000. What a change a few strokes of a pen had made—transforming Karl Bergmann, postmaster of a secluded village in Connecticut, into Karl Bergmann, the possessor of a competence, well invested, yielding a certain income! and how, before my good fortune, I had thought of Annie Merrill as one separated from me by my poor circumstances, my salary barely supporting my mother and myself, how could I ask any woman to share my poverty! Now that burden of poverty was most unexpectedly lifted from me. I felt at liberty to tell her the hopes I never dared to entertain till now. What would her answer be? That I would learn that very night. In the same mail with my letter was one addressed to her, postmarked New York. Her correspondence all passed through my hands, but I had never seen that writing before. It was no weak, wavering, feminine style. It was large, clear, decisive, the writing of a self-possessed man. Who could the writer be? Annie's uncle, Dr. Merrill, had male correspondents in New York. But this letter was the first that had come to her since she came orphaned from the city a month before, and had been received into her uncle's heart and home. But other thoughts put the question of the letter out of my mind. I sent by a messenger a few hurried lines to my mother to prepare her for her good fortune, and then counted the hours that would pass before I could offer my inheritance to Annie encumbered with its possessor. When I reached home I found her there before me. My mother, who had taken her into favor from the first, her sweetness and orphaned situation proving a passport to her heart, had sent for Annie to communicate the good news to her. She was strangely quiet, I thought; there was a troubled look in her blue eyes I never saw there before. In fact, after a while, a subdued feeling stole over us all. Annie's disquiet seemed to impart itself to us. I was thinking how I could venture to tell her all my hopes, and my mother, guessing what my thoughts were, left us together most of the evening, but my heart failed me. It was only when I was walking home with Annie to Dr. Merrill's that I found courage to speak. She led me on by saying that I must not think, from her silence, that she did not rejoice in the happy change in my prospects, for no one could be more sincere in their congratulations than herself. I answered, that my good fortune would be valueless to me, unless I could share it with the girl I loved.

'The girl you love?' she repeated questioningly.

I felt her hand tremble on my arm.

'The girl I love,' I answered in tones that she might have interpreted, but failed to do so.

'She ought to be a happy woman,' she continued. 'May I ask if I know her?'

'If you know her!' I cried. 'If you know her! O, who could she be but you?'

'Me?'

She drew her hand quickly away from my arm and stood quite still before me.

'Me! O, you did not say me?'

And then I saw the moonlight falling on her face, and it was not the face of a girl shining with happy confusion when she hears the story of his love from the man whom she prefers. It was pale and shocked, and then she hid it from me in her hands and burst into tears.

I needed no other answer. I knew my suit was hopeless.

'Don't cry, dear! I never thought to wound you.'

'I thought you knew,' she went on sobbingly. 'I thought my uncle might have told you. I am to marry Mr. Norris. I got a letter from him to-day. O, can you forgive me?'

She stretched out her little hands imploringly. I took them in mine and kissed them—they were sacred to me; they belonged to another, and I kissed them, while my heart was breaking.

'Forgive you! my darling!' I said, 'I would forgive you if you killed me, I think. Don't grieve, Annie, I will try to bear it.'

We parted at her uncle's without another word, and I went home to the motherly heart that I knew would suffer with me, and whose tender sympathy would uphold me in this hour of bitter trial.

The next day I sent on my resignation to Washington, for my mother and I agreed to leave the village where we had passed so many quiet years. It was in the afternoon of the same day that the letter of which I had spoken, that I now knew was for my rival, attracted my attention. I took it up rather reluctantly—I felt I would rather have touched a poisonous snake—and was just about to put the postmark on when I saw that the stamp upon it, instead of being a postal one, was a revenue stamp, and that the letter, instead of speeding off on wings of love to New York, must be consigned to the dead letter office at Washington. With a thrill of savage delight I flung it into the box appropriated to the reception of such castaways, and went on with my evening's work.

With that work I went on mechanically, but my thoughts were not agreeably employed. That, then, was the answer to the missive which she had received. But it should be long before he would get it—get it too late perhaps for an explanation; for misunderstandings between lovers had often arisen from a slighter cause than the non-arrival of an expected letter. I pictured him waiting and longing for the letter that would not come, and she, poor girl, how her tender heart would be tortured by his imagined neglect, when no answer would be forthcoming. She, I knew, would suffer in silence, and I fondly hoped that he would do the same. So I locked the mail bag and waited for the messenger to carry it to the station. The express would pass in less than an hour and a half.

And then a struggle began in my heart. The mis-stamped letter seemed to look reproachfully at me from the box into which I had thrown it, and seemed to whisper to me that one little act of mine could send it unimpeded on its mission.

No one, I believe, unless he was in my situation, actuated by the same despairing, selfishly hopeful feelings that were overmastering me, could understand what a base impulse I conquered when at last, after an hour's temptation, I took that letter from its resting place, substituted a postage stamp for the revenue one, opened the mail bag and let it go. Then after it was done some hot tears rushed to my eyes. It was my last hope, and I could not help indulging in some weakness over its grave.

The next mail from New York arrived three days after. I had the poor satisfaction of seeing the results of my good action in a letter in the handwriting of my rival, addressed to Annie, making its unwished-for appearance, as I knew it would, and shortly after Dr. Merrill took it away with him as he called for his mail. Loungers came in and out of the office and went away finding me little disposed for conversation. Nothing yet was known in the village of my acquisition, so I was spared the pain of listening to the congratulations that I was in no mood to hear. When I went home that evening I was surprised to find my mother absent, and still more surprised when, opening a note she had left for me, I learned that she was with Annie at Dr. Merrill's, and that I was to follow her there. Hopeless as I felt, the prospect of seeing Annie again promised me only a painful pleasure, but still the thought of being near her had a fascination that I could not resist. When I reached the doctor's I found him and my mother seated in his office, so intent on the moves of a knight's gambit, that a mere nod on my entrance showed their consciousness of my arrival. Annie was not there but I found her in the parlor standing upon the hearth rug, the glow of the firelight shining on her golden hair and a glow of eager, happy expectation in her looks that was new to her sweet face.

'I am so glad to see you,' she said, giving me her hand. 'I have been impatient for your coming—and I will tell you why. There is a question I want you to answer. It perplexes me, and somehow I think I can look to you for an answer. You remember a letter that I received in the early part of the week?'

She hesitated and cast down her eyes.

'I have too good a reason ever to forget it,' I answered, bitterly.

'I answered that letter the next day. It was of vital importance to me that it should go then as there would be no other mail for several days. I was troubled when I wrote it, and stamped it at my uncle's desk while the messenger was waiting to take it to the office. I found, too late, that I had mis-stamped it. I have been utterly wretched for the past few days, on account of that mistake. I knew too well what the fate of my letter would be. Judge then how relieved I felt when my uncle brought me this,'—taking from the mantel piece the letter that had come that morning. 'If it escaped your keen observation how did my letter pass the eyes of the New York officials undetected. This is my question.'

Her eyes searched my face.

I took her hand in my own.

'Annie,' said I, 'I believe I could make no one understand what it cost my jealous heart to rectify that mistake, but I did it. I knew that it must be an answer to that letter you spoke of a few nights ago. It ought to prove to you how unselfishly I love you, when I restamped it and sent it on its way to him; I never thought you would find it out. I did it to spare you a moment's uneasiness. If the man you love cares for you as much as I do, he will make your life a happy one.'

'How can I repay your generosity?' she said, in a voice tremulous with feeling. 'You could not have acted better if you had a peep at the contents of that letter. But your reward may be claimed when you read this.'

She handed me the letter and glided out of the room. I took it over to the shaded lamp and read as follows:

'Dear Annie:—When beside your father's dying bed we entered into an engagement of marriage, I felt as he did, that the firm of which he and I were partners would be best sustained by our union.

'I wrote to you notifying you of my readiness to fulfill my part of the agreement, and requesting you to be ready to return with me on Saturday as my wife. You say to me that I must not come. There is but one explanation in this refusal, and that is, that you have seen some one that pleases you better than your humble servant. It is but natural, child; I cannot blame you. The young should mate with the young, and I am too much your senior to expect to awake in your youthful heart, feelings that have long been lifeless in my own.

'I release you from a promise that I am now aware was made by you under the pressure of the sad circumstances. But this fact can never affect the fatherly regard I have entertained for the only child of my dear old friend.'

I read no further. Here was my reward. And how nearly I had lost it by the desire of gratifying an ungenerous impulse! Annie has since assured me that had Joseph Norris arrived on the day designated, so great was her awe of her father's old partner, that she never would have had the courage to contend against her destiny. Indeed, the circumstances of having made the error she did in mis-stamping the letter seemed to her troubled mind significant of a deep meaning, and that even beyond the grave her father sought to control her action.

Annie did not return to the parlor. I found her seated in the doctor's office apparently interested in the game which just at the moment of my entrance he brought to a conclusion.

'Check—'

'Mate,' I cried, finishing the word for him, and catching Annie in my arms, heedless of the astonishment of the elderly pair, I demanded my reward.

Well, Joseph Norris, gray-haired, common place and undemonstrative, came to Glenwell, to other nuptials than his own. He gave away my dear one with the best of grace, and after the marriage congratulated me on my admission to the firm.

My ignorance of his meaning was so apparent that with a grim smile he enlightened me. With my bride, I acquired the half interest in an East India firm in New York and Calcutta. If Annie had chosen to appear as an orphan, dependent on the bounty of her uncle, she had the satisfaction of knowing that the love she won was offered to herself and not to the golden store that attracts so many suitors.

'My dearest,' I sometimes say to her, 'who would think that in a great measure we owe our happiness to one little postage stamp?'

A BIG JOB.

A gentleman with a mass of white hair, flowing side whiskers, a resolute mouth, and eyes in which there was an expression of grim determination, sat bolt upright in his chair yesterday in the New York Sub-Treasury building, signing his name on the new gold certificates with the regularity and precision of an automaton. It was Assistant Treasurer Thomas C. Acton in the act of trying to keep ahead of the demand.

'What—is—it?' he asked, with a rhythmical accentuation in keeping with the mechanical swing of the pen.

'The Sun sent me down to see you sign the new certificates.'

'Sit down.'

'How does it go?'

'I am—twenty-nine millions—of dollars—ahead of—the demand.'

'Do you sign all day long?'

'Never stop—from 9 till 5—even for—a lunch. Signed seven—thousand times—in three—days. Thirteen thou—sand sig—natures—since—the 3d instant.'

'Isn't it getting rather monotonous?'

'Well, I am—becoming—somewhat—satiated.'

'The Washington dispatches say that you asked for the privilege of signing all of the new certificates.'

'It's a lie; the job was given—to me, and—I'm bound to do it. There are—a hundred millions—in the house—but I will—get through.'—N. Y. Sun.

AN INTERESTING RIDE.

Stage-coaching on the wild mountain roads of California is described by some as great fun. Here is a sample of its delights: One night the only outside passenger on a Placerville stage was riding sleepily beside the driver when a lurch in the coach aroused him, and to his horror he found the driver was missing. The big head light and the two side lights showed that the road was a down grade, with a rocky wall on one side and a precipice on the other. The team was going at a fast trot. The passenger reached down to see if he could find the reins, but soon realized that his search was hopeless, for the reins had gone overboard with the driver. What was to be done? The inside passengers were all asleep. In a few minutes the coach without guidance would be sure to go over the precipice. Before he could think twice he heard a hoarse voice which seemed to come from the ground, call out: 'Jam your foot on the brake and holler whoa!' The passenger obeyed, the team slowed down, the people inside woke up and thrust out their heads. Then the voice was heard again, saying: 'You fellers git out and take them leaders by the head, and I'll see if I kin crawl out of this.' It was the driver, who had clung to the reins when he fell, and rolling himself into a ball, had been dragged along the road between the front and hind wheels, holding on in spite of bruises, because he knew that it was death to the passengers if he let go.

TRAINING VICIOUS HORSES.

A new and very simple method of training vicious horses was exhibited at West Philadelphia recently, and the manner in which some of the wildest horses were subdued was astonishing. The first trial was that of a kicking, or 'bucking,' mare, which her owner said had allowed no rider on her back for a period of at least five years. She became tame in about as many minutes, and allowed herself to be ridden about without a sign of her former wildness. The means by which the result was accomplished was a piece of light rope, which was passed around the front of the jaw of the mare just above the upper teeth, crossed in her mouth, thence secured back of her neck. It was claimed that no horse will kick or jump when thus secured, and that a horse after receiving this treatment a few times, will abandon his vicious ways forever. A very simple method was also shown by which a kicking horse could be shod. It consisted in connecting the animal's head with his tail by means of a rope fastened to the tail and then to the bit, and then drawn tightly enough to incline the animal's head to one side. This, it is claimed, makes it absolutely impossible for a horse to kick on the side of the rope. At the same exhibition a horse which for many years had to be bound on the ground to be shod, suffered the blacksmith to operate on him without attempting to kick, while secured in the manner described.

Facts are to the mind the same thing as food to the body. On the due digestion of facts depend the true strength and wisdom of the one, just as vigor and health depend on the other. The wisest in council, the ablest in debate, and the most agreeable companion in the commerce of human life, is that man who has assimilated to his understanding the greatest number of facts.—Burke.

He who would acquire fame must not show himself afraid of censure. The dread of censure is the death of genius.—Simms.

Shadows.

A burst of golden sunshine,
A whispering of the leaves;
A music-ripple on the brook,
A joy, a wonder in each nook;
A sweeping shadow o'er the land,
A flushing of the tree-tops;
A crimsoning of the lake,
A peaceful mildness in the air,
A thought of hidden mysteries there;
A glorious fading of the sun—
A summer's day is done.

A joy in childhood's playthings,
A casting them aside;
A flash of golden youth-hood's hour,
When joy breaks through the passing shower;
A castle-building in the air;
A cherished hope defeated;
A smile, a joy, a doubt,
A gleam reflected from the past,
A sigh upon its bosom cast;
A mystery of a world unknown,
And then—a soul has flown.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

GOV. LONG'S VIEWS, AS SET FORTH IN HIS LETTER ACCEPTING HIS NOMINATION TO CONGRESS.

With regard to the civil service, I have, ever since my entrance into political life, felt and urged the necessity of a change in the method of appointment. Not being a new convert I feel at liberty to say that this reform has its limitations, and I favor the Pendleton or Eaton bill because it regulates entrance into the service and does not attempt to secure fixity of tenure. A civil service bottled up at both ends, would, I fear, soon furnish an illustration of how not to do it. The one vital step of imperative necessity is in my judgment to separate appointments to the routine civil service from political influence and control. Let an independent commission be charged with the matter. It would make practical tests—giving preference to the veteran soldier, other things equal—and would never, because otherwise it would never sustain itself a day, make mere literary or unsubstantial examinations. Let there be probation and trial before actual permanent appointment; and let there be a well-regulated system of promotions. There would then be no temptation to improper removals, because no political advantage would be gained thereby, and officials would only be removed, as they are now removed in business houses, after their usefulness is gone. There are many other wise and practical limitations in the Eaton bill which those who criticise civil service reform as impracticable would do well to observe.

The idea of a competitive system of appointments is often sneered at. But it is exactly what we already have—only it is now a competition in personal influence and in caucus and election work, instead of a competition, open to all and regulated by law, in meritorious fitness for office. The present system is a system of patronage, demoralizing whomever it tempts, whether reformers or conservatives, so that I certainly shall make no pretension in advance of being proof against it. It ought to be a system of the selection of the best and the survival of the fittest. It encourages favoritism; it ought to give everybody a chance. Because it is a system of patronage, it makes the civil service in some instances an asylum for persons who are in need of charity or to whom political obligations exist, and so results in over-employment by unnecessary making of places for needy dependents and political favorites, begetting thus not only a machine bul extravagance. It torments congressmen, consumes their time and wastes their service, besides destroying rather than making them strong with their constituencies. I cannot conceive of any member of Congress wanting any such reciprocal relation of obligation, or not rejoicing in the passage of a law which shall separate official appointments from all political connection.

Such a reform is also but justice to those deserving men who are now in service. It would remove them at once from the tyranny of political dependence, and would certainly enable them to snap their fingers in the face of involuntary political assessments, the enforcement of which should also be prohibited by law.

DIDN'T LIKE THE SECURITY.—Several years ago one of the most prominent cattle men in Wyoming, who can to-day easily command $1,000,000 for a cattle trade without impairing his business, went to Boston to negotiate a loan with Massachusetts capitalists. He met an old man who knew more about cent per cent than he did about Wyoming and Colorado cattle, and began to talk business. He said that he was making large profits on his present investments, and therefore he wanted to put more capital into the business, very naturally, to increase his income. Mr. Moneybags asked what security would be given. 'I would secure the loan by mortgage on my herd, sir.' 'Where are your cattle?' 'Some in Wyoming, some in Nebraska, and some in Colorado.' 'How much land have you under fence?' 'None.' 'How much land do you own?' 'Not a foot.' 'Whose land does your stock graze on?' 'Government land.' 'How often do you see your stock?' 'Once a year.' 'Don't you have a herder with them?' 'No, sir.' 'Well, young man, I would as soon lend you money on the herring in Boston harbor.'—Laramie (Wy.) Boomerang.

'You advertise that there is a fine stream of water on the place, but I don't see it,' remarked a stranger who wanted to rent the place. The landlord said: 'Just work that pump handle, and you will see a fine stream of water. You don't expect to have the Niagara Falls on the place for $15 a month, do you?'

Never growl because a newspaper fails to give every scrap of news, so long as you take no pains to give the editor information. The average country editor isn't a medium, or a mind reader, but gets his news just the same as the milkman gets his milk—by pumping.—Turner's Falls Reporter.

He said the grapes were eight cents a pound, or three pounds for a quarter. She took three pounds, so as to get them cheap. Half a square away a new light broke upon her and she returned and lectured him on the total immorality of the proceeding.

If it were not for labor, men could not eat so much, nor relish so pleasantly, nor sleep so soundly, nor be so healthful, nor so useful, so strong, nor so patient, so noble, nor so unattempted.

Temptation is a Christian grace, and necessary for our happiness here as well as hereafter, and we should give earnest attention to this work and its claims upon us.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1882.

SPRINGFIELD is to have another Potter, the First Baptist church having called Rev. L. L. Potter of West Newton to its pastorate. With two able Potters, the moral and spiritual clay of that city ought to be well molded.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR appoints Thursday, Nov. 30th, a day of national thanksgiving, and recommends that it be made "a special occasion for deeds of kindness and charity to the suffering and the needy, so that all who dwell within the land may rejoice and be glad."

THE Massachusetts supreme court has overruled the defendants' exceptions in the libel suit of Rev. Charles D. Lathrop, formerly of Amherst, against the Springfield Republican, and the verdict of $1000 against that paper accordingly stands. In view of all the evidence brought out at the trial, it don't seem to be the minister who has suffered for righteousness' sake in this case.

THE 200th anniversary of the landing of William Penn was celebrated at Philadelphia, Tuesday, in a most elaborate and enthusiastic manner, the procession being the finest ever seen in the city. The festivities were sadly marred during a display of fireworks in the evening, by the explosion of a mortar, resulting in the loss of seven lives, and the serious injury of a number of people. The celebration has extended through the week.

AN address to the temperance voters of the State has been published, calling attention to the alliance between the liquor interests and the Democratic party, to the "personal liberty leagues" which are being organized in the interests of free rum, and to the undoubted object of this league and the Democratic party to abrogate the present laws restricting the liquor traffic when that party once gets into power. The address urges the voters to vote the Republican ticket if they would escape this evil. Such names as Gov. Long, ex-Gov. Washburn, President Capen of Tufts college, and many other prominent men are appended to the address, which is certainly worthy of careful consideration by the temperance men.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Senator Haile is reported to be in favor of his friend Gov. Long for United States Senator.

Oscar Edwards of Northampton, who was nominated for Congress by the Democrats while absent on a Western trip, declines to stand.

Butler is to make only two or three more speeches. The Democratic managers wisely conclude that his talk does more harm than good.

Reuben Noble of Westfield is the Democratic nominee for Congress, and Geo. T. Plunkett of Hinsdale is their candidate for councilor.

Butler's only possible chance of being elected lies in the apathy of Republican voters. If enough of them stay away from the polls, he will be the next Governor.

Joseph N. Dolph has been elected United States Senator from Oregon on the 41st ballot, over ex-Senator Mitchell, whose defeat is a cause for rejoicing among reputable Republicans.

Boston Germans of the personal liberty league are going for Butler because of the "illiberal, dishonest, pusillanimous policy" of the Republicans in making a "crusade against the German national drink."

The rich Connecticut Democrats refuse to contribute towards campaign expenses this year, and the party managers in that State are accordingly assuming virtuous airs. They would not use money to elect their ticket, oh, no! They are above it.

Candidates for the Senate and House ought to be sounded as to their views on the question of biennial elections and sessions. If they are not willing to vote to submit this question to the people, somebody should be sent in their places who will be.

Wilson Eddy of Springfield has been nominated by the Democrats for county commissioner, James Kirkham for county treasurer, and James E. Russell for register of deeds. C. C. Merritt of the same city is nominated for Senator from the 1st Hampden district.

The Democrats of the north Berkshire district have nominated Landlord Swift of the Wilson House, North Adams, for senator, and hope that his popularity will carry him into office over Senator Rockwell of Pittsfield, who has been renominated by the Republicans.

I have heard a Massachusetts member argue on the floor of the House that the government should put up a public building wherever it is possible, and that not to do this is false economy. That man was B. F. Butler, and yet in his last letter of acceptance he complains because of the lavish expenditure on public buildings.—From Congressman Robinson's address at Springfield.

A Virginia postmaster who sent Hubbell's committee a $20 confederate note in response to a demand for 20 per cent of his $100 salary to help "the cause" in Virginia, was promptly removed and his office discontinued by order of Mahone, who allows no such trifling with his lordly authority. The postmster denounces Mahone as "a little bobtailed weasel eater, ex-railroad conductor and would-be autocrat."

In his speeches, Gen. Butler has said that 7000 men were killed or wounded at Fort Fisher. The official report puts the number at 647. He says the Hoosac Tunnel has cost the people $40,000. The correct figures, interest and all, are $21,000,000 in round numbers. He says there are 100,000 office holders in the service of the United States with salaries of $1000 or more. The exact number is less than 26,000. There are 40,000 with salaries of less than $500, and 25,000 with less than $100. These are only specimens of the "facts" with which he interests his audiences and expects to win votes.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Milligan offers calf boots for $2, kip boots for $2, and ladies' slippers for 15 cents.

Weld & Longley have added crockery to their already fine stock of goods, at low prices.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Have you registered?

All Saints' Day next Wednesday.

Some fine moonlight evenings this week.

The warrant for town meeting will be found in another column.

The Boston & Albany Railroad has bought the Woonsocket division of the New York & New England road.

F. M. Eager, E. L. Davis, Weld & Longley, and the telephone exchange have put out new signs the past week.

W. H. Hubbard, who has charge of the engine house at Brattleboro,has moved his family to that town this week.

H. G. Loomis has sold a building lot to Mrs. Mary J. Bradway of Wilbraham, who will build a house thereon.

Anchor of Hope Lodge of Good Templars will hereafter meet Monday evenings, instead of Thursday as heretofore.

Wales Hall block has been without gas for a few days, owing to a break in the machinery, but it is all right now.

The wind, dust and leaves united in a furious frolic Thursday afternoon, making it decidedly unpleasant being out of doors.

Engineer Frank Moore, who runs a freight train between Palmer and Brattleboro, is off sick, and W. F. Ham is running in his place.

E. Brown will light his house with gas hereafter, having placed a Springfield gas machine on his premises this week for that purpose.

The freight traffic is brisk now-a-days on the New London Northern Railroad, and an extra is running daily for the present to keep the work along.

Chestnuts are yielding unexpectedly well hereabouts, the supply being considerably ahead of the demand. They are selling now at 10 cents a quart.

An autumnal service will be held in the Methodist church at Four Corners on Sunday afternoon, at 1.30 o'clock. An appropriate sermon will be preached by the pastor.

Secretary O. P. Allen of the agricultural society is now paying the premiums awarded at the recent exhibition. Premiums not called for before Dec. 1st will revert to the society.

The Hampden Hat Mills will begin work for the season next Monday, starting, as usual, with only a few hands for the present, and increasing the number as the work increases.

D. W. Northrop, formerly of this place, has become manager of the Wheeler and Wilson Mfg. Co's. office in Springfield, by the resignation of D. W. Logan, its manager for the past six years.

The members of L. L. Merrick Post No. 107, G. A. R., have voted to attend the grand union camp fire given by the Wilcox Post of Springfield at the city hall, in that city, Wednesday evening, Nov. 15.

The Congregational Sunday school had a very pleasant concert last Sunday evening, one of its pleasant features being "A Swarm of Bees worth Having," as delineated by the younger children of the school.

A party of Methodist excursionists from Boston and vicinity passed through here Wednesday forenoon on their way to Springfield by special train, and returned in the afternoon, after viewing the sights in that city.

Mrs. E. P. Moore has returned this week from her seven months' sojourn at Portland and other points along the Maine coast,where she has had such a delightful season of rest and enjoyment that she proposes to repeat the trip another season.

It will be a pity to mar the front of the new counters in the post office with an array of posters and notices of one kind and another, as has been customary in the past. Why not have a neat board on one side of the room on purpose for posting these notices? This is done in many places, and it is worth doing here.

Rev. Homer A. King, secretary of the Union Evangelistic society of New York, will preach in the Baptist church for the pastor, Rev. O. R. Hunt, to-morrow, using 1000 square feet of Biblical and Gospel paintings to illustrate his sermons. Services at 10.45 a. m., 3 and 7 oclock p. m. A cordial welcome to all.

The women in town who have voted for school committee for the past few years seem to have lost courage, and abandoned the field, all their names having disappeared from the voters' list. It is clear that the women of Palmer are not awake to their privileges, and do not care to exercise the right of suffrage, at least not in its present limited scope.

The friends of W. H. Brainerd and wife took occasion to celebrate the fifth anniversary of their wedding by making them a surprise visit Tuesday evening, and presenting them with several tokens of their esteem, including a nice easy chair for the house, and an "illigant" milking stool for Mr. B's use and comfort when attending to his barn duties.

Some people think there ought to be more room for the public in the new post office. It is easy to find fault, you know; but as much space has been set apart for the public as seemed practicable, and at the same time leave enough room for the office work and mails. The public will probably find that there is room enough, if there are not too many loafers about.

Another Republican caucus will be held at the town house next Thursday evening, for the choice of delegates to the representative convention next week. This is the "third and last call" for a caucus this year, it is supposed. Many people think it would be just as well to have all the delegates chosen at one caucus, instead of dividing them up among three, and this is now done in many towns.

G. L. Hitchcock has decided not to occupy the room in the rear of the post office, but has moved his news room, stationery and other stock into his drug store adjoining, where he proposes to keep as choice a stock as ever, which he will sell at satisfactory prices, while he offers some special bargains in consequence of his changed quarters, as will be seen by reference to his announcement in another column.

The Bay State Telephone Co. have about decided to add Warren and West Warren to the Palmer exchange, in order to relieve their main line between Springfield and Worcester, and may also put Wilbraham on this circuit. The company now has a capital of $800,000, controls all the telephone business between the Connecticut river and the coast, and is increasing its business and facilities as rapidly as possible.

A new woodshed, about 20 by 150 feet, is in process of erection by the New London Northern Railroad on the site of its old coal sheds, opposite the engine house, and when it is completed the old shed will be torn down, and a new track laid over its site, connecting the main track with the turn-table. The new side track running to the site of Holden's new woolen mill is about finished. It is to be carried behind the rail shop, and freight can be taken over it between the mill and freight depot without going over the main track at all.

A good many Palmer people went to Springfield Thursday afternoon to see the trot on Hampden park between the stallion "Hersey," owned by C. E. Tanner of Palmer, and C. A. Sweetser's "Brown Johnnie" of Holyoke. The purse was $400, and there was a good deal of betting before the race, "Brown Johnnie" being the favorite; but "Hersey" had everything his own way, winning the race in three straight heats, and could easily have distanced his competitor in the first heat. The time was 2.34, 2.36 and 2.30¼. S. S. Taft of this place was one of the judges.

About thirty people gathered at the house of Rev. Mr. Perry last week Friday evening for the purpose of organizing a literary club. A partial organization was made, as follows: Board of directors, Rev. E. A. Perry, Mrs. Gilchrist and L. E. Moore; permanent secretary, W. L. Davison; name, "Our Club." An adjournment was had for two weeks, to meet at the same place, when the organization will be completed by the adoption of a few standing rules. At the next meeting, also, the legitimate work of the club will begin. O. P. Allen will read selections from Chaucer, and Rev. E. A. Perry will speak upon "Chaucer, His Times and Poetry, etc."

The new boxes are now in position in the new post office room, and everybody is very much pleased with the change and improvement. At the left of the door, as one enters, are the lock boxes, set at right angles with the street; beyond these, in the corner, is the money order window, and then comes the 400 call boxes, facing the street, with the delivery window in the center. The rent of the lock boxes will be 75, 50 and 25 cents a quarter, each, according to size and location, and the call boxes will cost 20 cents a quarter, these prices being the same as in Ware, Amherst, and other places of proportionate size and accommodations. On the right of the entrance a black walnut desk and advertising rack is to be put in by W. S. Brick; and when the painters have completed their work, the village will have as neat, tasty and convenient a post office as any town around.

The Republicans have arranged for a rousing rally at the town house this (Saturday) evening. Gen. Swift, who was expected to be present, is unable to come on account of previous engagements, but Senator Hoar of Worcester, Col. W. S. B. Hopkins of the same city, and Hon. Theodore C. Bates of North Brookfield have been secured, and will address the meeting to-night—an array of able and eminent speakers such as is seldom heard in Palmer. A special train will be run to the town house from this village, leaving at 7.30 p. m., and returning after the speaking, to-accommodate those who may wish to attend from this village. The meeting is held at the town house for the purpose of accommodating the other villages in town,and there should be a large atendance from each village, filling the hall to its utmost capacity. The Three Rivers band will furnish music for the occasion. Let there be a big turnout of Republicans, and of Democrats as well.

The senatorial convention was held at the district court room on Tuesday afternoon, E. H. Young of Springfield being elected chairman and E. G. Murdock of Palmer secretary. The chairman appointed Messrs. Strong, Knight and Ricketts a committee on credentials, and they reported 28 delegates present. An informal ballot for a candidate for senator was moved and taken, resulting in 25 votes for Senator Haile and three scattering. Mr. Haile's nomination was then made unanimous. It was announced that C. L. Gardner declined further service on the State committee, and Henry S. Hyde of Springfield was chosen to succeed him, a vote of thanks to Mr. Gardner being passed, for the efficient and eminently satisfactory manner in which he has discharged his duties as a member of the committee. The convention voted to make the member of the State committee chairman ex-officio of the senatorial committee, which is to consist of the chairmen of the town and ward committees in the district.

DISTRICT COURT.

Oct. 21—Michael Cunningham, Patrick A. Griffin, Wm. Thompson, each for liquor selling, fined $50 and costs. All appealed.

Wm. Thompson discharged in one case, also J. J. Sugrue.

23—Wm. Thompson, for liquor selling, fined $50 and costs; appealed.

25—Sandy Thompson, on similar complaint, discharged.

Alfred Moorhouse of Wales, convicted of drunkenness; in default of fine and costs, $7.88, was committed.

Same defendant, on complaint for being a common drunkard, and assault, discharged.

25—Michael Cunningham, liquor selling, fined $50 and costs; appealed.

WALES.

Bridget Welsh having lost her barn by fire, has decided to sell off her stock at auction next Tuesday, at 10 a. m., when she will dispose of two cows, three steers, three heifers, some yearlings and one horse, besides a lot of farming tools.

LUDLOW.

Herbert Miller's two-years-old son was drowned in a pond near the house Monday evening.

The Josiah Alden house, owned by Edmund Fuller, and unoccupied, was burned last week Friday morning, probably by an incendiary.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

O. E. Hines and Miss Lizzie Grelit were married Wednesday, at the house of Willlam Nield, by Rev. F. M. Sprague. The bridesmaids were Miss Jennie B. Hines, sister of the groom, Miss Mary Schurltz, cousin of the bride, and Lilla and Flora Nield, two little nieces of the bride, and the groomsmen were H. L. Hines, brother of the groom, and Louis Morin, of the firm of H. K. Wight & Co. The happy pair are now on a brief wedding tour.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Chestnuts are numerous, and the gatherers ditto. Many people may be seen Sundays on the neighboring hills, mostly from out of town.

The Paper Makers scored another victory over the Whiting Paper Makers of Holyoke last Saturday, to the tune of 20 to 8. To-day (Saturday) they encounter the St. Jeromes of Holyoke. Be it understood that the Wesleyans have been repeatedly asked to play the Paper Makers, but they are afraid. Let them accept the challenge. The Paper Makers have suffered but one defeat this season, and have taken in every one that could be induced to enter the diamond. Next!

BRIMFIELD.

Welcome Damon, lately arrested in Worcester county for various larcenies, proves to be the person who several weeks ago broke into the house of John L. Chaffee of this place and stole a gold watch, chain, locket, and ten dollars in money. For this and his other misdeeds he was tried and convicted before the superior court at Worcester on Monday last. Mr. Chaffee has recovered his chain and locket, and has some hopes of yet getting his watch. Constable F. E. Cook is entitled to much credit for following a very slight clue to the above result.

WEST WARREN.

The Congregationalists netted about $14 from their recent oyster supper.

Quite a number of people from here attended the Republican rally at North Brookfield Wednesday night.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Methodist church realized about $80 from their fair and festival.

Benjamin McKay had his hand badly injured by a matching machine in the company's box shop, the other day.

The doctors now think the little Grant girl, who was so severely scalded, will recover, although for awhile it was not expected that she would live.

BELCHERTOWN.

G. L. Warner has sold his farm at Dwight station to a New York party.

The Clapp brothers have commenced work on and around the old homestead of James H. Clapp, deceased, also the house adjoining, known as the Hon. Mark Doolittle homestead. The houses are to be moved back fifty feet, the contract being taken by Calvin Johnson of Palmer.

Dexter Lumbard of Ludlow was tried before Justice Lyman last week for selling liquor on cattle show day, and fined fifty dollars and costs. He is an old offender, and the detectives have long been in search of him. It is hoped all such illegal sellers may share the same punishment, as there are more who have made a practice of selling from bottles carried in their pockets on public days.

WILBRAHAM.

The Willing Workers will meet with Miss Jessie Lilley next Saturday afternoon.

The second year class of the academy held a reception Saturday evening at Philo Hall.

Dr. S. Foskit last Friday leased his variety and grocery store for five years to Hubbard & Co., formerly of Holyoke. Geo. W. Ely, the former owner, still retains the post office.

The first entertainment in the Memorial church lecture course was a lecture on Monday evening by Rev. A. A. Wright of Lynn. Subject: "Words,Wise and Otherwise." The remaining entertainments will consist of a vocal and instrumental concert under the direction of Misses Stebbins and Dewey, teachers at the academy, Nov. 6; a lecture by Rev. H. J. Fox, pastor of the church, Nov. 20th, subject, "An Evening with Sidney Smith;" a Christmas supper, Dec. 18; and a reading by Miss Marion Stearns Jan. 1st.

HAMPDEN.

A. O. Thresher's coal kiln has sprouted.

Wm. and Wilbra Dickinson have bought J. P. Cady's house and lot on the Springfield road for $300.

Ira Pease lost a good horse last Saturday which he raised and has driven constantly for about 15 years.

The Methodists gave a harvest festival Tuesday evening, together with a discourse by Rev. Sunrise Dana, an Oneida Indian, who talked intelligently for an hour, and the brass band made excellent music. Some of Mr. Dana's arguments were rather funny,one of which was the origin of the aborigines. He thought the red men the first of creation, because Adam was the first man and was created red, and the Lord only knew who made the poor white trash.

W. P. Chaffee, aged 73, died last Tuesday morning after a short and severe illness. Mr. Chaffee was severely hurt four years ago by a horse, ridden by one of our young men, and never fully recovered from the shock. He was also one of our most influential Republicans, and a successful farmer. He was always found on the right side, and ready and willing to work for any good cause, and by his death the community lose a kind neighbor, a good friend and counselor.

BONDSVILLE.

Father McKeeny has made a great improvement by leveling off the grounds and putting a nice fence around the Catholic church.

Rev. Mr. Sanderson of Florence preached in the Methodist pulpit last Sunday. Next Sunday Mr. Clark exchanges with Mr. Hall of Ware.

Happily the report of two or more cases of diphtheria here is false. With the exception of a distemper that partakes of the nature of a cold, the village is quite healthy.

Many attended the funeral of Mrs. Jesse Morse on Wednesday last. The week before she contracted a sudden cold, which finally took the form of pleurisy and pneumonia, but was not considered dangerous until a short time before her death. This estimable woman was about 65 years of age, and for many years had been a member of the Methodist church, doing much good in her quiet way.

The festival held at the vestry of the Methodist church Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week was a success, socially and financially. The profits were $162. The cake, fruit, and fancy tables, arranged in the form of bazars and twined with evergreens, were under the charge of the young ladies of the Sunday school. The singing, charade, etc., of Wednesday evening, under the direction of Mr. F. A. Packard, passed off finely. The entertainment of Thursday evening was assigned to Mr. Ball. This consisted of shadow pantomimes, and by the roars of laughter that greeted the ears, we should pronounce that a success, too.

THREE RIVERS.

Dennis Donahue has sold his farm to N. K. Rogers for $3000.

The frame to Mr. Giffin's new house is up, and work upon it is progressing rapidly.

The Baptist church was very tastefully trimmmed and well filled last Sunday evening, when the children of the Sunday school gave an excellent concert.

Mr. Merrick, the principal of the village schools, has opened an evening school in the school house. It is well attended, and is just what is needed in the village.

There is some talk of trying to get Father Chiniquy to come and spend a few days in the village. Many of the French people express a desire to hear him again.

The young people of the village and vicinity, about 65 or 70 in number, turned out and helped Henry Burr husk his corn, last Thursday evening. There was an old-fashioned husking supper, and "red ears" were plenty, as usual on such occasions.

L. E. Crane, of Rochester, Minn., formerly of this place, who has done considerable newspaper work in the past few years, has just become a member of the editorial staff of the Minnesota Farmer, published at Minneapolis and St. Paul, as its traveling correspondent.

The Boston Duck Cornet Band came to this village last Saturday evening, and assisted the Three Rivers Cornet Band in the dedication of its new band stand. After several pieces had been very finely rendered by each band the Three Rivers boys invited their guests to the Buffington House, where an excellent supper was served, after which there was more music by each band before the company broke up.

MONSON.

Dr. G. E. Fuller has been painting his dwelling.

The Congregational church is receiving a new coat of paint.

Rev. W. A. Start will preach at Central Hall next Sabbath, at 2 and 7 p. m.

The party that went 'coon hunting a few nights ago treed a woodchuck, and finally with the aid of a canine secured him.

There is great complaint about the condition of the roads, and unless some work is done before winter sets in they will be in very bad shape in the spring.

It was a laughable and might have been a serious accident for one of the boys, who in a boat on one of the ponds shot at a duck, but got ducked himself, as the gun barrel burst and kicked him into the water. But the boys managed to shoot the ducks, and afterward found that they were tame ones, by which the owner set a great deal.

J. A. Orcutt has a new dwelling house begun on East Water street. Emerson Wood has the dwelling house of John Deneen well under way on Bridge street. James Pendergast and Amasa Harvey have their Pearl street residences about ready for occupancy, and Mr. Shepardson of Wales has one on the same street well under way.

The selectmen gave a hearing on Tuesday to the petitioners on the laying out of a new road running westerly from Main street through the land of Dr. Smith's estate, and thence northerly through lands of W. N. Flynt and E. F. Morris, to the new street built by the town last year. The arguments, pro and con, were heard, and the selectmen reserved their decision on the lay for one week.

James Fisk is in town making a business and recreating tour through the country. He is applying an improvement on Benjamin Franklin's method of taming electricity to many buildings, giving protection as well as ornamental additions to them. A few days since he was exhibiting a curious piece of mechanism of his own invention, which, being attached to a carriage, can be instantly used in case of accident, and curiously enough it actually saved what might otherwise have been a serious accident. He told Mr. T. Reynolds to drive his high-spirited horse Tommy, and he did so, but Mr. R. soon wished himself out of the carriage, for Tommy knew he had a new driver, and as Mr. R. was about leaving the carriage the horse commenced running at a fearful speed, and only through the presence of mind of Mr. R. in suddenly applying the treadle was the horse instantly released from the carriage, and a smash-up averted, as it was but a few feet from a stone post and fence toward which the horse was headed. Several persons who saw the runaway were awe-struck at the dash of the horse, and all pronounced it an almost miraculous delivery from a fearful disaster to carriage and driver.

During the past fiscal year the patent office issued 17,713 patents, and registered 10,790 trademarks.

IT was reported from Washington on Wednesday, apparently upon good authority, that President Arthur and his cabinet had held several consultations in regard to the political outlook in New York, and had concluded that Secretary Folger ought to resign and take charge, personally, of his campaign, while the President was to make some "combinations" in New York city which would help carry the State for the Republicans. The shameful report was promptly contradicted by the President and members of the cabinet, who say that no reference whatever to political matters has been made at their meetings. President Arthur can eertainly gain nothing by attempting the role of a political boss; but he could lose everything by such a course.

There was a shocking accident in the North Adams freight yard early last Saturday morning. The engine Deerfield had started east, pushing a caboose loaded with 35 laborers, when they met and collided with a Troy and Boston engine. The front of the Deerfield was stove in, and the caboose filled with boiling water and steam, scalding the occupants terribly and many of them fatally. Six men have died, some of them leaving large and destitute families, and three or four more can hardly recover, while the survivors will be badly scarred and disfigured. The morning was very foggy, and the accident was caused by Engineer Watson, of the Troy and Boston road, going into the yard on the east main track, in violation of the rules. He has been arrested on the charge of homicide.

Geo. M. Hendee, a Springfield lad of 16 years, won the mile bicycle race for the amateur championship of the United States at Boston last week Friday, in 2.57½.

It would be unkind to publish the expressions of prominent Democratic leaders about Gen. Butler only four years ago. Butler is the same man now. His views are the same. His purpose has not changed. He was then denounced by Democratic leaders in unmeasured terms. The same men praise him and urge his election to-day. What has opened their eyes to his virtues and closed them to his faults? Do they not lay themselves open to the charge of insincerity by such a radical change? What Democratic principle is it that they maintain by going for a man they so vigorously denounced when they knew him perfectly well?—Boston Herald.

By contracting a severe cough and cold, I was compelled to give up my daily work and keep to the house. A neighbor recommended me to try a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; it was procured and used; to my astonishment relief was instantaneous. EDW. W. CLAYTON, Waverly, Md.

Are you going to buy an organ? Call and see the largest stock ever in Springfield, now to be found at Stimpson's, 396 Main street.

Go out in the damp air, or sit unprotected in a draught, and your throat will feel sore and your head uncomfortable. You have taken a cold, which you can remove as promptly as you received it by using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Rubbers experienced another sharp advance last week, but Morse, of the "Central Shoe Store," Springfield, has not put up his prices yet, and is actually selling pure gum boots less than they can be bought at wholesale. But such a state of things of course can't last.

My wife, for over three years, has been afflicted with chills and fever, contracted in Illinois, and with dyspepsia of long standing and a general debility of the system. She has used three bottles of Simmon's Liver Regulator; her chills are entirely cured and the dyspepsia almost vanquished. N. W. EVERHART, Hampton, Va.

The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Benson recently proved in the case of Emperor William and others that in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times. o

Although about a year ago, H. W. Payne, one of Springfield's harness dealers, enlarged his store nearly doubling its capacity, yet his business has so increased that even now he has hardly room enough. His stock of blankets, harness, robes, whips, trunks, bags, &c., are not surpassed in that city, and his increasing customers show that he must give low prices.

Only Two Bottles.

Messrs. Johnson, Holloway & Co., wholesale druggists of Philadelphia, Pa., report that some time ago a gentleman handed them a dollar, with a request to send a good catarrh cure to two army officers in Arizona. Recently the same gentleman told them that both the officers and the wife of Gen. John C. Fremont, Gov of Arizona, had been cured of catarrh by the two bottles of Ely's Cream Balm

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.—A few days ago I saw a lady who had used your Cream Balm for Catarrh, and had found more relief in one bottle than from all other remedies she had tried. I enclose $1 for two bottles. Yours respectfully, JAMES HITCHEN, M. D., Providence, R. I.

Apply into nostrils with little finger. 1y23

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet, how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial bottles given away at G. L. Hitchcock's drug store. 2

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name implies, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it, Each bottle is warranted. Chas. N. Crittenton, New York, and Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Boston, wholesale agents. 1y32

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that
STEINWAY & SONS
Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of
PIANOS AND ORGANS
Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

THE CORSET.

The temptation to tight lacing is not so great as formerly, now that corsets are fitted by measure, and then fastened in front with steel hooks. But almost every corset-wearer would find her waist expanding in size, should she leave off the corset, and wear really loose clothing. The corset-steel is one of the worst features. The pressure upon the stomach and thus upon the nerves back of the stomach, results in weakness and general invalidism. Many corset-wearers imagine that the corset is a real support to the strength, because they feel all 'gone' without it. This only shows how much mischief the corset has already done. Their feelings are all unnatural. The muscles of the waist and abdomen have lost their native power through confinement. If the toggery worn in the shape of basques and skirts, with bands and weights, oppresses and torments her when the corset is removed, that toggery should certainly be reformed, and the muscles given a chance to recover their lost power. Physicians have always condemned the corset as prejudicial to health, and the best artists have condemned it as distorting woman's natural form, and detrimental to real grace and beauty. But there is little hope of woman's emancipation in large numbers, from these bonds, so long as closely-fitted waists, and especially basques prevail.—Am. Agriculturist for November.

Many an unwise parent labors hard, lives sparingly all his life, for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in this world, as it is called. Setting a young man afloat with money left by relatives is like tying bladders under the arms of one who cannot swim; ten chances to one he will lose his bladders and go to the bottom. Teach him how to swim and he will never need the bladders. Give your child a sound education and you have done enough for him. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature subservient to the laws that govern man, and you have given him what will be of more value than all the wealth of the Indies.—Anon.

A knowledge of history and art is not widely diffused among the New York judiciary, to judge from the following incident, which is related by a paper in that city:—'Whose statue is that?' asked a member of the New York judiciary of his companion as they were riding through the park one Sunday last summer. 'Why, that's Humboldt,' replied the other. 'What in thunder did they want to give Helmbold a statue for?' said the judge; 'he never did nothing but invent buchu.'

'What other business do you follow besides preaching?' was asked of an old colored man. 'I speculates a little.' 'How speculate?' 'Sells chickens.' 'Where do you get the chickens?' 'My boys fetch 'em in.' 'Where do they get them?' 'I doan' know, sah. I'se allers so busy wid my preachin' dat I ain't got time to ax. I was a gwine ter inquire de udder day, but a 'vival come on an' tuck up all my time.'—Arkansaw Traveller.

Don't kill the toads, the ugly toads that hop about your door. Each meal the toad doth eat is a hundred bugs or more. He sits around with aspect meek until the bug is neared, then shoots he forth his little tongue like lightning double geared. And then he soberly doth wink, and shuts his ugly mug, and patiently doth wait until there comes another bug.

Health journals are now asserting that to maintain a sound constitution you should lie only on the right side. The health journals may mean well enough, but what are you going to do if you are editing a Democratic paper?—Laramie Boomerang.

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

For GEN. DODGE'S bran' new book, entitled

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

AGENTS! This grand book is now outselling all others 10 to 1. No competition. Agents average 10 to 20 orders a day. We want 1000 more agents at once. Exclusive territory and special terms given. ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

BY UNIVERSAL ACCORD

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative pill that science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar coated they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

DURING THE LATE WAR

THE GOVERNMENT MADE ITS BEST ARMS AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—WHAT MR. DAVID CLARK, INSPECTOR U. S. ARMORY THERE, RECOMMENDS.

Your reporter found Inspector Clark at his office on the Armory grounds busily examining "receivers" for the regulation army rifles. However, he was as willing to say a word for the merits of health and strength restoratives as to prove the merits of implements of death. He said: "My business keeps me closely confined to the Armory and in doors. As a result, I've suffered considerably from indigestion and biliousness, but I find that Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is a most excellent medicine for these complaints. I most cordlally recommend it, for I am acquainted with its worth. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is used a great deal by the machinists in the U. S. Armory here."

While FAVORITE REMEDY is a specific in Kidney and Bladder diseases, it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders and Constipation of the Bowels. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, FAVORITE REMEDY, he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to office practice. He treats all diseases and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery. 4w31

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia; Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York; Jos. LeConte, Columbia, Prof., University, S. C. Rev. A. J. Battle, Prof., Mercer University; Rev. Geo. F. Pierce, Bishop M. E. Church.

INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME.

Perfectly harmless. Used internally or externally for man or beast.

The Fluid has been thoroughly tested, and we have abundant evidence that it has done everything here claimed. For fuller information get of your druggist a pamphlet, or send to the proprietors,

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Manufacturing Chemists, PHILADELPHIA.

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Like the Ivy.

True love is like the ivy bold,
That elings each day with firmer hold;
That groweth on through good and ill,
And 'mid the tempest clingeth still.
What though the wall on which it climbs
Have lost the grace of former times,
Will then the ivy loose its hold,
Forget the sunny days of old?
Nay, rather it will closer cling
With loving clasp, remembering
That it had hardly lived at all
Without the kindly shelt'ring wall.
True love is like the ivy bold,
That clings each day with firmer hold;
That groweth on through good and ill,
And 'mid the tempest clingeth still.

True love is like the ivy green,
That ne'er forgetteth what hath been,
And so, till life itself hath gone,
Until the end it clingeth on.
What though the tree where it may cling
Shall hardly know another spring?
What though its boughs be dead and bare?
The twining ivy climbeth there,
And clasps it with a firmer hold,
With stronger love than that of old,
And lends it grace it never had
When time was young and life was glad.
True love is like the ivy green,
That ne'er forgetteth what hath been,
And so, till life itself be gone,
Until the end it clingeth on.

A FRENCH DETECTIVE'S EXPLOIT.

Even as the great clown, Grimaldi, was the prince and father of his imitators, so was the great Parisian detective, Vidocq, the prince of detectives.

The phenomenal alacrity which he exhibited in penetrating the motives and methods of crimes and in unearthing criminals has never been equaled.

In boyhood a gamin of the docks, he became a dialect performer in the concert halls of Paris, and gained a livelihood in a hundred different grades of employment before he turned his attention to the detection of crime.

At the time of his greatest fame as a detective, one Moirellet exercised the duplex functions of sexton and chanter of the fashionable church of Livry in the suburbs of Paris.

He was a shrewd and, to all seeming, a very pious man.

When those northern pillagers, the Cossacks, were expected in Paris, the people of the city and suburbs bethought themselves to conceal their most valuable effects.

The curate of Livry was anxious to remove the church plate and his own to a place of safety, and, being an imbecile old man, intrusted his valuables to Moirellet to be secreted.

M. Senart, a friend of the cure and a jeweler of Paris, becoming advised of the cure's action, also intrusted one hundred thousand crown's value of precious stones to Moirellet, that they might be buried secretly in the forest of Bondy.

A fortnight later Moirellet appeared before the cure, pale and distracted, to announce that the Cossacks had certainly passed through the wood and dug up the precious deposit.

So good was the man's reputation, so sorrowful his protestations, and so honest the method of his tale, that the old cure believed it at once; but M. Senart called to his counting-room Vidocq.

'What kind of a man is this Moirellet?' asked the detective.

'He enjoys a great reputation in all the neighborhood as a man of great piety, sagacity and prudence.'

'Is he married?'

'Yes.'

'Wife handsome—dressy?'

'She is very pretty and is fond of dress.'

'A native of Paris?'

'She was born and dwelt her maidenhood in the suburb of Andrea.'

'Good. Moirellet shall be called aside from the church to-morrow morning and quietly conveyed to prison. I will at once set forth to Andrea and learn what I can of his wife's family and her early life.'

'But there is absolutely no proof warranting the arrest of Moirellet!'

'It is my business to find proof.'

* * * * * * *

The next morning Moirellet was conveyed to prison.

An hour later a dashing and handsome young man, clad in a semi-naval costume, knocked at the door of Moirellet's residence.

His fair wife answered the summons.

'Marie!—and how goes it with my little schoolmate, Marie of Andrea?' exclaimed the young man, grasping her hand impetuously.

'Pardon me, sir, but you have escaped my recollection.'

'You do not recognize me? But tell me surely you are Marie Gabrielle, the grocer's daughter, who dwelt in childhood at Andrea.'

'I am, sir.'

'Then you are the Marie I played with—and you do not recognize me? Fie, Marie! ha! ha! ha! And do you dwell here—are you married?'

'Ay, sir.'

'And to a great and good man, too, I warrant, if your beautiful face and womanly graces have their due.'

'A good man, truly, sir—but if you will be pleased to enter and make yourself known to me, we may converse more intelligibly.'

The fair hostess soon after entered the cozy parlor of her home bearing a silver bottle-tray, and pouring forth a glass of wine to the young man, said:

'And now, sir, kindly inform me what my old schoolmate's name is?'

'Ha! ha! and you don't know me, Marie? You know that we men love to quiz the ladies! Look well into my face, my eyes. I am one who not only played with you, Marie, in those dear, golden days of the past, but one who felt for you the tenderest regard. Can it be possible you cannot recall me?'

'I look at you well, sir, and think over all of my schoolmates, and yet I cannot name you. Keep me not in an agony of ignorance—who are you?'

'A midshipman in the navy. Is that not a hint?' returned the young man, holding his glass for more wine.

'It is no hint that I can fathom,' said the lady, refilling his glass.

'Ay, but I have told you wrong—I am a lieutenant in the navy,' said the young man, draining the goblet.

'But your name—your name?' demanded the lady, impatiently, again filling the empty glass.

'All I have spoken is wrong, Marie,' quoth the young man, appearing the least bit intoxicated. 'Behold in me the captain of the battle ship Havre—Pierre Molliere.'

The woman's face reddened, and her eyes flashed angrily, as she sprang forward and caught away the empty glass from the young man's hand.

'Why, Marie!' he gasped in astonishment, 'do you think I have lied to you—that I am not Pierre Molliere?'

'It is not that,' returned his excited hostess, shrewdly, 'but that, if you should drink another draught of my wine, I fear that you would turn out to be the commodore of a fleet; and that finally at the last drinking, would make me believe you were the high admiral of all the seas.'

And she pointed suggestively toward the door.

'Marie Gabrielle,' said the unwelcome guest, in tones of authority, and rising impressively to his feet, 'it had been well for you had you long since shown the true Pierre Molliere the door. He who was your schoolmate, who ran from home, joined the navy, deserted after robbing several of his comrades, who, to cap a life of crime, at length came to Paris, donned the robes of sanctity to cover his serpentile trail of misdeeds past—who had been false to everything save his boyhood's love; who secretly induced you to leave Andrea, and wed you; who is at this moment in prison for appropriating the jewels of M. Senart and the cure of Livry; and who has confessed that you are his accomplice. Tell me, Marie Gabrielle, where are those stolen valuables hidden, or you are my prisoner! I am Vidocq.'

The glass dropped from the woman's hand, and, uttering a piercing shriek, she fell fainting upon the floor.

Soon after a squad of detectives searched the house, but without avail, and the woman declaring her innocence, and the ignorance of the missing valuables, was conveyed to prison.

* * * * * * *

That afternoon Moirellet was stripped and put to the 'pump,' that a confession might be extorted from him.

The 'pump' was a water-tight cell in the yard of the prison into which a stream of water constantly flowed, which could only be discharged through the pump.

The only means by which the unfortunate inmate could prevent drowning was by working incessantly at the pump.

For three hours Moirellet endured the enforced labor, but when at length the water was turned off, and he was removed from the cell in an exhausted state, he still protested his entire innocence, and averred that he was not Pierre Molliere.

That night, a coarsely-dressed German youth, vulgarly inebriated, was thrust into the apartment of the prison in which Moirellet was confined—much to Moirellet's disgust.

The German, however, dropped in one corner of the cell and slept soundly all night, only at times muttering as if in his dreams such sentences as: 'Vot I care nohow.' 'I got dot gold sure.' 'Vot could dey prove?' 'Schmidt shake hands mit myself—you vas all right.'

In the morning Moirellet gave the turnkey a piece of silver and requested that he be furnished a veal cutlet for breakfast 'done well brown.'

'Und gif me also a breakfast of veal cudlet done vell Schmidt,' said the German, also giving the money.

'What do you mean by a veal cutlet done well Schmidt?' demanded the much amused turnkey.

'Vas dot not right? Dis shentleman asked for a veal cudlet vell done Brown, und I ask for one vell done Schmidt? Vas you not haf gif dot name, ven you sends de order?'

Moirellet and the turnkey laughed at the German's stupidity, but soon after, when the prisoners were eating their food alone, the German said:

'You laugh at me—bud I vos dot man vat should laugh. Dond dink I vas a fool because I vas Dutch. You vas a shentleman, und I vas a tief. I robs a Brussian officer of all his money. I got it. I go—hush! dis very night, get it—go quick avay from Vrance.'

'How do you mean?' asked Moirellet, for the first time looking toward the boor without disdain.

'Hush! I vos a tief, I dole you. I knows all de tiefs—all der brisons—look here!'

And the Dutchman with a sly wink removed a neatly hidden slide in the sole of his heavy shoe, disclosing three ingeniously wrought skeleton keys and a small vial.

'And do you mean, Schmidt, to break prison?'

'You shall see. I git my gold safe—I git safe out of Vrance. Dey vould not catch me now, but I vas trunk.'

'Then if you will aid me, away with you. I know of a vast treasure buried in the Forest of Bondy. A third of it shall be yours.'

At midnight the German began work. Opening the cell door with one of his keys he peered forth into the but dimly-lighted corridor.

A turnkey was sitting near the door in a doze.

Saturating a handkerchief with the fluid from the vial, he soon rendered him insensible to noise.

Taking the keys that hung at his belt, he opened the door leading to the main-hallway of the prison.

Passing swiftly to the prison's front door he opened it.

Waiting and listening until the gendarme had passed upon his beat, the two men suddenly darted from the prison, crossed the street and escaped.

The German led the way through round-about streets to the suburbs of Paris, and ere daybreak they had arrived at the Forest of Bondy.

It was a dark night, but Moirellet readily found the spot where the treasure was buried, and, using sharpened sticks, the men soon unearthed the two large tin boxes containing it.

As they did so, a rustling in the forest caused them to look up.

A score of gendarmes, with swords drawn, stood in a circle about them, flashing the flare of their dark lanterns in their faces.

'Pierre Molliere, alias Moirellet, you are my prisoner,' said the German, placing his hand upon Moirellet's shoulder.

'And you are—'

'Vidocq.'

'My God!' cried the terrified culprit, 'who would have thought it—you looked so clownish.'

The prisoner was sentenced to six years' close confinement. Vidocq was overloaded with compliments by M. Senart and the cure, who presented him with 5,000 francs for having so deftly recovered their lost treasures.

If you shake up a basket of fruit or of gravel the smaller portions will go to the bottom, the larger ones will come to the top. This is the order of nature. There is no way of evading it. And the same order prevails in the basket of human life. The world's shaking will send the small characters downward and bring the larger ones toward the top. The larger ones are not to blame for this. The smaller ones have no right to complain of it. It is the shaking that does the business.

Sunrise on Mount Washington.

Goodness gracious, sakes alive!
Routed out at hardly five;
One eye blinkin', t'other shut.
Feeling lively? Anything but!
Dark as Egypt's stricken land—
Hang these clothes! do lend a hand!
Where's my bonnet? Dear me, suz!
Front hair, back hair all a fuzz;
Boots unbuttoned; sure I'll freeze,
Going out in this cold breeze!
Wash my face! Good heavens, no,
Shaking now from head to toe;
Guess the sun won't be so small
But that, without, I'll see it all.
What a racket! hear 'em holler,
"Getting light! It's worth a dollar!"
Plague this hairpin!—never mind;
Never'll do to be behind;
It's the thing to spend the cash,
Lie on corncobs, live on hash,
Murder comfort, call it fun,
Just to see this "lovely sun."
There, I'm ready! sails all furled,
Cruising in this upper world;
When Old Sol gets up, oh, my!
Will he look as queer as I?

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN WYOMING.

Gov. Hoyt of Wyoming spoke some months ago in Philadelphia, on woman suffrage in his territory. This is his description of an election:

'The polls were open in the office of the hotel. The window was near the side entrance. Inside were the judges—two of them women, one a man, the secretary a woman. An animated discussion on politics was going on, when I heard a mysterious 'Sh—sh.' There were ladies coming to cast in their ballots. An avenue opened in the crowd; a lady's carriage appeared at the end of it; the gentlemen took off their hats—one aided her to alight; she advanced to the window, voted, was helped into her carriage again, and away she went. It was the same when women came on foot. There was always an eye watching; that 'Sh—sh! was heard. The utmost respect was shown to all, and the women were pleased with their new dignity and power.'

In answer to a question, 'Do the women all vote?' the Governor said:

'Not every one. I have met ladies who prefer not to vote. But as a rule, the women all vote. The 'first' ladies are active participants. As many women vote, I think, in proportion, as men. On certain moral questions their influence is excellent. We have better laws, better institutions, better officers. While measures are pending, the public opinion of women has again and again decided their fate. We have better officers, because, though the women do not nominate they have the veto power in the ballot. This they well understand; and the men know that if dissipated or incompetent candidates be put up, the women will put their veto on their election.'

'What is the condition of the schools?' some one asked, and the Governor replied:

'Wyoming schools surprised me. They are conducted by principals from Eastern colleges. Ninety per cent of the children of Cheyenne are in the schools, are well-trained and the school buildings are models. For school purposes the people are always ready to vote more money at once. Often, when the trustees ask for certain sums, the people give them more.'

To another question, 'What is the effect on Temperance?' the reply was:

'We have the Sunday law. Prohibitory measures have not been tried. The population is a pioneer one, and such measures are not proposed, but the Sunday is kept sacred. The Sabbath is as quiet in Cheyenne as in any village in Massachusetts.'

AMERICAN FABLES.

A Horse owned by a Peasant one day refused to draw his load, having become tired of the tyranny of man.

'Perhaps I have been too hard with him,' soliloquized the Peasant, and I will now make his burdens lighter for a time.'

The Horse was therefore given lighter loads, his supply of provender increased, and his master never appeared at the stable without a lump of sugar in his fingers.

A fox who had observed how the thing worked, paid a visit to a Mule owned by the same Peasant, and asked:

'Do you want more oats and hay?'

'I should murmur,' replied the mule.

'And would you like to loaf half your time away in the clover field?'

'I'm blessed if I wouldn't.

'And have some one rub you down with a piece of velvet, and feed you with cut loaf sugar?'

'It makes my mouth water just to think of it,' said the Mule, as he nibbled at the rail fence.

'Very well, then,' continued the fox; 'all you have to do is to refuse to budge when hitched up. The horse played that game and the result is that he has become sleek and fat.'

The next day, when the Peasant hitched the Mule to his cart, the animal refused to move.

'What! rebellion in my old mule, too!' shouted the Peasant; 'indeed I cannot permit both animals to defy my authority. Having exhausted my kind words and sugar on the horse, I will try the virtues of a club on the mule.'

He thereupon pounded the animal until he was glad to speed faster and draw a heavier load than ever before.

MORAL.

The Fox had been watching the affair from a fence corner, and as he saw the result he chuckled to himself:

'A rich man may have his fence in the street, but a poor man must keep his sidewalk in repair to escape the law.'—Detroit Free Press.

When we see the young man of the period, with the cutaway coat, his ears sheltered from the cold north wind blasts by the broad expanse of collar, his two watch chains but no watch, his pointed shoes and intellectual eyeglass, his tootsey-wootsey cane and pancake hat we realize that the $84,000,000 annually expended in educating the American youth is too little enough.—Rochester Post-Express.

NOT A MARRYING GIRL.

They were seated together side by side on the sofa, in the most approved loving fashion—his arm encircling her taper waist, etc.

'Lizzie,' he said, 'you must have read my heart ere this, you must know how dearly I love you.'

'Yes, Fred, you have certainly been very attentive,' said Lizzie.

'But, Lizzie, darling, do you love me? Will you be my wife?'

'Your wife, Fred? By all things, no! No indeed, nor any one else's.'

'Lizzie, what do you mean?'

'Just what I say, Fred. I have two married sisters.'

'Certainly, and Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. Skinner have very good husbands, I believe.'

'So people say, but I wouldn't like to stand in either May's or Nellie's shoes, that is all.'

'Lizzie, you astonish me.'

'Look here, Fred. I have had over twenty-five sleigh-rides this winter, thanks to you and my other gentleman friends.'

Fred winced a little here, whether at the remembrance of that unpaid livery bill, or the idea of Lizzie sleighing with her other gentleman friends, I cannot positively answer.

'How many do you think my sisters have had? Not a sign of one, either of them. Such pretty girls as May and Nellie were, too, and so much attention as they used to have.'

'Now, Lizzie—'

'I am fond of going to a party occasionally, as well as to a lecture or concert sometimes, and I should not like it if I proposed attending any such entertainment to be invariably told that times were hard and my husband could not afford it.'

'But, Lizzie—'

'And then, if once in a dog's age he did condescend to go with me anywhere in the evening, I should not like to be left to pick my way along the slippery places at the risk of breaking my neck, he walking along unconsciously by my side. I am of a dependent, clinging nature, and need the protection of a strong arm.'

'Lizzie, this is all nonsense.'

'I am the youngest of our family, and perhaps I have been spoiled. At all events, I know it would break my heart to have my husband vent all the ill-temper which he conceals from the world on my defenceless head.'

'But, Lizzie, I prom—'

'Oh, yes, Fred, I know what you are going to say—that you will be different; but May and Nell have told me time and time again that no better husbands than theirs ever lived. No, Fred; as a lover you are just splendid; and I shall hate awfully to give you up. Still if you are bent on marrying, there are plenty of girls who have not married sisters, or who are not wise enough to profit by their example, if they have. And do not fret about me, for I have no doubt I can find some one to fill your place—'

Before Lizzie had concluded, Fred made for the door, muttering something 'unmentionable for ears polite.'

'There!' exclaimed Lizzie, as the door closed with a bang, 'I knew he was no better than the rest. That's the way John and Aleck swear and slam the doors when things don't go just right. He'd make a bear of a husbaud; but I'm sorry he came to the point so soon, for he was just a splendid beau!'

The use of electricity suggests a horrible idea. 'Suppose,' says a certain party, 'I had in a fort a steam fire-engine, with a hose that would throw a stream of water a quarter of an inch in diameter three hundred feet. Now, if I had one end of a Brush machine grounded, and the other end connected with the water passing through the hose, the very instant the stream struck a line of troops that were advancing to attack the fort, it would kill them. The stream would then be a flexible electric wire, and as it swept along the line of men it would mow them down like grass. If a thousand men were to march up in a solid body, they would all be killed in ten seconds. It would be absolutely impossible to take the fort. It could be used with equally terrible effect in naval warfare. As soon as you make war so destructive as that, however, civilization will do away with it.'

Says the Chicago Times: 'The only thoroughly honest party in Illinois just now is the party of prohibition. It is a party of principle, and not of spoils. Its underlying motive is one which appeals to the moral sympathy of all men who would save their fellow creatures from the wretchedness, crime, imbecility and premature death that attend upon the free use of intoxicating liquors. This party has a well-defined aim. It goes straight to the mark. The means by which it proposes to overcome the hideous and debasing effects of drunkenness may not be successful, but in arguing their adoption the singleness of their purpose must be admired, and they present a striking and refreshing contrast to the organizations contending for the spoils.'

A great many of the scandalous stories current are built on this formula: 'I say, mother, John told me that he heard Mr. Johnson say that Mr. Handy's aunt was present when the widow Burnham told Capt. Ball's cousin that old Mrs. Oxby understood that Sam. Trifle's wife said, in so many words, that her mother heard, on the best of authority, that you wern't any better than you should be. If I were you I should look the matter up, for the thing comes pretty straight, you see.'

We feel inclined to tell a story of a Bradford lady, whose husband was detained late one night at his business at Haverhill, and could not join a whist party to which he had been invited. 'Why didn't Charlie come?' asked the host. 'Because,' answered his wife, 'he had to stay at the store—' (after a vain search for the word she wanted) 'teetering his account.' 'Balancing' was the word she was hunting for.—Lowell Courier.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1882.

SENATOR CORSER of Holyoke has been renominated by the Republicans. The Democrats oppose him with Dexter B. Hitchcock of the same city, who was their candidate last year.

THE Republican stay-at-homes are the men who will elect Gen. Butler next Tuesday if anybody does. There are enough Republicans in the State to give him the worst defeat he has ever had, if they will only turn out and vote according to their convictions.

A DEFEAT for Gen. Butler this year may not bury him, for he don't bury easily, but it will probably put an end to his running for Governor, and the bigger the majority against him, the less likely will he be to try his luck again. Let every Republican remember this.

A STORMY DAY next Tuesday will be "nuts" for Butler. The Democrats will go to the polls if it rains pitchforks, so to speak, but hundreds of Republicans always stay away if the weather is unfavorable. They should turn over a new leaf this year, and vote, rain or shine.

JUST before the election in 1879 the Boston Globe confidently asserted that "Butler is 10,000 ahead of Long and is growing stronger every day," with a lot more of that kind of talk. It is bragging the same way now, on just about as good a foundation, and no better.

THE Democrats have not made much noise this year, but they will be on hand with their votes next Tuesday to a man, depend upon it, and Republicans who have been lulled into a sense of security by the quietness of the campaign will do well to take the precaution of depositing their own votes, however certain they may feel as to the result.

THE Democrats would drop General Butler dreadful quick, if it were not for the hope that through him they can get into power. They know there is no chance for the election of a Simon-pure Democrat as Governor, but have a faint hope that enough "soreheads" will join in voting for Butler to carry him in and give them a chance at the crib. But they will find that they are leaning on a broken reed.

JUDGE ENDICOTT of Salem has resigned his seat on the bench of the supreme court, and Gov. Long has displayed his usual good judgment by promoting Judge Colburn of the superior court to fill the vacancy, and appointing James M. Barker of Pittsfield to be Judge Colburn's successor. Like all of Gov. Long's judicial appointments, these are universally approved, and none the less so because Judge Colburn is a Democrat.

EVERY Republican and every other citizen who wishes to see the affairs of State administered in an honest, able and dignified manner, should cast a vote next Tuesday for Robert R. Bishop. He has an extended familiarity with the State's affairs, his character is above reproach, his record spotless. A plain man of the people, acquainted with the people's wants, he will continue to administer the affairs of the Old Bay State in the interests of the people, with fidelity and ability.

GEN. BUTLER is trying the hazardous plan of building himself up by pulling others down. The Republican party in this State, he says, is corrupt, and he, the immaculate Benjamin, wants an opportunity to overhaul the management of the finances of the State. But if there has been so much fraud and rottenness why does he not give us a few specifications? But no, he deals only in glittering, if not in convincing, generalities. He does not go into particulars, because he has none to go into. If there were any such frauds as he intimates, how quickly would they be hunted up and heralded forth to the minutest detail by the Democratic speakers and press! There are none, and Butler knows it, but he unblushingly continues to vilify the fair name of the State, and insult her officers, in the hope that thereby he may be exalted. To put such a man at the helm of State would be a strange commentary on the intelligence and good sense of the people of this Commonwealth.

ABBEY'S PARK THEATER in New York was burned to the ground late Monday afternoon, while the final preparations were being made for Mrs. Langtry's first appearance in this country in the evening. The cause of the fire is unknown. It was discovered in one of the boxes and spread through the building almost with lightning speed. The fire extinguishers and fire alarm would not work, one employe perished in the building, another has since died of his burns, and the rest barely escaped with their lives, leaving coats and vests behind—and this in broad daylight, with only a few persons in the building. Had the fire occurred a few hours later, when the auditorium would have been packed, the loss of life must have been terrible. The theater was simply a death trap, as are so many others still in existence. A spasmodic attempt will now be made, probably, to do something towards making them somewhat safer, and then matters will drop back into their usual looseness until some catastrophe causes another awakening.

"Want to see what the old man will do." Are Governors chosen to amuse the voters, as the juggler eats fire and swallows swords? Do men wish to exercise their civil rights as grotesquely and absurdly as possible? If they do they might empty Concord prison into the halls of legislation and the Governor's chamber. We do not mean to compare Gen. Butler to convicts, but as a reason for voting for him, a mere idle curiosity to see him "smash things" would find even him too tame, and could only be satisfied by placing in power some of the Socialists from Lyons.—Springfield Republican.

One of the young ladies of the village suggests that the selectmen be petitioned to provide settees for the crowd that congregate in front of the post office every evening. She thinks it must be hard for them to stand up so much of the time.

Charles S. Lawrence of Auburn has been found guilty of trying to wreck the modoc train on the Boston & Albany road at Rochdale, Sept. 18th. A couple of Worcester officers and several other parties are claimants for the $1000 reward offered for his arrest.

The one-story brick ell of the Hastings house, on the Springfield road, is being raised another story, and an addition 24 by 32 is being made to the house, which Mr. Bush will use for dairy purposes. In the rear of this will be an ice house, 12 by 16 feet. Madison & Lyman are doing the work.

Austin Davis of Glendale has left with us a cluster of eight potatoes which Dame Nature welded together in one of his hills, the whole weighing 2 pounds and 10 ounces. Another curiosity from Nature's laboratory is a couple of pairs of twin apples from a Brimfield tree, left on our table by Mrs. H. G. Cross.

Anchor of Hope lodge of Good Templars have elected the following list of officers: W. C. T., Rev. E. A. Perry; W. V. T., Mrs. M. A. Leach; W. S., Cora M. Leach; W. F. S., Lottie Moore; W. T., S. Leach; W. M., E. W. Carpenter; W. C., Mrs. A. Palmer; W. I. G., Mrs. A. Cross; W. O. G., Cyrus Patrell.

Venus is the bright and particular star in the heavens now during the early evening. She has just passed the period of her greatest brilliancy, but will be bright enough to attract much attention during the month. Seen through a good telescope in the daytime, she appears as a lovely crescent, almost as large as the moon.

C. L. Gardner was chosen moderator, and H. E. W. Clark secretary of the Republican caucus at the town house Thursday evening, and the following delegates to the representative convention were elected: C. L. Gardner, J. S. Loomis, H. C. Strong, J. I. Milliken, G. C. Buell, F. A. Packard, H. E. W. Clark, John K. Walker, E. B. Gates.

The 3.48 express for Boston on Wednesday was made up of six new cars, just out of the New York & New Haven car shops. The cars have steel wheels, steam heaters located under the cars, ventilating windows over the ordinary windows, and are finished inside in mahogany and cherry. All in all, they are the most elegant cars on the road.

The New London Northern Railroad made a change in its time table on Monday, by which the afternoon trains leave half an hour earlier than heretofore. The afternoon train for the north now leaves at 1.30, and the train for the south at 1.35 p. m. The evening boat train arrives from the north now at 7, instead of 6.52, but leaves for New London at 7.15 as heretofore.

A new floor has been laid in front of the new boxes in the post office, and the boxes were put in use Monday for the first time. It would now add materially to the convenience of ingress and egress, if the doors were made to swing both ways, or even if they swung in opposite directions. As it is now, with only one door in use, it only takes two persons going in opposite directions to completely block the entrance.

He was a young man from this village, and had an idea that what he didn't know wasn't worth inquiring about. He had been down to Boston and seen every stylish young fellow with two watch chains upon his vest, so when he came home, he remarked to one of his acquaintances: "It's all the fashion now down to Boston to have two watches—awful stylish—almost every fellow down there wears two watches!" Fact.

For several weeks past the residents of North Main street have been much annoyed by a certain class of midnight marauders, and attempts to put a stop to their work have met with but partial success. It is hoped, however, that as soon as cold weather comes in good earnest the trouble will cease. In the meantime, a person with an invention warranted to protect a sleeper from mosquitoes can reap a harvest in that part of the town.

Horace Kimball, a former well-known resident of this place, and for many years baggage master on the morning train south on the New London Northern road, died on the 16th ult. at the house of a friend near Fredonia, N. Y., at the age of 47 years. Mr. Kimball held an important position on a railroad near Milwaukee, Wis., where he lived, and was taken sick in the spring while on a visit at Fredonia with his wife, whom he married there.

The Palmer Dramatic Club having quite a little sum in the treasury as the result of their past efforts, have concluded to expend it for the best interests of the club, and accordingly go in a body to Springfield this evening to take a lesson of Jos. Jefferson, who is to play "Rip Van Winkle" at the Opera House. The B. & A. road puts a car on a late freight train for their return, at 38 cents each. W. A. Weld has a few more tickets than the club will use.

Voters will have another opportunity to register to-day, the selectmen meeting at the town house at 2 p. m. for the purpose of revising the list. They will remain there until 5, and will then be at Murdock's store in Thorndike until 10 p. m. This will be the last opportunity for registering before election, and voters whose names are not on the list to-night can have no voice in next Tuesday's voting. It therefore behooves every voter to see for himself that his name is on the list.

Braham & Scanlon's Boston Miniature Ideal Opera Co. appeared at Wales Hall last evening in the comic opera, "Billee Taylor." This company comprises 40 juveniles, whose singing and acting are superior to that of many older companies. They played at Springfield Thursday evening, and have appeared before crowded houses in the leading cities, meeting with unqualified success and praise. Palmer people are fortunate in having an opportunity to see this opera rendered by so good a company.

The Republican representative convention meets at North Wilbraham this forenoon, and the naming of the candidate will probably go to Hampden or Ludlow, both towns claiming the honor, we understand. The name most prominently mentioned from Hampden is that of W. R. Sessions, while from Ludlow the names of C. L. Buell and Chas. F. Grosvenor are likely to be brought before the convention. One of these three will probably receive the nomination, and either one will worthily represent the district in the Legislature.

Superintendent Russell of the Boston & Albany Railroad has resigned his position, to take effect December 1, and will be succeeded by W. H. Barnes, the assistant superintendent, who will move his office from Springfield to Boston. Edward Gallup, the general passenger agent at Boston, will remove to Springfield and become assistant superintendent, also retaining his present position. Mr. Russell has been connected with the road for 37 years, and has been its superintendent since 1866. He retires now on account of poor health.

The firm of White, Hellyar & Co. has been dissolved by the retirement of John A. White, who has disposed of his interest to his partner, S. H. Hellyar. Mr. White has accepted a flattering offer in the commission house of John A. D. Gross & Co. of Boston, and will enter upon his duties there next Monday. During his six years' residence here, Mr. White has made many friends, who will regret his departure from town, though glad of his advancement. The business here will be continued by Mr. Hellyar, who is familiar with the wants of his customers, and will aim to meet them as satisfactorily as has been done in the past.

The annual report of the Boston & Albany Railroad for the year ending Sept. 30, 1882, shows its gross earnings to have been $7,790,373, against $7,875,285 the year before. The gross expenses were $5,600,990; in 1881 $5,688,412. Net income, $2,189,382, against $2,186,873 the year before. The surplus of the year was $44,382, against $41,000 the previous year, and the total surplus is now $2,632,920. The whole number of passengers carried was 7,524,138, against 6,799,178 in 1881. Total tons of freight, 3,415,329; the previous year, 3,598,923. One passenger and 7 employes were killed, and 3 passengers and 85 employes were injured.

There was a collision on the New London Northern road, at the lower end of the Palmer yard, Thursday afternoon, between Conductor Sanders's train from the south and the afternoon freight from Brattleboro. The freight train was moving down the main track for the purpose of backing on to the siding just above the bridge over the river, and the ball was up near the engine house, to show that the track was not clear, but the ball and the train are said to have been obscured by the locomotive smoke so that Engineer Moulton, of the passenger train, did not see them. When Engineer Ham, of the freight, saw the other train coming through the bridge he reversed his engine suddenly, and the momentum of the train behind him was such that three flat cars next to the engine were smashed and piled up somewhat promiscuously by the shock. The passenger train was fortunately moving slowly, and beyond the smashing of the pilots the two engines were damaged but slightly. Nobody was hurt, and the track was blocked only a couple of hours.

The meetings in the Baptist church last Sunday, conducted by Rev. Homer A. King, the evangelist, with 10,000 square feet of illustrative paintings, proved so interesting that it was decided to continue them evenings during the week. Mr. King has spoken once from his large painting on the archæological evidence of the authenticity and inspiration of the Scriptures, and other evenings from the paintings illustrating Joseph as a type of Christ, and the tabernacle service in the wilderness. In speaking from the paintings, "The Opening of the Seven Seals of the Book of Revelation," Mr. King will give the history of the apostolic church under the first seal; the ten pagan persecutions under the second seal, when 3,000,000 Christians suffered martyrdom for Christ; under the third seal he will show the rise of the papal power, the introduction of image and saint worship. He will speak of his visit to the Vatican and St. Peter's at Rome. Under the fourth and fifth seals he will describe the reign of the papacy for a "time, times and a half"—1260 years—when over 60,000,000 Christians suffered cruel martyrdom and the remnant found a home in the wilderness. Under the sixth seal he will describe the beginning of the reformation under Martin Luther, his visit to Luther's home and prison castle, and the signs indicating the close of the sixth seal. Services on Sunday at 10.45 a. m., 3 and 7 p. m., Mr. King preaching in the afternoon and evening.

The hall full of citizens who went to the town house last Saturday evening to listen to Senator Hoar and Col. W. S. B. Hopkins of Worcester were well paid for so doing. Senator Hoar's address was an admirable one. Taking for a text Gen. Butler's charge that the State is rotten, he proceeded to demonstrate, by a convincing array of figures, the utter falsity of the charge. He showed that the net State debt was reduced over $1,000,000 last year, and that the State and county tax is but 11 per cent of the total tax, the balance being local taxation, over which the State has no control. That the people of the State are prosperous is shown by an increase of valuation in the past two years of $118,718,962—"pretty good fruitage for a rotten tree." The Senator stated that Massachusetts is the only State which pays invalid pensioners. Since the war the State has paid over $16,000,000 for this purpose, or nearly as much as its net debt amounts to. Over a third of the population have deposits in savings banks, the deposits of this kind in Hampden county alone exceeding those of the whole South; and that the people who are under Republican rule are intelligent, is clearly demonstrated by the fact that in the States which voted for Hancock 33 per cent of the population are unable to write, while in those which voted for Garfield less than 6 per cent lack this qualification. The Senator was listened to attentively and frequently applauded. Col. Hopkins, who followed him, made some good points, and argued that civil service reform is already largely accomplished, because the people are interested in it. Music was furnished by the Three Rivers band during the evening. Theo. C. Bates of North Brookfield, who was also expected to address the meeting, was unable to be present.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF RUM.

Mrs. Mary Ann Stone, wife of John Stone, a well-known village hostler, now employed at the Weeks House stable, was found dead in her bed last Saturday morning, the result of a drunken quarrel the night before, in which she was pounded by "Jimmy" Cook. Cook is an Englishman who, when not in jail, has lived in Palmer for two or three years past. He and his wife were both released from prison recently, and had secured work at Chicopee, it is said. They came to Palmer last week Friday afternoon for some things they had left at Stone's house on River street, and at once sent Stone's boy for a pint of gin, and later for a pint of rum. When Stone went home in the evening he found his wife eating supper with Cook and his wife. The four soon got into a quarrel, and Cook was seen out doors pounding Mrs. Stone as she lay on the ground, finishing up by giving her a blow on the head with a mop handle.

Cook and his wife then went to the Mansion House and engaged rooms for the night, but Cook soon got so noisy drunk that an officer was summoned and he was taken to the lock-up. Mrs. Cook then returned to Stone's house, and she and Mrs. Stone came up street for some more liquor, in response to Stone's entreaties, after which there was more drinking. Mrs. Stone complained of her head feeling dreadfully several times during the evening, but the three went to bed finally. Some time in the night Stone put a wet cloth on his wife's head at her request. About half-past four Saturday morning Mrs. Winnie Wilder went to the house, as was her custom, to call Stone, and saw his wife looking so badly that she at once summoned Mrs. Mack, and they found upon examination that Mrs. Stone was dead. Stone was in a drunken sleep, and it was some time before he could be aroused to realize the condition of things.

An autopsy was made by Medical Examiner Holbrook on Saturday. There was a bruise on the left side of Mrs. Stone's head, and a large clot of blood was found on the left lobe of the brain, with a smaller one at its base, indicating that death was caused by the rupture of an artery. Cook had a hearing before the district court on Thursday, when the above facts were developed, and he was held in $2000 to appear before the grand jury for manslaughter. His wife, who had been arrested on suspicion, was discharged. When Cook was put back in his cell, he snapped his fingers, with the remark, "I don't care that for the whole thing." Mrs. Stone was buried on Sunday.

DISTRICT COURT.

Oct. 27.—Wm. Warren of Dana, for drunkenness, was sent to jail in default of fine and costs amounting to $5.83. Eber Blake was bound over in the sum of $200 for the larceny of a horse, and was committed.

30.—Timothy Lehan of Three Rivers paid costs, $6.29, for an assault. Elexus Waid, drunkenness, the second offense within a year, paid $12.58.

Nov. 1.—Wm. Sweeney, Martin Moran and Manuel Tanner each paid $1 and costs for drunkenness. The case of Ellen Duncan, for mayhem, was continued to the 9th.

LUDLOW.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Thorndike preached at the First Congregational church last Sunday.

WEST WARREN.

A. W. Lincoln of Warren has been unloading two carloads of potatoes for 85 and 90 cents per bushel, while the farmers are bringing them in at $1 per bushel.

BELCHERTOWN.

Mrs. D. A. Hoag has gone to Jersey City for a few weeks of rest and recreation.

There are quite a number of children sick with tonsilitis in this village.

Henry Bridgman, one of the selectmen, has been quite ill with malaria for the past two weeks.

BRIMFIELD.

C. L. Mowry & Co. of Springfield are putting a Page steam heater in the dwelling house of J. T. Brown, a new departure for this town.

Wm. S. Cowdry has put up the frame for a new house on the Center Mill road, an unusual occurrence for Brimfield.

Agents have been canvassing the town the past week, distributing a prospectus entitled "Gen. Benj. F. Butler's True Record." Subscriptions will be received at the polls on Tuesday next, and if sufficient encouragement is given the work will be continued.

WILBRAHAM.

Rev. M. S. Howard preached an anniversary sermon at the Congregational church last Sabbath morning, it being the fourteenth anniversary of his settlement.

Pieria held an open society last evening at Fisk Hall, with a discussion, declamations, music, etc. Miss Emma Fuller presided, with Belle Phelps and Carrie Perkins as vice presidents.

The second entertainment in the lecture course of the Methodist church will be a vocal and instrumental concert at the church next Monday evening, with an interesting programme.

WARREN.

Fred Kimball is serving on the jury.

Mr. Staples has left the draughting-room at the pump shop.

The building called the cheese factory is to be partially rebuilt.

Mr. Sanderson of Ware is to be director of the musical association.

H. Shepard has purchased a lot on Main street and will put up a house.

The farmers have commenced to bring their milk to the car in the afternoon.

Duprez & Benedict's minstrels will appear at the town hall Tuesday evening.

Wm. Shepard has sold his house on Main street to Mr. Warren of Lawrence.

Most of the stores have arranged to close at 8 o'clock during the winter evenings.

The foundation of the brass foundry is being laid, and the building will soon be erected.

Mrs. Newton has presented to the public library a fine crayon portrait of Mr. Newton.

Mrs. Alice Osborne of Boston will give the next entertainment in the lecture course, Monday evening, with songs and readings.

A young man from West Brookfield by the name of Allen was instantly killed by falling from a buggy Wednesday night.

BONDSVILLE.

Will the young ladies and gentlemen who are interested in an evening school, meet at the schoolhouse to make arrangements for one, Tuesday evening, Nov. 7th?

This is a rare season, and an evidence of this was the bunch of raspberry vines seen on the first day of November in Murdock's store. Upon these vines, which were fresh and green, were blossoms, partially ripened fruit and large, red, ripe berries, which looked as delicious as though ripened in mid-summer's heat.

McClellan has finished the work contracted for, and his workmen leave Saturday night. Last week water was let in and the canal filled for the first time. Water will be kept in the canal during the winter, in order to prevent the frost from injuring the works. The boys are anticipating a grand skating ground.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Adams received their friends at the home of Mrs. Adams's son, George Canterbury, Wednesday evening. Besides those from this village and Three Rivers, there were quite a number of friends and relatives from out of town present. A great deal of admiration was expressed for Mr. Canterbury's new house, and he received many congratulations upon his beautiful home. After partaking of a bountiful supper, Mr. Ryther, in behalf of the guests, presented Mr. and Mrs. Canterbury with a very fine chamber set.

HAMPDEN.

Leverett Lillibridge, Sumner Smith's clerk in the store, fell from a load of coal he was measuring last week Thursday, and is now laid up with a sprained ankle.

There is much surprise that the festival of the Methodists last Tuesday night did not net $50. There were about 250 present to eat supper at 25 cents each, which, with the door fees, should amount to much more.

John Hanley, the boss weaver at the Ravine mill, has been sick with typhoid fever, and was doing finely until hemorrhage set in a few days ago. He is now better again, and Dr. Ballard says that with good nursing he will pull through.

The Republicans have a rally at Academy Hall next Monday evening, with addresses by C. H. Foster, Esq., of Quincy, and Hon. C. L. Gardner of Palmer. The band will furnish music. The Democrats rallied at the same hall Thursday evening, to listen to C. C. Merritt of Springfield.

An alarm of fire was sounded between the hours of 11 and 12 last Friday night, and the village was aroused to discover a fire on the hilltop, south of the village, which proved to be the large farm house lately bought and occupied by A. W. Lee, which, together with the outbuildings and most of the furniture, was totally consumed. He also lost two hogs, which were butchered the same afternoon and hung in the shed ready for market. Report says there was $1700 insurance on the house and goods, which ought to build a good substantial farm house and furnish it plainly. The fire is supposed to have started from the scalding kettle in the ell part.

THORNDIKE.

The house builders are improving the fine weather.

Capt. Clark is preparing to build on the old Durkee site, which he bought in the spring.

The second sociable of the season was held at the Congregational church vestry Wednesday evening.

The fence around the new school is completed, and is being painted by Messrs. Whiting and King.

An autumnal service was observed at the Methodist church last Sunday, Rev. Mr. Matthews preaching an appropriate discourse.

Next Sabbath the preaching service of the Congregational church will commence at 1.30 p. m., instead of 11 a. m., the winter arrangement to continue until May 15th, 1883.

Miss Hattie Peebles, who was married last Sunday, has been for a number of years organist and also singer in the Congregational church. She is a fine musician, and will be very much missed.

Albert Woodard, who has taught the Thorndike grammar school for several years, has resigned, to take charge of his father's farm in Brimfield. Mr. Woodard is an efficient teacher, and his place will not be easily supplied.

A fellowship meeting will be held in the Congregational church next Wednesday, consisting of delegates from the Congregational churches of Palmer, Union Three Rivers, Ludlow, Monson, Wilbraham, Hampden and East Longmeadow. The forenoon session will begin at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon at 1.45. The people of the town are cordially invited to attend.

The Ladies' Society met at the M. E. parsonage on Wednesday afternoon and evening. There was a large attendance and a very enjoyable time. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. M. A. Bond; vice president, Mrs. Haynes; secretary, Miss Ella McGilp; treasurer, Mrs. E. T. Potter; executive committee, Mrs. D. W. Palmer, Mrs. A. Harvey, Mrs. Braman, Miss Lottie Moore, Mrs. Carpenter; soliciting committee, Miss Nettie Bond, Mrs. Haynes, Miss I. Holden.

Mr. Editor:—How long has the Three Rivers club had the management of the Sharps of this village, so they can tell us that we will have to play the second nine of Three Rivers before we can claim second place for the championship of the town? We would say that we haven't come down to that yet, and if we cannot get another club to play us besides the second nine of Three Rivers, we will let up on base ball. When they say they have defeated the Sharps three times they tell an untruth. They would not play the second game with the Sharps, even on their own grounds, their excuse being that they didn't have a catcher. They could have sent out of town for one as they had been doing; but no, they claimed the championship and were rather scarce about playing again. According to the League rules the Sharps can claim the championship, unless the Three Rivers can furnish a better record than the following: The Sharps have played 23 games and lost 6. Now if the Three Rivers can beat this, they can claim the championship, as the rule says the club that wins the most games can claim the championship. Now, Three Rivers, put in your record. SHARPS.

MONSON.

Northrop and Ferrell have sold a building lot on Pearl street to D. A. Stewart.

Amasa Harvey is erecting a new barn in the rear of his lately built dwelling house.

Builder Spellman has Lewis Rogers' house nearly finished and the barn well under way.

S. F. Cushman was nominated Thursday as the candidate for representative from this district.

Daniel Foskit has sold a couple of building lots at "Tobeyville" to Merrick C. Mumford for $100 each.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Cumnock, of Chicopee, are making a short visit at the home of her father, Rev. Mr. Best.

The Methodist sociable was largely attended at the house of Rev. Mr. Best, some ninety persons being at supper.

Fred W. King, formerly of the Springfield post office, has accepted a position in the Union office in that city as mailing clerk.

The selectmen will be in session this (Saturday) evening at their room in the M. E. church for the purpose of adding names to the list of voters.

Chas. R. Dudley has sold to Dr. G. W. Andrews an interest in the insurance business, and Mr. Dudley goes to Denver, Col., to work for a telephone company.

"General Apathy" seems to lead in the political field. General Butler has some following, with an occasional convert, but neither side as yet has begun any campaign boom.

John Tyler, at the North Village, having concluded to locate in Concord, Mass., will sell his farm, stock and household goods at auction on Monday next at 10 o'clock a. m.

Keeney & Co. have leased Central Hall for the season of 1882–3, and will put in first-class skates for those who desire to exercise; so Monson will have a permanent skating rink.

James Fisk has fairly captured the town; the Butler boom is no comparison. Mr. Fisk has put from 6000 to 8000 feet of copper conductors for electricty on the most prominent residences and public buildings. These used to be called lightning rods. A gay turn-out, with polite and gentlemanly "moral suasion," does the work.

The town will be asked on Tuesday next to accept the magnificent granite watering trough which Wm. N. Flynt, Esq., has generously donated to the public. A nice globe and lamp on the top of the pedestal will be useful as well as ornamental, and if the town will assume the lighting of it two public benefits will thus be gained.

There was a pleasant reunion of the Beebe family at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Beebe last Saturday afternoon and evening. Among those present were Mrs. J. C. Paddock and two children from Leadville, Col., Mrs. Wm. Durkee from Rochester, Ky., also her son and his wife from Evansville, Ind. After enjoying a very social afternoon a fine repast was served from the more than well-filled tables. The evening passed pleasantly in speaking, reading, singing, etc. A poem was also recited by one of the young ladies, entitled "The Old and the New." The company departed to their homes at an early hour, feeling that it was a day long to be remembered.

There will be a special town meeting on Tuesday afternoon to see if the town will accept the road as laid out by the selectmen running westerly from A. O. White's, on Main street, thence northerly to intersect with the road lately built and passing W. W. Moore's house. One other article is to see if the town will authorize the purchase of a furnace to heat the premises at the town farm, as since the new addition has been erected some method is needed in warming it. To many it is a wonder why if a furnace is needed it is not obtained, as other necessaries for the town are, without making it a special subject for consideration by the voters. If the superintendent is competent for the place he should get the necessaries for the comfort and convenience of those under his charge without asking the town in such cases.

The New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, known as the "nickel plate" road, has been sold to a syndicate of Western capitalists. The purchase is believed to have been made in the interest of the Lehigh Valley road, for an independent line between New York and Chicago.

The Harvard faculty prohibits base ball and other contests with professionals in the future, and also the employment of professional trainers.

The coming holidays will be more generally observed than any for many years, and we would remind our readers that a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will prove a most acceptable holiday present.

Only Two Bottles.

Messrs. Johnson, Holloway & Co., wholesale druggists of Philadelphia, Pa., report that some time ago a gentleman handed them a dollar, with a request to send a good catarrh cure to two army officers in Arizona. Recently the same gentleman told them that both the officers and the wife of Gen. John C. Fremont, Gov of Arizona, had been cured of catarrh by the two bottles of Ely's Cream Balm.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.—A few days ago I saw a lady who had used your Cream Balm for Catarrh, and had found more relief in one bottle than from all other remedies she had tried. I enclose $1 for two bottles. Yours respectfully, JAMES HITCHEN, M. D., Providence, R. I.

Apply into nostrils with little finger. 1y23

If, after a fair test, you are not cured of your cough by using King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam, then the druggist from whom you bought will refund the money paid. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m30

DR. J. W. DEWEY,

(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)

Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,

Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at

THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,

WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that

STEINWAY & SONS

Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of

PIANOS AND ORGANS

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—HAMPDEN SS. PROBATE COURT.—To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of Charles H. Robbins, late of Monson, in said county, deceased, Greeting:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, has been presented to said court for probate, by Isaac H. Robbins of said Monson, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, and that he may be exempt from giving a surety or sureties on his official bond as such executor,

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Springfield, in said county of Hampden, on the ninth day of November next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the Palmer Journal, printed at Palmer, the last publication to be two days at least before said court.

Witness, William S. Shurtleff, Esquire, Judge o said Court, this seventeenth day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

Home-Made Bread.

Don't offer me cake full of sugar and spices,
And citrons and raisins; but, oh, how I yearn
For bread that is home-made, in generous slices,
With sweet golden butter, just out of the churn.

The bread of my childhood, of mother's own making,
Is still in my memory, never forgot;
How often I've waited for Saturday's baking
To get the crust slice and eat it while hot!

The taste of the crispy brown crust ever lingers,
That golden-hued butter yet melts on my tongue;
I still feel the crumbs stick fast to my fingers
As out in the garden I feasted and swung.

And then at the table with sister and brother,
Each armed with a slice a foot long at the least,
That seemed so much sweeter when buttered by mother—
No king ever knew the delight of the feast.

Oh, bread that is home-made, delicious, nutritious;
Vile stuff from the baker's has taken your place,
Well whitened with alum, puffed up and suspicious;
I eat it, and hate it and share its disgrace.

—Norristown Herald.

SOCIAL CONDUCT.

The American freedom of the sexes with all its advantages both for men and women carries with it responsibilities which cannot be ignored or lightly disregarded. The lesson is an old one, but it is so often and sadly enforced that it needs to be pointed anew. Rev. Dr. Gladden in a recent sermon upon girls dwelt upon the importance of a right conception in the minds of young people of both sexes of marriage as the union of two persons as helps meet or fit for each other in the long companionship of life. Both women and men are prone to overestimate the purely ornamental qualities; wealth enables many men to seek the ornamentation of womanly beauty at the expense of those other and fine qualities that count for so much in a life which, whatever one's fortune, is certain to be one of discipline, vicissitude, constant and trying adaptation of one individuality to another, and the nurture of another generation.

But the relations of young people where marriage is only a possibility, or to other married people, is a matter of constant anxiety to parents, to wives and to husbands—not to all, indeed to a small proportion of the families in the community, but to that proportion it is the skeleton of the household. The young woman who admits promiscuous attentions from a large circle of admirers, married and single, is playing with fire, carrying a poisoned brand to some other hearthstones, whence its stifling exhalations will destroy the peace of that family. The married man who thus occupies and addles the brain of the girl casts a cloud over a character that ought to be spotless and serene, and grieves parents who see the fruit of years of tender nurture turned to ashes of bitterness. Shame on that wretch. The first and inexorable duty which should be taught to a young woman is to keep man in his place, and to know her own. Mothers who neglect that instruction, or leave it to chance or to the general tone of the family circle, forget that the demand for it will come like a thief in the night, and must be met with an alert and intense dignity and reserve, which only comes of well-defined principle and a fixed habitude of thought and conduct. Young women will be held responsible when they accept flattering attentions from married men, and justly so, for they know they are trifling with what is not theirs, and yet with that to which they also hope sometime to have an exclusive title.

The test of all social relations and conduct is the sacredness, peace and happiness of the home. Will certain conduct, practices, resorts or associations tend to legitimate social intercourse, conduce to entertainment and instruction, give opportunity for agreeable acquaintanceship, and promote a healthy and secure home life? This is the test to apply. Will it bring together as lovers men of honor, sobriety and substance, and women of devotion, helpfulness and grace? Will it mislead the bounden wife or husband, dazzle the loved son or daughter, and send them home to be greeted with heartache? These are the questions which should be pondered by the giddy and the frivolous.—Springfield Republican.

A raw-boned Irish woman entered one of the national banks, Providence, the other day and presented a check at the cashier's desk. The cashier looked at her and said politely, Madam, you must get identified.' 'Faith, an' what's that?' 'Why, you see you are a stranger to me. I don't know you.' 'Will, thin, I'm not too proud to introduce mesilf to yez. My name's Sarah MacFlinn, an' I'm not ashamed of it!' 'Well, but you see I cannot tell whether you are the person whose name is on the check,' said the cashier, too polite to tell her that perhaps she was lying about it. 'An' what did ye say I must do?' 'Identify yourself. Bring some one here who knows you.' 'Indade! An' who knows me better than I know mesilf!' The cashier paid the check without another word.

There are two or three ways of destroying our public-school system. The first is employing incompetent teachers, whose sole recommendation is that they will teach cheaply. Second, by the parents having confidence in the teachers and school board, that they will never visit the school for themselves. The third is for parents to take the word of their children, and on the strength of their reports to find fault with the school.—Wisconsin Jour. of Ed.

A crushed deacon: 'I hate to see a woman with rings in her ears,' exclaimed the good deacon; 'they aint natural. If it was intended for a woman to wear them she would have been born with holes in her ears. The first woman did not wear ear-rings, I'll be bound!' 'No,' remarked the quiet little man in the corner, 'nor nothing else.' The discussion was brought to an abrupt close, and the house adjourned without delay.—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Stow, a San Francisco dress reformer, announces that on January 1 she will begin to wear trousers in public. As to the form of the proposed garment Mrs. Stow says: "My trousers are made with a plait, and descend just to the line of beauty in the calf of the leg, just where the dresses of the young girls come; and if young girls wear their dresses there, why should not old girls adopt the same fashion?"

'Now the beauty of a paper collar,' the Burlington Hawkeye reports the honorable member as saying, as he coaxed a refractory pin, 'is its economy. You wear one a week. Then you turn it, and wear it another week. Then you split it and you have two new collars, with one clean side, good for another week each of 'em.' And adjusting the flat scarf over his red flannel shirt, he went to dinner.

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful apperance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good result, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is smooth and natural as ever.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the great skin cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

For GEN. DODGE'S bran' new book, entitled

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER

Is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recomended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The poputarity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

SIFTED THEM OUT!

WINNOWING THE WHEAT FROM THE TARES. A PROBLEM EASILY SIMPLIFIED.

"My friend," said the druggist, "you have a lame back, you say, and want a plaster to put on it. Once I could have shown you a large assortment to choose from. Now I keep only a few, and sell most of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. Why? Because they are the best. I have Allcock's, the Capsicum and some others. They are harmless and slow. Business is business, and I gradually ceased to deal in them to any great extent."

"All right, do me up a Capcine without any more talk, for my back aches as though I had been working my passage in a baggage car."

"Here you are," said the druggist, "with the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster, proving it to be genuine."

"And here's your twenty-five cents," said the lame-backed man, walking slowly away. 4w32

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. 4w32

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?

Pool's Signal Service Barometer

—OR—

STORM GLASS & THERMOMETER COMBINED

WILL TELL YOU!

It will detect and indicate correctly any change in the weather 12 to 48 hours in advance. It will tell what kind of storm is approaching, and the direction—invaluable to navigators. Farmers can plan their work according to its predictions. Saves 50 times its cost in a single season. Has an accurate thermometer attached, which alone is worth the price of the combination. This great WEATHER INDICATOR is endorsed by the most eminent physicians, professors, and scientific men of the day to be the

BEST IN THE WORLD!

The Thermometer and Barometer are put in a nicely finished walnut frame, with silver-plated trimmings, etc., making a beautiful as well as useful ornament. We will send you a sample one, delivered free, to your place, in good order, on receipt of $1, or six for $4. Agents are making from $5 to $20 daily selling them. A trial will convince you. Order at once. It sells at SIGHT. Just the thing to sell to farmers, merchants, etc. Invaluable to everybody. U. S. postage stamps taken if in good order, but money preferred. Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular and terms.

DURING THE LATE WAR

THE GOVERNMENT MADE ITS BEST ARMS AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—WHAT MR. DAVID CLARK, INSPECTOR U. S. ARMORY THERE, RECOMMENDS.

Your reporter found Inspector Clark at his office on the Armory grounds busily examining "receivers" for the regulation army rifles. However, he was as willing to say a word for the merits of health and strength restoratives as to prove the merits of implements of death. He said: "My business keeps me closely confined to the Armory and in doors. As a result, I've suffered considerably from indigestion and biliousness, but I find that Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is a most excellent medicine for these complaints. I most cordlally recommend it, for I am acquainted with its worth. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is used a great deal by the machinists in the U. S. Armory here."

While FAVORITE REMEDY is a specific in Kidney and Bladder diseases, it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders and Constipation of the Bowels. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, FAVORITE REMEDY, he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to office practice. He treats all diseases and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery. 4w31

Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.
Catarrh relieved and cured.
Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

A November Day.

A sun, a wind, a sky like March,
So bright, so keen, so clear and blue,
The broad, untroubled azure arch
Which not a cloud is sailing through;

A smile of earth, a festive way,
As though she woke from slumbering,
And entered on a holiday,
Might tempt one half to dream of Spring—

Except for trees whose glow is dead,
Except for withered leaves and brown,
That rustle underneath our tread,
And make a woodland of the town.

For, as I walked, I turned to see
The vista of a climbing street,
With leaves o'erdrifted perfectly;
It was a forest road complete.

Above, the branches softly bent,
And scattered still their brown and gold;
The sunshine to the pathway lent
The glamour of some tale of old.

To-morrow morn the rain may fall,
The clouds may gloom, the day be dull,
But I must still remember all
That makes this day so beautiful.

This unforgotten scene will bless
When darker hours must do their part;
This late, still autumn loveliness,
This sunshine in November's heart.

THE MARRIAGE PORTION.

There lived, about five or six miles from Easton, Pennsylvania, a few years since, an honest farmer named Henderson, who had two very pretty daughters, Ellen and Maude. The first was about twenty-three years of age, while the latter was but nineteen. The farmer was a thrifty, well-to-do man, though by no means rich; but the family lived in excellent style, and the daughters had received good educations.

Both of these girls were pretty, but Maude was perhaps the handsomer. There was no lack of attentive young gentlemen at the farm, though the neighborhood was not very thickly settled. But 'beauty draws us with a single hair,' and the young ladies were the center of a gay little circle of friends.

By and by it came about that an earnest, handsome, and sturdy young farmer fell desperately in love with Maude and proposed to her. On her part she loved Henry Masters above all the young fellows she knew, and told him frankly that he might speak to her father. In the meantime she confided the matter to her mother, a kind-hearted, sympathetic parent, who saw no objection to the choice of her fair daughter, but all was left to the father to decide.

Henderson was a very straightforward and open-mouthed man. That is, he said exactly what he meant, no more nor less, and that he uttered freely. When Harry Masters called him one side and told his especial errand as to Maude, the father said, 'Well, Mr. Masters, Maude is young. I wanted Ellen to be married first; she's the oldest, and I have got a marriage portion of $1200 to give her; but I have not laid by anything yet for Maude.'

'I have got pretty well beforehand, Mr. Henderson, for a man but twenty years old, and we shall be able to do very well I have no doubt.'

'You mean you'll take Maude without any marriage portion?' asked the father.

'Yes, sir, gladly.'

'Well, it's pleasant to hear you say so, because it shows your honest affection, Mr. Masters, but I am too proud to let Maude marry until I can give her a thousand or two toward housekeeping.'

'It is not worth waiting for, sir, as long as we don't need it, and both are content.'

'Then, again, I'd rather Maude wouldn't marry until her sister is married, because she is so much older, do you see, it will actually make her an old maid. It isn't fair, Mr. Masters.'

'Ellen is very popular with the gentlemen, and will soon be married,' said the other.

'That's just what I have said to myself, and then I shall begin to pick up a marriage portion for Maude.'

'I trust that's the only objection, Mr. Henderson?' said Harry.

'Why, yes; you are a promising and respectable young man and come of good family,' said the farmer; 'but I can't let Maude go until I have got together a marriage portion to give with her hand.'

'Perhaps you will think more favorably about it,' said the lover. 'I'll speak with you again.'

'All right, Mr. Masters.'

Harry and Maude were very fond of each other, and now talked over the matter very seriously. Maude could not blame her father and did not herself like the idea of going to Harry without a proper portion to contribute toward their joint partnership in domestic life.

'Never mind, Harry,' said the handsome young girl; 'Ellen will soon be married. I have pretty good reason for knowing.'

'Ah, but then your father says he wants time to pick up a marriage portion for you, and that will take three or four years perhaps.'

'That is a good while, is it not, Harry?' said Maude, just blushing a little, for fear it sounded forward and bold.

'It's ages!' said the young man. 'Think of waiting three years—why we shall be old folks by that time!'

'Not quite as bad as that,' said she.

'I'm sure my hair will be gray before that time!'

'Nonsense, Harry! Now you are joking.'

'I was never more in earnest in my life,' he said as he stole a kiss from her pretty lips, and ran away, so as not to hear her chide him for his boldness.

'Maude,' said her father, coming into the house from the barn, 'I wish you would ride the sorrel mare into Easton and get this hundred-dollar bill changed at the bank. The workmen have got done with the roofing of the barn and I want to pay them off this evening.'

'Very well, father. Let John put the side-saddle on, and I will be ready in about five minutes.'

The sorrel mare was brought up to the door, and Maude was soon on her way at an easy gallop toward Easton. She had an excellent seat, and was a good horsewoman. As she knew this very well, she would not have objected to have Harry see her just now; but he had gone a few moments before in an opposite direction.

When Maude got into Easton she rode directly to the bank, but was unfortunate enough to find that it was already closed. After a few moments' thought she resolved to try to get the note changed at the grocer's or at some of the other stores, and went immediately to do so. Fate seemed against her, for no one had small change enough to accommodate Miss Henderson.

At one of the stores where she stopped a very gentlemanly-looking person took out his pocketbook and said he thought he could change it for her, and she handed him the bill; but he returned it, saying, after all, he had not so much small money. He seemed to regret this, however, and even followed Maude to the door and assisted her to remount her horse.

She was forced to give up her errand, as she did not like to run about among strangers, asking them to change her bill, especially as no one seemed able to do so. She therefore turned her horse's head once more toward home. Scarcely had she passed the outskirts of the town when she was overtaken by the stranger who had spoken with her in the last store, and who at first thought he could change her bill. He was mounted on a fine-looking bay horse, and saluted her respectfully as he came alongside.

'Did you get your bill changed?' he asked.

'No; small bills are scarce,' she replied.

'Do you live near here?'

'About five miles off.'

'Quite a ride.'

'Oh, we don't mind five miles in the country.'

'You are an excellent rider.'

'I have ridden since I was six years old,' she said; 'but my sister Ellen is a better rider than I am.'

'You are generous to admit it,' said the stranger.

'Why, it's only the truth,' she answered, frankly.

After they had passed over about two miles, they came to a very lonely piece of road, quite removed from any dwelling houses. Still, as the stranger had appeared so gentlemanly, and had addressed her so politely, she had not the least suspicion of any evil intention on his part.

Presently he said, suddenly, 'I will thank you for that bill.'

'What?' she said, half smiling.

'Please to give me that bill.'

'What do you mean?' asked Maude.

'Just what I say!' he replied, suddenly.

'I shall do no such thing!' she answered, firmly.

'I am sorry to draw a pistol on a lady,' he continued, suiting the action to the word, 'but I must have that hundred-dollar bill at once.'

'Do you mean to rob me?'

'I must have the money.'

It was still with some difficulty that she could believe that the man was in earnest; but when he now cocked his pistol and held it toward her with one hand, while he extended the other for the bill, she was forced to yield to the situation. She was a brave-hearted girl, and even now did not turn pale or tremble in the least, but saw that she could not help herself, and so made the best of it.

Just as she held out the bill to him, a sudden gust of wind blew it into the road and carried it several yards from them. The stranger alighted to get it, and quick as thought Maude struck her horse a sharp blow, in order to get out of the robber's power. The sorrel mare was a spirited little creature, and sprung into a smart gallop at once, while the stranger's horse, which had been left standing beside her, also started off at full speed in her company.

Bang! went the robber's pistol after them, having only the effect to increase the speed of the flying horses, both of whom were now on the dead run. Maude did not care how fast she rode, the sorrel was as easy as a cradle at that speed, and in ten minutes she dashed into her father's yard, followed by the riderless horse.

Her story was soon told, and her father was with difficulty prevented from starting after the robber with his pistols and rifle, but he knew that the scoundrel would naturally take at once to the woods, where he could not follow or find him.

'Well, we've got his horse, at any rate,' said the farmer, 'and he is worth more than $100.'

'Hello!' said the man, who had been taking the saddle-bags from the strange horse.

'What is it, John?'

'These bags is full of something.'

'I should think so,' said the farmer, as he unstrapped the leather bags.

They were found to contain some counterfeit plates, a quantity of counterfeit money, in various bills, and also a little over $1500 in good money!

'Huzza!' cried the farmer.

'What is it, father?' said Maude.

'Why, your trip to Easton has proved a profitable one at all events. Here's over $1500, good money!'

'Ah, but it will be claimed by the owner.'

'Do you think a counterfeiter will dare to come for the tools that would convict him?—to say nothing of highway robbery?'

'I didn't think of that.'

That evening Henderson sent John over to young Masters with a message to call round and see him, to which Harry responded instantly.

'Mr. Masters,' said the farmer, as he came into the large, old-fashioned sitting-room, 'you remember what you asked of me this afternoon?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Well, I give my consent. Maude has just furnished her own marriage portion. Take her, my boy, and be happy.'

A very significant utterance was that made by James Tracy, who was executed for murder at Chicago recently, just before he was hung. He had all along protested his innocence, and in a communication which he wrote out for a reporter he said: 'I feel satisfied that if my past record had been spotless I could never have been convicted. I do not believe any man who has known the life of virtue can ever be content with the life of vice. The farmer who has spent his life on his farm, never seeing more of the world than the road to market or more of society than the village congregation, is happier than the 'sport' who gets his money easily but questionably and sees society in its dissipation. The hardest of work, if honest, is not as tiresome as the idleness of an outlaw. The laborer never feels his work as does the man who makes his living by the 'simple turn of the wrist.' I sincerely hope that my fate and these words may prove a warning to young men who are cheating themselves with the idea that there can be any peace, happiness or prosperity in a crooked life.'

A young lady of Philadelphia sang a song to her Western lover, the refrain of which was: 'Oh, listen to the sighing of the winds;' and when she got through he emphatically remarked: 'I say, sis, you ought to come out to our section and experience a sighclone.'

The ablest liar is not the man who tells the biggest lie, but the one who can judge just how much the listener will stand.

A man's life is an appendix to his heart.

A Kiss for Mamma.

The car was all ready, the aronaut saying
A few last words ere he sailed away
To the far, blue sky, where the sunbeams straying
Made perfect the glorious summer day;
While thousands and thousands were gathering nigh,
To wish him good journey, and bid him good by.

A wee little maid with her sunny hair falling
Back from her beautiful childish brow,
Sprang away from her nurse, her baby voice calling:
"An' p'ease, Mr. Man, may I do now?
I want to do up wiv 'oo in 'e sky,
To fin' my own mamma an' tiss 'er dood by."

He kissed the sweet face, while the tear-drops were shining
On many a cheek hardened with care;
He unclasped the arms round his neck fondly twining
And sailed from the little one standing there;
But a sweet voice rose to him, clear and free,
"Tell mamma I's dood dirl, an' tiss 'er fo' me!"

WHAT WE HAVE NOTICED.

That the strongest horse is generally put between the shafts.

That it is better to be good and homely than to be pretty and bad.

That people who wear the best clothes do not wear the best.

That people who boast that they always speak what they think have some very mean thoughts.

That the man who barters health for riches is never satisfied with the bargain.

That learning is a powerful auxiliary to the fool bent on displaying his folly.

That the man who could do a thing if he tried is always very careful not to try.

That he who sees no good in human nature is too much given to self-contemplation.

That it is the same with thought as with money—the less one has of either, the more eager he is to display it.

That the photographer who can make a flattering picture is more successful than he who makes a correct likeness.

That the man who is always able to say the right thing in the right place is usually found in the right place to say it.

That when a man tells you of a chance to make money, he neglects to mention the hundred or more chances to lose it in the same enterprise.

That the girl who declares that she would not marry the best man alive, quite frequently proves her sincerity by marrying the worst man she can find.

WHY HE WEPT.

Yesterday afternoon a man stepped into a Main street barber shop to get shaved. While the barber was passing the steel over his face the man began to shed tears. This attracting the attention of the proprietor of the shop, he directed the manipulator of the razor to sharpen the instrument. As the shave continued the man's tears flowed unceasingly, and the barber continued to whet his tool, occasionally changing razors, and striving as diligently as possible to ameliorate the suffering of his customer.

'We are using the best razors in the shop, sir,' said the man with the lather cup. 'Your face must be very tender. Does it pain you much?'

'A razor pain me! Do you suppose that a man who has been through the war shrinks from physical suffering?'

'Then what the deuce have you been blubbering about?' inquired the boss.

'I got to thinking over bad news from the East. Another mother-in-law coming out to spend the winter. Here's the money for the shave.'

'I shan't charge you a cent,' said the barber, sadly. 'I never bleed a man's pocket when his heart's bowed down. Come in occasionally and mingle your tears with mine. I've got some mothers-in-law myself. Four, by thunder.'

'That's what's going to make polygamy a failure in Utah,' said the tearful man, as he slammed the door.—Salt Lake Tribune.

THE WRONG BOTTLE.

A well-known gentleman in business circles is smiled at on the street now. He is troubled with rheumatic affliction and his druggist has compounded a liniment that is a sure cure for even the severest of his twinges. On a recent evening, therefore, upon the approach of his affliction, the services of his amiable wife and his liniment bottle were brought into requisition. The pain remover was applied briskly and with a vigorous hand, and as the pain disappeared a new feature set in. The story is told on the street that his back began to toughen up like the hide of a rhinoceros and a curious brilliance to radiate over his back like the gorgeous rays of the sunset in a two-dollar chromo. He couldn't move his arm without the skin snapped, and if he once held it up he couldn't get it down again. The case began to grow alarming. Astounded at the resnlt of a standard remedy his amiable lady held the bottle in the rays of the gas jet and discovered the cause. She had mistaken the bottle and given her husband a vigorous rubbing with furniture polish, and his back was up to the full standard of a mahogany center table. The next morning his good wife sought our druggist to know if the result would be a lingering death. Her fears were removed, but the story leaked out. —Bath (Me.) Times.

AN OVERTAKEN TRUANT.—He was a tousled little chap of seven or eight years, and he stood howling on South Main street with his mouth wide open and the air about him perfumed with a strong odor of the mephitis Americana. His yells caused the bystanders to stop and inquire what was the matter.—'I-I-I run against a s-s-s-kunnk,' he cried between his sobs and shrieks. 'Well, you had better run right home and have your mother change your clothes,' was the advice. 'I-I-I d-d-darsen't,' wailed the urchin, 'for I r-r-run away from s-s-school, and I'm afraid she'll l-l-l-lick me.'—Holyoke Transcript.

WHAT WE ARE COMING TO.—This is the sort of thing the Burlington Hawkeye predicts we are coming to if something does not head off the depredations of the gentlemen of the press on the English language: 'The tramp Roderick, who burgled the two houses on West Hill last week and was jailed Sunday night, broke out last evening, but was policed clear to the river, where, finding escape impossible, he wharfed himself and suicided. The body piled itself at the bridge and will be coronered in the morning. Truly, in the midst of life we are deathed.'

A miner fell in love with a girl at first sight; she was equally smitten with him, and the entire courtship was: 'My pet?' 'You bet!'

KILLING, NOT EDUCATING.

We do not remember ever to have heard so much complaint on the part of parents in regard to the overtaxing of children by teachers with studies at school and at home. From every quarter and in regard to all grades of schools we have the same cry, that the health of pupils cannot endure the strain that is put upon them. Young children who ought to be exercising their limbs and muscles are put through a course of studies during the day, confined usually for six hours in the schoolroom, and when these are over, are required to carry home a pile of books with which to tax their weary brains during the evening. We know of one who has passed sleepless or disturbed nights, her mind running incessantly while awake, and while dreaming, upon the problems in history or geography or arithmetic, or some other branch, which are given to her to solve during the interval between one day's exercise and another. Too many studies and too many hours are assigned to those of tender years.

The higher schools are pursuing the same injudicious course. We have in mind one first-class institution of which we have heard the remark so often made as to have become a proverb, that the young ladies break down in health before they complete the course. Boys may find a counteracting influence in the buoyancy of their spirits and their fondness for outdoor exercise, though even boys are sometimes crowded with study beyond the powers of endurance; but the danger is very great with young girls and young ladies that in pressing them too closely with study the fruit of intellectual development will be lost in their physical powers giving way, if not in their early death.

The fault is generally with teachers who are ambitious to advance their pupils and to advance their own reputation; but parents who see their children wilting under such a process should remonstrate at once, and if this does not avail should withdraw them from such influences. Knowledge is dearly bought at the price of health and at the cost of a ruined physical constitution.—N. Y. Observer.

Sympathy: Colonel Folsom was reading the morning paper at the breakfast table, when he exclaimed in a horrified tone of voice:—'What a terrible misfortune!' 'What is it—somebody got married?' asked his wife in an indifferent manner. 'No; but a married woman in New York, in a fit of rage, threw a coffee cup at her husband. The cup was shivered into fragments, and one of them cutting his jugular artery he died on the spot. The reporter says the grief of the unfortunate woman was dreadful to witness. She was frantic with grief, and made several attempts to put an end to her existence.' 'Poor creature,' said Mrs. Folsom, with a sigh; 'I reckon the broken cup must have belonged to her china set.'

Good books are shields to the young. Temptations are blunted on them which otherwise would pierce to the quick. A man who draws sufficient pleasure from books is independent of the world for his pleasure. Friends may die; books never are sick and they do not grow old. Riches melt away; books are in no danger of bankruptcy. Our companions have their own errands to execute and their own burdens to bear, and cannot, therefore, be always at hand when we need company. But books need never go out from us. They are not sensitive to our neglect; they are never busy; they do not scold us, and they do welcome us with uniform and genial delight.

A Western man has been telling some Philadelphians how Western cities grow. He says he went off into the mountains hunting, and night coming on, he went to sleep in a tree to be out of reach of the wolves. He was awakened early the next morning by some workmen, who told him to get down and finish his nap on the court-house steps, as they wanted to turn that tree into a flag pole for the hotel across the way. He got down and while he was rubbing his eyes, he was nearly run over by a street car and got his feet tangled in an electric wire.—Philadelphia News.

'Widder Jenkins,' said an Ohio farmer, as he bustled into her house one morning, 'I am a man of business. I am worth $10,000 and want you for a wife. I give you three minutes in which to answer.' 'I don't want ten seconds, old man!' she replied, as she shook out the dish-cloth: 'I am a woman of business, worth $16,000, and wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth! I give you a minute and a half to git!' He got.—Wall Street News.

Small Ragged Boy—'Say, mister, 'av yer got any pocket-'ankerchies?' Proprietor—'Oh, yes; here's a nice one for ten cents.' Boy—'Now, see here, boss, what do yer take me for? I don't wear any yer cotton or linen things. Show up some of yer fancy silk with embroidered centre, and margin left in the corner for a fellow's monogram. That's the kind of a man I am.'

There are at present no fewer than ten establishments in France devoted to the propagation of bait for the use of anglers, and one of these breeders sells from thirty to forty millions of worms per annum, deriving a handsome income from the business.

Statistics are fine things. When a man gets smashed up on a railroad it must be a great consolation to him to reflect that on an average only one passenger in several millions gets hurt.

Student (not very clear as to his lesson)—'That's what the author says, any way.' Professor—'I don't want the author; I want you!' Student (despairingly)—'Well, you've got me.'

Faith makes a Christian, life proves him, trials confirm him, and death crowns him. There are many who want the crown at the beginning rather than at the end of their journey.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says "an editor's vacation consists in leaving the sanctum ten minutes earlier than usual and taking a walk around the block."

A young lady says that males are of no account from the time the ladies stop kissing them as infants till they commence kissing them as lovers.

Old truths are always new to us if they come with the smell of Heaven upon them.—Bunyan.

Sorrow is not a blessing until it turns to joy.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1882.

AT LAST!

BUTLER ELECTED GOVERNOR.

The Old Bay State Gives the Country a Surprise Party.

Tuesday was a cloudy day. It was also a cold day for the Republican nominee for Governor. The Republican party of Massachusetts has concluded to "give the old man a chance," and so, while the balance of its State ticket was elected, Butler is made Governor by a plurality of 13,000, out of a total vote of 256,345. Last year the total vote was only 156,696, and in 1880 it was 282,346. The vote stands as follows: Butler 133,802, Bishop 120,714, Almy 1829. For Lieutenant Governor Ames received 122,903 votes, Bowerman 107,486, and Blackmer 1532. One town remains to be heard from.

The Democrats have gained three Congressmen in the eastern part of the State, so that the delegation will stand: Republicans 8, Democrats 4. There are also Democratic gains in the Legislature, which, according to the best estimates, will stand: House, 153 Republicans and 87 Democrats, a Democratic increase of 25; Senate, 25 Republicans and 15 Democrats, a gain of 10 for the latter.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED.

IN OTHER STATES.

The Republican overturn was even more decided in other parts of the country than in Massachusetts. In New York the Republican voters, resenting the methods employed in securing the nomination of Folger, voted the Democratic ticket by thousands, electing Grover Cleveland for Governor by the unparalleled majority of nearly 200,000. The Legislature is also Democratic. The canals are made free, by a majority of fully 150,000. Pennsylvania was carried by the Democrats, Pattison being elected Governor by 32,000 plurality over the Cameron candidate, Beaver. Connecticut elected Waller, Democrat, for Governor, by a majority of 2707. In New Hampshire Hale, Republican, escaped defeat by the narrow margin of about 500 votes. In New Jersey Robeson is defeated, and the Legislature is Democratic. Michigan, Colorado and Kansas elect Democratic Governors, but the rest of the candidates chosen are Republicans, as in Massachusetts. Indiana and California are carried by the Democrats, as well as most of the Southern States. Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota are saved to the Republicans, the last-named State electing a solid Republican delegation to Congress.

The United States Senate will probably stand, Republicans and Democrats 37 each, Readjusters, 2; Mahone and Riddleberger holding the balance of power. In the House the Democrats will have a clear majority of some 65.

For the minority, who feel keenly the shame of the election, defeat is no disgrace. They must share in the humiliation which has been put upon the old Commonwealth, but they are not responsible for it. They have supported as their candidate a gentleman of the highest character, the purest intentions and the cleanest record. They have no reason to feel ashamed of themselves or of him. And they may patiently and confidently abide the verdict of the future, in full assurance that it will justify their course.—Boston Advertiser.

In regard to the Republican party of Massachusetts, it is impossible to acquit it of blame or to feel that its punishment is not in a measure deserved. It supported Gen. Butler because he gratified its passion and vindictiveness, when he was as well known as he is now, and the party that sent such a demagogue to Congress and kept him there in spite of its opportunity to choose better representatives in such men as Richard H. Dana and Judge Hoar, is rightly punished for its error.—Providence Journal.

ELECTION FRAGMENTS.

Governor Butler. Whew!

Perseverance has its rewards.

It is a long lane that has no turn.

A regular "harrycane," wasn't it?

Butler is "vindicated." But the State?

The Democratic brethren will join in singing "Oh, Happy Day."

The Democratic State Committee is out with a congratulatory address.

Butler says Massachusetts is rotten. Begins to look like it, that's a fact.

Wonder if Senator Hoar feels like repeating his defense of the river and harbor bill?

How would it sound—President Benjamin F. Butler? That's what he's after, now.

Hubbell's assessment circulars made first class campaign literature for the Democrats.

Secretary Folger did not expect to be elected, and so held on to his position in the cabinet. Fortunate man.

It was not the Republican stay-at-homes who elected Butler, after all, but the Republican voters at the polls.

The "rooster" which the Boston Globe brought out Wednesday morning bore a wonderful resemblance to a big fat hen. Was it a "widow" hen.

With seven Republican councilors around him, and a Republican House and Senate near at hand, Butler will be in good company when he gets into the State House.

"How did it happen?" The Republican party has simply failed to meet its promises and the expectations of the people, in national affairs, and the people have spoken in rebuke. That's all.

The Republicans who voted for the river and harbor steal should have put in a liberal appropriation for Salt River. A good many of them now have a personal interest in the navigation of that stream.

In a recent speech, Senator Hoar said: "I, for one, would prefer to have every avenue of political honor and preferment closed to me forever rather than live in a State that preferred Benjamin F. Butler to Robert R. Bishop." Will he emigrate?

Another lesson for the Republican party. Will it be heeded? After Hayes and Garfield, a party which gives itself up to the leadership of its Camerons, Robesons, Keifers and Hubbells, and fathers river and harbor grabs, need not be surprised when it is repudiated by the people.

Congressman-elect Wm. Whiting of Holyoke had 1972 votes in his own city, to 148 for the Democratic candidate, while he has a majority in the district of 6696—the largest ever known in the district. Mr. Whiting may well feel gratified with the result—and his constituents, too.

Cameron's power is broken in Pennsylvania, President Arthur has received a stinging slap in the face for his officious meddling in New York politics, Robeson, the New Jersey "boss" of unsavory fame, is defeated, and Jay Hubbell is left at home, with many others of the same stripe. The situation is certainly not without its bright side. In the burial of this class of politicians lies the only hope of the Republican party for the future.

The success of the Democratic party in 1884 will depend upon how it conducts itself in the meantime. It must do better the next two years than it has during the past ten.—Mayor-elect Edson of New York.

By the opening of the new year not less than twenty-one of the thirty-eight State Governments will, apparently, be in the hands of the Democratic party. If President Arthur had kept the pledges of impartiality within the party and fidelity to the people with which he took his office, there would not be so many Democratic Governors. This is one lesson of the result which will repay study.—N. Y. Tribune.

We congratulate Gen. Butler, who has got what he has long wanted. We congratulate Massachusetts, which has got what she has long needed. We congratulate Harvard College, which will now have the long-awaited opportunity to confer upon this eminent citizen the title of Doctor of Laws and to receive him with proper honors when he goes over the Cambridge bridge to commencement next summer escorted by a company of lancers.—N. Y. Sun.

The Republican leaders should indulge in no delusion about it; the people have begun to become tired of the Republican party as it has been for some years—tired of its boss rule and its machine methods, tired of its constant professions of reform without performance, tired of its civil-service talk while carrying on the scandal of political assessments, tired of the extravagance under its auspices, tired of its constant plea that an old set of political tricksters must be kept in power at the North to secure freedom of the ballot at the South. And that disgust the people expressed at the ballot-box yesterday.—N. Y. Evening Post.

FIRES.—The poor asylum at Halifax, N. S., was burned early Tuesday morning, and 31 inmates perished in the flames. There was inexcusable delay in releasing the paupers. The firemen finally broke in the doors, but the flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save the helpless occupants of the hospital on the sixth floor, and they were burned before the eyes of the crowd. Some dashed themselves against the windows, and one woman dragged herself half through a window, hanging there until her head was burned off.——Portland, Me., had a large fire on Widgery wharf, Monday, causing a loss of $100,000 or more.——On Sunday there was a $200,000 fire at Redbank, N. J.; a man was burned to death in a building at North Andover; 11 horses and 27 cattle were burned at New Canaan, Ct.——Oliver's wire mill at Pittsburgh, Pa., the largest in the country, was burned, Tuesday. Loss $100,000; 800 men thrown out of work.

The first attempt to convict a polygamist at Utah under the Edmunds law has failed. A Mormon with two wives and about to take a third, was arrested, but his second marriage could not be proved, and the wife would not admit that she was his wife, so he had to be discharged, though there was no doubt about his guilt.

The Methodist Episcopal Church proposes during the ensuing year to expend $715,000 on foreign missions, which is $25,000 more than last year.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Take notice of Weld & Longley's new signs, and then—step inside.

Milligan has a nice line of ladies' and gent's beaver and felt boots and shoes.

A. E. Park has just received a choice lot of York State Creamery and Northern Butter, selling by the tub and pound; must soon be higher. Also, best brands of new flour, cheese, raisins, &c., &c. Full lines of hanging and table lamps, crockery, glass and toilet ware of every description.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Look out for shooting stars in a day or two.

Ice formed a quarter of an inch or more in thickness Sunday night.

Rev. P. Hunter of Hartford is to occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church on Sunday.

A few white-winged harbingers of the coming winter fell on Tuesday—the first snowflakes of the season.

C. P. Barton of Spencer, who was elected senator on Tuesday, on the Democratic ticket, is a brother of Jeweler F. D. Barton of this place.

Beginning with to-morrow, the preaching service at the Baptist church will be held at 1.30 p. m. during the winter, instead of at 10.45 a. m.

Palmer has one faithful prohibitionist, who sticks to his colors on election day, as well as at other times, come what may. But he must feel a trifle lonely when looking over the returns.

Mr. Hitchcock, the druggist, has concluded to occupy the store in the rear of the post office, in addition to the room he now occupies, and will have his stock rearranged in the course of a week or so.

Thomas Lodge of Masons elected the following officers on Monday evening: Geo. B. Kenerson, W. M.; H. H. Paine, S. W.; H. A. Parker, J. W.; A. H. Willis, Treas.; C. W. Cross, Secy.; S. S. Taft, proxy to Grand Lodge.

The Ellis Family will give an entertainment at the Congregational church next Monday evening, which will be well worth attending, judging from the commendations with which they have been received in other places.

Gen. Grant, with his wife and son, passed through Palmer Thursday afternoon, on the 1.24 express from Boston, where he had been to attend the fair. Christine Nilsson, the famous songstress, was also on the train, occupying a special car with her party.

Palmer votes to license the sale of liquor. How do our citizens like the work it is doing? Last year one man killed on the railroad, another burned in his house, now a woman killed at her home, and rows and quarrels almost without number—all the fruit of this liquor selling.

It is understood that John Tilley of Granby, representative-elect from the 5th Hampshire district, is opposed to the project of annexing South Belchertown to Palmer, and will use every effort to defeat it if the subject is brought before the Legislature this winter, as it is likely to be.

There was a sudden drop in milk Thursday morning at Tenneyville, where the horse attached to Wing's milk cart took a notion to run, being startled by the cars. The forward axle of the wagon was broken and the top somewhat demoralized, while about 70 quarts of milk was scattered beyond recovery.

"Hub" Osgood, one of the engineers on the forenoon express from Boston, has resigned and takes a switcher in the Worcester yard. He is succeeded by Engineer Osgood of the morning accommodation west, while the latter train is taken by James W. Chamberlain, who has been running the Worcester switcher.

Roller skaters had one more chance to enjoy themselves at Wales Hall last (Friday) evening, with the additional attraction of music by the Palmer Cornet Band. Mr. Hitchcock opens his skating rink at Northampton next week for the winter, but may bring his skates back here occasionally, so our skaters can keep in practice.

Conductor Downer, of the New London Northern Railroad, who has been a member of the Connecticut Legislature for the past two years, was a candidate for re-election on Tuesday, but got "left." It seems to have been an unfortunate day for conductors with political aspirations, and Downer and "Horace" can mingle their tears together over the result.

"Our Club" held its second meeting at the house of Rev. E. A. Perry last week Friday evening, about 30 being present. A selection from Chaucer was read by Dr. Allen, and an essay was read on his life and times by Mr. Perry. The club meets next Friday evening at the same place, and is to read from Shakespeare, taking the first two acts of "Midsummer Night's Dream," the parts being assigned to different members.

Last week's report about a hen which laid 50 eggs in 50 consecutive days calls up O. F. Benedict of Glendale, who rises to remark that he has a Brown Leghorn hen which laid an egg every day for five months, beginning last April, and from the first of that month to the middle of October, a period of 198 days, she laid 173 eggs. Who has a "biddy" with a better record than this?

She had been nearly knocked down by some careless fellow at the skating rink, and imagined her head-gear to be somewhat awry, and so, looking up at her companion, she asked: "Is my hat on straight?" He gave one despairing look at the horse-stepped-on-a-tin-pan shape of the hat, and replied that he could not inform her unless he knew at what angle it ought to be when in that position. They don't speak now.

A good-sized audience assembled last week Friday evening to see "Billee Taylor" played by Braham & Scanlon's Miniature Opera Co. Although cut down in numbers since leaving the large cities, the troupe gave excellent satisfaction, the solos being very fine, and the choruses exceedingly well rendered for so young a company. The managers say they are to return in a few weeks and play "Patience." If they do, they will have a full house without doubt.

The election Tuesday brought out 599 voters in Palmer. Last year only 416 votes were cast, while the year before that the number polled was 701. The town went Republican, as usual, but only by the small majority of 15 for the head of the ticket. Last year Gov. Long had a majority of 134, and this year the rest of the State ticket had over 50 majority. A good many Republicans put Butler's name in the place of Bishop's, apparently just to "see what the old man will do" at the State House.

The Democrats of this district met at North Wilbraham last Saturday night and nominated Conductor Horace H. Sanders of this place for representative. Mr. Sanders's personal popularity led a good many Republicans in town to vote for him, and he had a majority of 95 here at home, but the other towns in the district evidently considered that Palmer was not entitled to the representative this year, and all went for the Republican nominee, electing him by a majority in the district of 88.

If anyone doubts the truth of the old adage that "large bodies move slowly," let him consider the progress made with that new union passenger station in this place and doubt no more. Tradition has it that the ground for the structure was surveyed 'way back in the dim ages of the past; plans were duly drawn and accepted, and the contract for its construction was let long, long ago, it was said. And yet, the searcher after the new edifice will look in vain for any outward evidence that such a thing has ever been so much as thought of.

Our merchants are still manifesting an active interest in putting out new signs. Weld & Longley have come out with three new ones, neat and attractive in design; C. L. Saunders has three, and E. F. Bass two. Among others in preparation are five new ones for F. M. Eager, two for Mrs. Whitman and large ones for Grise & Forand of Three Rivers and Joseph Thompson of this place. Hitchcock, the druggist, has a neat one to be placed between the posts in front of his store. F. F. Marcy has five new ones, and O. W. Studley will soon hang out a nice one.

The Boston & Albany Railroad has for so long a time been running cars which were superior to those run by the New York & New Haven road, that its managers must open their eyes at the really elegant train recently put on the mid-day fast express line by the latter road. The B. & A. managers will doubtless "go them one better" in the next train they bring out, but they will do well to imitate them in the exterior color. The new train is painted a rich deep olive green, a really handsome shade, which is more than can be said of the shade adopted for the Boston & Albany cars.

At the November session of the probate court, held in Springfield on Thursday, administration was granted on the estates of—Chloe S. Day of Hampden, Epaphro A. Day, administrator; Reuben H. Chaffee of Hampden, Sumner Smith administrator; Timothy Leary of Monson, Cornelius J. Leary administrator. Wills approved of—Lucy McLean of Ludlow, Francis F. McLean executor; Charles H. Robbins of Monson, Isaac H. Robbins executor. Newton S. Hubbard was appointed guardian of Rizpah Powers of Brimfield. Accounts were filed on the estates of Austin Newell and Charles Wallace et als of Monson.

Rev. Dr. G. M. Steele of Wilbraham was chosen chairman of the Republican representative convention at North Wilbraham last Saturday, and H. P. Holden of Palmer secretary. Three was some discussion of the question whether the nomination belonged by courtesy to Hampden or Ludlow, after which a vote was taken, which showed that a large majority of the delegates were in favor of giving it to Ludlow. An informal ballot for a candidate resulted in 9 votes for Warren D. Fuller of Ludlow, and 6 blanks. The vote was at once made formal and unanimous. It was voted that the district committee should be composed of the chairmen of the town committees. A delegate attempted to secure the passage of a vote that it was the sense of the convention that the nonination for representative in 1884 should go to Hampden, but the motion was tabled, and the convention then adjourned.

The first of a series of fellowship meetings in the new group of Congregational churches was held Wednesday with the church in Thorndike. There were representatives from Longmeadow, Hampden, Monson, Ludlow, Three Rivers and Palmer, and ministering brothers Matthews, Hunt and Perry from other denominations. The morning session was devoted to the discussion of two topics: "What is the duty of the churches in the temperance movement?" and "What place has the child in the church for education?" Both questions called out a spirited discussion which continued until 12.30 o'clock, when the meeting adjourned until 2 o'clock. During the intermission the friends sat down to a bountiful collation, prepared by the church, in the vestry. Resuming the services at 2 o'clock the following subject was discussed: "The individual responsibility of the church members." Rev. Mr. Root of Hampden opened the discussion, claiming that in spiritual things the church members should do just as they had done in preparing the collation. It was the work of individuals at home, alone in the pantry, each doing just what they could. Others followed and at the close of the meeting all went away feeling that they had indeed had fellowship one with another.

LUDLOW.

The fellowship meeting at Thorndike on Wednesday called out an attendance of 20 from this town.

HAMPDEN.

The will of the late John Orcutt was presented at the probate court in Springfield on Thursday, but objection being made, and only one of the witnesses being present, the case was continued to the 4th Tuesday of November, at Palmer.

BONDSVILLE.

Silas Collis and Byron Thayer killed seven 'coons on the 2d inst., four of them weighing over 80 pounds. Since the 1st of October they have killed over 20, and "still there's more to follow."

Several houses and fences in the village are looking better for their new coats of paint. Austin Gould, who has lately moved from the west, has added a wing, remodeled, and painted inside and out the Gould residence. For the present he intends to make his home there with his mother.

WARREN.

A literary club has been formed, consisting of about twelve members.

The next entertainment in the lecture course will be given Monday by Miss Annie Coit.

L. M. Gilbert and Isaac Tyler go to Florida next month to spend the winter, hoping to benefit Mr. Gilbert's health.

All the clergymen in the village preached on temperance last Sabbath, hoping to awaken an interest in the subject among the people.

The stock of Mr. Shepard has been selling at auction and private sale through the week, and the store is rented to one of the merchants in town.

WILBRAHAM.

Philo will hold an open society at Fisk Hall next Friday evening.

Rev. Rufus Underwood will commence his labors in the capacity of an evangelist with the Congregational church of the village, and Grace Chapel of the Depot village, to-morrow.

Past Master C. C. Spellman of Springfield installed the following officers of Newton Lodge F. and A. M. for the coming year, Wednesday evening: W. M., Henry Clark; S. W., William H. Brown; J. W., Dr. Stebbins Foskitt; Treasurer, F. E. Clark; Secretary, W. H. Day; C., Walter Hitchcock; Mar., George E. Jennings; S. D., Frederick Pease; J. D., Edward Scofield; S. S., Chas. Jennings; J. S., Monroe Pease; Tyler, A. F. Johnson. After the installation refreshments were served. The lodge is in a flourishing condition, several new members having been received the past year.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

S. E. Baker has started a class in practical bookkeeping at his house. If others desire to avail themselves of this opportunity they should call at once to enter the class.

Mr. Whiting has offered the Paper Makers the field south of Cutlers mill for a ball ground next season. With a little grading, this can be made a very desirable place.

Rev. Rufus Underwood will preach at Grace Chapel Sunday at two o'clock. He will labor for a few weeks in town, both in this village and at the Street. There will also be a meeting at half past six o'clock. Further announcements will be made at these meetings. It is hoped that all interested in these religious meetings will attend and invite their friends.

WALES.

The Baptist ladies' aid society held a necktie and bow supper Tuesday night, which was well attended and much enjoyed.

The election passed off very quietly, but a good fair vote was cast, with 50 straight Democratic and 94 Republican votes for Bishop, with some splits on other officers. A few thought Mr. Cushman too strong on the temperance question, and voted for Ferrill for representative.

The town for the sixth time refused to accept the lay of a new road across the lots of E. Shaw and J. M. Lyon, but expressed willingness to vote a road when the petitioners is willing to be reasonable in their requests, but are not willing to lay out $1000 when $300 will give them a good road in another place.

THREE RIVERS.

L. S. Rogers, formerly of this place, is now connected with the reportorial staff of the Bohemia, a new literary journal published at Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Editor:—The Thorndike base ball club remind the members of the Three Rivers club of a dishonest person who beats a man out of a debt, then skips and changes his name, the difference being that the latter changes his name after beating another, the former changes its name after being beaten, as was the case the past season, when the Thorndike club called themselves Sharps after having been defeated twice by the Three Rivers club. According to the Sharps' new rules Three Rivers can claim the championship, as they have played twenty-four games and lost but four, but if the Sharps really do want a share of the honor Three Rivers will join with the other neighboring clubs and style them the champion kickers.

THREE RIVERS B. B. C.

WEST WARREN.

The Ellis family give an entertainment in the Methodist church next Monday evening.

The Republicans were very active in the village Tuesday, and had out every Republican voter, excepting one out of town. The Democrats were not far behind them in that respect.

The village is pretty thoroughly worked up over the recent death of Frank Allen of West Brookfield, last week Wednesday night. Allen and a Thomas Roach, after getting well filled up with West Warren rum, started for home in a wagon, and, after driving around Warren some time Roach missed his companion, and getting help, he finally found Allen near the Methodist church, dead. It is hoped that the selectmen will take the matter in hand and have these rum holes closed, now that a death has been caused by them.

The lectures arranged by Rev. G. A. Viets to take place in the Methodist church are as follows: Nov. 14, Rev. N. Fellows, D. D., of Springfield, "Thought;" Nov. 21, Rev. A. Woods, of Springfield, "Wonders of the Sea," illustrated; Nov. 27, Prof. B. Gill, of Wilbraham, "Factors of Travel;" Dec. 5, Rev. J. A. Titus of Holyoke, "Swells and Sells;" Dec. 11, Rev. H. W. Eldredge, Turners Falls, "Cheerfulness versus Grumbling;" Dec. 18, Rev. Henry J. Fox, D. D., Wilbraham, "Decision the Key to Character." The price of tickets will be $1 for course and 25 cents for single admission.

MONSON.

"Penned in and can't get out," was quite a by-word in discussing the road question.

Messrs. Ferrell and Northrop have sold a building lot on Pearl street to A. H. Danforth.

Eleazer Moore has purchased the Ariel Rogers farm, on the main road from Monson to Palmer.

Samuel Nichols was the purchaser of the John Tyler farm, sold at auction last Tuesday, for $2400.

Selectman Potter says that now the road is laid there are several who will purchase building lots on the new road.

The school committee will have an examination of teachers in the grammar school room in district No. 1, on the 21st. inst.

Representative Cushman can but appreciate the true blue Republicans of Brimfield, for they came to his aid just in the nick of time.

The formal opening of the Central Hall skating rink will occur this (Saturday) afternoon and evening, with music if it can be procured.

The boys say if they had known that "Eugene" would run so well, they might have got easily the few votes which he lacked of an election.

A serious defect in the lay of the new road was discovered on Thursday, an omission, as no angle is mentioned, and a new lay or reconsideration is in order.

Bishop O'Reilly of Springfield will be present at morning service in St. Patrick's church on Sunday. At 3.30 p. m. the Bishop will administer confirmation to about one hundred persons.

Rev. M. H. Harris, pastor of the First Universalist church of Worcester, will preach at Central Hall to-morrow at 2 and 7 p. m. Subject in the evening, "The Universalists' Idea of What constitutes a Christian."

Green's Hall is having a new floor, and that former sacredly-dedicated room is to be used as a skating rink. With two skating rinks, the woolen mills and straw shops running in full blast, the quarry with heavy orders ahead, and Uncle John Ferry's "garden sass" fresh daily, who will say it is not prosperous, even if Gen. Butler has been elected by Col. Stone's "dangerous element."

At the town meeting Tuesday afternoon the town voted to accept the lay of the road by the selectmen as mentioned in last week's JOURNAL, and authorized the selectmen to let the same to the lowest responsible bidder. The town also voted to authorize the selectmen to purchase a furnace for the town farm building, and it is to be hoped they will purchase a good one and not accept any second hand article that may be offered for sale cheap.

The following is a copy of a letter which is self explanatory:

MONSON, Oct. 14, 1882.

To the Selectmen of the Town of Monson.—Gentlemen: Desiring to do something for my native town, I have erected a drinking fountain on Main street and place on a lantern thereon, which I trust the town will maintain. Please accept the same, with the best wishes for the welfare and future prosperity of the town. Your obedient servant,

WM. N. FLINT.

The town passed a very appropriate resolution thanking the donor for the generous gift, which is appreciated by the public.

It is possible that the town may have another "Feeney case" on its hands, as Mr. Daniel Moriarty is reported to have received injuries from a defect in the highway. One speaker at the town meeting thought it better to keep the roads we now have in better repair rather than to build new ones, and it does seem as if the constant complaint and the narrow escapes from accident which have lately occurred, should call for some action at once in the matter.

On election evening a large number of voters of all parties met at Central Hall to hear election returns, and as reports gave credence to the rumor that Butler was elected, cheer after cheer went up and each new dispatch in his favor was greeted with applause. Before 11 o'clock the Republicans had decided they had better go home for rest, in order to be able to bear up under the avalanche which they feared might be in store for them in the morning. The Butler men, many of whom have "fought and bled and died" for the General for 11 long years, were jubilant over the good news.

C. M. Stevens, who has been superintendent at the town farm for nearly ten years, sent in his resignation to the selectmen on Thursday, to take effect Dec. 1st. There has not been the best of feeling between the superintendent and the chairman of the selectmen the past year, the former claiming that he should manage the household and arrange his wards as he thought best for them and the town's interest, while the chairman thinks otherwise; hence the trouble. Mr. Stevens has invited the citizens to visit the farm and will be pleased to show the new addition with the more ample accommodation for the inmates, and the new furnace for heating the premises.

Another collision occurred on the New York & New England Railroad last Saturday morning, between a freight and a passenger train, at Pomfret, Ct. The engines and 12 cars were wrecked, both engineers fatally hurt, and one fireman killed. No passengers were injured.

Fred Hutchinson, of Easton, Me., in a crazy fit cut his own and his wife's throat just as the family were sitting down to breakfast last week Friday, failing in an attempt to eatch his oldest daughter for the same purpose.

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions:

First—For an extension of the time for the location and construction of its railroad.

Second—For authority to issue preferred stock, first and second mortgage bonds, and certificates of indebtedness, or any of them, in such amounts and for such purposes as may be necessary in order to obtain money for the payment of its liabilities, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad.

Third—For authority to consolidate with other railroad corporations, upon such terms and conditions as shall be agreed upon by the parties interested; or to form, by means of such consolidation, a new corporation, with such powers and privileges as may be necessary in order to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance of a railroad such as is contemplated by the charter of your petitioner and the several acts in addition thereto.

Fourth.—For such other or further legislation as may be necessary to enable your petitioner to obtain money for the payment of its indebtedness, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad in accordance with its charter and several acts in addition thereto.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 2, 1882.

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that

STEINWAY & SONS

Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the

STEINWAY PIANO

Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.

I have the largest variety of other makes of

PIANOS AND ORGANS

Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

Pay the Printer.

When the cold storms howl around the door,
And you, by the light of taper,
Sit closely by the evening fire,
Enjoying the last paper,
Just think of him whose work thus helps
To wear away the winter,
And put this query to yourself—
Have you paid the printer?

From east and west, and north and south,
From lands beyond the water,
He weekly brings you lots of news
From every nook and quarter;
No slave on earth toils more than he,
Through summer's heat and winter;
How can you for a moment, then,
Neglect to pay the printer?

November Magazines.

The Century for November, as the first number of a new volume, gives promise of sustaining the reputation already gained for literary excellence and superior wood engraving, fine samples of the latter being the portrait of Florence Nightingale as frontispiece and the full-page portrait of Henry James, Jr., both by Cole, as well as the many other pictures by well-known artists, this being specially an illustrated number. Henry James, Jr., has an interesting treatise on "Venice," and W. D. Howells a just and generous paper on Mr. James himself. There is an able article by Alphonse Daudet on "Victor Hugo;" Charles Dudley Warner has a forcible essay on the intellectual prominence of England and growing literary independence of the United States; a strong argument on the negative of the question, "Is the Jury System a Failure?" by Albert Stickney; "The Beginning of a Nation," by Edward Eggleston, the first paper in his series on Life in the American Colonies; Rev. Washington Gladden's new serial, "The Christian League of Connecticut;" F. H. North's "A New Profession for Women," describing the Bellevue training school for Nurses, are a few among the many good things to be found in the magazine in addition to a continuation of Mrs. Burnett's "Through One Administration;" the first chapters of Mary Hallock Foote's new novel, "The Led Horse Claim," and the usual complement of humor, poetry and the more serious editorial departments.

St. Nicholas for November opens the new volume in good style with a colored frontispiece called "Indian Summer," by R. B. Birch. One prominent feature is the opening chapters of a live American story by J. T. Trowbridge, called "The Tinker Brothers' Tide-Mill," and which promises to be the best story written by this popular author. Another serial by Frank Stockton is commenced, and there are two attractive Thanksgiving stories, an illustrated poem, the doings of "Tad" Lincoln at the White House, besides many other good things "too numerous to mention."

The Wheelman, a new aspirant for public favor, is a magazine of some 80 pages, devoted, as its name would indicate, to the interests of the bicycle, tricycle, and kindred topics. It is handsomely printed, beautifully illustrated, and ably edited, and it brings to the reader a whiff of out-door enjoyment which is invigorating even in the reading about it. The November number, just out, opens with a finely-illustrated poem, "Benedicite," picturing a bicyclist's all-day run into the country. The League meeting at Chicago is fully written up, and there are a number of wheel articles of interest, such as "A Vacation Trip" through Wisconsin and Illinois, "Thoughts on the Higyiene of the Wheel," "The Influence of the Bicycle upon our Highway Laws," "The Clerical Wheel," "An October Ramble," "The Bicycle as a Gymnasium,' etc., etc., with several articles upon the tricycle and tricycling. It is a bright and entertaining magazine which every wheelman will want, and everybody else can read with pleasure and profit. Published by The Wheelman Co., 608 Washington St., Boston. Terms $2 per annum; single copies 20 cents.

BITS OF NEWS.

Snow has appeared on the White Mountains.

Astronomer Proctor says the comet may return in a few months.

Mrs. Scoville has been adjudged insane at Chicago, and has fled to Canada.

The Institute fair at Boston will remain open until the middle of the month.

Brigadier General Pope has been promoted to Major General, vice McDowell, retired.

The New York elevated railroads have carried over 86,000,000 passengers the past year.

The people of Zoar think the numerous charcoal kilns are the cause of several deaths and much sickness in town.

A joint stock company has been organized at Columbia, Mo., for a 50,000-acre cattle ranch in Texas, the lands being located near railroads and about 100 miles west of Dallas. The company have $150,000 and will fence the entire tract.

Another hero is gone. August Sieg, the Pennsylvania Railroad engineer who was driven from his cab the other day by a sudden burst of flame, and then rushed back into the fiery mass to stop the train and save the 600 passengers from a terrible wreck, has since died.

The railroad commissioners find Engineer Watson guilty of criminal negligence in causing the North Adams disaster, and also criticise the State management of the road sharply for not strictly enforcing the rules. Another victim of the accident has died and four more are not expected to live.

The New York court of appeals has rendered a decision in a case against the elevated railroad, in which it holds that the Legislature has no power to authorize the maintenance of a structure in the street which is inconsistent with the uses of an open public street, except upon compensation to the property owners thus deprived of their privileges or easements.

Just now the niggers are all in the cotton patch, and consequently a great many Austin white ladies have to do their own cooking, and as some of them have little or no experience, amusing mistakes occur. A lady who has not been married very long was told by her mother-in-law to have some boiling water ready, so when her husband came home she could boil him a couple of fresh eggs for supper. The devoted wife went out into the kitchen, and after awhile she came back with a dipper full of hot water and said to her mother-in-law: 'I don't know much about housekeeping, so I want you to look at this water and see if is boiling hot or not.'—Texas Siftings.

Gus De Smith called at a very fashionable house on Austin avenue a few days ago, and acted so queerly that when the lady's husband came home she said: 'What is the matter with young De Smith? He acted so strangely. I think there must be a screw loose somewhere about him.' 'Reckon not. I saw him this morning, and he was tight all over.'

God permits no man to examine the Book of Life to see his name written there; but he permits the humblest to look in his own soul and see the Spirit of Christ there.

Clear head and voice, easy breathing, sweet breath, perfect smell, taste and hearing, no cough, no distress. These are conditions brought about in catarrh by the use of Sanford's Radical Cure. Complete treatment for $1. n

Terrible itching and scaly humors, ulcers, sores and scrofulous swellings cured by the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally, and Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally. Ask about them at your druggists. n

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful apperance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good result, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is smooth and natural as ever.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the great skin cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. With steel engravings and superb chromo-lithograph plates in 15 colors, from photographs made by the U. S. Government expressly for this great work.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its healing effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

SIFTED THEM OUT!

WINNOWING THE WHEAT FROM THE TARES. A PROBLEM EASILY SIMPLIFIED.

"My friend," said the druggist, "you have a lame back, you say, and want a plaster to put on it. Once I could have shown you a large assortment to choose from. Now I keep only a few, and sell most of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. Why? Because they are the best. I have Allcock's, the Capsicum and some others. They are harmless and slow. Business is business, and I gradually ceased to deal in them to any great extent."

"All right, do me up a Capcine without any more talk, for my back aches as though I had been working my passage in a baggage car."

"Here you are," said the druggist, "with the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster, proving it to be genuine."

"And here's your twenty-five cents," said the lame-backed man, walking slowly away. 4w32

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two three cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. 4w32

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?

Pool's Signal Service Barometer

—OR—

STORM GLASS & THERMOMETER COMBINED

WILL TELL YOU!

It will detect and indicate correctly any change in the weather 12 to 48 hours in advance. It will tell what kind of storm is approaching, and the direction—invaluable to navigators. Farmers can plan their work according to its predictions. Saves 50 times its cost in a single season. Has an accurate thermometer attached, which alone is worth the price of the combination. This great WEATHER INDICATOR is endorsed by the most eminent physicians, professors, and scientific men of the day to be the

BEST IN THE WORLD!

The Thermometer and Barometer are put in a nicely finished walnut frame, with silver-plated trimmings, etc., making a beautiful as well as useful ornament. We will send you a sample one, delivered free, to your place, in good order, on receipt of $1, or six for $4. Agents are making from $5 to $20 daily selling them. A trial will convince you. Order at once. It sells at SIGHT. Just the thing to sell to farmers, merchants, etc. Invaluable to everybody. U. DURING THE LATE WAR

THE GOVERNMENT MADE ITS BEST ARMS AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—WHAT MR. DAVID CLARK, INSPECTOR U. S. ARMORY THERE, RECOMMENDS.

Your reporter found Inspector Clark at his office on the Armory grounds busily examining "receivers" for the regulation army rifles. However, he was as willing to say a word for the merits of health and strength restoratives as to prove the merits of implements of death. He said: "My business keeps me closely confined to the Armory and in doors. As a result, I've suffered considerably from indigestion and biliousness, but I find that Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is a most excellent medicine for these complaints. I most cordlally recommend it, for I am acquainted with its worth. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is used a great deal by the machinists in the U. S. Armory here."

While FAVORITE REMEDY is a specific in Kidney and Bladder diseases, it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders and Constipation of the Bowels. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, FAVORITE REMEDY, he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to office practice. He treats all diseases and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery. 4w31

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Five Cents a Drink.

Five cents a drink! does any one think
That this is really the price of a drink?
"Five cents a glass!" I hear you say
Why, that isn't very much to pay.
Ah, no, indeed! 'tis a very small sum
You are passing over 'twixt finger and thumb;
And if that were all you gave away
It wouldn't be very much to pay!

The price of a drink? let him decide
Who has his courage and lost his pride,
And lies a groveling heap of clay,
Not far removed from a beast to-day.
The price of a drink? let that one tell
Who sleeps to-night in a murderer's cell.
Honor and virtue, love and truth,
All the glory and pride of youth,
Hopes of manhood, the wealth of fame,
High endeavor and noble aim;
These are the treasures thrown away
As the price of a drink from day to day.

The price of a drink! If you want to know
What some are willing to pay for it, go
Thro' that wretched tenement over there,
With dingy windows and broken stair,
Where poverty dwells with her hungry brood,
Wild-eyed creatures, for lack of food;
There shame in a corner crouches low;
There violence deals its cruel blow;
And innocent ones are thus accursed
To pay the price of another one's thirst.

"Five cents a glass!" Oh, if that were all,
The sacrifice would indeed be small!
But the money's worth is the least amount
We pay; and whoever will keep an account
Will learn the terrible waste and blight
That follows that ruinous appetite.
"Five cents a glass!" does any one think
That that is really the price of a drink?

OUT ON THE LAKE.

Wide-open, blue eyes, fringed with jetty lashes—a little, slender nose—a mouth fit for Titania—white brow, on which clustered rings of gold, in a fascination of disorder— a cheek exquisitely fair, with tint upon it of the sea shell—two little, soft, helpless hands—two little, slippered feet, and you have the picture before Roydon Howard's gaze, and the inventory successively dotted down by him in his mental diary.

'Awful pretty,' was the verdict rendered, 'absolutely good for nothing else. Ah, if life were all summer, such women would make perfect wives.'

An audible sigh followed the latter thought of this most grave philosopher; a sigh so deep, so profound that it startled the girl from her reverie.

'A penny for your thoughts, Major,' she said, in a low, musical tone.

The voice suited her, it was like all else about Fay Richings—in perfect attune.

'You bid too low,' said the man; 'and yet too high, since you ask upon a subject of whose reply you must be conscious. You forget that, spending the last hour in your society, my thoughts could not wander far.'

'But you sigh. Must I hold myself responsible for the sigh, too.'

'I fear so—in remembering that my furlough is rapidly slipping away, and that within a month I must join my regiment on the plains, leaving my charming companion of this morning. Do you still bid a penny to inquire into a thing so deep as a sigh?'

The color deepened a little on the beautiful cheek.

'His charming companion of the morning.' This was how he regarded her—this man, whose brave deeds had preceded him, until, before meeting, had assigned him something akin to hero worship.

A little, sharp stab of pain shot through her heart, but she smiled bravely.

'All that is scarcely worth a sigh from you,' she said. 'It is never those who go amid new scenes who feel most keenly the parting, but rather those who are left behind, amid old, familiar surroundings, and say, 'Yesterday he sat here,' or perchance find a glove that he has dropped, or a cigar half smoked—to them it is something felt, something tangible.'

'Do you think so? Does the sand sigh for the retreating wave when already one coming claims its welcome? I should be glad to feel that Miss Fay sometimes gave me a thought among the many new aspirants for the honor she has sometimes bestowed on me. A soldier's life has many charms, spite of his hardships, and there is some fascination, spite of its pain, in the long solitary musing he holds sitting at the door of his tent, when, instead of the plain stretching before him, he views the mental panorama of his past. I'm afraid mine will confine itself to one figure. Can you guess whose, Miss Fay?'

There was an instant's pause—an instant when something stirred within Roydon Howard's heart, prompting the impulse to cry out: 'Who but yours? Make imagination reality! Come with me! Share a soldier's life, and let our mutual love smooth the rough places.'

But scarcely was it born than he strangled it. He had no reason to think that this girl cared for him; but even so, at best, it was a passing fancy.

And in time of real danger where would she be? How would she fit him to ride forth to meet a foe? Either with hysterical weeping or a swoon. No, no! Here under the green trees, in a ball-room, at the luxurious dinner table, such women were charming enough to turn a man's brain; but in moments of peril, when death, no longer clothed in the poet's rythm, stalked before them bare and ungainly, it was little wonder that they fled shrieking from his grim presence.

Therefore the pause lasted an instant only, then Roydon answered his own question with a laugh.

'I declare, I am almost growing sentimental. If in anybody's presence but yours, Miss Fay, I should apologize for so unwonted a mood. But you are responsible for it, and it must be with you so old a story to inspire it that I will not waste the words. By the way, there is my horse. I had no idea it was so late. Au revoir! Remember, I have the first and last waltzes this evening.'

The girl stood motionless, watching him as he strode away—watching him vault upon his horse, his tall, superb figure showing to such splendid advantage, watching horse and rider as they cantered out of sight, the latter turning first to give her a farewell salute with his whip.

'So in a month will he ride out of my life,' she murmured to herself with white lips. 'Oh, Roydon, is it that you are too proud to ask me to share the perils and privations of a soldier's life, or that it would give you no pleasure to have me share it?'

* * * * * *

'Will you ride out on the lake with me this afternoon, Miss Fay?' asked Major Howard, a week later. 'It looks a little squally, but we will keep close into the shore, so as to run home if the clouds thicken.'

'Of course I will come,' assented Fay, 'and as to the clouds, don't watch them too closely. I rather like storms.'

'What a perfect picture she makes!' thought Roydon, as he promptly, at the appointed time, assisted her into the sail-boat he had named in her honor, the yachting dress of dark blue fitting closely to the exquisitely outlined figure, and on the golden braids nestled a coquettish sailor hat. Fifteen minutes later a splendid breeze had carried them far out into the lake.

'The storm has concluded to postpone itself in our special favor,' said Roydon, glancing up at the blue sky; 'or perhaps they don't think soldiers should be too severely tried as sailors. Which is it, Miss Fay?'

'Do you appeal to me as the spirit of the storm cloud? If so, I shall call on it to avenge me.'

He answered simply by a look, but it caused her eyes to droop.

She stretched the little white hand down to the water's edge, watching the current resist it as the boat sped onward.

'So,' he mused, 'I am resisting the voice of my heart; so must I resist to the end.'

They spoke but little. They were alone and together—around them water, above them the sky, beneath them a grave. And both were young and in each heart the same voice was speaking; yet their lips were sealed. Thus an hour passed, when suddenly Roydon tacked.

'What are you doing?' cried Fay, in a tone of disappointment. 'Surely we're not going home?'

'I wish to God we were already there,' answered her companion with a blanched cheek, just as a little breath of wind, fresher than any they had felt, blew upon them. 'Don't be frightened, Miss Fay,' continued Roydon, assuringly. 'It's one of those treacherous squalls. We're in for it, but I'll do the best I can.'

'Can't I help you?'

The man glanced up amazed. She neither cried nor groaned. There was no tremor in her tone. His cheek was whiter than was hers.

'Pshaw! she did not realize the danger,' he said mentally. 'Can you hold this?' handing her a rope as he spoke.

The next moment the squall struck them. The little yacht lay fully on its side, then righted itself.

Fay's lips were a little pale now, but no sound escaped them, only she had held so tightly to the rope, spite of its resistance, that it had already cut into the tender flesh.

The storm was now fully upon them. It was fierce as it was sudden. They were drenched with water. They could no longer see each other for the spray.

'Fay,' cried Roydon, 'you are frightened.'

'With you?' she answered, 'No,' and her tone was firmer than his own.

The next moment the boat, struck by a sharper blast than the first, went over, and both found themselves clinging to its sides.

'Fay, tell me,' he said, 'that you forgive me for this. Oh, child, must we die when life holds so much sweetness?'

'The storm won't last long. We may yet be saved,' she answered in her sweet, young voice; 'but, Roydon, if I slip, don't try to save me. It will only lose two lives, and mine is not worth as much as yours.'

'My God, without you what would mine be?'

The words escaped him ere he realized their meaning.

'Live it then, for my sake, dear,' Fay replied, 'and remember, always, had I my choice, I would have chosen to have died thus with you than to have lived on without you. My love, good-by.'

The next instant the waters had caught her torn and bleeding hands, all cut by the rope, from their slight hold, but Major Howard had spoken words with no idle meaning when he had asked her what his life would be worth without her.

Quick as the current in its angry greed for its beautiful prey, he threw about her his protecting arm. Then, as though heaven smiled, the winds ceased as suddenly as they had risen, and the sun burst forth from its hiding place, showing the rescue which was bearing down upon them.

'May I see you, if but for five minutes?' were the words scrawled on the card Fay held a few hours later in her bandaged hands, as she lay upon her couch, very pale and exhausted, but with a heart full of gratitude for her wonderful escape, awaiting him who had penned the words.

How well she knew the quick, impatient step which heralded his coming. Her cheek flushed as he strode impetuously into the room.

'I could not sleep before seeing you,' he said. 'My brave girl! how little I knew you! I thought because you were beautiful there could be no courage in your soul; that because your hands were small, and soft, and white, they could have no strength. Dear little hands!' taking them tenderly in his own. 'They helped to save our lives to-day. Fay, will you give them to me, darling? Will you be a soldier's wife, and teach him, my own sweet love, some of the bravery that only such women as you can teach to them?'

A great light shone in the beautiful eyes upraised to his.

'I owe you my life,' she whispered. 'If a debt so rich will receive payment so poor, take it, Roydon; it is yours.'

WHO MARIA WAS.

'Who is Maria?' was the question that startled Mr. Brown (who talks in his sleep) as he awoke the other morning and found Mrs. Brown sitting up in the bed, with an interrogation point in one eye and an exclamation point in the other.

'Maria—Maria who?'

'That's just what I want to know; you repeated the name over and over again last night.'

'Let me see—oh, yes, that's Parker's dog; she is a splendid dog; I have been trying to buy her.'

'You ought to know her, certainly, you are excessively fond of her; you asked Parker's dog to put her arms around your neck and kiss you; you went even so far as to tell Parker's dog that you loved her with all your heart; that when you come to die if you could only lay your head on Parker's dog's bosom you could breathe your life out sweetly; then you asked Parker's dog to have another plate of ice cream, and if the watch you had given her kept good time; during the night you kissed Parker's dog a dozen times, and called her all the pet names known, and proved to me conclusively that you ought to live with Parker's dog and not with me.'

Mrs. Brown has gone to her mother.

For an epigramatic description of the popular bicycle perhaps this is the best: 'The bicycle is a slender, graceful and altogether harmless arrangement, chiefly composed of two wheels turned by two cranks, one of which is seated on a little saddle and operates the machine with his feet.'

The Housewife.

Some of the duties that crowd the life
Of patient mother or scolding wife:

Cooking to do and dishes to wash;
Patches to set for Tommy and Josh;
The beds to make and the lamps to fill;
The water to draw, like Jack and Jill;
The stove to black and carpets to sweep;
Watch the baby just learning to creep;
Cutting and making jackets for boys;
Picking up carelessly thrown-by toys;
Feeding the cat and chickens and hens;
Dealing out paper, pencils and pens;
Dressing children for school and for church;
Making laws to enforce with a birch;
Tables to set and the yeast to brew;
Potatoes to boil, cranberries to stew;
Scouring the door-knob, winding the clocks;
Cleaning the silver, darning the socks;
Washing out napkins, doing up shirt;
Letting down tucks in the wee girl's skirts;
Grinding the coffee, beating up cake;
Heating the oven just right to bake;
Washing the windows, scouring the sink;
Scarcely a moment to read or think.
So little time for neighborly calls,
Shut up and hedged in by four square walls,
How can the mind be free to expand
When work is pressing on every hand?

NOT MY BUSINESS.

A wealthy man in St. Louis was asked to aid in a series of temperance meetings, but he scornfully refused. After being further pressed, he said:

'Gentlemen, it is not my business.'

A few days later, his wife and two daughters were coming home in the lightning express. In his grand carriage, with two liveried attendants, he rode to the depot, thinking of his splendid business, and planning for the morrow. Hark! Did some one say 'accident?' There are many railroads centering in St. Louis. If there has been an accident it is not likely it happened on the ——and Mississippi railroad. Yet it troubles him. 'It is his business' now. The horses are stopped on the instant, and upon inquiry he finds it has occurred twenty-five miles distant on the ——and Mississippi. He telegraphed to the superintendent:

'I'll give you five hundred dollars for an extra engine.'

The answer flashed back, 'No.'

'I will give you one thousand dollars for an engine.'

'A train with surgeons and nurses has already gone forward, and we have no other.'

With white face and anxious brow, the man paced the station to and fro. 'It is his business' now.

In half an hour, perhaps, which seemed to him half a century, the train arrived. He hurried toward it, and in the tender found the mangled and lifeless remains of his wife and one of his daughters. In the car following lay his other daughter, with her dainty ribs crushed in, and her precious life oozing slowly away.

A quart of whisky, which was drunk fifty miles away by a railroad employe, was the cause of the catastrophe.

Who dares say of this tremendous question, 'It is not my business?'

THE TURNED RULE.

Less than three months ago the wreck of a man staggered into the office of a weekly paper in Eastern Michigan and asked for money to buy whisky. Strangely enough the publisher was an old schoolmate. They were apprentices in the same town. They worked side by side as finished compositors. One had sobriety and thrift—the other had a good heart and an open hand. Twenty years made the one rich and influential—the other a drunkard who slept in the gutter as often as in a bed. The one had made use of what God had given him, but the other had deliberately made himself a wreck. The meeting called up a host of recollections, and the contrast between them was so great that the old drunkard was sobered as he realized it. He was offered work, but he had become too broken. The stick and the rule were no longer for him. He was offered a temporary home, but he looked at his rags and felt his shame for the first time in months. When money was handed him he waved it back and said: 'I shall not want it. I ask, in the name of olden days as a fellow craftsman, one little favor.' 'It shall be granted.' 'When you know that I am dead then turn a rule for me and give me a single line.'

The promise was made and the old wreck floated out again on the current of life, borne here and there, feeling that death was to be the end. Yesterday a copy of the weekly reached the Free Press with proof that the editor had fulfilled his promise. He had turned a rule for the poor wreck, and had given him a line: 'Died September 27, 1882, George White.' That was all, but in that line was such a sermon as no man on earth could deliver. For every word there was a year of woe and degradation. For every letter there were tears and heartaches and promises and failures.—Detroit Free Press.

A Detroit saloon keeper advertises that he has paid $300 for a year's license to sell liquors, but that he means to voluntarily restrict his business within certain moral bounds. 'To the wife who has a drunkard for a husband,' he says in an advertisement, 'or a friend who is dissipated, I say emphatically, give me notice of such cases, and all such shall be excluded from my place. Let fathers, mothers, and sisters do likewise, and their requests shall be regarded. I pay a heavy tax for the privilege of selling whisky and other liquors, and I want it distinctly understood that I have no desire to sell to minors or drunkards, or to the poor and destitute. I much prefer that they save their money and put it where it will do the most good to their families.'

'Little girl, do you know whose house this is?' asked a solemn looking old man of a bright child seated on the church steps. 'Yes, sir, it's God's, but he ain't in,' she added as the old gentleman was about to walk up the steps, 'and his agent's gone to Europe.'

'I detest slang phrases,' said an old lady to the pastor, 'especially when used by women. Why the other day I heard a girl say that she had flirted with a fellow and made a 'mash.' She thought I didn't know what she meant, but I 'tumbled' to it all the same.'

Subscribers of the Boomerang who find cross bones and skull, with crest of metallic burial casket drawn in blood, on the wrapper of their paper, will know that their subscription has expired and that something has got to be done.—Boomerang.

ENEMIES OF THE OYSTER.

It must not be supposed that the oysterman's trade is one that leads by a smooth and easy way directly from a comparatively inexpensive stock of dead shells to rich and certain profit. There are four ravenous epicures of the sea that feed upon the oyster, and often to such an extent as to blight all the oysterman's hope of a harvest. There are the starfish, the periwinkle, the drill, and the drum-fish. The starfish often move in vast bodies, like the army-worms on land, and have been known to destroy entirely a bed of marketable oysters as cleanly as the army-worms demolish every green leaf and blade of grass in their way. Some idea of their numbers may be formed from the fact that Mr. R. W. Law, a New Haven oysterman, one day in June last, dredged from his grounds, off Irving's Point, within five hours, no less than two hundred and forty pounds of them. Those who have studied the oyster and his enemies say that the starfish wraps his five fingers about an oyster, waits until the shell is opened, then suddenly injects into it a fluid which sickens or stupefies or kills the oyster so that he opens up completely and is at the mercy of his destroyer. The innocent-looking periwinkle files off the thin edge of the oyster's shell until his meat is exposed and can be dug out by the long combination of tongue, spoon, and file, which is the periwinkle's knife and fork. The drill, a smaller sort of periwinkle, known in England as the 'whelk tingle' or 'dog whelk,' has the power of boring into the oyster's shell, and through it to its meat, with a rasp-like tongue which cuts a hole about one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, as clean as if bored by a jeweler's diamond. The drill is a fastidious creature, and only cares to eat the 'heart,' as the great solid muscles of the oyster are commonly called. The drum-fish, a clumsy big fellow with jaws like a boulder-crusher, simply chews up the oyster and ejects the shells in fragments. Fortunately, he has not thus far done much damage to the Connecticut oyster-beds, although his evil ability therefor has been fully demonstrated at more southerly points along the coast, and he occasionally exasperates the oystermen at City Island by a visit. Add to all these enemies the serious losses sometimes occasioned by storms, and it will be realized that, 'taking one consideration with another, the oysterman's life is not a happy one.' One dealer lost last season fifteen to twenty thousand bushels of oysters by storms, which covered them with sand and killed them, so that instead of taking up thirty to forty thousand bushels in April, as he expected, he got only ten thousand bushels.

SILVER THIMBLES.

The manufacture of silver thimbles is very simple, but singularly interesting. Coin silver is mostly used, and is obtained by purchasing coin dollars. The first operation strikes a novice as almost wicked, for it is nothing less than putting a lot of bright silver fresh from the mint into dirty crucibles, and melting them up into solid ingots. These are rolled into the required thickness, and cut by a stamp into circular pieces of the required size. A solid metal bar of the size of the inside of the intended thimble, moved by powerful machinery up and down in a bottomless mould of the outside of the thimble, bends the circular disks into the thimble shape as fast as they can be placed under the descending bar. Once in shape, the work of brightening, polishing and decorating is done upon a lathe. First, the blank form is fitted with a rapidly revolving rod. A slight touch of a sharp chisel takes a thin shaving from the end; another does the same on the side, and the third rounds off the rim. A round steel rod dipped in oil and pressed upon the surface gives it a lustrous polish. Then a little revolving steel wheel, whose edge is a raised ornament, held against the revolving blank, prints that ornament the outside of the rim. A second wheel prints a different ornament around the center, while a third wheel with sharp points makes the indentations of the lower half of the thimble. The inside is brightened and polished in a similar manner, the thimble being held in a revolving mould. All that remains to be done is to boil the completed thimbles in soap suds, to remove the oil, brush them up and pack themthe for trade.

Be especially careful to talk truthfully in your dealings with children. Don't tell your child you will take his head off if he doesn't shut up, because you won't, and it teaches him to doubt your word. At least that is one reason why you should not say so. Then, too, that expression and others like it are not agreeable to ears polite, and on boats and cars you are in danger of being heard and severely criticised. Being well dressed or even elegantly dressed will not convince your fellow-travelers that you are a lady or a gentleman if such is your dealing with your children.

Nothing is ever lost by being pleasant and agreeable. You ask for two pounds of steak—no more, no less. One butcher growls that he can't cut off just two pounds, and you leave him thoroughly vexed. At the next stall the man of meat hears your request with unruffled visage, cuts off a pound and a half, slaps it into the scales and out again in double-quick time, rolls it up neatly, and says, with a sweet smile, 'Just two pounds, mum.' He is the man who succeeds.—Boston Transcript.

A French lady, on her arrival in this country, was careful to eat only such dishes as she was acquainted with; and being pressed to partake of a dish new to her, she replied, 'No, I thank you; I eat only my acquaintances.

All pleasure must be bought at the price of pain. The difference between false pleasure and true is just this; for the true, the price is paid before you enjoy it; for the false, after you enjoy it.—John Foster.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1882.

MR. BLAINE considers himself out of politics, and is reported to have said that he was not a candidate for the Presidency or for any other political office.

GEN. BUTLER is not a candidate for the Presidency, "for he himself has said it;" but he does not say he would not be if he saw a chance for the nomination.

THE next House at Washington will stand, according to the latest returns: Democrats, 190; Republicans, 123; Readjusters and Independents, 12. About 185 new members have been elected.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR is credited with the purpose of appointing only the stanchest stalwarts to the fat offices hereafter. This would of course be very pleasing to them, but we do not believe the President has gone completely daft yet.

NEBRASKA defeated the proposed woman suffrage amendment to the constitution by some 20,000 votes. It is said that a good many voters were disgusted with the persistent electioneering of the women, who spent some $5000 in the campaign, provided free lunches, and so on.

HON. OLIVER AMES, our lieutenant governor-elect, had a sort of political love feast at North Easton Tuesday evening. Republicans and Democrats, successful and unsuccessful candidates alike, were invited, the guests numbering some 300, and speeches were made by Governor Long, Gen Butler and several others.

THE U. S. supreme court has decided that Gen. N. M. Curtis must pay the fine of $1000 for making political assessments upon government employes, while holding a federal office himself. This decision establishes the constitutionality of the law forbidding such practices. Now let it be made equally applicable to congressmen.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, JR., advocates the election of Gen. Francis A. Walker, late chief of the census bureau, as United States Senator from this State. Since Senator Hoar's vote for and defence of the river and harbor bill the tide has been setting against his return to the Senate. But while he has made a few mistakes,it is not certain that any other man would have made fewer. In integrity, ability and influence, he stands second to none, and the State may well hesitate before dispensing with his services too readily.

ON the whole, about how much did the Republican congressional committee accomplish in the recent campaign? With its idiotic "Campaign Text Book," its red-hot campaign weekly, devoted to the harrowing recital of Southern outrages, its outrageous assessment of government employes, and its supposed outlay of money where it would "do the most good"—with all these the committee succeeded in helping to overwhelmingly defeat its own party. When another committee of this kind is appointed, it will be directed, we imagine, by men who are not wholly blind to the signs of the times.

Dolly Dutton, a well-known liliputian,who has been exhibited throughout the country, is said to be a hopeless lunatic, and has been sent to the Worcester asylum. Dolly was born in Natick in 1855, and is now three feet high. When 18 years old she weighed only 12 pounds. She was married in 1875, but soon separated from her husband, and her insanity is said to have been caused by domestic troubles.

The Institute fair at Boston closes this week after a very successful season. The managers of the Institute have notified the Governors of thirteen Southern States that next year there will be space reserved for the exhibition of the natural products of their States, with a view of enabling those States to show what inducements they have to offer to immigrants.

A bill has been introduced in the Vermont Legislature which proposes to raise all the revenues for the support of the State government by a tax on railroad, express, telegraph, telephone, insurance, car and steamboat companies, savings banks and trust companies.

Artist Bierstadt's house at Irvington-on-the-Hudson was burned last week Friday, with a number of valuable paintings. The house cost $100,000. It was built on a commanding eminence, and the whole north side was given up to an immense studio.

The largest telescope in the world is being finished by Alvan Clark & Sons of Cambridge for the observatory at Palkovo, Russia. It is 45 feet long, has a 30-inch object glass, and will seemingly bring the moon within 114 miles of the earth.

It is rumored that Vanderbilt and others are forming a combination to break up the shipping of dressed meat from Chicago to the East, it being more to the advantage of the railroads to transport live stock, the weight being twice as much.

Judge Nelson of the United States court in New York has decided that Long Island Sound is a part of the Atlantic Ocean, and its navigation is not governed by New York and Connecticut, as heretofore supposed.

Pawtucket, R. I., with a population of 20,000, is the largest town under town government in the United States, and its citizens by a majority of ninety-six have refused to accept a city charter.

Tricycles are used successfully in collecting letters from street boxes at Washington.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Milligan has a full stock of rubber boots,Arctics, rubbers, overshoes, clogs, sandals, &c., for the wet weather.

Weld & Longley have on hand the finest lot of potatoes shown in Palmer this season, and selling at prices to suit purchasers.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Got your leaves raked up?

The nights are growing mooney once more.

The ground was frozen quite stiff Thursday morning.

Last Sunday gave us a touch of genuine summer weather.

S. A. Wing has sold out his milk business to Frank Wright.

Dennis Mahoney has sold the Prindible house on Water street to Mrs. W. M. Burns.

The Baptist Sunday school has changed its hour of meeting, for the winter, from 12 m. to 12.15 p. m.

The pulpit of the Congregational church will be occupied to-morrow by Rev. A. W. Colver of Woodbury, Ct.

The first snow-storm of the season made its appearance yesterday morning, covering the ground with its white mantle.

Rev. R. R. Riddell of Wakefield, a former pastor of the Baptist church in this place,has accepted a call to St. Paul, Minn.

J. M. Converse has sold the Sexton place, over the river, to Hiram Waid of Ludlow, for $6000. Mr. Waid will move out here in the spring.

C. E. Tanner's stallion "Hersey" has won 13 of the 16 races in which he has started this season. He will be wintered in the stable of Gary Bros. at Stafford Springs.

Charles S. Lawrence of Auburn,who threw the modoc train from the track near Charlton a few weeks ago, has been sentenced to 15 years in state prison for his crime.

In spite of the copious fall rains, many springs and wells are still so low that the prospect is not favorable for a good water supply during the winter, unless there are more rains.

Monday evening's rain came at an unfortunate time for the Ellis Family, whose entertainment at the Congregational church was enjoyed by an audience of about 150, in spite of the rain.

The town of Belchertown takes time by the forelock, and has appointed A. R. Owen its agent to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent the annexation of a portion of its territory to Palmer.

Some thirty members of L. L. Merrick Post No. 107, G. A. R., went to the camp fire in the city hall at Springfield, Wednesday evening, returning home by special car at an early hour the next morning.

E. M. Turner, late landlord of the Tockwotton House, has bought out Allen's cigar and tobacco store on Main street, Springfield, and took possession this week, but will leave his family here for the present.

Some of our exchanges are publishing an article headed "Hints to Swimmers." The swimmer who ventures into the water at this season of the year is likely to soon be beyond the reach of anything as mild as a hint.

C. W. Eddy of Ware gave one of his instructive and entertaining "evenings with the microscope" before a party of a dozen or more of our citizens, Tuesday evening, at the residence of Conductor Sedgwick.

H. M. Stacy has sold his house at Tenneyville to C. M. Stevens, superintendent of the Monson town farm; price $1000. Mr. Stacy will dispose of his furniture and other personal property at auction next week Wednesday.

Rev. P. Hunter preached two sermons of unusual power at the Congregational church last Sabbath, and those who heard him then are anxious to hear him again. He will probably supply the pulpit again within a few weeks.

The 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Northrop was made the occasion of a very pleasant surprise party, last week Thursday evening, when some 75 of their friends went up on the hill, had a jolly time at their house,and presented them with a nice easy chair.

Agent Bostock, of the Boston & Albany Railroad, is enjoying a week's vacation. Geo. A. Rice, clerk at the freight office, is selling tickets in the meantime, while Mr. King from Springfield is looking after the work at the freight house.

W. C. Dewey will shortly remove his insurance business to C. L. Gardner's office, where it will be looked after by W. W. Leach. Mr. Gardner is building a small addition on the rear of his office building, for use as his private office.

Adelbert E. Howard, a young man who has worked in Edgerton & Davis's machine shop for the past three years, has taken to himself a bride and wings, with which he has flown away on a short trip to Vermont, after which he will locate in Schenectady, N. Y.

The Boston & Albany Railroad is putting in "point" switches on the division between Springfield and Worcester, having used them for some time east of Worcester. They furnish a continuous rail on the main track and have several advantages over the common switch.

In alighting from a carriage last week Thursday evening, Rev. E. A. Perry was thrown to the ground by the starting of the horse, and had his right shoulder dislocated by the fall. Rev. O. R. Hunt preached for Mr. Perry last Sunday morning, but he will occupy his own pulpit to-morrow.

Work is so brisk at the wire mills that the company find themselves short of room so soon, and they are contemplating the erection of another brick building, to give them the additional room demanded by their business. The new building, if erected, will be two stories with a basement, with ground dimensions of 127 by 80 feet.

The new switch board for the telephone office arrived this week, and is expected to be in working order within a day or two. It is smaller and more compact than the old board, although it will accommodate ten more wires, and is quite an ornamental piece of furniture, with several improved features which will facilitate the manipulation of the wires.

Three complaints against Robert Wardwell for liquor selling were heard this week in the district court. Impaired memory and lack of knowledge prevented either of the five witnesses summoned by the Commonwealth from testifying in support of the complaints, and the defendant was discharged. The case of mayhem is continued to next Monday.

W. C. Crandall of Hartford has been in the place this week getting up a neat little pamphlet of 48 pages, entitled the "Holiday Guide," and intended to direct people to the best places for the purchase of their holiday gifts, besides giving the railroad time tables, list of societies, telephone subscribers, etc. It will be issued in a few days from the JOURNAL job office.

The Newton Graphic thinks the Boston & Albany Railroad ought to carry its passengers for two cents a mile on single tickets, and wants the people along its line from Boston to Albany to unite in an effort to secure a reduction in fares. The road can unquestionably well afford to carry passengers at a lower rate than it is now doing. With cheaper fares would come increased business, which would more than make good the reduction, and the road might well make a voluntary concession in this direction, before the people appeal to the Legislature to make it do so.

A few years ago a union service was held at one of our churches the Sunday evening before Thanksgiving, at which a generous collection was taken up, and the proceeds expended by a committee in the purchase and distribution of turkeys and other good things among those in our midst whose lives are rarely brightened by a ray of sunshine, and whose tables are furnished with only the scantiest of life's necessities. The experiment worked well. Why not repeat it this year, so that something of joy and gladness may be carried to every heart?

The Tam O'Shanter hats which are being worn by so many lads and lassies were introduced in Boston two or three years ago, and they have become so popular that thousands of girls are now engaged in knitting them. They are patterned after the style of headgear worn generally by old and young in Scotland, though made of different material. They do nicely for children, but are not likely to be worn to any great extent on older heads, on this side of the water, unless by a few who affect oddness of apparel,and those who like to ape foreign manners and customs.

The express freight train from New London ran into the rear of the local freight as it was standing at the depot in Monson Wednesday afternoon. The caboose on the local train was demolished, one flat car doubled up,and the draw bars on several cars demoralized, while the engine "Palmer" lost its pilot, smoke stack and headlight. The passengers on Conductor Sanders' up train were carried by, but the track was cleared so that the steamboat train south was delayed but a short time. The local freight was behind time, and had left a man at State Line to inform the conductor of the express freight of this fact, and that it had some work to do at the Monson station. An investigation will be held, to see who was responsible for the collision.

The many friends and patrons of Dr. J. K. Warren will learn with feelings of regret that he is soon to remove from Palmer,to become a resident of Worcester, where he takes the residence and practice of Dr. Carmichael,who goes to Boston. Dr. Warren takes this step in pursuance of a long-cherished purpose to establish himself in a larger place, with its opportunities for a more extended practice, with less of the wearisome travel incident to a country physician's work. He will also have there an inviting field for the practice of surgery, a branch of the profession to which the Doctor has given special study,and in which he already has attained quite a wide practice in the middle and western part of the State. The Doctor came to Palmer in 1870, fresh from his studies, and in the dozen years he has lived here has made steady and rapid progess in his profession, and acquired a practice of which any physician might well feel proud. When he came here there was no other homeopathic physician nearer than Springfield. Now there are physicians of that school at Monson and at Ware, both doing well, while Dr. Warren's practice has steadily increased from year to year. In his removal the town will lose a most worthy citizen and an excellent physician. Dr. G. H. Wilkins, who looked after Dr. Warren's patients while he was laid up with a broken limb, last summer, and who is thoroughly indorsed by him in every way, will return to Palmer and settle here, taking Dr. Warren's house. The Doctor expects to go to Worcester the middle of next month.

BONDSVILLE.

An old fashioned "four days' meeting" has been held at the Methodist church this week. There was preaching Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon and evenings. Sermons were delivered by the presiding elder and clergymen from neighboring towns. Among those present was Rev. Mr. Manson from Topsfield, former pastor here.

WARREN.

Mr. Shepard has broken ground for his new house on Main street.

The Guy Family are booked for the town hall next Tuesday evening.

The Methodist ladies are busy preparing for a three days' sale the first of next month.

Thankful Lewis has offered her house for sale, situated on the corner of Main and Bacon streets.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

The Ellis family held forth at Wight's hall Thursday night.

Some 38 new books have just been added to the mills public library.

The evangelical Sunday school will hold a harvest concert which promises to be very pleasant, Sunday evening.

T. J. Evans, brick mason, was found dead in his room at the Indian Orchard House Tuesday night; cause unknown.

WEST WARREN.

Robert Salie is making repairs in his livery stable surroundings.

Section Master Charles Hamblett recently received the $50 prize offered by the railroad authorities for the best kept section.

The young people of the Congregational church are rehearsing for a dramatic entertainment to be presented the middle of next month.

The first lecture in the "People's lecture course" came off in the M. E. church, Tuesday evening, and was well attended. There have been enough course tickets sold to secure a financial success for the church.

THORNDIKE.

The Ware river is again getting very low, and the outlook for a winter's supply is rather dubious.

There will be a chicken pie supper at Murdock Hall, on Tuesday evening next, under the auspices of the ladies of the M. E.church.

The ladies' society of the M. E. church met with Mrs. M. A. Bond Wednesday afternoon and evening. A large company were present, and it was a pleasant social time.

The preaching service at the Congregational church is at 1 p. m. instead of 1.30 as the JOURNAL stated a few weeks since. To-morrow the pastor preaches on the subject of "Reviving."

BRIMFIELD.

About forty couples were expecting to meet at the Brimfield Hotel last (Friday) evening to extend a welcome and greeting to Charles S. Tarbell and wife in their new position, and partake of one of those suppers which our veteran landlord, Amos Monroe, so well knows how to provide.

In the death of Mrs. Eliza A. Stebbins, widow of Francis B. Stebbins, Esq., our older people are forcibly reminded of the great changes in town since her husband, in 1824, opened a law office here. At that time Brimfield was the fourth town in the county in population and valuation. The town then had two other lawyers, Major Abner Morgan and John B. Cooley. The death of Stephen Pynchon, the year previous, may have been one of the reasons leading Mr. Stebbins to locate here. After remaining here ten years he removed to Ware, and was a partner of William Hyde.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

The second regular session of the bookkeeping class will be held at the school house next Monday evening, at 7 o'clock.

The services under Rev. Rufus Underwood have been continued throughout the week with a good degree of interest. He labors at the street next week. There will be preaching on Sunday at 2 and 5.30 o'clock at Grace Chapel.

The friends of General Butler gathered last Saturday night for a parade and jubilation. About 50 men and boys with torches, transparencies and placards, headed by "Captain" Ferris, mounted, and fife and drum, marched through the principal streets several times and were finally entertained at the restaurant under Liberty Hall,after which they dispersed to their domiciles, to await the good times coming.

WALES.

A great many people are shingling their houses and otherwise getting ready for winter.

A. F. Fisher has built a good-sized addition to his house, to be used for wood and storage purposes.

Several of our best Republicans say they are "glad of it," in expressing their opinion of the recent election.

The ladies of the M. E. society held a social in their vestry Wednesday evening,which was as usual a very enjoyable affair.

The auction sale of the property belonging to the estate of Solomon Shaw was postponed by an injunction which was served by one of the heirs, for a division of the estate.

The town is to be no longer without a good fence around the cemetery near the old Baptist church, as a vote was passed last April to build one, and it has just been completed, and is a very substantial and ornamental structure.

Probably the most singular well ever known in this vicinity is under consideration at this time. Friend C. Smith and Charles Davis hired men to dig a well a few hundred feet west of their houses last summer in the dry season, with a result of five feet of water in a well six feet in diameter. But some way the bottom of that well seemed to drop out, as it furnished water for a short time and then suddenly became dry, and workmen have been at work for the past two or three weeks digging and blasting, and have gone between 30 and 40 feet and just found water. It will run in pipes to the houses and be a source of great convenience when fully assured of a good water supply.

MONSON.

Silas Harris has sold his farm to E. P. Burleigh of Sturbridge.

Ebenezer Thresher is building a new barn in the rear of his dwelling house lot.

The new engine and boiler is in at the J. L. Reynolds mill, and work is again resumed.

The Sabbath school library of the M. E. church, has recently received a large addition of new books.

The measles are visiting the schools and families in district No. 1,and are not welcome visitors, either.

Frank H. Johnson has sold his two dwelling houses on Bridge street to J. Martin Gompper for $3000.

George S. Harvey has the cellar dug and foundation in for the erection of a dwelling house on Green street.

D. G. Green has a steam saw mill on his Stafford wood lot, and is turning out ties,lumber and timber in large quantities.

W. A. Deichmann has a class studying the German language, and the majority of them show remarkable proficiency.

It is rumored that a lawsuit may grow out of the summary manner in which the assistant teacher of the academy resigned!

Wyles King's new house on Wales street is nearly finished, and is a neat and commodious structure, standing in a commanding location.

John Tyler, who sold out at the North Village last week, has a permanent position as assistant engineer at the State prison at Concord.

C. H. Merrick and Mrs. Rufus Fay have new verandas to their dwellings, making a a much needed improvement as well as convenience.

There was a large attendance at St. Patrick's church last Sabbath afternoon, to witness the confirmation of nearly one hundred communicants.

Rev. Henry Ward, Dr. Homer Smith and William Sutcliffe are mentioned as suitable persons to fill the vacancy on the school committee board.

Mrs. Francis Howe, wife of Rev. Mr. Howe of Newtonville, who died last Saturday, was a native of Monson, and daughter of Erasmus Gates.

D. G. Potter has served the town as selectman twenty years, has been county commissioner six years, and is probably the best tax collector the town has ever had.

C. F. Clough having sold his farm to Silas Harris will sell his stock of hay, farming tools and furniture at auction on Tuesday next at the Stimpson farm in "Tray Hollow."

J. L. Reynolds is building a road easterly and a continuation of Hampden avenue, which intersects the road southerly as laid out and built by Mr. R. some years ago.

The selectmen and school committee meet this (Saturday) afternoon to choose a new committeeman to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of C. R. Dudley to Colorado.

It might not be impracticable for the town to take some action at its special meeting in regard to the new school house, for which land was purchased more than a year ago.

Some of the Republicans say that if Chairman Stott had sent another circular, Monson would have gone for Butler; it would have brought the seven voters to vote for the General.

A. J. Robbins has been visiting in the western part of Pennsylvania, and reports seeing a log 60 feet long,and 5½ feet in diameter at the butt, which would square 24 inches the whole length.

The vacant lot on the Hiram Newton estate would be a good site for a Universalist church, and perhaps a town house could be in some way connected, so as not to mix up church and State affairs.

Petty thieving has begun in some localities. Rev. Mr. Tufts lost four nice hens one night last week,and the thieves cut the heads off as soon as they reached the road. They were traced north by the feathers and blood.

The increased trade of E. F. Willis, the clothier, has necessitated his having more room, and the rear room adjacent has been connected by large doorways, so that he has now one of the most spacious stores in eastern Hampden.

G. H. Newton sells a quantity of merchandise at his auction rooms this (Saturday) evening, and calls special attention to a very choice set of carpenters' tools, belonging to J. Harris's estate, which will be also sold at the same time.

Daniel Foskit has made a great improvement on his tenement house; new clapboarded, painted and thoroughly repaired it inside and out, and one would hardly recognize in the modern structure the former Uncle Tom Stebbins hotel.

Edward C. Robinson, auditor of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and formerlycashier of the Monson National Bank, died in New York city last week, and his remains were brought to Springfield for interment on Monday.

Henry Glynn is expressing the juice from apples, and judging from the numerous families supplied there will be no lack of vinegar the ensuing year, unless it evaporates, as in some instances and under peculiar circumstances it is liable to.

Charles Fuller and Frank E. Carpenter, formerly of Monson, but now residing in Springfield, are both common councilmen, and the former has been elected representative from the 7th district, including ward 5 and 8 (Indian Orchard).

Other towns that have been prospered and built up compactly, have taken precautions in case of fire. Are we to have a severe conflagration before we wake up to the necessity of having some means to prevent the spread of this dread element?

There will probably be a special town meeting to reconsider the action of the town in the recent lay of the road running through E. F. Morris's and Mrs. Dr. Smith's land, and some favor the plan of running southerly through where the old Congregational vestry now stands.

James Fisk lightens the wallets of a large number of our citizens with his lightning conductors, and is worthy to be crowned the "prince of salesmen," as he has disposed of 10,000 feet of rod in this town, and sold 60,000 feet during the past six months. Ten thousand feet a season is considered good work for ordinary salesmen.

Central Hall was packed last Sabbath evening to hear Rev. Mr. Harris of Worcester. His subject, "The Universalists' Idea of What Constitutes a Christian," was ably handled and attentively listened to by an appreciative audience. It is not among the impossibilities that an organized church may be established, and perhaps at no distant day a suitable building erected for public worship.

Hamilton White and sons are just now anticipating the wants of the public in the stove and furnace line. The new furnaces they have furnished for the town farm and for several individuals and firms seem to give perfect satisfaction, and it is being practically demonstrated by them that a furnace is the cheapest as well as the most convenient way of warming, where two or three fires are required in a house.

WARE AND VICINITY.

Three weddings this week.

Mrs. S. A. Howard has moved to Ware Center.

It is reported that the celebrated Brunell has left town.

Roscoe L. Jennings is clerking for a firm in Northampton.

Work is driving at the gun shop, so much so that they are running extra hours.

Mrs. Blake is building a house on the Robert Tucker place on the Palmer road.

No criminal cases at the district court last week, the first time since it was established.

The Good Templars have changed their night of meeting from Monday to Tuesday.

There was a large elm tree removed from in front of Esquire Richards' residence on Thursday.

Painters have been at work on the Hampshire House, thereby greatly improving its appearance.

The Ware branch of the Land League have voted not to disband,although the parent organization has changed.

The Grand Army boys attended the camp fire at the city hall, Springfield, on Wednesday evening, with nearly full ranks.

W. C. Crandall of Hartford proposes to get out a "Holiday Guide" for Ware, and will call upon our merchants next week.

The season has closed at Lawton's brick yard, he having made 1,800,000, the largest number ever made here in one season.

Rev. Chas. A. Merrill, of Winchendon, preaches at the Methodist church next Sunday forenoon, in exchange with the pastor.

It is a shame that upon Mr. Bishop should have fallen the blow against the corruption of leaders in his party. He stood for all that was pure, upright, straightforward, honest and able in politics, and it is generally admitted that no other man in Massachusetts except Gov. Long could have prevented the election of Gen. Butler. Mr. Bishop was the victim of untoward circumstances. No man to-day has a cleaner record and a juster claim to popular respect. He has descended to no mean acts and has not played the part of a demagouge or trickster. He has earned the respect and confidence of thousands and has done nothing to forfeit the devotion of his thousands of friends.—Newton Journal.

Gen. Butler, now that he is Governor-elect, is courting the favor of the press. Before the Boston press club Saturday he gave this sentiment: "The American press, the sentinel and watch-tower of freedom, the palladium of our liberties and the instructor of our people." This is better than calling the press "a 40-jackass power.—Hartford Post.

The Paper World for November has for its leading article a description of Holyoke and its remarkable growth, with an illustration of the city in its infancy, and also a fine large one of the city as it now stands. This is appropriately supplemented by a portrait and sketch of Hon. William Whiting, congressman-elect from that district, and one of Holyoke's most prominent and enterprising citizens, and the largest fine paper manufacturer in the country. There is a portrait of the late Charles O'Chapin, and a variety of instructive miscellany, such as this valuable paper usually lays before its readers.

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:
The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions:
First—For an extension of the time for the location and construction of its railroad.
Second—For authority to issue preferred stock, first and second mortgage bonds, and certificates of indebtedness, or any of them, in such amounts and for such purposes as may be necessary in order to obtain money for the payment of its liabilities, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad.
Third—For authority to consolidate with other railroad corporations, upon such terms and conditions as shall be agreed upon by the parties interested; or to form, by means of such consolidation, a new corporation, with such powers and privileges as may be necessary in order to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance of a railroad such as is contemplated by the charter of your petitioner and the several acts in addition thereto.
Fourth.—For such other or further legislation as may be necessary to enable your petitioner to obtain money for the payment of its indebtedness, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad in accordance with its charter and several acts in addition thereto.
And your petitioner will ever pray.

STEINWAY & SONS
Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the
STEINWAY PIANO
Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.
I have the largest variety of other makes of
PIANOS AND ORGANS
Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

DR. J. W. DEWEY,
(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)
Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,
Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at
THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,
WEST BROOKFIELD,
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the
HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,
THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.
CONSULTATION FREE.
DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.
The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.
To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

The Little Banana Peel.

Like a bar of the beaten gold
I gleam in the summer's sun;
I am little, I know, but I think I can throw
A man that will weigh a ton.
I send out no challenges bold,
I blow no vaunting horn,
But foolish is he who treadeth on me;
He'll wish he had ne'er been born.

Like the flower of the field vain man
Goeth forth at the break of day,
But when he shall feel my grip on his heel
Like the stubble he fadeth away;
For I lift him high up in the air,
With his heels where his head ought to be;
With a down-coming crash he maketh his mash,
And I know he's clear gone upon me.

I am scorned by the man who buys me;
I am modest and quiet and meek;
Though my talents are few, yet the work that I do
Has oft made the cellar doors creak.
I'm a blood-red republican born,
And a Nihilist fearless I be;
Though the head wear a crown, I would bring its pride down,
If it sets its proud heel upon me.

A POPULAR JOURNAL.

We are in receipt of the Mechanical News for November 1st, published by James Leffel & Co., No. 110 Liberty street, New York, and take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the same.

With the present number the publishers send out a supplement in the shape of an illustrated premium list, that reflects credit in the selection of the articles offered and the typographical appearance of the list. Upon application to the publishers, this premium list will be sent free to any address, and from its pages useful articles can be secured, with or without the paper, at a reasonable price, and with the certainty of fair treatment, as the subscriber or purchaser will be dealing with an old and reliable business firm. The list will be found very useful to those who live remote from the large cities, for the selection of holiday presents.

The News is among the best papers that come to our editorial table, filled as it is with original and choice illustrations of the important and novel inventions of the times. Its editorial pages are replete with well considered articles on practical subjects, readily understood by any reader; while its comprehensive news melange makes it attractive to those interested in the industrial prosperity of our country—the whole forming a rich store of useful reading. The News is furnished at one dollar per year, including a useful premium.

STORING APPLES.

I advertised for 500 barrels of apples, and purchased nearly that many, and noted carefully the result of the various storing Those stored in the damp, dark cellars were brighter, firmer and less decayed. In one cellar in Woodstock there were some eighty barrels; in this cellar was a spring; the water was some three inches deep; the barrels of apples were not headed up, they were just above the water on stones and timbers, and they were Russetts, Greenings, English Beauties and Baldwins. In some of the barrels there was not one specked or decayed apple; they were the best of all I bought; the others that I bought varied in firmness and bright appearance; a dark, damp cellar in every case proving the best.—Ploughman.

We can indorse the above from our own observation, strange as it may seem. We have seen apples kept for months beyond the usual time when stored in a cool, damp cellar. We believe in keeping fruit in a very cool place just above freezing, if we wish to preserve it for a long time.—Congregationalist.

THE INFLUENCE OF HOME.—I pity you if in your home there is not some loving nature which is your fire. Such a fire burns clear, and wherever you are carried you carry this fire, and set it in some new place; nay, the fire itself may have disappeared, the nature may have vanished from the earth, and still your candle, which was lighted at it, keeps that fire still in the world, as the fire of the lightning burns in the tree that is struck long after the lightning itself has vanished. It is there, and is a light. So the man of the counting-room is a candle to the woman that sits at home, making her influence felt in the rough places of trade. So a man who lives like an inspiration in the city may be only the candle in whose obedient light burns still the fire of another strong, true man, who was the father, and who passed out of men's sight a score of years ago. Men call the father dead; but he is no more dead than the torch that has gone out that lighted the beacon that is burning still on the hill.—Phillips Brooks.

SUNSHINE.—Many a child goes astray, not because there is want of prayer and virtue at home, but simply because home lacks sunshine. A child needs smiles as well as the flowers need sunbeams. Children look little beyond the present moment. If a thing pleases they are apt to seek it; if it displeases they are prone to avoid it. If home is the place where faces are sour and words harsh and fault finding is ever in the ascendant, they will spend as many hours as possible elsewhere. Let every father and mother, then, try to be happy. Let them look happy. Let them talk to their children, especially the little ones, in such a way as to make them happy.

Blotting paper was discovered in 1455. Previous to that, when a man dropped a splotch of ink on the lower left hand corner of his paper, he would give it a lick with his tongue toward the upper right hand corner, and make a better picture of the comet of 1880 than any that has yet appeared in the illustrated papers.—Norristown Herald.

A Dakota settler says pumpkins could be raised there, but the vines grow so fast that they wear the pumpkins out dragging them around over the prairie. Farmers in the spring plant a beet seed close to their house and in the fall pull up the beet and brick up the hole for a cistern.

The man who never advertises in nor subscribes to a paper is generally the first one to call around and request the editor thereof to give some one a 'racket' because of some purely personal grievance. The consistency of such persons is on a perpetual vacation.—Oil City Blizzard.

'What station is this?' asked a lady passenger of an English tourist near by. Looking out of a window and reading a sign on the fence he replied: ''Rough on Rats,' I guess mum.'—The Eye.

A young man boasted that he had a well stored mind, whereupon a wag said he was glad to hear it, and asked him where he had it stored.

Traits of character which you seek to conceal you had better seek to reform.

Clear head and voice, easy breathing, sweet breath, perfect smell, taste and hearing, no cough, no distress. These are conditions brought about in catarrh by the use of Sanford's Radical Cure. Complete treatmeat for $1. n

Terrible itching and scaly humors, ulcers, sores and scrofulous swellings cured by the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally, and Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally. Ask about them at your druggists. n

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful apperance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good result, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is smooth and natural as ever.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the great skin cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

NOTHING SHORT OF UNMISTAKABLE BENEFITS

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick.

SIFTED THEM OUT!

WINNOWING THE WHEAT FROM THE TARES. A PROBLEM EASILY SIMPLIFIED.

"My friend," said the druggist, "you have a lame back, you say, and want a plaster to put on it. Once I could have shown you a large assortment to choose from. Now I keep only a few, and sell most of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. Why? Because they are the best. I have Allcock's, the Capsicum and some others. They are harmless and slow. Business is business, and I gradually ceased to deal in them to any great extent."

"All right, do me up a Capcine without any more talk, for my back aches as though I had been working my passage in a baggage car."

"Here you are," said the druggist, "with the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster, proving it to be genuine."

"And here's your twenty-five cents," said the lame-backed man, walking slowly away. 4w32

CONSUMPTION.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two three cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. 4w32

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?

Pool's Signal Service Barometer

TO PLEASE HER HUSBAND.

WERE THE WORDS OF A GOOD LADY, MRS. HAWKINS, WHO HAS LONG SUFFERED THE PAIN COMMON TO CHRONIC RHEUMATISM. A WOMAN'S PATIENCE AND FORTITUDE WELL SHOWN.

Your reporter found Mrs. Hawkins at 14 Exchange street, New Haven, Conn. "About four years ago," she said, "I was then a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y. I went over one morning to the Jersey City depot to see some friends off who were starting for the West. There was a strong draft of air in the depot, and in standing by the train talking to my friends I caught a severe cold. I had no more than reached my home again when I was taken with a sudden chill, and then fever set in. The outcome of all was that rheumatism settled all over me. I was entirely helpless. From this I have never recovered. You see my hands what a state they are in. Those are all chalky swellings, and my limbs are very bad. While I remained in Brooklyn I tried all sorts of remedies, but I could never gain any relief. My physician said it was no use. I grew very thin and lost all strength. Finally, after coming here, to gratify my husband, I began to use Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and my general health has been better than ever before. I am stronger, have an excellent appetite, which I did not have for a long time. It has helped my rheumatism, and with a thorough trial I am in hopes of recovering completely."

Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY has been successfully used by thousands. It will build up a system that has been run down by overwork. It is the thing for the student and literary man to have at hand, and should be in the home of every mechanic. FAVORITE REMEDY is economical, safe and pleasant. Buy it and try it. 4w35

Thanksgiving.

Oh, men! grown sick with toil and care,
Leave for awhile the crowded mart;
Oh, women! sinking with despair,
Weary of limb aad faint of heart,
Forget your cares to-day, and come
As children back to children's home!

Follow again the winding rills;
Go to the places where you went,
When, climbing up the summer hills,
In their green lap you sat content;
And softly leaned your head to rest
On Nature's calm and peaceful breast.

Walk through the sere and fading wood,
So lightly trodden by your feet,
When all you knew of life was good,
And all you dreamed of life was sweet,
And let fond memory lead you back,
O'er youthful love's enchanted track.

Taste the ripe fruit of orchard boughs,
Drink from the mossy well once more;
Breathe fragrance from the crowded mows,
With fresh, sweet clover running o'er;
And count the treasures at your feet,
Of silver rye and golden wheat.

Go sit beside the hearth again,
Whose circle once was glad and gay;
And if from out the precious chain
Some shining links have dropped away,
Then guard with tenderer heart and hand
The remnant of your household band.

Draw near the board with plenty spread,
And if in the accustomed place
You see the father's reverent head,
Or mother's patient, loving face;
Whate'er your life may have of ill,
Thank God that these are left you still.

And though where home hath been you stand
To-day in alien loneliness;
Though you may clasp no mother's hand,
And claim no sister's tender kiss;
Though with no friend or lover nigh,
The past is all your company—

Thank God for friends your life has known,
For every dear, departed day.
The blessed past is safe alone—
God gives, but does not take away;
He only safely keeps above
For us the treasure that we love.

ZENAS CAREY'S REWARD.

Red and sullen, like the eyes of some baleful demon, the sun glowed through the tangled depths of November woods, casting bloody lines of light across the fallen trees, whose mossy trunks were half hidden in the drifts of faded yellow leaves, and evoking faint, sweet scents like oriental sandal-wood and teak, from a thousand forest censors hidden away, who knows how or where? And above that line of dull flaming fire the sky frowned a leaden-grey concave, freighted, as the weatherwise could tell you, with snow-flakes sufficient to turn that broken forest into a fairy grove of pearl and ermine. So the daylight was ebbing away from the Thanksgiving eve.

"Now I wonder where I am!" said John Seddons, pausing abruptly in the scarce visible foot path that wound among the trees. "As completely turned round, as though I stood in the deserts of Egypt. I wish I had been wise enough to keep the high-road; these short cuts turn out generally very long ones. However, if I keep straight ahead, I must inevitably emerge from these woods somewhere." He sat down on a mossy stump, leaning his head carelessly on one hand, while the other played unconsciously with the worn brim of his blue soldier-cap. A slender, pleasant-faced young man, with gray-blue eyes and dark hair thrown back from a bronzed forehead, which had been touched by the fiery arrows of many southern suns, in lonely swamps and along the fever-reeking shores of sullen rivers. "Houseless, homeless!" he murmured to himself. "I wonder how many others are saying the same thing this Thanksgiving eve. To think that I should fight through the campaign unhurt, and return with an honorable discharge in my pocket, to a place where nobody knows or cares whether I'm alive or dead, while so many brave fellows were shot down at my side with bullets that tore through a score of hearts at home, carrying sharper pangs than death has to give! It's a queer thing to have only one relative in the world, and he a total stranger. If I find this second cousin of my father's he'll probably kick me out of doors for a shiftless, soldiering vagabond. But hang it! a man can't live alone like a tortoise in its shell. I remember wondering, when I was a boy, why the Maderia vines over the porch stretched out their green tendrils, and seemed to grope through the sunshine for something to cling to. I think I understand it now."

He rose up and walked on through the russet leaves that rustled ankle-deep beneath his tread, still musing; trying to study out the unknown qualities in life's equation, while the sun went down behind a bank of lurid clouds, and the chill night wind began to sigh sorrowfully in the tree-tops. And suddenly the stately forest tapered off into a silver-stemmed thicket of white birches, and the white birches fringed a lonely country road with a little red house beyond, whose windows were aglow with firelight, and whose door-yard was full of the peculiar perfume of white-and-maroon-blossomed chrysanthemums.

Zenas Carey was leaning over the gate, surveying the stormy sunset with critical eyes.

'I told Melindy so!' ejaculated Zenas, apparently addressing himself to the crooked apple tree by the road. 'I'll bet my best steer we have a good, old-fashioned fall of snow to keep Thanksgiving with. I smelt it in the air this morning, but women never believe nothin' until it comes to pass right under their noses, for—'

This rather obscure sentence was nipped in the bud by a footstep at his side. Zenas turned abruptly to meet the new arrival.

'Will you be kind enough to give me a glass of water, sir,' said John Seddons, wearily.

'Sartin, sir,' said Zenas. 'So you're a soldier, hey?'

'A returned soldier,' said Seddons, draining the cool element from the cocoanut shell that always lay close to the well-curb at the side of the house.

'Goin' home to keep Thanksgivin'?' questioned Zenas.

'Home! Sir, I have no home!'

Seddons had spoken sharply, as if the thought were goading to him. Zenas put out his brown knotted hand and grasped the retreating man's arm.

'My boy!' he said, with kindly abruptness, 'you're a soldier, and to tell by your looks I should guess you're about the age of him that's buried at Gettysburg—my only son. I love that blue uniform for David's sake, and if there's a soldier that hasn't a home to go to on Thanksgivin' eve, there's a corner for him by Zenas Carey's fireside. Come in, sir, come in. You are welcome as flowers in May.'

John looked into the eyes and working face of the old farmer an instant, and accepted his invitation without another word.

What a cheerful change it was, from the frosty air and chill twilight of the lonely road to that fire of resinous pine logs! And when Melinda Carey drew a hump-backed rocking-chair to the hearth for him and spoke a word or two of welcome, John Seddons wondered if the eyes of the mother who died when he was a babe, had not beamed upon him just so.

'I told mother so this very mornin',' said Zenas, with a triumphant flourish of his hand, as he stirred up the logs to a waving, glorious sheet of flame; 'says I, 'Melindy, we'll kill the biggest turkey, and I'll pick out the yallerest pumkins on the barn floor.' And says she, 'What for, Zenas, when there's only us two to eat 'em?' and says I, 'Mother' says I, 'David was here with us last Thanksgivin' with his new uniform, as brave and handsome as you'll often see. Now, mother, don't cry.' Zenas interrupted himself to stroke his wife's gray hair with a strangely tender touch, and went on:

Says I, 'He's gone where it's Thanksgivin' all the year round now, my poor boy, my brave boy!' but, says I, 'we'll make somebody welcome for David's sake; won't we, mother?' And now, sir, you'll spend to-morrow with us, and tell us about he battle of Gettysburg, where Davie died crying out with his last breath not to let the flag be captured.'

Zenas' voice died out into a choking gasping sob. John Seddons laid his hands softly on the rough, toil-hardened hand of the farmer, while a pang of envy shot through his heart. Ah! it was almost worth while being shot down in battle to be missed and mourned like dead Davie Carey.

'Oh, my wife!' said Zenas, when John Seddons had fallen asleep in the little corner of the room that had been the lost boy's, 'it is almost like having Davie back again! Wife, I fight my great sorrow down every night, but every morning it rises up again more strong than ever! God help us; God help every parent whose home is made desolate by the field of battle!'

Thanksgiving-day dawned through a white whirlwind of driving snow, and eddied among the gnarled boughs of the apple-tree in a mad frolic, and edged the old stone-wall with dazzling ermine. And the fiery sparks careering swiftly up Zenas Carey's wide chimney, met the steadily falling snow half way and gave battle, while the hearth glowed with ruddy brightness, as if it knew all about the Governor's proclamation and approved it.

'You have a cosy little farm here, Mr. Carey,' said John, as he walked through the snow-storm to the church, whose spire nestled among the everlasting hills beyond.

'If I was only sure of it, sir,' said Zenas with a sigh. 'But I've been hard put to get along these times. Taxes and such like come heavy on poor men, and I've had a run o' ill luck, so that the place is mortgaged to its full value, and to a hard man, sir, one that will sell the home that you've been born and brought up in as soon as eat his breakfast, so he can make money by it. It will be a black day for Melindy and me when we have to leave Rock farm; but it must come soon, and I don't much care what becomes of me afterward. I tell you, sir, when a man has lived to my age under one roof-tree he don't take kindly to bein' moved. Men are like forest trees, sir; you can take a young one and do as you please with it, but if you transplant an old one it dies. Let's talk o' something else, Mr. Seddons. I ought not to complain Thanksgiving-day.'

John looked with a feeling of actual reverence at the hard featured old man, whose simple soul, borne down as he was by debt, and grief, and age, could still find something to be thankful for.

The turkey and the pumpkin-pies were smoking on the round table when John and Zenas returned from the church; and Mrs. Carey had brought out her best 'flowing blue plates' and her choicest old-time silver spoons in honor of their guest. There was no beverage but coffee that never knew the shores of Java, and a pitcher of cold, sparkling cider, but champagne could not have been more cordially dealt out by Zenas; and Mrs. Carey's smiling kindness gave a flavor to the chickoried rye that is sometimes lacking in 'egg-shell china.'

The table was cleared away, and they were sitting round the fire, when the door was opened and Deacon Evans entered, bringing a small snowdrift on the shoulders of his shaggy overcoat.

'Well, I am beat!' quoth Zenas. 'Take a chair, Deacon. Let me hang your coat before the fire to dry.'

'Can't stay,' said the Deacon, giving himself a shake, like a black-water dog on its hind legs. 'I thought you'd like to hear the news, so I jest dropped in on my way to my darter's Thanksgiving dinner.'

'News! what news?' exclaimed Zenas, while his wife dropped her knitting.

'Do tell! Then you ain't heerd?'

'I hain't heerd nothing but the wind a-howling down the chimney, and Elder Smith's sarmon this mornin',' said Zenas a little impatiently.

'The Squire's dead up to the great house!'

'Dead! You don't tell me so! That's the man I was speaking of as holds my mortgage,' explained Zenas, turning to John Seddons. 'And when did it happen, Deacon?'

'Died last night, sir, just about nightfall, as quiet as a lamb. And Lawyer Ovid says there's a regular will, and he's left all his property to the only relative he had living, a soldiering feller that he never as much as seen—one Sedgewick, Silby, or—what was his name now?—anyhow he's fell heir to all Squire Ailesford's property, and that's a pretty considerable windfall.'

'Was the name Seddons?' asked the soldier, who had hitherto listened to the conversation in silence. 'That's it,' said the Deacon, giving his knee a slap.

'Peter Ailesford was my father's cousin,' said the young man, quietly.

'Land of Goshen!' ejaculated Deacon Evans, with growing veneration for the heir to the old 'Squire's money. 'Now, reely, that's kind of providential, ain't it? To think that you should be right here on the spot!'

'I was in search of Mr. Ailesford's house when I met you, sir,' said Seddons turning to Carey; 'but as I was unaware what kind of a reception I should get, your kind invitation decided me to wait a day or two.'

In vain the Deacon tried to 'pump' the young man. John Seddons was civilly uncommunicative, and the deacon finally took leave, burning to unfold his budget of news elsewhere.

'I hope, sir,' said Carey, uneasily, when they were once more alone, 'you won't be hard about that mortgage. I'm a poor man, and—'

'Mr. Carey,' said John, quietly, 'you shall burn that mortgage on this hearth the very day I come in possession of my relative's papers. No thanks, sir; I have not forgotten that I was a stranger and you took me in. Do you suppose I shall cease to remember the welcome of this Thanksgiving hearth? I never knew either father or mother; but to-day I fancied what their kindness might have been.'

'It was for David's sake,' sobbed Mrs. Carey, fairly overcome.

'Then for your dead son's sake, will you let me fill his place toward you? Last night death took from me the only one in the world to whom I was allied by ties of blood; do not turn me from your hearts.'

'The Lord bless thee—the Lord make his face shine on thee! my second son!' said the old man solemnly.

Slowly the dusk gathered athwart the hills, with wailing winds and whirling drifts of snow—slowly the darkness wrapt them around; but in Zenas Carey's steadfast soul the light of an eternal Thanksgiving was burning; and his wife with tearful eyes mused upon her two soldier boys—one dead at Gettysburg, the other sitting by her side.

QUAINT PROVERBS.

Silence is a cheap virtue.
Short pleasures, long lament.
Simple diet, heavy children.
Sloth is the mother of poverty.
Sincerity is the mother of truth.
Sin and sorrow are inseparable.
Silent waters are seldom shallow.
Silence is the sanctuary of truth.
Sneer not at that which you cannot rival.
Sharp stomachs make short graces.
Solitude is at times the best society.
Short reckoning makes long friends.
Solid sense is ever preferable to wit.
Set bounds to your zeal by discretion.
Small matters win great commendation.
Sluggards make their own misfortunes.
Show me a liar and I'll show you a thief.
Sincerity is the basis of every manly virtue.
Severity may be softened by diffidence.
Set not every one's dial by your own watch.
Set not too high a value on your own abilities.
So long as you are ignorant be not ashamed to learn.
Sound not the vain trumpet of self-commendation.
Speak well of your friend; of your enemies say nothing.
Small thoughts indulged are little thieves to let in greater.
Small griefs are loud, but great ones are mostly silent.
Slight not good counsel, come from what quarter it may.
Sin is not less dangerous because men are hardened in it.
So the heart is right, it matters not which way the head lies.
Scholarship without good breeding is but tiresome pedantry.
Suspicion is no less an enemy to virtue than to happiness.

A writer, speaking of the virtue of celery, says: 'I have known many men and women who, from various causes, had become so much affected by nervousness that when they stretched out their hands they shook like aspen leaves on a windy day, and by a moderate daily use of the blanched footstalks of celery as a salad they became as strong and steady in limb as other people. I have known others so nervous that the least annoyance put them in a state of agitation, and they were in constant perplexity and fear, who were also effectually cured by a moderate use of blanched celery at meal time. I have known others to be cured of palpitation of the heart. Everybody engaged in labor weakening to the nerves should use celery daily in the season, and onions in its stead when not in season.'

It does torment a restaurant keeper frightfully to have a customer ask: 'How much will you charge me a thousand for such sandwiches as these? I am going to build a house and I think they'd be more durable than brick.'—Boston Post.

He who thinks he can find in himself the means of doing without others is much mistaken; but he who thinks that others cannot do without him is still more mistaken.—La Rouchefoucauld.

Boast not of your health and strength too much; but whilst you enjoy them, praise God, and use them well.

The song of Solomon: 'So hellup me grashus, dot coat fits you like de baper on de valls.'

There is a German proverb which says that 'Take-it-easy' and 'Live long' are brothers.

Her Name It was Suque.

A damsel who lived in Dubuque
Was ambitious to marry a duque;
But as none came to her,
She accepted a pooher
Young fellow whose name was Luque.

The bride was led up the broad aisle,
Got up in the most killing staisle;
When asked if she'd be
A true wife to he,
She promptly replied, "I should smaisle."

THE PROBLEM OF SPELLING REFORM.

Prof. Lounsbury, of Yale, in a forcible article on this subject, in the December Century, illustrates as follows the evils of English orthography:

The fundamental evil does not lie in the existence of useless letters, which in so many cases are, in addition to their uselessness, the records of fictitious history or perverted etymology. This is something that needs especially to be insisted upon, because it is against these 'interesting encumbrances and anomalies,' as the London Times calls them, that efforts at reform are naturally at first directed; and what is only a side issue, though an important one, becomes to the minds of many the main issue. This fundamental evil, as it is generally stated, lies in the fact that our language, as at present spelled, has a multitude of signs for the same sound, and a multitude of sounds for the same sign. But an abstract statement of this kind means little or nothing to the mass of men; a few examples may make it mean a great deal. Let us take, for instance, the vowel-sound, which is seen in the words met, sweat, any, said, says and jeopard. Here is one sound, that of short e, which is represented in these various words by six different signs, by e, by ea, by a, by ai, by ay, by eo. Take again the vowel sound heard in rude, move, rood, routine, rheum, drew, shoe, rue and bruise. Here the same sound is represented by nine signs: by u, by o, by oo, by ou, by eu, by ew, by oe, by ue, and by ui. Take again the sound which we call 'long e,' which was originally with us represented by i, and which is still so represented in other languages. It is found in meet, mete, meat, machine, grief, receive, key, people, ægis, and is thus denoted by the nine different signs of ee, of e, of ea, of i, of ie, of ei, of ey, of eo, of æ. This will do for one side of the shield; the other cannot be said to present a more attractive view. The sign ou has six different sounds, according as it is found in the words sour, pour, would, tour, sought and couple; the sign ea has five different sounds as seen in heat, sweat, great, heart, and heard. What is true of these vowels, or of these combinations of vowels, is true of all the others, and of the sounds denoted by them. Kind for illustration, can be written keind, for in this way is written height; it can be written kuind, for so is guile; it can be written keynd, for so is eye; it can be written kynd, for so is type; it can be written kuynd, for so is buy; it can be written kaind, for so is aisle; it can be written kiend, for so is relied. The whole vowel-system is in a state of chaos; and if confusion existed to the same extent among the consonants, the acquisition of English orthography would be the work of a life-time.

HER SUMMER AT THE MOUNTAINS.

It has been ascertained that a lady of this city, who lives in a house with luxurious appointments, endured the following experience in order to be 'out of town' during the summer months. She slept, or perhaps it would be more truthful to say she passed her nights, on a cotton mattress underneath which was what was called 'a spring-bed,' and every time she attempted to turn over several coils of iron wire would creak and groan in a most unearthly manner, and elbow their way into her shoulder blades and ribs most unexpectedly and painfully. She was obliged to hang her entire wardrobe in her sleeping room, protected from the dust by a frail curtain made of a sheet. As she slept in a room opening upon the lower piazza, she kept both windows closed during the night for fear of burglars, and so nearly suffocated from the heat. There were no blinds to these windows, the piazza roof being considered a sufficient protection from the sun, and the window shades were of a peculiar patent spring that was liable to start off at any moment, the curtain ascending with a tremendous snap to the ceiling, keeping the occupant of the room in constant terror as to the time it would select for its upward flight. For lavatory purposes the room was furnished with a wash bowl and pitcher, the latter holding about a quart of the hardest of hard water, and yet this much-enduring female speaks of her 'summer at the mountains' as a green oasis in the desert of her life.—Lawrence American.

Oil marks on wall-paper, where careless persons have rested their head, may be removed by making a paste of cold water and pipe clay or Fuller's earth, and laying it on the stains without rubbing it in; leave it on all night and in the morning it can brushed off, and the spot, unless it be a very old one, will have disappeared. If old, renew the application.

A quaint old minister was once asked what he thought of his two sons, who were both preachers. 'Well,' he replied, 'George has a better show in his shop window than John, but John has a larger stock in his warehouse.'

'Where's the molasses, Bill?' said a woman to her son, who had returned with an empty jug. 'None in the city, mother. Every grocer has a big black board outside, with the letters chalked on it, 'N. O. Molasses.' '

A Vermont man who has been there fourteen times says the meanest thing about a misfortune with a polecat is the difficulty of keeping it secret.

'Why is a young man like a kernel of corn?' asked a young lady. 'Because,' answered another, 'he turns white when he pops.'

It rains alike on the just and the unjust—and mainly on the just because the unjust have borrowed their umbrellas.—Hartford Times.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1882.

THURLOW WEED, the veteran journalist and politician, died at New York on Wednesday, at the age of 85 years.

MORE than a year has elapsed since the death of President Garfield, and his doctors' bills are still unpaid. The delay is not at all creditable to the government, and Congress should see to it that the bills are paid without further dallying.

GEN. FRANCIS A. WALKER declines positively to be a candidate for the U. S. Senate, and says that he is heartily in favor of the return of Senator Hoar, as "an able, upright and courageous senator, such as it is the good fashion of Massachusetts to retain in office."

THE latest foolish talk is that Gen. Butler may run for the U. S. Senate himself. He would like to defeat Senator Hoar, of course, but he is hardly likely to succeed him. Butler would be a veritable bull in a China shop in that august body, and there are few Republicans in the Legislature who would vote to "give the old man a chance" there for six years.

IT is reported that Secretary Lincoln will recommend that no river and harbor appropriation be passed during the present fiscal year, as there is a surplus of $4,000,000 from last year, and the appropriation at the last session of Congress was larger than can be used this year. This is rather a significant commentary on the wisdom and necessity of the last river and harbor bill.

CLERK MARDEN, of the Massachusetts House, aspires to be known as Speaker Marden after this year. He has never been known as a statesman to any great extent, but he has a good voice, experience and wit; can turn out poetry by the yard, and is a tip-top good fellow—qualifications which will doubtless be considered sufficient, by the members of the House, to give him the desired honor.

BOSTON Democrats will soon have an opportunity to demonstrate their acceptance of the civil service reform principles which the party in this State advocated so virtuously in the recent campaign. Mayor Greene has been renominated by the Republicans, but Albert Palmer, the "poor Palmer" who has been hungry so long, has secured the Democratic nomination. Mayor Greene has made a model official, however, and to be consistent the Democrats will of course vote to retain him.

IN the death of Prof. Henry Draper, which occurred at New York on Monday, the cause of astronomy loses a shining light and a close student. Prof. Draper discovered the gelatino-bromide dry process in photography, originated the best known system of testing and polishing mirrors, built a telescope for photographing the spectra of the stars, and has in many ways contributed to the advance of his favorite science. His death follows close upon that of his distinguished father, Prof. John W. Draper.

WITH the city election only a little more than a week ahead, Springfield is all at sea for a candidate for mayor. Nobody seems to think of renominating Mayor Ladd, and 'most everybody who has been named for the place is in a declining mood. In these topsey turvey political times we are surprised that one name has not been brought to the front before this, and can only account for it by remembering the innate modesty, even bashfulness, of the man. But we don't propose to let him remain hid under a bushel any longer. We therefore beg to suggest the name of the genial, wide-awake Ben. Weaver.

WILLIAM C. GOLDTHWAIT, who died at Longmeadow last Saturday, was an educator of no ordinary ability. For several years principal of the academy at Westfield, he afterwards established a family school for boys at his old homestead in Longmeadow, and there did some of his most successful work. Original in his methods, keen and observant, he opened the storehouse of knowledge to his pupils in a way that was attractive, stimulating and instructive in a rare degree. A man of fine tastes, sterling character and deep piety, set about with many quaint peculiarities, he was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and loved by those who knew him best.

GEN. BUTLER has mapped out an interesting and comprehensive programme for himself as Governor. At the Ames banquet last week he said:

When I can see the ballot in the hand of every man, because he is a man; when I can see every man with his rights respected everywhere in the commonwealth; when I can see every industry prospering; when I can see the laws so framed and so executed that there shall be no injustice felt by labor and no oppression made by capital, and when I see courts of conciliation established by law in which all differences can be settled between the employer and the employed, so that we shall be rid of all occasion for any conflict between them; and when I can see, further, the safety of every man assured whenever he may travel by sea or by land, by stringent guards, and when I can see taxation so diminished that it is no longer a burden, and as equally distributed over all as the dew of heaven falls upon the just and unjust alike—that being done I shall have time in which to amuse myself with cattle shows, horse-trots, dog-fights, and other like matters.

Everybody knows how distasteful it is for Butler to appear before the people on any public occasion, and this declaration of course means that he will as Governor devote himself to the more agreeable and weighty matters of State, and will only appear before the dear people to receive their huzzas when these reforms are accomplished. What a noble Governor he will make, to be sure! We hope the mighty chieftain has not bitten off more more than he can chew.

LOCAL NOTICES.

New raisins, currants, citron, spices of all kinds, cranberries, &c., for Thanksgiving, at Weld & Longley's.

See advertisement of small farm for sale, in another column.

A "big Injun" paraded the streets the other day, advertising a new brand of tobacco.

A pleasant social was held in the parlors of the Universalist church Wednesday evening.

Gov. Long visited the State Primary School yesterday with the members of his council.

E. C. Sexton will help in attending to the wants of M. Fox's customers during the winter.

F. L. Twining and Fred Cowan are down South, engaged in the sale of patented articles.

Otis Lane of Ware has been appointed administrator of the estate of Lucy E. Clarke of this town.

Rev. E. A. Perry preached before the conference of Universalist churches held at Prescott, this week.

Rev. A. W. Colver, of Woodbury, Ct., will again supply the pulpit of the Congregational church on Sunday.

Rev. O. R. Hunt will preach at the Baptist church to-morrow afternoon on "The Observance of the Sabbath."

Some unknown friend has presented the ladies' social union of St. Paul's church with ten dozen handsome teaspoons.

The hat-shop boys are having a good deal of fun at the expense of one of their number. They just say "apples" to him.

Thomas Lodge, F. & A. M., will have a public installation of its recently-elected officers on Monday evening, Dec. 4.

Our correspondents are requested to send in their communications next week on Wednesday, Thursday being Thanksgiving day.

Judge Robinson and wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage the other day by a quiet family reunion at their home.

The roof is on Lawyer Strong's block adjoining the Nassowanno House, and its marble-trimmed front gives promise of making quite an addition to Main street.

The schools in the out districts closed yesterday for the Thanksgiving recess. Those in the different villages will close next Wednesday, for a vacation of a week and a half.

J. W. Mason, who recently went to Chicago to attend the funeral of his mother and sister, will remain there through the winter. Frank N. Carpenter has taken his place in J. B. Shaw's store.

B. F. Clark and Daniel Leary of Thorndike, and John Clough of Three Rivers have been drawn as jurymen for the special term of the superior court to be held at Springfield next month.

G. L. Hitchcock has moved a portion of his stock into the new store back of the post office, and will have his fancy goods, stationery, school books, etc., all arranged in the new quarters the first of next week.

A slight change has been made in the Ware River Railroad time table, and the first afternoon train north now leaves at 1.40 instead of 2.05 p. m., while the evening train from the north arrives here at 5.20, ten minutes earlier than heretofore.

J. S. Loomis returned on Thursday from a trip to Chicago and other points in the West, including Grand Rapids, Mich., where he has been making a selection of choice furniture, which he will soon be ready to exhibit in his South Main street warerooms.

Where do the men who are arraigned before the district court every few days for drunkenness get their liquor? Do the dealers in town who are licensed to sell violate the conditions of their licenses by selling to intoxicated persons? It looks very much like it.

An adult class for Bible study has been started at the Baptist church, with the especial object of acquiring a greater familiarity with the Old Testament. Meetings are held every Wednesday evening in the vestry, and the book of Genesis is now being considered.

The new switch board is in position at the telephone office, and is working finely. The company has decided not to bring Warren and West Warren into this exchange, but will connect them with the West Brookfield office, while North Wilbraham goes on to the Springfield exchange.

The New London Northern road and the Boston & Albany road have decided to build a union passenger depot at Palmer at an estimated cost of $40,000.—New London Telegram.

Good! Seems as though we had heard something of this kind before. Now let's see the depot.

The village churches will unite in a union Thanksgiving service at the Congregational church next Thursday, at the usual hour of morning service, with sermon by Rev. O. R. Hunt, pastor of the Baptist church. The other pastors will take part in the service, and a choir of children from the State Primary School will furnish the singing.

Many Palmer people are very familiar in the matter of calling each other by their given names, and as a rule every one takes it in good part, but it is not always so. The other evening a young man called a young lady of his acquaintance by her first name at a little social gathering, and she "never was more insulted in her life," and she hasn't got over it yet.

Last May the Boston & Albany Railroad put two pairs of steel rails under one of their sleeping cars running between Boston and Chicago. Last week the wheels had run 101,520 miles, the largest mileage ever attained by any wheels. The car has run 540 miles per day for 188 days, and the wheels will not require to be taken out for another month, which will add 17,000 miles to the present record.

The popular songs the girls have been singing for the past five or six months are getting stale; besides, they do not harmonize with the surroundings. It is too cold to be out "Over the Garden Wall," and "When the Leaves Begin to Fade" is too far in the future to contemplate. Something after the manner of "While the Old Man's Down Street" or "When the Bill for Coal Comes In," would be more appropriate.

John Sheehan was brought before the district court last Saturday for drunkenness, and paid a fine and costs amounting to $5.33. Henry Dalton, up on Monday on a similar complaint, was not so fortunate, and not having the money to pay his fee of $5.83, he was committed to the house of correction. The case of Ellen Duncan, charged with mayhem, was given a hearing on Monday, and the court finding probable cause to believe the defendant guilty ordered her to recognize in $500 for her appearance before the grand jury the first Monday of December. On Tuesday Rufus A. Putney was called upon to pay $6.87 for drunkenness, and being unable to do so was sent to the house of correction.

The Thanksgiving market will be well supplied this year, and anybody who has money enough can have the regulation turkey, although the gobblers are somewhat scarce, and prices correspondingly high, the retail figures being 25 cents per pound. Fowls are somewhat lower, the price being 18 cents, while chickens will sell for 20. Potatoes are held firm at $1 by the farmers, although the imported article sells as low as 85 cents and the quality is proportionately poorer. Turnips are 50 cents a bushel, beets $1, and onions $1.25. Squashes are 5 cents a pound and not very plentiful, and cabbages sell for 2 cents a pound. Celery brings 20 cents a bunch, and is of excellent quality. Pumpkins are hard to find at any price, and pumpkin pies will be few and far between. Oranges are coming into market in good quantity, Jamaicas and Floridas selling at 50 cents a dozen, and Valencias at 25 and 35 cents. Lemons range from 15 to 25 cents. Bananas are 50 cents a dozen; Catawba grapes 13 and Malagas 25 cents a pound. Raisins bring from 13 to 18 cents, the Valencias finding a large sale this season at the first-named price, being of much nicer quality than usual.

LUDLOW.

Alexander Whitney will dispose of some hay, two or three wagons, and some household furniture at auction on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

Hiram Waid will sell a horse, cow, a quantity of hay and farming tools, and other personal property at auction at his house near the Red Bridge, on Wednesday Dec. 6th, at 9 a. m.

GRANBY.

A correspondent calls attention to the importance of mothers looking after their daughters closely, its necessity being illustrated in this quiet town, where a young man is in the habit of spending about half of his nights with a girl of 16, having been seen to enter the house after the parents had retired, and not going away until nearly daylight the next morning.

HAMPDEN.

The total valuation of the town is $444,100; real estate $363,490, personal $80,610. There is $13,000 worth of property exempted from taxation. The rate is $8.60 per $1000. Horace Kimball of Providence, R. I., pays a tax of $179, the Lacowsic woolen company $306 and Abner C. Burleigh $145. There are 270 polls, and the number of dwelling houses is 212, horses 185, cows 322, sheep 127, acres of land 11,587.

THREE RIVERS.

The boys skated upon the Quaboag last Thursday.

Mrs. M. A. Squier has closed her store, and will go out of business.

Rev. Mr. Noyes will lecture to the young people Sunday evening. Subject "Drifting."

Mr. Ryther, of Bondsville, is building a house on the east side of the river, and will move here as soon as it is finished.

The Otis Company have moved the building formerly occupied as a store by Mrs. Squier, back from the street, and will put up a larger store on the site.

The examinations at the Hitchcock Free High School came off yesterday; in the forenoon of classes in the recitation rooms, in the afternoon of the school in the hall, interspersed with declamations, singing, gymnastics, etc., closing with a social gathering at the hall in the evening. In consequence of putting in a new heating apparatus, the winter term of the school will commence on Tuesday, Dec. 12th, instead of Dec. 5th, as announced in the catalogue.

THORNDIKE.

The pastor of the Congregational church preached Sunday afternoon on "The History and Significance of Thanksgiving Day."

Austin Woodward was thrown from his team Wednesday afternoon in one of our streets, and received some severe, though not serious injuries.

The Methodists were quite successful with their supper Tuesday night. The tables were well patronized, as they justly deserved. The receipts amounted to upwards of $30.

The work upon Captain Clark's new house still continues. The workmen are now laying the brick underpinning. Judging from what has been done, it will be as thoroughly built as any house in town.

A sociable was held in the Congregational vestry, and was numerously attended. The enthusiasm which the different games brought out, gave evidence of the vital health of the younger element of our society.

WARREN.

Union services will be held Thanksgiving day.

The Guy family had a full house and gave a good entertainment.

The Masons elected their officers Tuesday evening for the coming year.

Tripp & Hazelwood are drawing their works to a close for a short vacation.

Mr. Allen, who was killed by being thrown from his buggy, had a life insurance of $1500.

The public schools have a short vacation from Wednesday next until Monday, and will then, after one week, close until January.

There's some talk of a building for the public library, and it is much to be hoped that our liberal hearted men will become interested in it.

The children are very busy collecting money and filling bags for the "Little Wanderers" connected with Rev. Mr. Toles, Mission at Boston.

WEST WARREN.

The Methodist society will clear about $30 from their lecture course.

Crossman & Son talk of finishing off the upper stories of their brick block for a hotel.

The schools in the village close next Wednesday, until the Monday after Thanksgiving.

The school committee have engaged Miss Kingsley of Springfield, to give music lessons in all the schools every Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Alfred Woods gave an entertaining lecture in the Methodist church Monday evening, on Newfoundland, icebergs, and the devil-fish. The lecture was illustrated with a powerful magic lantern.

BONDSVILLE.

For a few mornings past, ice upon the river has given an opportunity for skating, which lovers of the sport have not been slow in improving.

Mr. George Clough and Miss Martha Murdock were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Abram Murdock. About fifty friends were present.

Holden's store has two new signs, which are models of taste and neatness. They were painted and designed by Chas. Shumway. Why go elsewhere to get painting done when the work of home talent looks as well as this?

Henry Morgan was agreeably surprised Wednesday evening by a 'bus load of friends from Ware, together with friends and neighbors from this village, making about thirty-five in all. A very pleasant social evening was spent and good justice was done the bountiful supply of refreshments. At a late hour, with many wishes for the happiness and prosperity of Mr. Morgan and family, the guests departed, leaving as a token of their esteem a fine extension table and handsome music rack.

WALES.

Ezekiel Dimmick has purchased a new pair of fine team horses.

The machinery in the Beacon mill is all stopped, except in the finishing room, which will run out in a few days.

The engine company had a sociable and supper in the Baptist vestry Wednesday evening, which was attended by about 150, and was much enjoyed by all.

The Methodists are to have a dramatic entertainment Monday evening in the old Baptist church. They will play "The Turn of the Tide, or Wrecked in Port."

C. M. Gale has sold his fish and oyster business to N. M. Bradley, who thus far makes good the vacancy by giving good measure and good oysters and fish. Mr. Gale is to go into the grocery business, but it is hinted that he intends taking a partner to look after affairs in the house, first.

The many relatives and friends of Willard Nelson, from Palmer, Stafford, Wales and Monson surprised him last Monday evening by coming en masse, and besides other mementoes of the 15th anniversary o. their marriage presented them with a nice lounge, a beautiful hanging lamp, a silver cake basket, etc.

The girl who went from this village to Palmer one day the past week, and became so busily engaged in conversation with an acquaintance which she made that the train went off and left her, had quite a time of it getting home. It wasn't done on purpose, and she don't care to repeat the experiment.

A fine musical and literary entertainment is booked for Monday evening next at Central Hall, when the celebrated violinist, Miss Mary Beeman, and Mrs. M. L. Bronson, the pianist, will appear, assisted by the elocutionists, Messrs. E. A. Start and C. H. Puffer. Miss Beeman, though but 18 years of age, is a perfect master of her instrument, and is already said to rival the famous Camilla Urso. The readings by Messrs. Puffer and Start will also be an enjoyable feature of the evening's entertainment. Mr. Puffer was at one time a student at the Monson Academy.

The Relief Fire Extinguisher company have not decided upon a date for their annual concert and ball, and probably will not until there is a company formed. Hose company No. 1 are also in about the same predicament; and Alert Co. No. 3 are waiting to hear from some of their prominent members who reside in Holland and do business in Union before fixing a date for their annual meeting.

FIRES.—A large block in Providence, R. I., occupied principally by jewelry shops, was partially burned Tuesday. There were no fire escapes on the building, the flames cut off retreat by the stairs, and the employes in the upper stories had to jump from the windows to an adjoining roof. Some fell to the ground, and three were killed, five fatally and several seriously injured.——The north wing of the Round Hill summer hotel at Northampton was damaged several thousand dollars' worth by fire last Saturday night. The Congregational church at Richmond was burned the same night.

The Institute fair at Boston, which closed last Saturday, has been a financial success, the managers having paid expenses and wiped out a $25,000 debt, with a balance left in the treasury. Preparations are already being made for the exhibition of 1883, at which it is proposed to compare, on a large scale, the products of the South with those of the North.

Magazines, Etc.

The North American Review for December commands attention by the eminence of its contributors, also the value and timeliness of its contents. The first article is on "The Health of American Women," in which Dr. Dio Lewis considers the question as it is affected by the prevailing style of ladies' dress, especially tight-lacing; Mrs. Stanton points out the injurious influences of social environment; Dr. James Read Chadwick dwells upon the effect of climate, education and food, discussing the physical modifications produced upon Europeans by transfer to America; Gov. Buren R. Sherman of Iowa writes of the "Constitutional Prohibition" of the liquor traffic in that State; Gen. Grant in an article entitled "An Undeserved Stigma" states that the sentence of the court martial in Gen. Fitz John Porter's case was based on a misconception of the essential circumstances. Richard A. Proctor writes of "The Influence of Food on Civilization;" Prof. Fisher of Yale College defines the causes of the "Decline of Clerical Authority," and finally there is a symposium upon the conditions of "Success on the Stage," the contributors being John McCullough, Joseph Jefferson, Madame Modjeska, Lawrence Barrett, Maggie Mitchell and William Warren.

The American Publishing Company of Hartford, Ct., (as per advertisement in another column,) have in press and will soon issue a new book entitled "Miss Richards' Boy," from the pen of the popular author, Josiah Allen's wife, who has heretofore so pleased the public with her spicy books, "My Opinion and Betsey Bobbet's," "Samantha at the Centennial," and "My Wayward Pardner," over which many a hearty laugh has been had. This new volume differs in many respects from her previous works, and promises to surpass them all. It will contain a fine portrait of the author, which will satisfy the curiosity of many who have often wished to know just how Josiah Allen's wife looks. The book will be sold only by subscription, and agents are wanted in every township—a good chance for some of our wide-awake lady and gentleman readers. It will be just the thing for the holidays.

It is said that from Oct. 25, 1877, to July 1, 1882, the enormous number of 2,381,000,000 internal revenue stamps were sold for $668,000,000, and not a stamp was lost, although they were sent through the mails in the ordinary manner.

A druggist in New Richmond, O., Mr. E. J. Donham, writes us the following: "I consider Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup one of the very best things made. I use it altogether in my own family and can therefore recommend it.

"Perhaps the most judiciously edited magazine in the world."—The Nation, N. Y., Sept. 1882.

THE CENTURY
FOR 1882—83.

The twelfth year of this magazine—the first under the new name, and the most successful in its history, closed with the October number. The circulation has shown a large gain over that of the preceding season, and THE CENTURY begins its thirteenth year with an edition of 140,000 Copies.

The following are the leading features:
A NEW NOVEL BY W. D. HOWELLS, to succeed this author's "Modern Instance." It will be an international story, entitled "A Sea Change." LIFE IN THE THIRTEEN COLONIES, BY EDWARD EGGLESTON,—the leading historical feature of the year; to consist of a number of papers, on such topics as "The Beginning of a Nation," "Social Life in the Colonies," etc.,the whole forming a complete history of early life in the United States. Especial attention will be paid to accuracy of illustrations. A NOVELETTE OF MINING LIFE, BY MARY HALLOCK FOOTE, entitled "The Led-Horse Claim," to be illustrated by the author. THE POINT OF VIEW, BY HENRY JAMES, JR., a series of eight letters from imaginary persons of various nationalities, criticising America, its people, society, manners, railroads, etc. THE CHRISTIAN LEAGUE OF CONNECTICUT, by the Rev. Washington Gladden. An account of practical co-operation in Christian work, showing how a league was formed in a small town in Connecticut, what kinds of work it attempted, and how it spread throughout the whole State. "RUDDER GRANGE ABROAD," by Frank R. Stockton, a continuation of the droll "Rudder Grange" stories, the scene being now in Europe. THE NEW ERA IN AMERICAN HOUSEBUILDING, a series of four papers, fully illustrated, devoted to (1)City Houses, (2) Country Houses, (3) Churches, and (4) Public Buildings. THE CREOLES OF LOUISIANA, by George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days," etc.; a fresh and graphic narrative, richly illustrated. MY ADVENTURES IN ZUNI, by Frank H. Cushing, government ethnologist, an adopted member of the Zuni tribe of Indians. Illustrated. ILLUSTRATED PAPERS ON THE NATIONAL CAPITAL, including "The Capitol," "The Supreme Court," "The White House," etc. MISSIONS OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, by "H. M."; three or four papers of an exceedingly interesting character, richly illustrated.
MISCELLANEOUS.—Further work is expected from E. C. Stedman, Thomas Hughes, Joel Chandler Harris ("Uncle Remus"), Charles Dudley Warner, John Burroughs, E. V. Smalley, H. H. Boyeson, and a long list of others. Entertaining short stories and novelettes will be among the leading features of The Century, as heretofore, and the magazine will continue its advance in general excellence.
The subscription price is $4 a year; 35 cents a number. Subscriptions should begin with the November number, and to enable new subscribers to commence with the new series under The Century name, we make the following

SPECIAL OFFER.

A year's subscription from Nov., 1882, and the twelve numbers of the past year, unbound, $6. A subscription and the twelve back numbers bound in two elegant volumes with gilt top, $7.50.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.
We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:
Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.
Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.
Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.
Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.
If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—HAMPDEN SS. PROBATE COURT.—To all persons interested in the estate of David A. Hoag, late of Palmer, in said county, deceased, Greeting:
Whereas, Wolcott Hamlin, the administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented for allowance the final account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased:
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Springfield, in said county, on the first Tuesday of December next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.
And said administrator is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, in the Palmer Journal, a newspaper printed at Palmer, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said court, and to mail a copy hereof to the next of kin immediately after its first publication.
Witness, William S. Shurtleff, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this thirteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

Josh Billings Says

"I NEVER ARGY AGIN' A SUCCESS. WHEN I SEE A RATTLESNAIX HED STICKIN' OUT OV A WHOLE, I BEAR OFF TO THE LEFT AND SAY TO MYSELF, THAT WHOLE BELONGS TO THAT SNAIX."

Equally striking is the fact, that
STEINWAY & SONS
Occupy the situation in piano-making. But other piano-makers and their agents are not so good philosophers as Josh, for while they bear off to the left and lower their prices, as an inducement for people to buy their wares, thus admitting their inferiority, they keep arguing that they are just as good, only STEINWAY & SONS are so wicked, it makes them charge such awful prices. We are so good, we would not take so much if we could get it. NO, INDEED! And the LOWER the grade of goods, the LOUDER and LONGER this virtuous talk. And still a large and constantly increasing number of very intelligent people continue from year to year to buy these superior Pianos and pay their money for them, to such an extent as to make the demand fully equal to the supply, even at their prices. Another argument advanced by some against buying the
STEINWAY PIANO
Is, that in doing so people have to pay one or two hundred dollars, more or less, for its name and reputation. What is a reputation? Speaking of a person, it is what people think of him; so with a Piano.
I have the largest variety of other makes of
PIANOS AND ORGANS
Of any dealer in New England; and some of which are very superior, and of which I will speak more at length in my next.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.
The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.
To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:
The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions:
First—For an extension of the time for the location and construction of its railroad.
Second—For authority to issue preferred stock, first and second mortgage bonds, and certificates of indebtedness, or any of them, in such amounts and for such purposes as may be necessary in order to obtain money for the payment of its liabilities, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad.
Third—For authority to consolidate with other railroad corporations, upon such terms and conditions as shall be agreed upon by the parties interested; or to form, by means of such consolidation, a new corporation, with such powers and privileges as may be necessary in order to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance of a railroad such as is contemplated by the charter of your petitioner and the several acts in addition thereto.
Fourth.—For such other or further legislation as may be necessary to enable your petitioner to obtain money for the payment of its indebtedness, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad in accordance with its charter and several acts in addition thereto.
And your petitioner will ever pray.
Dated Boston, November 2, 1882.

'Thanksgiving.

Within a garret, cold and forlorn,
A group is gathered, Thanksgiving morn.

Father and mother, with children, three—
One but a babe on the mother's knee.

Haggard and pale is the father's face,
Where lingering sickness has left its trace;

While the care-worn look on the mother's brow,
Tells of the sorrow upon her now.

Hungry and faint, from the lack of food;
With scanty clothing; no coal or wood;

A broken table; a bare, pine floor—
What have they to be thankful for!

Thoughts like these to the parents come,
While sitting there, in their cheerless home.

The children, nestled upon the bed,
A fragment of carpet over them spread,

Are blind to their parents' mute despair,
And the little girl, with a pitying air,

Says: "What do poor children do, I wonder,
With no warm carpet to cuddle under;

No papa nor mamma to give 'em bread,
An' tuck 'em up when they go to bed?—"

Teardrops start from the father's eyes;
Prayers from the mother's lips arise.

* * * * * * * * * *

Footsteps fall on the creaking floor;
A knock is heard on the chamber door.

A bluff, "good morning," their query brings,
And, "Sambo, you rascal, bring up the things!"

While the 'Squire's darkey, with cheerful grin,
Food and clothing brings quickly in.

"Lord bless you, ma'am! why, who'd a knowed
That folks lived up in this 'ere abode?

'Tain't fit fer a barn, 'n' ez I'm a sinner,
I'll take you all to my house to dinner.

I'll find you work, when you're strong, and well,
'N' a better place than this 'ere to dwell—"

And the 'Squire paused, while a tear arose,
And dropped unseen on his ruby nose,

As the baby boy, with a happy look,
A rosy apple from Sambo took,

And the children gathered, with hungry eyes,
'Round the platter of doughnuts and pumpkin pies;

While the grateful mother could only say:
"Truly, this is Thanksgiving day."

—Charles Follen Adams.

AN AUTUMN MEMORY.

The November sun was stealing between the daintily embroidered leaflets, and playing on the ripples of the woodland rivulet. The golden-rod along the brookside was now and then disturbed by the flight of some wild bird, and the sumacs in their cardinal fezzes looked like so many nodding Turkish sentinels.

A glorious but brief period when a delicate veil of haze hangs around the wood, and the indelicate politician hangs around the candidate to negotiate the sale of his vote; when the partridge drums up in the tree, and the suspender peddler drums up in the northern part of New York; when the honest farmer works the harvest field, and the young lady works the Christmas slippers for the clergyman; when poetic damsels pluck the languid ferns, and the unpoetic housewife plucks the languishing Thanksgiving turkey!

The birds twittered by the brook and the squirrels darted along the stone wall and up in the tree, and the voices of merry nutting parties reverberated through the silent aisles of the forest in harmony with the sincere but unpoetic squawk of the cat-bird.

That's about the style of day it was when a light-hearted couple, tired of their woodland promenade, sat upon a fallen tree.

'I am always so happy in the woods,' she commenced, 'especially in the autumn, as the crepuscular shadow steals timidly into the valley, for then I float back to childhood's happy time—'

'Glad to hear it,' he replied, rather abruptly. 'I shall bring you up here often; the air is exhilarating, and will do you good; and we will gather wild flowers and leaves, and arrange them in quaint designs.'

'Oh, you are so good!' she said, in tones of deep, unswerving devotion. 'I would much rather walk here with you than in the bustling city.'

'You would?' he inquired, with a slight tremor in his voice.

'Indeed I would!' she responded. 'When here with you, all alone, I feel perfectly secure and happy.'

'And so do I,' he chanted, as he thrust his hand into his vest pocket and felt his capital, which consisted of two suspender buttons and a night-key—'so do I, my dear, because this pretty autumn wood is just about fourteen miles from the nearest ice-cream saloon!'—Editor's Drawer, Harper's for December.

An educated man stands, as it were, in the midst of a boundless arsenal and magazine, filled with all the weapons which man's skill has been able to devise from the earliest time! and he works accordingly, with a strength borrowed from all past ages.

'My idea ob de better world,' said an aged darkey to the editor of the Arkansaw Traveler, 'is whar dar is a 'lection goin' on all de time, case den de white folks is allers perlite.'

The Chinese language is spoken by 300,000,000 people; English by about 95,000,000. Thus we see that the Chinese gibberish is vulgarly common.—New Haven Register.

We receive a paper called the Burlington Clipper. This is certainly 'rendering unto scissors the things that are scissors.'—Texas Siftings.

Nobody is more certain to be over-reached than your sharp fellow. If nobody else over-reaches him, he is sure to over-reach himself.

We do not choose our own parts in life, and have nothing to do with those parts. Our simple duty is confined to playing them well.

Pack your cares in as small compass as you can, so that you can carry them yourself and not let them annoy others.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin diseases known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.

Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good result, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is smooth and natural as ever.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment, for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the great skin cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checke , and a new growth will be produced in all c ses where the follices are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

"My friend," said the druggist, "you have a lame back, you say, and want a plaster to put on it. Once I could have shown you a large assortment to choose from. Now I keep only a few, and sell most of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. Why? Because they are the best. I have Allcock's, the Capsicum and some others. They are harmless and slow. Business is business, and I gradually ceased to deal in them to any great extent."

"All right, do me up a Capcine without any more talk, for my back aches as though I had been working my passage in a baggage car."

"Here you are," said the druggist, "with the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster, proving it to be genuine."

"And here's your twenty-five cents," said the lame-backed man, walking slowly away. 4w32

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two three cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in 24 hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. 4w32

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?

TO PLEASE HER HUSBAND.

WERE THE WORDS OF A GOOD LADY, MRS. HAWKINS, WHO HAS LONG SUFFERED THE PAIN COMMON TO CHRONIC RHEUMATISM. A WOMAN'S PATIENCE AND FORTITUDE WELL SHOWN.

Your reporter found Mrs. Hawkins at 14 Exchange street, New Haven, Conn. "About four years ago," she said, "I was then a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y. I went over one morning to the Jersey City depot to see some friends off who were starting for the West. There was a strong draft of air in the depot, and in standing by the train talking to my friends I caught a severe cold. I had no more than reached my home again when I was taken with a sudden chill, and then fever set in. The outcome of all was that rheumatism settled all over me. I was entirely helpless. From this I have never recovered. You see my hands what a state they are in. Those are all chalky swellings, and my limbs are very bad. While I remained in Brooklyn I tried all sorts of remedies, but I could never gain any relief. My physician said it was no use. I grew very thin and lost all strength. Finally, after coming here, to gratify my husband, I began to use Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and my general health has been better than ever before. I am stronger, have an excellent appetite, which I did not have for a long time. It has helped my rheumatism, and with a thorough trial I am in hopes of recovering completely."

Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY has been successfully used by thousands. It will build up a system that has been run down by overwork. It is the thing for the student and literary man to have at hand, and should be in the home of every mechanic. FAVORITE REMEDY is economical, safe and pleasant. Buy it and try it. 4w35

DARBYS

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.
Rheumatism cured.
Soft White Complexions secured by its use.
Ship Fever prevented.
To purify the Breath, cleanse the Teeth, it can't be surpassed.

Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.
I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.
The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by
Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia;
Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York;
Jos. LeConte, Columbia, Prof., University, S. C.

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

Thanksgiving Anthem.

Lord of heaven! we adore Thee,
Thou who ever art the same;
We would in Thanksgiving anthems
Bless Thy great and holy name.

Lord of harvests! we are thankful
For the dew-drop and the rain,
For the fruitfulness in bearing
Of the fields of yellow grain.

Lord of love! may we remember
Where the fields have failed in grain,
That the mulberry tree still beareth
Berries that will life sustain.

Lord of persons! for Thy blessings,
And Thy gifts unnumbered found
In Thy rich, unfailing storehouse,
May our hearts with thanks abound.

Lord of nations! we are grateful
That important things of state
Are not left to men's caprices,
Nor to destiny and fate.

Lord of man! we are most thankful,
For th' advancing light we see:
Justly called the Universal,
Drawing all men unto Thee.

Lord of good and perfect giving!
May our hearts before Thee fall;
And, in perfect adoration,
Bless Thee who hast given all.

C. H. RICKETTS.

TAKEN IN BY APPEARANCES.

Everything but the wedding-day was settled between Ambrose Thorpe and Lucy Denyse, and that was only waiting till Lucy should get out of mourning for a miserly old half-uncle, who had died lately, leaving her his fortune, not for any love he bore her, but to spite the rest of his relations.

Lucy was the prettiest and richest girl in Glendell; and it had not been without a struggle that Ambrose Thorpe won her. Such prizes are not carried off without competition. Nor do worsted rivals always accept defeat at once. Several of those who had entered the lists with Ambrose still kept up a sort of desultory skirmish which served to keep him on the alert, and render his position no sinecure. Lucy, too, we may be sure, was not averse to having her lover just a little jealous, for no woman quite likes to see a man sit down too secure of being master of her heart.

Ambrose devoutly wished the nuptial knot was tied. His was a mind that intensified anxiety by brooding over it. Every hour his fancy pictured some new peril, till at last, he saw nothing but snares and perils on every side.

On the evening of a certain day on which Lucy's conduct had been more than usually capricious, Ambrose set out on a solitary walk, seeking to indulge in the luxury of misery by moonlight without interruption.

He chose a somber path, overhung by willows, on the border of a brook which murmured sadly in its course. His thoughts joined in the cadence till the dismal harmony was broken by the sound of voices proceeding from a deeply shaded nook on the bank of the stream.

Could he believe his ears? One of the voices was Lucy's; the other was that of a man. Amazement held him motionless; but how was that amazement redoubled at the words he heard!

'So it's all arranged,' said a clear, manly voice, thrilling with pleasure.

'Quite,' answered Lucy.

'You're the dearest girl in the world,' returned the other.

'I only trust I shall never have reason to regret the step,' she sighed.

'Traitress!' growled Ambrose from his lowest depths.

But worse was coming.

'Remember—in the same dress I wear now,' said Lucy.

'Yes,' in the male voice.

'With the veil down,' in Lucy's.

'Precisely.'

'At this hour to-morrow evening.'

'I comprehend.'

'You to be here with a carriage.'

'Never fear,—then hie for the parson's!' cried the deeper voice gleefully, as the two stepped out into the moonlight, evidently bent on departing.

Instinctively Ambrose shrank from sight. Lucy's companion was a stranger. His face gleamed with happiness, whilst hers was as placid as though no guile was hidden in her heart.

For more than an hour Ambrose Thorpe stood rooted to the spot that had witnessed his betrayal. On his sleepless pillow he thought out a plan of retribution. He would pursue, unseen, the steps of the guilty pair, confront them in the presence of the minister, proclaim his wrongs, and forbid the unholy rite to proceed.

Ambrose Thorpe, before the appointed hour, with a swift-footed steed, lay in concealment near the place of rendezvous.

It was not long till a carriage drove up, from which alighted the man he had seen on the previous evening. Then, from the shadow, came out a female form. The face was closely veiled, but the dress was the same Lucy had worn the night before. The two were soon seated in the carriage, which was driven away rapidly.

Ambrose sprang into his saddle, and kept the fugitives in sight. They could not escape him now. His hour of vengeance was near!

But alas for human plans! Mr. Thorpe was but an indifferent rider, and when his horse shied at a shadow, down he came headlong.

For a time he lay stunned and senseless; and when, at length, a belated neighbor stumbled on him, it was found that, in addition to sundry serious bruises, he was suffering from a fractured arm.

Next day Ambrose sat 'gloomy and peculiar,' bolstered in his easy chair, wishing, more or less sincerely, that his neck, instead of his arm, had been broken. No one yet knew the occasion of the ride which had brought on his mishap, and he determined never to divulge it. He would pine in secret.

A tap at the door was followed by a visitor—the very last person in the world Ambrose was expecting. It was Lucy Denyse, who bustled in, with her face full of sympathy and pity.

'Ambrose, dear!' she exclaimed, 'I have but just heard of it. I hope you're not badly hurt.'

He shrank back among his bolsters. Such assurance was astounding. She, doubtless the wife of another now, coming to gloat upon his misery.

Indignation at length enabled him to command words.

'I know all!' he croaked hoarsely. 'Night before last I was an unwilling listener to the details of your detestable scheme of elopement with an unknown villain, and last night I witnessed the execution of the plot. And now you have the hardihood to insult, by coming into his presence, the man you have so cruelly wronged?'

At first Lucy was thunderstruck; but as Ambrose proceeded, a smile rippled her countenance, followed by one of her bright and silvery laughs.

'I've a great mind to let you pout it out,' said Lucy. 'It would only serve you right if I did, and I would, too, but for your broken arm.

'Now listen, and see what a ninny you've made of yourself! Cousin George Malton—you don't know what a dear, good cousin he is—has long been in love with Alice Lynn, whom a crabbed guardian of an uncle, who disapproved of the match, has been keeping under lock and key of late. I was allowed to visit her occasionally, and it was made up between her and George and me that I should remain in her place last night, while she came out, disguised in my clothes, and went off to be married to George. Now, do you understand, stupid!'

Ambrose put out his hand, the well one, which happened to be the left, the one nearest his heart, he said. Lucy took it, and before there was time for another jealous relapse they were safely married.

AN ACTRESS'S FRANK CONFESSION.

I do not believe an actress ever forgets her first round of applause or first favorable criticism. It is a good many years since the plaudits of a pleased audience first fell upon mine ears; but the memory of that moment has power even now to quicken my pulse. And my first notice—I could repeat it backwards, word for word. I have the paper still, yellow with age and much worn with frequent handling.

We were playing in a stock company at R—, and it was the first time I had been called upon to do a faint. The stage directions read: 'Helen falls prone across the body of Theodore.' If I practiced that faint once, I did a hundred times, the bolster being made to do duty for Theodore's body. At rehearsal Mr.—, a rather fussy gentleman, somewhat inclined to embonpoint, who was cast for Theodore, observed to me: 'You understand about the fall, Miss—? I shall drop right here,' added he, pointing with his cane to a knot hole in the stage. 'Oh, yes,' I exclaimed. 'I know just how to do it.' When night came I began to feel a little nervous about the fall, and when the scene was actually there I would have given anything to have seen the familiar bolster lying across the stage instead of wheezy Mr. —. However, there was no help for it, and I just let myself go, falling prone, exactly as the author requested, across the body of Theodore. The grunt that followed and the quick updrawing of Mr.—'s short legs was not down in his role. Instead of the awed silence in which the curtain should have descended, to be followed by a burst of applause, a perfect shout of laughter went up from the highly amused audience. The manager swore at my father and threatened my dismissal. Poor Mr.—! He never forgave me. I had spoiled his best scene by taking the author's words too literally.—Cor. New York Mirror.

LIKE AS NOT.

After a citizen had yesterday hunted the length of Griswold street twice over in search of the office of a lawyer known to hang out somewhere on the street, he finally called to a bootblack and asked:

'Say, boy, can you tell me where Lawyer ——has his office?'

'Have you looked at all the signs?' queried the lad.

'Yes.'

'Been down in the basements and up the stairs?'

'Yes.'

'And you haven't seen his name up anywhere?'

'No.'

'Say,' continued the boy in a confidential tone, 'like as not this happens to be one of them lawyers who don't want bill collectors walking in on them, so he meets his customers in the post office, instead of hanging out a sign.'

The conclusion seemed so probable that further search was abandoned.—Detroit Free Press.

The family of a well-known physician, whose home is near New York, were recently annoyed by the loud crowing before daylight of four bantam roosters in a neighbor's yard. An idea occurred to the doctor. The bantams were tame and easily caught. He seized them one by one, and pulling out the vocal cords, clipped them off. The operation was painless to all but one rooster, which was accidentally killed. The others resumed their place in the yard, but have never since been heard to crow. The doctor now from his window gleefully watches their going through all the motions of crowing, but without making a sound, and is thrown into fits of laughter by witnessing the increasing wonder of their owner and the evident amazement of the hens.

The Norristown Herald is authority for the statement that at the last convention of undertakers held in New York, it was resolved to substitute the toy pistol for the kerosene can as the emblem of the order.

If you think yourself a genius you will probably die poor, but if you regard yourself as an ordinary man, with a deal of tough work before you, you will probably die very well off.

Little Simplicity.

Golden her tresses, and blue were her eyes,
Beaming with innocence, loving and baby-like,
Cheeks like a cherry's which never disguise
Modesty's blushes—whatever may they be like!
Peeping from under her bonnet of straw,
Trimmed in the fashion of simple rusticity,
These, when we met, were the features I saw,
Features belonging to Little Simplicity.

Dressed in a faded and old-fashioned gown,
She, with her prattle so sweet, captivated me.
Gladly forgetting the belles of the town,
Love in a cottage I fancied awaited me;
Sighing no longer for fortune and fame,
Life seemed to dance with renewed elasticity;
Out in the meadows I whispered, "Be mine!"
"What is your income?" asked Little Simplicity.

Oh! disenchantment, to ask what I earned,
I, who had been such a dutiful slave to her,
Vainly I begged she would then see returned
All the odd presents (unpaid for) I gave to her.
This small adventure was ten years ago,
Still am I verging on genteel mendicity,
Five little pledges of love I can show—
Wonder how many has Little Simplicity!

WHAT THE WOLF HID.

We were standing at the window watching Lion, the house-dog, burying a bone in the dead leaves near the fence.

'Why does he do that?" asked my little cousin.

'Animal instinct,' replied my father, to whom the question was addressed. 'He has more dinner than he cares to eat just now, and so puts away some for the next time. Other animals do the same thing sometimes. I once knew an old lady who when a child had a singular adventure in connection with this same instinct.'

Of course there was an immediate demand for the story. Father teased us for a little while, and then he told it, as follows:

Sixty or seventy years ago, (my friend's father was a pioneer in the region bordering on the Ohio river. He and his son were cutting wood in the forest one day, and Polly, then a little girl of five years old or so, was playing near them while they worked.

When the time came to go home, Polly was nowhere to be seen.

'That's strange,' said her father. 'She always obeys so well. I don't see how she could have strayed off.'

'She wouldn't have gone home without telling us,' said her brother. 'Look! here's her sun-bonnet full of nuts. She must be somewhere around.'

They looked again and again in every direction, calling, 'Polly! Polly!' all in vain. There were no Indians living near, but wolves and panthers were plenty, and only the winter before the father and son had killed two bears in an attack on the cow-house. So they began to feel seriously alarmed. Presently the brother, looking about, espied an odd-looking heap of leaves on the farther slope of the hill, where no wind could possibly have tossed them. He went to have a closer look at it. Carelessly throwing aside a portion of the heap, he uncovered, to his joyful surprise, a bit of Polly's red frock.

'Father, come here,' he called, and in a moment more they had the child safe and sound, but fast asleep, in their arms.

'That's strange,' said her father once more. 'John, take Polly home. I'm going to stay here, and see if I can't find out what this means. She never covered herself up this way, I'm certain. Come back as quick as you can, and bring your rifle with you. Here, hand me mine before you go.'

So saying, he piled the leaves up neatly once more, putting a small log of wood into the place where the child had lain. He then crouched down behind a fallen tree near by to see what would happen. He did not have long to wait. John had scarcely time to return, almost out of breath with the haste he had made, when the soft patter of paws was heard on the dry leaves, and they saw three gray wolves approaching at full trot, with another slightly in advance leading the way. The wolf in front led his comrades straight to the heap of leaves, and, scratching eagerly, quickly uncovered the buried log. His dismay was almost comical to behold. He sniffed and smelled and turned his head this way and that in utter bewilderment. How a dainty little girl, plump and soft, and just suited to the taste of a wolf who enjoys a good dinner, could suddenly turn into a great uneatable log of wood was too much for him to understand. He finally gave the problem up in despair, and turned to his companions, cowering like a beaten hound.

There were some sharp barks of disappointment, followed by snarls, as the three guests, who had evidently been bidden to a feast which was not forthcoming, expressed their indignation at the supposed hoax. The other wolf only whined dolefully, but in vain, for the three fell upon him, and in less time than it takes to tell of it, tore him into pieces, and began to devour him. They did not finish the meal, however, for the two rifles behind the log cracked once and again, and all three wolves lay dead beside the comrade whom they had punished so terribly.

'I have every reason to believe this story literally true,' continued my father; 'and the other day I told it to E. S. Ellis, the well-known writer of stories of western adventure. 'I have no doubt it happened just as you heard it,' he said. 'The incident is uncommon, but not unknown in natural history. My grandfather knew a lumberman who went to sleep in the woods in northern New York, and was awakened by a panther covering him with leaves. He lay still till the animal got through and went off, when he jumped up and left too. He didn't wait for the panther to come back.'"—Harper's Young People.

Ten cigars a day will do the business at last. Twenty will do it a good deal sooner. Matt. Carpenter used to buy two dollars' worth of cigars every day for his own consumption. Result: Bright's disease. Ben. Hill smoked constantly. A cancerous affection of the mouth carried him off.

A forger who was sent to the Pennsylvania penitentiary in 1852, and has just been released, finds that his house and lot then worth $1500 now gives him a fortune of $40,000, owing to the increase in the value of land. He ought to be able to lead an honest life on that sum.

A Montana woman sued for a divorce because her husband kissed the servant girl. "You want this man punished?" asked the judge. "I do," said she. "Then," said the judge, "I shall not divorce you from him."

Wishing to pay his friend a compliment, a Parisian remarked: "I hear you have a very industrious wife." "Yes," replied his friend, with a melancholy smile, "she's always finding something for me to do."

AFTER MARRIAGE.

One frequent cause of trouble in married life is a want of openness in business matters. A husband marries a pretty, thoughtless girl, who has been used to taking no more thought as to how she should be clothed than the lilies of the field. He begins by not liking to refuse any of her requests. He will not hint, so long as he can help it, at care in trifling expenses—he does not like to associate himself in her mind with disappointments and self-denials. And she, who would be willing enough in the sweet eagerness of her girlish love to please, to give up any whims or fancies of her own whatever, falls into habits of careless extravagance, and feels herself injured when, at last, a remonstrance comes. How much wiser would have been perfect openness in the beginning.

'We have just so much money to spend this summer. Now, shall we arrange the matters thus and thus?' was the question I heard a very young husband ask his still younger bride, not long ago; and all the womanhood in her answered to the demand upon it, and her help at planning and counseling proved not a thing to be despised, though hitherto she had fed upon the roses, and lain among the lilies of life.' I am speaking not of marriages that are no marriages—where Venus has married Vulcan, because Vulcan prospered at his forge—but marriages where two true hearts have set out together, for love's sake, to learn the lessons of life and to live together till death shall part them. And one of the first lessons for them to learn is to trust each other entirely. The most frivolous girl of all 'the rosebud garden of girls,' if she truly loves, acquires something of womanliness from her love, and is ready to plan and help and make her small sacrifices for the general good.—Our Continent.

A LIME-KILN CLUB OBITUARY.

'It am my painful dooty,' said the president, as he opened the meeting, 'to inform you dat death has again invaded our circle. Brudder Slipback Burbanks of Syracuse, N. Y., am no mo' on airth. He breathed his last three days ago, after an illness of sixteen days. What axshun will de club take in de matter?'

'I move dat we send de widder a resolushun ob sympathy,' announced Judge Cadaver.

'I reckon dat we had better resolve dat de club hab lost a shinin' light,' timely added Pickles Smith.

'De club will neither resolve nor for'd any resolusiuns ob sympathy,' remarked the president. 'De widder an' chill'en can't eat a resolushun, eben it written in blue ink. De seckretary will mail her a ten-dollar greenback from de club funds, an' express de hope dat she am doin' well under de circumstances.

'Dis club hasn't lost no shinin' light by de death ob Brudder Burbanks. He was no shiner. Fact am, he was a werry common sort ob a hump-backed cull'd pussun, and it took him as long to add seven an' eight togeder as it would odder men to airn two dollars. He was accomplished in nothin'; he excelled only in killin' time when at work by de day. He would be no better off if we pronounced forty lyin' eulogies on his character. He can be no wuss off if we tell de honest truf. De usual emblem ob sorrow will be hung to de knob ob de inner doah fur de space ob two weeks, an' we will remember Brudder Burbanks as extremely good-natured, eben if extremely lazy.'

Governor-elect Butler, of Massachusetts, rises at six o'clock in the morning and takes a walk through the beautiful grounds of his Lowell home before breakfast. After that meal, with a little boquet in his button-hole and a big one in his hand, he drives to the depot and indulges in his "regular morning excitement," namely, to see how near he can come to missing the train and yet not miss it; and to catch the rear steps of the last car, just as it rushes by the end of the platform, seems to give him more pleasure than a $1,000 retainer. During the day at his office he is usually in a good humor, but when something desperately annoying occurs he is sure to exclaim that such work never was seen before "since Adam was a boy."

A Leadville preacher is visiting in Philadelphia, and some brother clergymen, noticing that he did not carry a watch, asked him how he managed to time himself during his sermons. "Oh, that is simple enough," replied the Leadville apostle. "I keep right on until the revolvers begin to click, and then I know it is time to stop."—Philadelphia News.

"What is this, my son? How is this, my son? Why is this, my son?" asks a fond parent. "Your school report for last month said, 'Conduct, exemplary,' while for this month it reads, 'Conduct—execrable.' What did you do?" "Just what I did the month before, only the master noticed me."

A very quick child made an observation to her governess the other day which had a great deal of truth in it. "How is it, my dear," inquired the lady, "that you do not understand this simple thing?" She answered with a perplexed look, "I have so many things to learn that I have no time to understand."

A member of the Northampton High School in giving a quotation in an essay illustrating a topic in rhetoric, prefaced it by stating, "and Ibid says."

'Humph!' muttered Fogg, when he read in the hotel register, 'John Smith and lady,' 'wonder why he didn't bring his wife with him!'

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1882.

GEN. BUTLER announces with becoming solemnity that in making up his staff, he will "strictly respect the constitution and the laws." This is reassuring, and we hope he will continue in that way. Heretofore it has not been necessary for incoming Governors to announce their intention not to break the laws.

A SAD EXAMPLE of human weakness was brought to light at New York last Saturday night, by the arrest for drunkenness of John Tobin, who was picked up in a destitute condition. Tobin was formerly a wholesale liquor dealer, went into speculation, became president of the Hudson River Railroad, and was reported to be worth $5,000,000. Vanderbilt got his place as president of the railroad, his fortune began to decline, and in a few years he became a dissolute beggar. Such is the melancholy work which rum does for a man.

CHALMERS, the Mississippian of Fort Pillow fame, who was kicked out of the present Congress, knows how it is himself, now. He has been in Congress for several years when he did not belong there, and when he was put out his Bourbon friends turned the cold shoulder upon him, whereupon he promptly turned his coat and sought re-election as an "Independent," backed by leading Republicans at Washington—more's the shame to them. But those who formerly counted him in regardless of the vote were equally ready to count him out this time, and have done so. He received a majority of the votes cast, but in the returns some 1500 of his votes were counted for "J. R. Chamblers," thus defeating him. He will seek redress at the hands of Congress, but it will be "good enough for him" if he don't get it. Let him eat his own sauce.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR took an important step bearing on the star route cases last Saturday, by removing from office Marshal Henry, Postmaster Ainger and Assistant Postmaster Parker of Washington, George E. Spencer, government director of the Union Pacific railroad, and M. D. Helm, foreman of the Congressional Record, for having giving aid and comfort to the star route thieves. The removals were made at the request of George Bliss, attorney for the government in the star route trials, backed by a vigorous letter from Attorney General Brewster, and have caused great excitement at Washington, where the parties are all well known. The President's action shows that the government is in earnest in its attempt to punish the conspirators, and that sympathy for them will not be countenanced among government officials. Marshal Henry was an intimate friend of President Garfield.

CONGRESS will reassemble next Monday, and the session will be an important one in one respect at least, if in no other, and that is in the line of action to be pursued by the Republicans. They have a working majority now, and upon their action will depend in a large measure the success of the party in the next Presidential campaign. But they must remember that he serves his party best who serves his country best. No sort of political clap-trap will answer. The members must relegate Robeson and the other bosses to the back-most seats, and by prompt and intelligent action on the questions of civil service reform, reduction of taxation, revision of the tariff, and other pressing questions, show that they understand and are equal to the demands of the hour. Doing this, they can give up the lead to the Democrats next spring without any fears as to the future success of the party.

The Canadian Pacific Railroad has increased its capital stock this week from $15,000,000 to $100,000,000.

If the rubber factories close this month as agreed 40,000 people will be thrown out of employment in New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Jersey.

Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera, "Iolanthe," was produced simultaneously at New York and London last Saturday, with great success. It is predicted that it will be a greater success, even, than "Pinafore."

A Pennsylvania man put some sticks of dynamite in the stove oven to dry last Saturday, and went off. When he returned he found his house, wife and two children in ruins, and another child badly injured.

FIRES.—The brick depot of the Connecticut River Railroad at Willimansett was burned Tuesday morning, presumably by tramps. ——There was a $240,000 fire in the oil works at Greenpoint, L. I., Sunday evening.

Nails made of Bessemer steel promise to supplant the iron nail. The steel article is stiffer and tougher, and so much lighter that the added cost per pound will be more than balanced by the increased number. A company has been formed at Pittsburg for their manufacture, and others are likely to follow.

Last year the aldermen of Brooklyn, N. Y., passed an elevated railroad bill over the mayor's veto, and in the face of an injunction from the courts. They were sentenced to jail for contempt of court, and the upper courts have now sustained the sentence, so that they will have to go to jail for from 10 to 30 days apiece. Their action will not seem quite so funny to them now as it did.

I give you notice that you who think you can make politics a trade must give it up, or men who respect themselves will not take nominations at your hands. The late election has given the Democratic party one more chance, and the last chance it will ever have, if it proves faithless to the trust.—Congressman Hewitt, to New York Democrats.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Winter has come.

Now for sleighrides.

Also for candy pulls.

The last month of 1882.

Look out for snow-balls.

Advent Sunday to-morrow.

After Thanksgiving, physic.

The snow makes the livery men happy.

The stores are taking on their holiday attire.

Five Sundays and five JOURNALS this month.

The mercury dropped to within two degrees of zero Tuesday morning.

A mild winter is predicted by Gen. Hazen, head of the signal service.

There will be a transit of Venus across the sun's face next Wednesday.

Snow shovels have had their initiation into the season's work this week.

The snow has spoiled the prospective skating, but it gives the sleds a chance.

Fred Mitchell of Boston has returned to his former position as clerk in Hitchcock's drug and news store.

The days are approaching the shortest of the year, and to-morrow will mark a decrease of just six hours in length.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society will be held at the Weeks House next Monday, at 2 o'clock p. m.

A crack in the underpinning of Lawyer Strong's new block has necessitated the shoring up of the front, until additional supports era put in.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Blanchard celebrated the 30th anniversary of their marriage with a pleasant family gathering at their home on Thursday.

The children at the State Primary School were treated to a pleasant stereopticon entertainment Thursday evening, given by C. W. Eddy and son of Ware.

Rev. A. W. Colver, who preached at the Congregational church last Sunday, has remained in town this week, and will supply the pulpit again to-morrow.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Library Association, for the election of officers, will be held at their rooms next Monday evening, at 7.30 o'clock.

The addition to C. L. Gardner's law office on Church street is completed, and will be ready for the finishing touches as soon as the walls are dry. A new floor has been laid throughout the building.

There will be a public installation of officers-elect of Thomas Lodge by D. D. G. M. J. M. Cochran at the lodge rooms next Monday evening at 7½ o'clock. All Masons and friends are invited to be present.

Quite a pool of blood was found on the sidewalk in front of the Nassowanno House Sunday morning, the result of a drunken street row at a late hour Saturday night, in which one "coon's" head got pretty well cut up.

The result of the late election is felt favorably in Palmer a'ready, one good old-time Democrat having given his house a long-needed coat of paint since that event, doubtless because of the good times which he believes to be near at hand.

Geo. W. Ely of Wilbraham has rented the front part of G. L. Hitchcock's new store, in the recently built addition to the Nassowanno Block, and will in a few days open with a stock of paper hangings, having bought out that part of J. & W. Evans's stock. He will also do an insurance business.

We shall publish next week a letter from F. T. Wallace, Esq., of Cleveland, O., which will be of special interest to our readers, recalling, as it does, many names and events connected with the past history of this town, of which Mr. Wallace was a resident thirty years ago. The JOURNAL is indebted to Mr. Wallace for its name, and for much of the financial and other aid which gave it its first start.

Thanksgiving travel has been unusually heavy this year, but the trains were mostly on time, or nearly so. The 3.48 p. m. train for Boston on Wednesday consisted of 19 cars, and went through in two sections, the first one having 9 drawing room cars. The fast evening express for Boston also went through in two sections, over an hour behind time. The steamboat train from the north came in nearly three hours late.

Thursday was a model Thanksgiving day, with its bright sunshine, clear and comfortable air and good sleighing, and there seemed to be a prevailing spirit of good cheer and thankfulness which accorded well with the day. A good-sized congregation assembled at the Congregational church in the forenoon and listened to an excellent sermon by Rev. O. R. Hunt; and the places of business were closed generally in the afternoon.

The arrangements for distributing mail matter in the post office have been greatly improved since moving into the new office. The old boxes have been converted into a convenient rack for sorting letters, and a new frame has been put in for holding mail pouches, with a label over each pouch, which greatly facilitates the work of distribution. Taken all in all, the office is a very convenient one, and will be quite handsome when the painters have done their work.

A session of the probate court was held in Palmer on Tuesday, at which Judge Gideon Wells of Springfield was appointed administrator of the estate of Charles O. Chapin of that city, and Mary Fahey administratrix of the estate of Dennis Shea of Palmer. The estate of J. P. Murphy of Palmer was represented insolvent, and George Robinson and George H. Newton were appointed commissioners to settle it. The name of Mary J. Bond was changed to that of Josephine M. Mossier, and the will of Hezekiah Ferry was proved, Ann Frances Dix executrix.

"The Old Cross; or, the Dogs of the Forest," a new and thrilling drama, will be presented at Wales Hall this evening by the Wellesley & Sterling Combination, as will be seen by their advertisement in another column. This company comes here under an arrangement with the Palmer Dramatic Club, which guarantees the excellence of the company and the play, while the comments of the press wherever the company has appeared are of such a complimentary character as to indicate that the play is one well worth seeing. The drama will be preceded by a farce.

Before the district court on the 24th ult. John Hutchinson paid fine and costs amounting to $4.98 for drunkenness. On Tuesday Lewis H. Betts of Stamford, Conn., was brought before the court for unlawfully driving a team owned by J. W. Weeks. Upon examination he was found to have escaped from the insane retreat at Hartford, to which he was returned by officials to whom Sheriff Palmer telegraphed. Yesterday morning Charles Collins was up for being a common drunkard, and was sent to the house of correction for two months.

We frequently read of fatal mistakes made by drug clerks in compounding prescriptions, in consequence of having deadly poisons on their shelves by the side of harmless drugs. With a view to avoiding all possibility of an error of this kind, G. L. Hitchcock has had a closet made in a not over-convenient location in his drug store, wherein he keeps his poisonous drugs of every description, and the most careless clerk could not now use a dangerous drug there, without knowing that he was doing so. It would be a good thing if druggists generally would adopt some plan of this kind.

The whip manufacturers at Westfield, with many other manufacturers, have signed an agreement not to ship freight over the Boston & Albany Railroad, and to instruct parties sending them raw material to ship by other lines. This action has been taken because of trouble with the local agent of the road, B. B. Adams, Jr., who is said not to be very popular, and who has charged the whip men for extra baggage on the sample packages of whips taken out by agents—such a charge being made nowhere else in the country, it is said—and has treated the whip men abruptly and discourteously when approached on the subject, while the higher officers of the road show no inclination to remedy the matter. Mr. Adams was connected with the B. & A. road here before going to Westfield, being a son of B. B. Adams, formerly station agent here.

The Massachusetts Central Railroad has a new project in view, as will be seen from its petition to the Legislature published in another column. Its plans are thus detailed by the Boston Traveller: The company has in view the construction of a line from Bondsville (in Palmer) to the state line, and thence to Ancram, N. Y., and from that point, over the Poughkeepsie, Hartford and Boston railroad secure an entrance to Poughkeepsie and connections with the Erie and Pennsylvania systems. The proposed route is 197 miles, 82 miles of which, to Bondville, is practically finished, the road-bed from Jefferson's to that point being almost all ready for the rails. The cost of the entire road from Boston (counting of course the new road only required) will, it is estimated, be not far from $5,000,000, and with this sum a double track from Bondville to Ancram can be built. This project is the same that was agitated 10 years ago by prominent Boston capitalists, but that at the time was given up because of the financial panic. Prominent New York parties are now interested in it and intend to put it through if in any way possible. They anticipate considerable opposition from the existing lines, but are amply prepared to meet it. The line proposed will be considerably shorter than the New York and New England, and will have besides many advantages in the way of easy grades and excellent terminals. So far as the old Massachusetts Central line to Northampton is concerned, it is intended to finish this entirely independent of the new project, and other parties will furnish capital for the same upon a basis which will be made known to the security holders at an early date.

The friends of Dr. and Mrs. J. K. Warren, to the number of one hundred or more, gave them a genuine surprise visit on Monday evening, the 10th anniversary of their marriage, and presented them with a Rogers group, "Going for the Doctor," a handsome picture, "The Jerseys," a silver mounted fruit dish, pickle castor, and other articles, including an elegant tin surgical knife. The presentation speech was made by S. S. Taft, Esq., who voiced in fitting words the good wishes of the Doctor's many friends, and their sincere regret at the prospect of his removal to Worcester. The Doctor replied in a feeling manner, expressing his own regret at leaving the scenes of so many happy years and the friends who have become so dear. Dr. Rand of Monson then stepped to the front and read some very "pat" verses, composed for the occasion, and presented the Doctor and his wife with an elaborate tin hat and bonnet, fresh from one of the Monson manufactories, following these up with an elegant illustrated edition of Longfellow's works, in two volumes. The occasion was a very pleasant one to all present, and a complete surprise to the Doctor. The verses read by Dr. Rand were as follows:

We come to meet you
Dear friends, and greet you,
  This anniversary day;
To bring good cheer
We have gathered here,
  And brighten your care-dimmed way.

For the rolling years
With their hopes and fears
  Are hurrying you along;
And the vernal leaves
And the harvest sheaves
  Ten times have come and gone.

Ten years—that must seem
Like a fleeting dream,
  Through sunny and stormy weather,
Since the vows that wed
Were solemnly said,
  And you started in life together.

Ten years—full of ever
Increasing endeavor;
  Of trial, but not complaint;
A decade of life,
With success more rife
  Than visions of youth could paint.

So witness here
These children dear;
  So witness the flowers that bloom;
So witness all these
Arrangements of ease,
  Which beautify this sweet home.

Right glad was the morn
When Alice was born,
  So spunky and active and bright;
Whose father and mother
Each claims that the other
  Transmitted some tendencies slight.

Then Bertha appeared,
Whose sweetness endeared
  Her to all, by her winning way;
And the little pair,
So happy and fair,
  Are the joy of your home to-day.

I had almost forgot
The one who "is not,"
  Whose cradle was made of the sod;
Precious bud! plucked from earth
To exhale fragrance forth
  In the beautiful gardens of God.

Doc., wasn't it queer
How you chose out your sphere!
  Who'd think, that from teaching and tillage,
So godly a man
Would deliberately plan
  To overlook preaching for pill-age!

Recall you the ride,
When "Kitty" denied
  You the right to carry one more;
The bridge toward Three Rivers—
The buggy in shivers—
  And you both "smashed" worse than before?

That was when you came here,
A fresh pioneer,
  Direct from the halls of college,
Where you found some who thought
That true wisdom was not
  Exactly the same as knowledge.

You were youthful to view,
And your system was new;
  And Jealousy, green-eyed and wise,
For "the little-pill doctor,"
"The rag-baby doctor,"
  Predicted a speedy demise.

When ridicule failed,
Keen hatred assailed,
  And slander was brought into use;
And the old wrathful clan,
On one sensitive man
  United in heaping abuse.

But with all to oppose,
You steadily rose,
  To triumph with truth and right;
And those who have laughed
At your "sugar craft"
  Have nothing to say to-night.

We thought, when you came
From over the main,
  You'd feel above manual work;
Would make a great fuss,
And keep pestering us,
  With yarns about Dublin or Cork!

It was quite a surprise
To our prejudiced eyes
  To find you as ever before;
The same modest man,
(Save the coupe and span)
  Only rested, and posted up more.

When sick, we've been sure
You would work out a cure,
  And save us, if any one could;
We've trusted your will,
Admired your skill,
  And loved you because you were good.

But, doctor, I fail,
When I try to detail
  You as teacher, counselor, friend.
As dear as a brother,
I know of none other
  On whom I can so much depend.

It's hard to tell whether
We've gathered together
  For mirth or lamenting to-night;
For pleasure and pain
The precedence gain,
  Like alternate darkness and night.

In the midst of our joy
Are the germs of alloy,
  Which threaten the bosom to fill;
The thought of your leaving
Turns gladness to grieving,
  And casts o'er our feelings a chill.

Yet can we do less
Than wish you success,
  In the field toward which you are tending?
I pray to advance it
That catling and lancet
  And needle and probe keep you bending.

But may you ne'er meet
With any to treat,
  Who only in fault-finding pay;
Or quizzical neighbors,
Who lighten your labors
  By carrying round what you say.

May never you find
A nurse, that's inclined
  To question your treatment or plan;
One of those who suppose
That the half that she knows
  Surpasses all wisdom of man.

May you find friends, as dear
As the ones you leave here,
  To cherish your memory bright;
May plenty, who pay,
Keep you busy by day,
  But never disturb you at night.

And, on you, his fond wife
And help-meet in life,
  Adviser and confident friend,
Whose labors of love
Full fealty prove,
  May richest of blessings descend.

May long life and health,
With abundance of wealth
  For every desire be found you;
Weddings silver and gold,
Then diamond, enfold
  An hundred great grand-children round you.

And now, for you both,
I pray that henceforth
  True happiness much may increase;
With nothing to mar
And nothing to jar
  The concord of gladness and peace.

And may your whole life
From sorrow and strife
  Be perfectly free as to-day,
Till the dear arms of Love,
Reaching down from above,
  Shall clasp you and bear you away.

When the sun in the West
Sinks at night to his rest,
  And his long day's journey is o'er;
His light, 'gainst the sky,
Flashes back to the eye
  More glory than ever before.

So when your race is run,
And life's varied tasks done,
  May your influence, rendered divine,
Grow brighter for aye,
When the earth melts away,
  And the stars have forgotten to shine.

BRIMFIELD.

The wedding of Fred. H. Bemis and Carrie Estella, daughter of Alfred G. Lamb, occurred on the evening of Thanksgiving day.

THORNDIKE.

John Dailey and Miss Mary Burns, formerly first soprano at St. Mary's church, were married at the church on Tuesday, a bridal mass being celebrated. The couple then held a reception at the bride's home, and were the recipients of numerous presents, after which they started east on their wedding tour.

HAMPDEN.

An old folks' concert is to be given at the Congregational church some time this month.

L. A. Burleigh has been drawn as juryman for next week's criminal session of the superior court in Springfield.

The churches united in a Thanksgiving and praise meeting at the Baptist church Wednesday evening, in place of the usual service Thanksgiving day.

WEST WARREN.

There were no services in the Methodist church Thursday.

The third lecture in the people's lecture course was given Monday evening by Prof. B. Gill, of Wesleyan academy, on "Factors of Travel." The lecture was an account of humorous incidents that occurred to the Professor during a European trip, and was pronounced very entertaining by all that heard it. The next lecture will be given by E. A. Titus, of Holyoke, on "Swells and Sells," next Tuesday evening.

BONDSVILLE.

The evening school will not meet again till Tuesday, Dec. 12.

Monday's snow gave a few the opportunity of enjoying the first sleigh-ride of the season.

The fall term of schools here finished Wednesday night. Next term commences Dec. 11. The teachers have all gone to their several homes to spend Thanksgiving.

Pupils who have not been tardy or absent during the fall term of the Bondsville intermediate school: Maggie Carmody, Bridget Carmody, Lelia Aldrich, Maggie Shea, Maggie McKelleget, Lizzie Fenton, Sumner O'Regan, Joey Fenton.

WARREN.

Frank Pierce has entered Dr. Hastings' drug store.

John Sherburne has purchased the Hathaway house on School street.

The public library has added a number of books to its collection, which are ready for distribution.

Rev. Mr. Forbes preached in the Methodist church Thanksgiving day, where Union services were held.

Mr. Spooner has purchased a lot on Main street of Mr. E. Fairbanks, and is preparing the ground to build.

Our merchants are getting in large stocks of goods anticipating the holidays, and few towns have as great a variety.

THREE RIVERS.

Funds have been raised for painting the interior of the Baptist church, and work will be begun in a week or so, services being held in the vestry while the work of renovation is going on.

There will be a fellowship meeting in the Baptist church next Wednesday, with services at 10.45 a. m., 2 and 7 p. m. Pastors of the different churches in the Westfield Association will be present and take part in the services.

Quite a number of our young people made an unexpected call upon the pastor of the Baptist church, Rev. F. B. Joy, last Monday evening. After spending an hour or two in a pleasant social manner, C. B. Prince, in behalf of the company, presented Mr. Joy with a beautiful copy of the "Bible Gallery," illustrated by Dore, which was thankfully responded to by the surprised pastor, after which the company retired, leaving behind them the happy influences of this kindly expression of the high esteem in which they hold the pastor and his wife.

MONSON.

New milch cows are in great demand.

Our merchants are arranging for the holidays.

Father Kelley has purchased a splendid bay horse.

It is not a very good time to repair highways now.

Albert Alberty is a Long man, 6 ft. 2 inches, but he is not representative.

Geo. Burdick has a colt 16 months old which weighs 703 pounds, and is well broken to harness.

Parley Anderson and Hamilton White are drawn as jurors for the next term of criminal court in Springfield.

John A. Orcutt has sold his lately built dwelling house on East Water street to Mrs. Truman Bradway.

When does the anniversary of your marriage occur? Let your friends know, that they may surprise you.

Josh Billings has not lectured here this season, but Billings Pease has purchased James Pendergast's brown mare.

If a man has a hennery he is not always sure of eggs Thanksgiving week. They seem to have been merged into chickens.

Dr. G. W. Andrews continues the insurance business of C. R. Dudley, under the firm name of Dudley and Andrews.

Civil service reform might be practiced in Monson. The mayor of a city ought not to hire himself as street commissioner.

Marcus Alden died last Friday afternoon at his late residence on Green street. He had been ill from congestion of the lungs but a few days.

Monson now has seven regularly ordained ministers living in town, and a prospect that the Universalist parish will furnish the eighth before long.

The many friends of Dr. Warren in this locality sent Longfellow's works to the Doctor on the 10th anniversary of his marriage Monday evening.

A very pleasant party of about 100 attended the skating rink at Central Hall Thanksgiving evening. There will be skating there this evening, also.

The citizens who have met for religious services at Central Hall during the past summer months organized a Universalist parish last Friday evening.

Considering that we have four regular practitioners in medicine, it has been very healthy, or as a certain M. D. once said, "It is distressingly healthy."

Cream-ation seems to be agitated to a great extent by owners of Jerseys, Ayreshires, and other fancy breeds just now; but the Billy goat at Burdickville is the champion butt-er.

Leonard Aldrich is the man who succeeds C. M. Stevens as superintendent at the town farm. Mr. Aldrich has had several years' experience in charge of town farms, and comes well recommended.

Pliny R. Watts, Dr. Rand's assistant, has been employed in the largest jewelry establishment in Portmouth, N. H., for three years past, and is ready for all kinds of clock work at the doctor's office.

Northrop & Ferrill have purchased of P. B. Moore a building lot on the corner of Pearl and State streets, and it seems that corner lots are being considered proportionally valuable, as in other places.

The friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Anderson called last Thursday evening, and by ample and appropriate mementoes and gifts reminded them of the 15th anniversary of their marriage.

The slight snow of Sunday evening was utilized by the farmers in drawing out wood from the woods to the roadway, for convenience in hauling to market when the larger supply of snow shall have arrived.

At Newton's auction rooms last Saturday evening, one man, an apparent stranger, asked if he could bid, and was told that he might have the privilege, when he immediately said, "I'll bid you good night," and walked out.

The young lady who couldn't surmise why she attracted so much attention as she came out of the post office the other day is informed that possibly she forgot to put on her oversack after she had arranged that bundle of newspapers.

Lester Howe fell from the great beams in the barn last Saturday and received severe injuries, dislocating his shoulder, injuring his leg, and otherwise sustaining a shock to his system which will undoubtedly lay him up for several weeks.

How nice it must be to hang around in the cold at the door-way of a Sunday night, and as the audience begin to come out of church, for him to quietly throw away his quid of tobacco, and just as he has his arm all crooked, see her walk off with another fellow!

Professor Deichmann has a class of students that show great proficiency in the study of the German language, and it is possible that if a sufficient number desire it, the Professor will form a class in Spanish, of which he is a fluent speaker, and having been a resident in South America, it has given him much experience in speaking and teaching.

Allen Thresher of Hampden has a new method of converting wood into charcoal, by means of kilns, which are made of brick, and 80,000 brick are used in the construction of the kiln; also large iron hoops, 8½ feet long, four inches wide and of ⅝ths iron, are used to hold the works. There are also two doors of iron, 7 feet by 6, made of ¼ in iron, with heavy hinges and handles. The cavity for receiving the wood is 5 feet in diameter, and the kiln is capable of holding several thousand bushels of charcoal. The iron work was all done by George W. Burdick, and is a fine specimen of his artistic skill.

About 75 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. David Letter gave them a genuine surprise last Monday evening, it being the 10th anniversary of their marriage. They were invited to a neighbor's to spend the evening, but about 7.30 o'clock a messenger brought word that they had company at home who wished to see them, and on their arrival they found the house warmed and an ample repast furnished. An easy chair with tidy, was presented to Mrs. L., a napkin ring to their daugther, and a foot-rest to Mr. L., with cake basket, nut picks, etc., for both. All enjoyed the evening and wished the couple many years of happines for the future.

Several years ago Lorenzo Dow, the eccentric preacher, visited the western part of this town, and with Elder Bennett conducted a Saturday evening prayer meeting. At the close of the meeting Mr. Dow gave out word that if any one wished him to preach on the morrow from any particular text, if they would hand it to him on a slip of paper as he entered the door of the Baptist church he would have that for the subject of his discourse. In the morning, as Mr. Dow entered the door, a paper was handed him, and entering the pulpit, after prayer and singing, he held up the paper, to the audience, relating the circumstances of his receiving it, and noting that there was nothing on it; and from that he took his text. There was nothing on the paper, "and God created the world and all therein out of nothing. Elderly people now living say it was a masterly effort and one long to be remembered.

WARE AND VICINITY.

A delegation from Eden Lodge, F. & A. M., visited Belchertown Lodge last week.

A party of about 20 gave a surprise visit to Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong a few days since, leaving remembrances of their visit.

One of G. C. Holden's pair of black horses died this week. It has been in the past one of the most valuable horses in town.

Two grand balls the night before Thanksgiving. At Music Hall there were about 75 couples, and at the Firemen's Hall about 60.

A Frenchman by the name of Lorrell, of Ware, and a man from Bondsville, were severely injured a few days since at Gilbertville by the breaking of a staging.

One Thanksgiving turkey was found to have a glass stopper 1 1-2 inches long and 5-8 inch in diameter in its crop. It has the appearance of ground glass, from the action of the gravel stones upon it.

Preparations are being made by parties here to see the transit of Venus over the sun's disk next Wednesday, visible for a little more than six hours, commencing at 19 minutes past 9 in the morning.

James Kane met with a severe accident while roller skating in Music Hall. He fell, striking in some way, so that he was rendered insensible, and for several hours was completely paralyzed. He was taken from the hall to the office of Dr. Quirk, and was so far recovered as to be able to walk the next morning.

The schools are to commence again next Monday. The grammar school is to be divided. Miss Emma V. Hall, who has been assistant the past year, will take a part of the school into the new building on North street. Miss Fish will take her school from the High street building into the remaining room in the new building. There is to be another primary school opened in the room that has been occupied by Miss Fish. Mr. Haskins, from New Salem, has been engaged to teach at Ware Center.

A CARD.—To the many esteemed friends in Palmer and Monson who so thoughtfully remembered us last Monday eve, upon the occasion of our tenth anniversary, we desire to express our thanks. We were so completely taken by surprise that words failed us, and even now we find it no easy matter to express to you in words our gratitude for your many kind expressions of friendship and appreciation, not only tendered at the present time but during all our stay in Palmer, and it is with sorrow and regret that we are so soon to leave you and make our home among strangers, not for lack of friendly ties and pleasant relationships here, but because the exposure and weariness incident to a country physician's life is more than we feel able longer to endure. We shall always cherish with pleasure the memory of our friends and associations here, and shall ever be glad to see you in our new home, and at whatever hour you may come, you will always find the latch string out, and receive a cordial welcome within.

DR. AND MRS. J. K. WARREN.

Palmer, Dec. 1, 1882.

No man knows what a ministering angel his wife is until he comes home one day, suffering with a dreadful cold and she happens to have a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the house.

C. L. Moore, opposite Court Square, Springfield, takes pictures so quick that a head rest is not needed. This is almost as quick as lightning.

Napoleon Labonte, several years French clerk at Fay's store, has taken a position with O. D. Morse of the "Central Shoe Store," Springfield.

A good Fisher piano, rosewood case, 7 octave, in perfect order, can be bought for $75 at James Lewis' Temple of Music, Pynchon St., Springfield.

"The Old Corner Book Store" of Springfield offers the latest style books, and has a very large assortment of juvenile books, family Bibles and holiday books.

Stimpson, 396 Main street, Springfield, offers a good Smith organ, all in good shape, for $18. They have just received a fresh lot of Ithaca organs, which are unrivalled.

The quieting, rest-procuring qualities, as well as the far-reaching and powerful curative effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, render it the very best remedy known for lung diseases.

Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, are offering black silks for $1.50, which will compare favorably with any $2 goods shown elsewhere. They are a part of a large purchase that cannot be replaced to sell less than $2.

Haynes & Co., Springfield clothiers, offer 1000 overcoats, your choice for $12.50; leading 300 pairs boys' school pantaloons 50c., 65c., 75c., $1, and $1.25. Special bargains in boys' overcoats $1.50 to $1.90.

Stimpson, 396 Main street, Springfield, offers a piano case melodeon for $17.50, in first-class shape. He also offers a piano, four round corners, top moulding, carved legs, French damper, all perfect, cost $375, for $158.

You who lead sedentary lives will find great relief from the constipation with which you so often suffer by taking Simmons Liver Regulator. It is a simple, harmless, vegetable compound, sure to relieve you, and can do no injury.

FACTS WORTH REMEMBERING.—There is no danger of dying from heart disease without knowing it for months, and generaliy years, beforehand. The symptoms are plain and often repeated. There will be no danger at all if Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator is taken in time and according to directions. It will never fail to cure all forms of heart disease.

PERFECTION.—Herrick's Sugar Coated Vegetable Liver Pills are really "perfection," because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, sudorific and alterative at the same time. With these rare pills in your house you can do without salts, seidlitz powders, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna, and so on. You want none of these. Herrick's Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and what is better, may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman or child as well as the robust man. 4w—36

We would call the special attention of our readers to the notice of Dr. J. W. Dewey, which may be found in another column of this paper. The Dr. has been permanently located in Boston for nearly 20 years, more than 10 years of which time he was associated with old Dr. S. S. Fitch, renowned throughout the United States for his success in the treatment of Pulmonary Consumption Heart Disease, and other chronic complaints. Dr. Dewey strictly adheres to the system of treatment founded by his predecessor more than 50 years ago. As the Doctor has received several very urgent requests from old patients in W. Brookfield and Ware to visit these places, he has concluded to do so once in two weeks as stated in notice.

UNITY OF ACTION, concord, sympathy and good-fellowship are admirable traits in human character; but they will not heal our physical infirmities. Catarrh, for example, stubbornly resists their effects or influence. In fact this malady withstands all of its would-be destroyers, except Ely's Cream Balm. "Solitary and alone" this Balm stands as the only recognized and infallible specific for Catarrh. "For fifteen years," says J. B. Chase, St. Denis Hotel, B'wy and 11th Street, N. Y., "I have been greatly annoyed with a disgusting catarrh. My sense of smell, not to mention other troubles, became much impaired. A thorough use of Ely's Cream Balm has cured me of these troubles." It is not a liquid or snuff, and is easily applied. Only 50 cents a package. 2w36

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions for authority to locate, construct, operate and maintain a branch or extension of its railroad from a point upon its present line in the town of Palmer, and thence running into or through the towns of Ludlow, Wilbraham, Chicopee, West Springfield, Westfield, Southwick, Russell, Granville, Blandford, Tolland, Sandisfield, Otis, Monterey, Great Barrington, Egremont, and the City of Holyoke, or any of them, to a point in the boundary line between said Commonwealth and the State of New York, or the State of Connecticut.

And your petitioner prays that the authority herein asked for may be granted to said Massachusetts Central Railroad Company, or to such new corporation as may be formed by the consolidation, for which authority is asked by a petition of said Company heretofore made, dated November 2, 1882; and it further prays that this application may be taken as in addition to said petition.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 23, 1882.

DR. J. W. DEWEY,

(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)

Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,

Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at

THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,
WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

E. J. WOOD
Bank Building, Palmer, Mass. 4

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions:

First—For an extension of the time for the location and construction of its railroad.

Second—For authority to issue preferred stock, first and second mortgage bonds, and certificates of indebtedness, or any of them, in such amounts and for such purposes as may be necessary in order to obtain money for the payment of its liabilities, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad.

Third—For authority to consolidate with other railroad corporations, upon such terms and conditions as shall be agreed upon by the parties interested; or to form, by means of such consolidation, a new corporation, with such powers and privileges as may be necessary in order to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance of a railroad such as is contemplated by the charter of your petitioner and the several acts in addition thereto.

Fourth.—For such other or further legislation as may be necessary to enable your petitioner to obtain money for the payment of its indebtedness, and for the completion and equipment of its railroad in accordance with its charter and several acts in addition thereto.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 2, 1882.

Baby's Picture.

Two little shoes,
Out at the toes,
Tooting about,
Where'er mother goes;
Soiled gingham apron
Put on just now—
They do get so dirty,
No one knows how;
Little black face,
Black each wee hand—
Been making mud pies,
And playing in sand;
Dear precious head,
Touzzled and rough;
Bright laughing eyes,
Can't see enough;
This is our baby
All day.

Two little feet,
Rosy and bare;
Two chubby hands,
Folded in prayer;
Tired little head
Dark ringed with hair;
Soft baby face,
Dimpled and fair;
Starry bright eyes
Heavy with sleep;
Silvery sweet voice,
Lisping—"Father us keep,"
This is our baby
At night.

WHAT A PINT OF ALE DID.

A Manchester calico printer was, on his wedding day, asked by his wife to allow her two half-pints of ale a day as her share of extra comforts. He made the bargain, but not cheerfully, for though a drinker himself (fancying, no doubt, that he could not well do without it) he would have preferred a perfectly sober wife. They both worked hard. John loved his wife, but he could not break away from his old associations at the ale-house, and when not in the factory or at his meals, he was with his boon companions.

His wife made the small allowance meet her housekeeping expenses—keeping her cottage neat and tidy, and he could not complain that she insisted upon her daily pint of ale, while he, very likely, drank two or three quarts. They had been married a year, and the morning of their wedding anniversary John looked with real pride upon the neat and comely person of his wife, and, with a touch of remorse in his look and tone, he said:

'Mary, we've had no holiday since we were wed, an' only that I haven't a penny in the world, we'd take a jaunt to the village and see the mother.'

'Would thee like to go, John?' she asked.

There was a tear with her smile, for it touched her heart to hear him speak tenderly as in the olden time.

'If thee'd like to go, John, I'll stand treat.

'Thou stand treat, Mary! Hast thou got a fortin' left thee?'

'Nay, but I've got the pint of ale,' said she.

'Got what, wife?'

'The pint of ale,' she repeated.

Thereupon she went to the hearth, and from beneath one of the stone flags drew forth a stocking from which she poured upon the table the sum of 365 three-pences ($22.81) exclaiming:

'See, John, thee can have the holiday.'

'What is it?' he asked, in blank amazement.

'It is my daily pint of ale, John.'

He was conscience-stricken as well as amazed and charmed.

'Mary, hasn't thee had thy share? Then I'll have no more from this day.'

And he was as good as his word. They had their holiday with the old mother, and Mary's little capital, saved from the 'pint of ale,' was the seed from which, as the years rolled on, grew shop, factory, warehouse, country seat, and carriage—with health, happiness, peace, and honor.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

Several winters ago a woman was coming out from some public building where the heavy doors swung back and made egress difficult. A street urchin sprung to the rescue, and, as he held the door, she said, "Thank you," and passed on.

"Cracky! d'ye hear that?" said the boy to a companion standing near.

"No; what?"

"Why, that lady in seal-skin said 'thank ye' to the likes o' me."

Amused at the conversation, which she could not help overhearing, the lady turned round and said to him, "It always pays to be polite, my boy; remember that."

Years passed away, and last December, when doing her Christmas shopping, this same woman received an exceptional courtesy from a clerk in Boston, which caused her to remark in a low tone to a friend who was with her: "What a comfort to be civilly treated once in a while—though I don't know as I blame the clerks for being rude during the holiday trade."

The young man's quick ears caught the words, and he said: "Pardon me, madam, but you gave me my first lesson in politeness."

She looked at him in amazement while he related the forgotten incident, and told her that simple "thank you" awakened his first ambition to be something in the world. He went the next morning and applied for a situation as office boy in the establishment where he was now an honored and trusted clerk.

Only two words, dropped into the treasury of street conversation, but they yielded returns of a certain kind more satisfactory than investment in stocks and bonds.—J. B. in Congregationalist.

When people traveled by diligence in France, one traveler in every 335,000 was killed and one in every 30,000 wounded. Now, with railways, one is killed per 5,178,490, and one wounded per 580,450. Stage coach traveling was therefore twenty times as dangerous as the cars.

Horseshoes made of three thicknesses of green rawhide compressed in a steel mould are used to some extent in England. They weigh about a quarter as much as an iron shoe, and are said to wear longer.

A Yale college man announces that he has discovered a perpetual motion machine. His gas meter went ahead registering all summer, although the room was locked up at the beginning of the vacation.

The Gaulois says that Queen Victoria regularly consults the spirit of the late Prince Consort. It's a faithful husband who attends lectures after he is dead.—Courier Journal.

A young lady on being asked where her native place was, replied: "I have none; I am the daughter of a Methodist minister."

The object of all ambition should be to be happy at home. If we are not happy there we cannot be happy elsewhere.

Parents who allow their children to grow up with scrofulous humors bursting from every pore are guilty of a great wrong. Think of them pointed out as branded with a loathsome disease, and you will readily procure them the Cuticura Remedies.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA

and Cuticura Soap externally and Cuticura Resolvent internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c. Sold by all druggists.

Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, Mass.

CATARRH.

Sanford's Radical Cure.

A single dose instantly relieves the most violent sneezing or head colds, clerrs the head as by magic, stops watery discharges from the nose and eyes, prevents ringing noises in the head, cures nervous headache and subdues chills and fever. In chronic catarrh it cleanses the nasal passages of foul mucus, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing when affected, frees the head, throat and bronchial tubes of offensive matter, sweetens and purifies the breath, stops the cough and arrests the progress of catarrh toward consumption.

One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one package, of all druggists for $1. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Weeks & Potter, Boston.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN.

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 43d thousand in press. ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

BY UNIVERSAL ACCORD

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative pill that science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar coated they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

FITS.—A leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.—From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their address and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to adress

ALMOST AS BAD.

WHAT THE PERPLEXED PHYSICIANS DO IN CASES OF EMERGENCY.

"I'll tell you the honest truth," answered the doctor. "Bright's Disease bothers the medical men almost as badly as cancer does. Having passed a certain stage, both straight point to eternity. It may be unprofessional to let out the secret, but whenever a patient comes to me with Bright's Disease, or any kidney trouble acting like it, I tell him to put on BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER without delay."

The doctor spoke by the card. The Capcine goes right to the spot. If you can be helped, the Capcine will do it. Look out for frauds. Is the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster? If so, you are all right. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. Highest awards

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy that I will send two bottles free, together with a valuable treatise on this disease, to any sufferer. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of The Sun are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make The Weekly Sun the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

Address, I. W. ENGLAND, Publisher, 6w35 THE SUN, N. Y. City.

TO PLEASE HER HUSBAND.

WERE THE WORDS OF A GOOD LADY, MRS. HAWKINS, WHO HAS LONG SUFFERED THE PAIN COMMON TO CHRONIC RHEUMATISM. A WOMAN'S PATIENCE AND FORTITUDE WELL SHOWN.

Your reporter found Mrs. Hawkins at 14 Exchange street, New Haven, Conn. "About four years ago," she said, "I was then a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y. I went over one morning to the Jersey City depot to see some friends off who were starting for the West. There was a strong draft of air in the depot, and in standing by the train talking to my friends I caught a severe cold. I had no more than reached my home again when I was taken with a sudden chill, and then fever set in. The outcome of all was that rheumatism settled all over me. I was entirely helpless. From this I have never recovered. You see my hands what a state they are in. Those are all chalky swellings, and my limbs are very bad. While I remained in Brooklyn I tried all sorts of remedies, but I could never gain any relief. My physician said it was no use. I grew very thin and lost all strength. Finally, after coming here, to gratify my husband, I began to use Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and my general health has been better than ever before. I am stronger, have an excellent appetite, which I did not have for a long time. It has helped my rheumatism, and with a thorough trial I am in hopes of recovering completely."

Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY has been successfully used by thousands. It will build up a system that has been run down by overwork. It is the thing for the student and literary man to have at hand, and should be in the home of every mechanic. FAVORITE REMEDY is economical, safe and pleasant. Buy it and try it. 4w35

FINE JOB PRINTING AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

Those Who Never Do Wrong.

'Tis hard to labor from morn till night,
To plough the furrow and pluck the weeds,
For those who poorly the task requite,
And care but little for our needs;
But the hardest work is to get along
With those who never do anything wrong.

You're sure to meet in the course of life
With men and women who freely state
Their own opinions, with yours at strife,
And you may endeavor to set them straight;
But you'll find it wiser to jog along,
Than argue with those who never do wrong.

They go their way, with a smile, no doubt,
At us who suffer such pains and aches
And mental torture, at finding out
That we've committed some grave mistakes;
With pride unbroken, erect and strong,
Are those who never do anything wrong.

You may note their faults, and attempt to prove
Wherein they err, but as well essay
With a cambric needle the rock to move,
That fills the passage, and blocks your way;
You may talk by the hour, with tears in your eyes,
But they'll never confess nor apologize.

They never come with a tearful face,
And tender kisses, to make amends
For wounds inflicted; or say with grace,
"I'm sorry! forgive me, and let's be friends!"
But stern and unyielding they move along,
Convinced they have never done anything wrong.

This is a work-a-day world we're in,
And toils and troubles their round repeat;
But out of the tangles some gold we spin,
And out of the bitter extract some sweet;
But the hardest work is to get along
With those who never do anything wrong!

PALMER THIRTY YEARS AGO.

SOME PLEASANT REMINISCENCES BY A FORMER RESIDENT OF THE TOWN.

Correspondence of the JOURNAL.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 24, 1882.

Editor Palmer Journal:—I have just received at your hands a copy of the JOURNAL, the first save one I have seen in twenty-eight years; that was sent me by a thoughtful lady, Mrs. S. R. Lawrence, a friend of my long since departed wife. This copy awakened a memory of Palmer and its pleasant inhabitants of more than thirty years ago, and I am surprised to find therein so many familiar names. The sight of the JOURNAL produces in me something akin to the feeling of a father whose son comes home on a family visit long after he is twenty-one, and is well settled in life. I feel that I am, or was, a sort of foster father of the JOURNAL, for I was present at its birth, and was permitted to give it the name it has honorably borne ever since, and with other neighbors contributed to furnish its first garments, and wrote some words for it when it first began to talk. Gordon M. Fisk was its editor and proprietor, and the present editor was then a toddling "little shaver" next door to me.

I have a pleasant memory of hundreds of names of men and women that crowd upon my mind when I contemplate my six years' residence in the historical old town. I came to it in 1848, just after the legislative session of that memorable year. I had there become acquainted with Calvin Torrey, representative of Palmer, who during the session had been appointed to a position in the Boston Custom House, by Marcus Morton, collector. I was induced to move to Palmer and take Mr. Torrey's office and business. He had occupied the upper room of a small wooden building at the south-east end of the railroad bridge, nearly opposite Converse's hotel, now perhaps called the Weeks House. Torrey remained in Boston two or three years, when he returned. Samuel L. Fleming, Merrill Barlow, and James G. Allen were then, or subsequently, attorneys at the Depot Village. Enos Calkins, Esquire, was the principal justice of the peace, before whom the Palmer bar practiced. He was a man of extraordinary good sense and legal judgment, upright, honest and fearless. When one undertook to pettifog before him, he would scent it in a moment, and the attorney would get a ruling on his legal proposition something like this: "O, dog's hind leg—there's nothing in that!" Subsequently the office of trial justice was created by general statute, and for several years Gamaliel Collins tried all the cases. Of the principal public events that transpired during the six years of the writer's residence in the town, he recalls the election of Taylor, when the legislature had to be convened, there being no election by the people of Massachusetts, by reason of the majority principle that then prevailed; the visit of Kossuth, who passed through and was greeted at the depot by hundreds, as the train rested a few minutes, he appearing on the platform just long enough to respond gracefully to a few words of salutation addressed to him by the writer as a sort of impromptu spokesman for the people. The miniature speeches may be found in the JOURNAL of that year—somewhere from 1849 to 1852—the exact year I cannot now recall.

About 1852 the State Alms House was located near the Depot Village, which to some extent was attributed to the efforts of the writer. At all events a voluminous correspondence with the commissioners, of which Edward L. Keyes of Dedham was chairman, has been looked at once or twice in the last thirty years to refresh his memory; besides, the town seemed to think he had been of some service in that direction, and in recognition thereof they elected him to the constitutional convention of 1853, for which he has ever felt grateful, as it was the happy opportunity of his early manhood for an extensive personal acquaintance with many prominent men of the State at that time, some of whom became in after years famous in the councils of the nation. There were Governor Briggs, Senator Dawes, Increase Sumner, Chester W. Chapin and E. D. Beach from Western Massachusetts, Charles Sumner, Marcus Morton, Isaac Davis, Benjamin F. Hallet, Henry Wilson, N. P. Banks, Anson Burlingame, Governor Boutwell, Richard H. Dana, Jr., Otis P. Lord, and, last but not least, General Benjamin F. Butler, of whom you have heard in these latter days, from the eastern part of the State. These have been among the foremost of the leaders of the State, and all distinguished during the eventful history of our country for three decades in war, statesmanship and diplomacy.

The calamities that visited the town in the period alluded to were happily few in number; the fire that swept the Depot Village being the severest, though the public mind was horrified in that time by the Norwalk railroad disaster, by which so many persons familiar to the people of the town gave up their lives, especially of distinguished physicians of Springfield and other large towns—a disaster unsurpassed in this country save by that at Ashtabula in 1876. Lastly, in 1853, came the rumblings in Europe which culminated in the Crimean war the following year; and finally, as I bade adieu to Palmer in the fall of 1854, a new party was developing, and after the first Tuesday of November I saw one morning in a Cleveland paper the election returns from Massachusetts, in which I was mystified by the announcement that Gardner, a "Know-Nothing," had been elected governor. What that meant I knew nothing about then.

In those days Jacob B. Merrick was the rich man, the John Jacob Astor of the town. Brown and his sons, Joseph and Andrew, were lords of the great mills at Three Rivers and Duckville, and his daughter, Mrs. Doctor White, and the wives of the sons were cheerful and pleasant ladies. Emelius Bond was the founder of Bondsville, and a friendly man. Esquire Ferrell of Thorndike, and Marble Ferrell, who lived in the cheerful farm house in the valley near where the rivers meet, were prominent and substantial citizens. The Blanchards were enterprising, considerate and valuable neighbors and business men—never wronged a man, but have helped hundreds in distress and carried other business houses through panics and commercial disasters. For a few years I used to have an annual call from Mr. A. V. Blanchard, but in later years I have missed him in this city. John Ward was the financier of the town and a director in the Ware bank, but with al a social gentleman. Frank Morgan was the lord of broad meadows and rich pastures, gentlemanly in his tastes, and his home, graced by his cheerful and pleasant wife, was a place of generous hospitality. Col. Knox, Col. Isaac King, Captain Parks, Mr. Tenney, Deacon Brainerd and the Shaws were the great farmers and substantial landlords. Captain Dewey was the owner of broad acres, "city property," and the last of the old stage proprietors of the town.

Rev. Thomas Wilson was minister at the Depot Village, and it has been my pleasant fortune once to entertain him here, as also the Rev. Mr. Belden, who succeeded him. The older physicians were Doctors Shearer, King and Davis; and among the younger, White and Holbrook; while Dr. Barron was out of the pale of the regular school, and was understood to invoke sometimes the aid of spirit power in the healing of the sick.

The merchants and traders were Daniel F. McGilvray; the Allens, Abner, Ephraim, Lambert and John; A. P. Chapman, Hall and Valentine, Louis F. Sholes, E. Brown, Milton C. Munger, and Chauncey Shaw, while "Old Doctor Ferry" dealt out to a wide circle of patrons patent medicines, snuff, tobacco and notions. Uncle John Bowles furnished books and stationery, Brooks supplied the jewelry market and repaired our watches, and millinery was dispensed by several enterprising and tasty ladies. Calvin Hitchcock and E. Finerty kept the people well shod and corked, Lawrence and Dodge supplied the town with choice steaks, genial Benjamin Burleigh dealt out from his market wagon green vegetables, early peas and cucumbers, from his romantic little farm towards Three Rivers, while the venerable James Bates enabled us to slake our thirst in bottled cider from his mountain orchard in Monson, sparkling and bright as Catawba wine.

The great hotels, Nassowanno and Tockwotton, were built within those six years; the first by Darius and Calvin Shaw, which was destroyed by the great fire, and the present edifice was erected upon the old ruins by Chester Strong; and the second by Elisha Converse upon the grounds of a former wooden structure which went down in the same fire. Converse, the Shaws, Calvin and Boardman, and Thomas Noyse were the principal landlords during my time, while Colonel Turner entertained man and beast at the old historical tavern at the Old Center in the fashion of the ancient times. How many of all I have named are living I know not, but the chances are that nearly all have passed away. To such as have, peace to their ashes; such as yet live, I salute.

Cleveland, when I came, had 17,000 inhabitants; now, 200,000. It is the seat of great and growing industries. Her ships go out into the ocean and to Europe, and her steamers traverse the Upper Lakes for a thousand miles to the northwest. It is the center of great iron and coal industries, and of oil refining, and all else peculiar to other cities. When I had been here a year I knew almost every business man, as I had known them in Palmer, but now I do not recognize one in a hundred I meet upon the street. It is a new city, and I live in and among a new generation.

This is a pretty long letter, and there are probably but few that remember me, or will care to read it; nevertheless, my memory of Palmer and its people, living or dead, is pleasant. F. T. WALLACE.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.—The following is the programme for the week of prayer in 1883:

Sunday, Jan. 7—Sermons: 'For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all.' (1 Tim., 2:5, 6.)

Monday, Jan. 8—Praise and thanksgiving.

Tuesday, Jan. 9—Humiliation and confession.

Wednesday, Jan. 10—Prayer for families.

Thursday, Jan 11—Prayer for the church universal.

Friday, Jan. 12—Prayer for the nations.

Saturday, Jan. 13—Prayer for missions.

Sunday, Jan. 14—Sermons: 'Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ.'—(Titus, 2:13.)

'Judge, you are a very smart man. I would like to ask you a question,' remarked Gilhooly to Judge Blackstone, one of the most prominent lawyers of Austin. 'What is it?' questioned the Judge. 'Two twin sisters living in the same house have babies of the same age that look precisely alike, and are dressed alike. These two children got mixed up, and the question is, how will the mothers go at it to find out which child belongs to them?' 'If the children were as much alike as you say perhaps they were not mixed up at all.' 'But they were changed.' 'Are you sure of it?' 'Certainly.' 'Then change them back, and each mother will have her own. Give me something harder.'—Texas Siftings.

The child that always endeavors to do just right, will grow up with the same thought uppermost in his or her mind, and make a noble man or woman.

'You have lovely teeth, Ethel.' 'Yes, George,' she fondly lisped. 'They were a Christmas present from Aunt Grace.'—Puck.

A Christian minister once said: 'I was never of any use until I found out that God did not make me for a great man.'

Little things console us because little things afflict us.

A Winter Song.

Oh, Summer has the roses
And the laughing light south wind,
And the merry meadows lined
With dewy, dancing posies;
But Winter has the sprites
And the witching frosty nights.

Oh, Summer has the splendor
Of the corn-fields wide and deep,
Where the scarlet poppies sleep
And wary shadows wander;
But Winter fields are rare
With diamonds everywhere.

Oh, Summer has the wild bees,
And the ringing, singing note
In the robin's tuneful throat,
And the leaf-talk in the trees;
But Winter has the chime
Of the merry Christmas time.

Oh, Summer has the luster
Of the sunbeams warm and bright,
And rains that fall at night
Where reeds and lilies cluster;
But deep in Winter's snow
The fires of Christmas glow.

SIX THANKSGIVING TURKEYS.

Dan Riley was eating his breakfast. Strange to say, he wasn't thinking much about the buckwheat cakes and honey this morning, though Grandma always said breakfast was the only time that Dan was not absent-minded. She had known him to go to school without his hat, and go to bed in his boots, and leave his candle burning all night and forget to mail a letter for a week; but he never failed, Grandma would say, with a funny twinkle, to hear Prue's step at the door, and was always there to meet her and bring in the hot cakes.

But to-day he was having a debating society with himself, and was so much interested in the discussion that he didn't even know how many cakes he was getting away with.

It was two days before Thanksgiving. There was a fine snow on the ground and Dan had a new sled. Ike Paxton, his chum, had no sled and no time to make one (it was all Ike's mother could do to spare him school times, and almost more than she could do to feed and clothe him and the other three boys other times.) Should he let Ike coast with him Thanksgiving, when all the fellows met on Big Spring Hill—for, of course, even Ike would have some Thanksgiving holiday? Or should he give him his old piece of a sled, that wouldn't go straight and would certainly go to smash the first time it struck against a tree?

Meantime Grandma was interviewing Grandpa about her Thanksgiving dinner. Son John was going to drive over in his big sleigh, with wife and six children; and daughter Caroline would bring her family to dinner; 'and I am determined to cook two turkeys,' said the old lady, as fiercely as if somebody was going to oppose her.

'Very well,' said Farmer Riley, smiling. 'You don't say nothing about how many ears of corn Dobbin gets. I aint got nothin' to say against your two turkeys.'

'And that ain't all,' continued Grandma, still defying an imaginary opposer. 'I want another one killed for Widder Aldrich. Don't you think, Father, when I asked her, at Miss Rogers' quilting, whether she put chopped parsley in her turkey gravy, she said she had not had a turkey to cook for so long she most forgot. I just made up my mind that I'd kill three turkeys, instead of two, this Thanksgiving.

'All right old woman,' said the farmer, finishing off his breakfast with a glass of fresh buttermilk. 'Better have them killed before night and hung up. Do you hear, Dan? If Granny wants all her turkeys killed, don't you ask no questions. Just go ahead and do it.'

'And Dan,' said Grandma, 'don't be too late getting at it.'

Dan was busy picturing himself, alone in his glory, flashing down Big Spring Hill on 'The Rainbow' and trying to persuade himself that to a fellow who had no sled an old rickety trap would seem a very fine affair. He didn't take in very clearly what was expected of him, but contented himself with a vague assurance that he was to kill all Grandma's turkeys and ask no questions.

He thought he was beginning his job pretty early that evening; but the November twilight seemed very short, and he had only killed six turkeys when he heard the supper bell rung out of the window at him and he knew he must give up the job for the night. He lugged them up to the kitchen door, washed his hands at the pump, and by no means in a gentle humor, went in to supper.

'Well, Dan,' said Grandma, putting an extra spoonful of sugar in his cup, 'did you get through?'

'No'm,' he said, in a very injured tone; 'not half through. I only killed six.'

'Six!' said Grandma Riley and set down the cup and saucer. There was a blank silence, while an uncomfortable suspicion began to dawn upon Dan.

'Grandpa said I was to kill all your turkeys without asking any questions,' he said presently; and then Grandpa roared out laughing, until Grandma herself had to join, and Dan. They were still at it when Prue rushed in with the overwhelming statement that there were six 'kilt' turkeys at the kitchen door.

Her chances for scolding Dan being spoilt by all this laughing, Grandma Riley took the fact of the six turkeys very quietly.

'Taint often you make me a present, Mother,' said the old farmer, 'and I want one of them turkeys for Jim Coales' family.'

'Grandma, can't I have one for Ike Paxton's mother?' said Dan, conscious of a guilty thought that this might buy off his conscience about the coasting business.

'Oh! go 'long,' said Grandma; 'but you need not ask for t'other, because Prue is going to fetch it to her old uncle. And now come 'long and help me and Prue to pick them six turkeys, Dan'el Riley.'

Next afternoon Dan and Dobbin went around getting rid of those turkeys. But giving is a very spreading sort of thing. When Dan got to Mr. Paxton's, he had almost forgotten his old broken sled, and he and Ike laid their plans for double riding on the Rainbow. And the spreading did not stop there. That was the gayest Thanksgiving the Rileys had ever known. The story of the six turkeys was told amid shouts of happy laughter, and, when it had quieted down, John's wife said:

'Sister Caroline, while we come home to eat mother's turkeys, I think we might kill our own for somebody that hasn't any.' And they made the bargain between them.

When Grandpa Riley was covering the bedroom fire for the night, Grandma shook her head at him from the pillows, and said, in the tone of one who quells an enemy:

'You needn't say a word, old man, I mean to kill six turkeys every Thanksgiving as long as I live!'—Independent.

THE PURITANS AND QUAKERS.

The Puritan laid no claim to the possession of any peculiar inspiration or divine light whereby he might be aided in ascertaining the meaning of the sacred text; but he used his reason just as he would in any matter of business, and he sought to convince, and expected to be convinced, by rational argument and by nothing else. It followed, from this denial of any peculiar inspiration, that there was no room in the Puritan commonwealth for anything like a priestly class, and that every individual must hold his own opinions at his own personal risk.

We can now see what it was that made the Puritans so intolerant of the Quakers. The followers of George Fox did lay claim to the possession of some sort of peculiar or personal inspiration. They claimed the right to speak and act as 'the spirit moved them,' and they sometimes sought to exercise this alleged right to an extent that, in the eyes of the Puritans, threatened the dissolution of all human society. Nor were these obnoxious claims confined to the decorum of written or spoken discussion. The Quakers who so roused the wrath of Boston in the seventeenth century were not at all like the quiet and respectable Quakers whom one meets in Rhode Island or in Pennsylvania. Many of them were very turbulent and ill-mannered to say the least. They were in the habit of denouncing all earthly magistrates and would hoot at the governor as he passed along the street. They would allude to the Bible as the 'Word of the Devil,' and would rush into church on Sundays and interrupt the sermon with untimely and unseemly remarks.

A certain Thomas Newhouse once came into one of the meeting-houses in Boston with a glass bottle in each hand, and, holding them up before the congregation, knocked them together and smashed them, with the discourteous remark, 'Thus will the Lord break you all in pieces!' At another time a woman named Brewster came to church with her face smeared with lamp-black. And Hutchinson and Cotton Mather relate several instances of Quaker women running about the streets and coming into town-meeting in the primitive costume of Eve before the fall. Such proceedings were called 'testifying before the Lord;' but one can well imagine how they must have been regarded by our grave and dignified ancestors, who could not have forgotten, moreover, the odious scenes enacted at Munster by the German Anabaptists of the preceding century. It is not strange that the Puritans of Boston should have made up their minds that such things should not be permitted in the new community which they had endured so much to establish. Several of the Quakers were publicly whipped, or stood in the pillory. They were forbidden to enter the colony under the penalty of death and at last three of their number, who had twice been dismissed from the colony with words of warning, and had twice been 'moved by the spirit' to return and 'testify,' were hanged on Boston Common.—Harper's for December.

TRADE AT HOME.

Because, in the first place, we are one community, one family; the success of one is the success of all. We stand in a measure banded together, to share each other's profits, to divide each other's losses in business. You men that buy, not a merchant fails or is crowded out of business but your real-estate depreciates in value. You will all agree that your valuation depends on the prosperity of the town. You should do your share in making that prosperous. By helping your neighbor you help yourself. Again, by trading at home you can usually save money. Good goods can be and are sold as cheaply here as anywhere. You go out of town at an expense of time and money and then as often as otherwise find chaff behind the high sounding advertisements which have attracted you, and to buy of irresponsible agents is risky business at the best. This rushing out of town with every dollar is sure death to local prosperity, and this prosperity is of as much moment to you as to your neighbor. Trade at home, remembering that as with our forefathers in state, so in prosperity with us: 'United we stand, divided we fall.' Look further than the end of one year before you take your hard earned dollars out of town, and be sure you do not be both penny and pound foolish in so doing.—Easthampton News.

DISCOMPOSED.

The Rev. Mr.——— was one of the most bashful men in the profession and was constantly getting into scrapes through his nervous mistakes. At one time he rose in his pulpit to give out the hymn, 'This world is all a fleeting show,' and after clearing his throat, struck a high pitch and began solemnly:

'This world is all a floating shoe.' Everybody smiled except the deacons, and the minister was covered with confusion as he began again:

'This world is all a shouting flow.'

This only made matters worse, and the unhappy man cleared his throat with tremendous force and began again:

'This world is all a floating she.'

Then he slammed the hymn-book down, and, wiping his clammy brow, said:

'Brethren, for some reason I cannot read that hymn as it should be read; we will omit it, and the choir will please sing the grand old lines beginning:

'Just as I am, without one flea.'—Detroit Post.

Temper imprints its mark upon the countenance and speedily reveals the character of the disposition which lurks behind it. Being a growing and vigorous power, it gradually overcomes every obstacle which stands in the way of its observation. It wrinkles the brow, lowers the eyebrows, bends the curve of the mouth, and pouts the lips whenever it is of a disagreeable selfish nature. Cultivate beauty of the soul, for the course of feeling engendered by a kind and generous character will always give life and permanent animation to all the lines of the face.

The father of a St. Louis bride presented his son-in-law with 80,000 head of cattle. "Papa, dear," exclaimed his daughter, when she heard of it, 'that was so kind of you; Charley's awful fond of ox-tail soup."—Chicago Tribune.

The Journal.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1882.

GEN. BUTLER dined with the President Tuesday evening.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR is developing into a pretty good civil service reformer, judging from his message. He has apparently heard from the elections.

ARABI PASHA is let off pretty easily. He pleaded guilty to the charge of rebellion last Saturday and was sentenced to death, but the Khedive promptly commuted the sentence to banishment for life.

THE tariff commission recommends changes in the tariff laws amounting to an average reduction of from 20 to 25 per cent. Its report, made to Congress on Monday, is a voluminous document of some 4600 pages.

NEW YORK has a new penal code which forbids all unnecessary work on Sunday, and the police apparently endeavored last Sunday to render the law as obnoxious as possible, by arresting milkmen, grocers, butchers, drivers of vehicles, boot-blacks, barbers and others, and shutting their eyes when near the liquor saloons, which did a prosperous business unmolested. It is easy to be seen what the police consider "necessary" business. About 200 persons were arrested, and let off with reprimands.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

President Arthur is a good writer, and his second annual message to Congress is an able document, containing many wise suggestions and recommendations which Congress ought to heed. It is to be regretted that its length is such as to deter many people from giving it the careful reading it deserves; but this is a large country, and to speak even briefly of its various interests makes a long message in the aggregate.

The President opens with the usual review of our foreign relations, which are pleasant and satisfactory. In speaking on financial matters he emphasizes the absurdity of accumulating a large quantity of silver coin which cannot be got into circulation, by the fact that the amount of silver in the hands of the people has increased by only a million and a half of dollars during the year, while an addition of twenty-six million dollars has been made to the silver coinage. There are now 2400 tons of silver coin stored in the public vaults, and the President very properly calls attention to the importance of suspending further coinage of silver. On the question of reducing the large surplus in the treasury, his own views are that all internal taxes save those on distilled spirits can be prudently abrogated. He thinks this abrogation could be accompanied by a simplification of the machinery of collection, which would save the government at least two millions and a half in salaries and retire 1500 or 2000 officials from the service. He is opposed to a total abolition of internal taxes, because the duties on imports alone are not sufficient for all the needs of the government, and because such abolition would be a serious if not insurmountable obstacle to a thorough revision of the tariff.

The President's remarks on appropriations for internal improvements are what might have been expected after his veto of the river and harbor bill. He expresses the hope that no bill will be deemed necessary at this session, and shows by the figures of the war department that there will be no excuse for one. If any additional appropriation is necessary for the Mississippi River he says a separate bill for that purpose would meet his approval. This suggestion prompts him to the wider one that it would be a good idea to have future appropriations for different schemes of improvement embodied in separate bills, or that the constitution be so amended as to give the President the right to disapprove particular items in appropriation bills, while approving others. The object, in either case, would be to allow a discrimination to be made between appropriations for objects which are right and necessary, and those which are extravagant or unnecessary. With the adoption of either proposal, there would be an end to "log-rolling." It would no longer be possible to crowd bad appropriations through on the ground that if they were not made, good ones could not be.

On the question of reducing the postage on domestic letters to two cents the President heartily favors immediate reduction, and gives some interesting information on the subject. The excess of the postal revenue in the next fiscal year is likely to be $3,500,000, and the President is confident that, without any increase of postage on any other class of mail matter, the receipts under the diminished rate would equal the expenditures after the lapse of three or four years. It should be added that this reduction is made possible by the saving secured to the government by the overthrow of the star route ring. Concerning the prosecution of the members of that ring the President says it has been conducted with zeal and ability, and that "if any guilty persons shall finally escape punishment for their offenses it will not be for lack of diligent and earnest efforts on the part of the prosecution." The attention of Congress is called to the momentous question of "immediate and substantial government aid to the spread of education," and the welcome intelligence is given that no additional legislation for the suppression of polygamy is necessary at present, and that the commissioners believe the evil may be suppressed without resort to radical measures. He renews his recommendation for a national bankrupt act, and for the adoption of a more comprehensive and just Indian policy.

On the subject of civil service reform, the President speaks right to the point. He recognizes the fact that "the people of the country, apparently without distinction of party, have in various ways and upon frequent occasions, given expression to their earnest wish for prompt and definite action;" and he adds that, in his judgment, "such action should no longer be postponed." He expresses himself as ready to approve the bill now pending in the Senate, or some other, for the reform of the civil service. While he introduces statistics to prove that his administration has not been distinguished by any unusual number of removals, it is clear that his continued experience in the Presidential office has made more plain to him the evils of political appointments and pressure for office, and that any wisely-drawn and practicable measures of reform will be cordially supported by him. He is also outspoken in condemnation of political assessments. He acknowledges that the so-called "voluntary contributions" are not, in many cases, voluntary, but are made under fear of the consequences of a refusal to pay, and says that the collection of assessments should be prohibited by law, and that a bill which will effectually suppress them will receive his cordial support.

LOCAL NOTICES.

E. S. Brooks will show a nice line of Holiday Goods the coming week.

The usual variety of Slippers, "useful presents," will be found at Milligan's during the holidays.

Weld & Longley have just received a lot of choice Vermont butter in small tubs, which they are selling at very reasonable rates.

Mr. H. B. Leete has resumed the agency of the Singer Sewing Machine, and has removed the office to W. R. Milligan's shoe store, Palmer.

Mrs. J. M. Kerigan has opened a millinery department in Mrs. Carpenter's store, for two weeks, and will be pleased to see all her old customers and friends.

Call at F. D. Barton's and see his display of Holiday Goods. In his stock of silverware you will find the latest patterns in Ice Pitchers, Castors, Cake Baskets, Card Receivers, Vases, &c. Also, a large stock of Jewelry, bought especially for the Holidays.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Are you well over your Thanksgiving dinner?

Six degrees below zero last Monday morning.

It's about time to be brushing up and revising your resolutions for the new year.

The schools will begin their winter session next Monday, with the same corps of teachers.

Next Thursday will be the eighty-third anniversary of the death of George Washington.

Mrs. J. M. Kerigan has opened a millinery department in Mrs. Carpenter's store, for a couple of weeks.

H. B. Leete has returned to Palmer and resumed the agency of the Singer sewing machine, with office at Milligan's shoe store.

Having safely passed over the sun's face, Venus will now be morning star for the rest of the year, as also will Mars after to-morrow.

S. H. Hellyar & Co. are offering some capital bargains in furs and winter goods generally. Read their advertisement, and give them a call.

The ladies of the Universalist society will hold their annual festival at the church next Wednesday evening, followed by the usual social dance at Wales Hall.

In the Blanchardville school during the past term Christopher Smith, Alice Thompson, Mary J. Ashworth and Everett Nelson were neither absent nor tardy.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Library Association will be held at the library rooms next Monday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, having been adjourned from last Monday evening.

R. S. Hastings, R. L. Bond, D. B. Bishop and Henry Hobson have been drawn as traverse jurors for the next criminal term of the superior court, which meets at Springfield on the 15th inst.

Rev. P. Hunter, the talented student from the Hartford Theological Seminary who preached for the Congregational people a few weeks ago, will occupy the pulpit for them next Sunday.

At Tuesday's session of the probate court in Springfield wills were approved of William P. Chaffee of Hampden and John Orcutt of Monson. An inventory was filed on the estate of D. A. Hoag.

The following scholars in the intermediate school have been perfect in attendance during the past term: Frank Bosquet, Lizzie Cross, Willie French, Willie Kinnevan, Tommy Rooney and Frank Roach.

The first "sleigh-ride" party of the season was entertained at the Weeks House last evening, 25 couples coming out from Springfield on wheels for a supper and dance, and returning by special train.

In the school at Palmer Center the following scholars were neither absent nor tardy during the past term: Lena Butler, Mabel Brown, Mary Crimmins, Abby Trumble, Luther Butler, Bennie Elliot, Willie Trumble.

The Congregational churches in this part of the county will hold a fellowship meeting at the Congregational church in this place next Tuesday, with forenoon and afternoon sessions. An interesting programme will be provided, and a profitable meeting is expected.

Ladies and gentlemen visiting Springfield will find Blackman's dining rooms, on Vernon street, the best place in the city to procure an excellent and inexpensive dinner. The rooms are neat and home-like, the tables well provided and well served, and the prices very moderate.

Mrs. Langtry, the "Jersey lily," passed through Palmer on a special train last Sunday afternoon, from New York to Boston, with her own and Lawrence Barrett's troupes. The train ran into a buggy at a crossing near the depot at Thompsonville, Ct., and killed two young men.

In speaking of the union Thanksgiving service last week, we inadvertently omitted to give the children from the State Primary School the credit due them for their excellent singing, which was a very pleasant feature of the service, under the judicious direction of Superintendent Tufts.

Beginning next Monday, the morning train from the north, which now leaves Miller's Falls at 5.07, will leave there at 6.09, Amherst at 6.55, and arrive at Palmer at 7.40, instead of 6.30. The evening steamboat train south now leaves Palmer at 7.20 instead of 7.15, giving 20 minutes for supper at this station.

"The Old Cross" was presented in an admirable manner at Wales Hall last Saturday evening by the Wellesley & Sterling Combination, and it was a matter of regret that, owing to the short notice, there was but a small audience present to enjoy the entertainment. Those who were there would be glad to see the company here again.

Mark Shearer was pleasantly reminded of the fact that last Saturday was his thirty-third birthday, by a party of friends, who surprised him at his home in the evening, bringing refreshments and enjoying a pleasant social evening. Before they left, Rev. O. R. Hunt, as spokesman for the party, presented Mr. Shearer with an easy chair, as a memento of the occasion.

"Hazel Kirke," the charming drama which has had such a remarkable run in the cities for the past year or two, seems to increase in popularity instead of diminishing. Its 1750th performance was recently celebrated in San Francisco by the Madison Square Theatre company, which will shortly present the play here, with special new scenery and appointments.

The weather this week has been a medley. Beginning with keen wintry air, it took a mild turn, and on Wednesday the snow was all gone. A promising rain began Thursday forenoon, but at noon a regular blizzard came upon us, the snowfall continuing most of the afternoon, though not accumulating much, while the high and cold wind made it decidedly uncomfortable being out.

The district court room has never been provided with a safe for the protection of its records and papers, although the county commissioners have been urged several times to put one in. The importance of having one is very evident to any one who knows what a tangle might ensue from the loss of the papers in some important case, and the commissioners ought to furnish one without further delay.

Our village ought to have more street lights. Some of the streets are now well lighted for a short distance, but there are many long reaches where no flame gives forth its welcome radiance for the benefit of those who must be abroad in the evening. The lamps we now have are maintained by individual enterprise, but kerosene is cheap, the cost of a post and outfit is not large, and most of our citizens can afford to do something for the general good in this way if they will.

Venus made a successful transit across the sun's disc on Wednesday, and smoked glass was in general demand. For a while in the morning it looked as though the clouds would effectually prevent any observations, but the weather clerk kindly drew them one side before the performance had progressed far, and the show was voted a perfect success. The next transit will not be of special interest to any of our present readers, as it will not come off until June 7, 2004, but the JOURNAL will publish on that day a full illustrated account of the transit in the evening edition of its tri-daily issue.

The public installation of the officers of Thomas Lodge of Masons occurred at their hall on Monday evening, and was a very pleasant affair, calling out an attendance of about 125. The officers were installed by D. D. G. M. Cochran of Southbridge, assisted by A. A. and C. M. Gage and Dr. G. E. Fuller of Monson, W. S. Douglass of Greenwich and H. F. Brown of Enfield. After the installation exercises, refreshments were served, and there were several speeches. The full list of officers installed is as follows: Geo. B. Kenerson, W. M.; H. H. Paine, S. W.; H. A. Parker, J. W; A. H. Willis, Treas.; C. W. Cross, Secy.; O. R. Hunt, C.; J. B. Shaw, S. D.; S. H. Hellyar, J. D.; Ole Crawford, S. S.; Geo. D. Keith, J. S.; H. E. W. Clark, M.; J. B. Leedham, organist; S. W. Shumway, tyler.

The members of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society held their annual meeting at the Weeks House on Monday, and made choice of the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Dr. William Holbrook; vice presidents, R. L. Goddard, A. J. Northrop; secretary and treasurer, O. P. Allen; directors, S. S. Taft, Geo. W. Randall, C. E. Dewey and J. F. Holbrook of Palmer, A. H. White of Monson, A. P. Capen of Belchertown, L. A. Cutler of Brimfield, C. H. Burleigh of Hampden. The society voted to hold three Farmers' Institutes during the winter; also to build the remainder of the fence adjacent to the B. & A. R. R. and make such other improvements on the park as the directors may deem best, out of the funds now in the treasury. The society is out of debt, and has $299.71 in the treasury.

BRIMFIELD.

E. E. Burnett, principal of the Hitchcock Free High School, has leased the homestead of Deacon W. M. Goodale, and takes possession this week.

WEST WARREN.

Edwin Ellingwood has opened a barber shop in the back part of S. D. Smith's drug store.

A. W. Crossman & Son are fencing in the lot on Water street adjoining their brick block.

Dr. Duquette has bought Druggist E. F. Proul's stock in trade, and will continue the business in the same store.

Rev. E. A. Titus of Holyoke lectured on "Swells and Sells," in the M. E. church, Tuesday evening. The next lecture in the course will be given next Tuesday evening by Rev. H. W. Eldredge, of Turners Falls, on "Cheerfulness versus Grumbling."

WALES.

The Hegan mill is now starting up, having been standing several weeks to change water wheels.

Fred. Lloyd went through his room-mate's trunk Monday, taking about $50 worth of money, watches and clothing, and then lit out.

After an illness of nine days, F. C. Smith passed away. He was stricken with paralysis while at his work, and remained with one side paralyzed and unable to speak after he was taken. He was sixty-five years old, and has spent most of his life in Wales. He was a son of Dr. John Smith, who was a physician of this town for many years, also one of the pillars of the Methodist church.

THORNDIKE.

A small barn belonging to Morris Haley was entirely destroyed by fire early Friday evening. A horse and carriage, the property of Chas. McCarthy, were also burned.

A party of ladies from this village and some from Palmer agreeably surprised Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hatch, of Palmer, Tuesday afternoon. The gifts were both numerous and valuable, including an elegant silver cake basket and other silver presents.

The following are the names of scholars neither absent nor tardy during the term just closed. First intermediate: Beatrice Andrews, Mary Flemming, Mary Gerald, Maggie Hartnett, Maude Murdock, Anna Taft, Eddie Smith, Wright Sumners, and John Sullivan. The following have been perfect in spelling: Mary Keefe, Mabel Houston, and Anna Taft. From 1st primary, neither absent nor tardy: Eliza Gerard, Helen Hutchinson, Hannah Kennedy, Kate Mayett, Mary Sullivan, Jennie Coto, Frank Coto, Dannie Connor, Patsey Fiemming, Charlie Moriarty, Johnnie Mathews, Henry Shabot and Jerry Sugrue. Absent only one half day: Lizzie Taft and Lena Palmer.

WEST BRIMFIELD.

There were 306,000 brick shipped from this station during the month of November.

Geo. W. Powers has put a new show-case on his counter, and otherwise refitted the inside of his store.

The electric signals which the Boston & Albany road has put in here, were set working this week. They are placed about one-fourth of a mile each way from the switches, thus enabling engineers to know that all switches are right and the track clear, through the station limits.

The schools commenced this week with full attendance, most of the old teachers remaining, with the exception of one or two transfers, and the addition of Miss Addie C. Dickinson, of Merrick, West Springfield, who has the hollow district school, about two miles south of the center.

It is conceived by many that one of the two dangerous railroad crossings just west of the depot should be done away with. They are about ten rods apart, and one would answer for all public convenience, and might save some of the accidents which are frequently occurring. Last week Capt. Lincoln and wife of Brimfield were crossing the track, when the horse became frightened and ran, throwing them out of the sleigh, and fracturing Mr. Lincoln's arm, it was thought. The sleigh was well demolished.

HAMPDEN.

Reuben Chapin has been mulcted in the police court at Springfield to the tune of $30.10 for obstructing the road through A. H. Thompson's lot.

Thresher's coal kilns are about ready to start on their smoking expedition, and when they get under full headway we will try and give your readers a description of the modus operandi.

One of the steam-pipes at the Lacowsic mill burst last week, but no damage was done, except the frightening of the help, who tumbled out of the mill as though it would soon blow away.

The alarm of fire was again sounded through the valley about 6 o'clock Wednesday night. This time it was Mortimer Pease's barn, sheds and wagon house that were destroyed, together with about 20 tons of hay, all the grain, including 200 bushels of corn just husked and in the granery, which was also consumed, and some expensive farming tools. The loss is $1800, with insurance of about $1100. The fire without doubt was caused by an incendiary. A crazy tramp was arrested and examined, but was discharged.

THREE RIVERS.

The Amherst College Glee Club will give a concert in the Union church Friday evening, Dec. 15, with an attractive programme.

The fellowship meeting announced for last Wednesday at the Baptist church has been postponed until next Wednesday, the 13th.

The following pupils have not been absent from the third primary school in this village during the past term: Sadie McMaster, Albertine Ouellet, Rosanna Visan, Hattie Warriner, Tommy Connor, Joseph Grigware, Beecher Orcutt, Arthur Thayer.

A little son of Joseph Genard, about two years of age, died Wednesday from burns received the day before while playing with the fire in the absence of his mother, who had stepped out of the room for a few minutes. About two years ago Mr. Genard lost a little child by drowning.

A gentleman from Brookfield is canvassing this place for the purpose of organizing a division of the Sons of Temperance. As he has some 40 or 50 names, it is supposed a division will be organized soon. There was a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Friday evening to confer in regard to the matter.

The Union Sunday school are trying a novel way of raising money for the school. Each of the children has a little jug, which is used for collecting money, and in about two weeks there will be a "jug breaking concert," when the jugs will be broken, with singing and speaking by the children, etc. The school have been repairing the vestry, and hope to get money enough in this way to pay for the work that has been done.

MONSON.

Joel H. Thompson and brother captured 31 rabbits last Saturday.

Town meeting this afternoon to correct errors in regard to the laying of a road.

Rev. Mr. Byington will preach Sunday evening on: "What is the best church?"

G. H. Newton has a sale of household goods, merchandise, jewelry, etc., this (Saturday) evening.

Smoked glass was in demand on Wednesday, and many viewed or tried to view the transit of Venus.

Lester Howe, who was seriously injured by falling from the great beams in the barn, is gradually improving and will be around again in due time.

Merchants are receiving their holiday goods, and now is the time to subscribe for the JOURNAL as a holiday gift for every week in the year.

Rev. B. F. Eaton of Boston will preach at Central Hall on Sunday, at 2 and 7 p. m. Afternoon subject, "The World God's Oracle," evening, "The One Thing Needful."

The winter term of the academy began on Wednesday with something more than seventy students. The vacancy in the faculty has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Amidon, a graduate of Williams College, class of '81.

The public schools in Monson will commence next Monday. Most of the old teachers are to return. In the few changes which have resulted from the resignation of teachers, especial care has been taken to secure first-class teachers. Improved methods of instruction, with the new wall maps and globes, are giving the schools in town a fresh interest and success.

BELCHERTOWN.

Cynthia P. White has purchased the Emily Cooley farm for $900.

Mrs. Sarah Atwood fell one day last week breaking her hip, and lived but a few days.

J. R. Gould is making extensive repairs and improvements on his lately purchased block.

Our wagon makers are now busy getting out sleighs, and are having full average sales thus far this season.

The Messrs. Clapp will push the new hotel in the spring, and a vacant spot of land will be again made to do duty in improving the appearance of our village.

There is to be a sociable at the Masonic rooms next Wednesday evening, the first of the season. Singing, a literary entertainment, and games will help to make the evening an enjoyable one.

Henry White, a young man who had been employed by H. D. Hoag, hired a horse and carriage of Landlord Barry to go about three miles he said. Not returning, search was made, and he was found in Providence last Tuesday. He had tried to sell the team, but was not successful. Constable Burnett has gone for him.

The E. J. Griggs Post G. A. R., No. 97, are now in a very prosperous condition, having 37 active members, with several applications for membership. Their hall is located in Gould's Block, and is a very neatly arranged room for the comfort and edification of its members and their families, they having sociables fortnightly, and regular meetings the first Monday of each month. The Post is greatly indebted to Comrade Myron P. Walker for much of its prosperity, he having furnished the Brussels carpet, the lamps and minor other items toward furnishing the hall. B. Butler presented the Post with a nice picture of the Battle of Gettysburg, and the Drummer Boys at Bunker Hill in 1776. Frank Blackmer of New Haven presented a nice oil painting,—"Union Soldier on Picket Duty,"—and Mrs. Franklin Dickinson gave a nice steel engraving of Gen. Washington. The Post has a nice organ, also a library of 500 volumes loaned them by the citizens, which it is hoped may soon become by additions a public town library. The boys are all united in making a union of fellowship and good will toward all comrades and their families.

WARREN.

The Ladies' Home Missionary Society met in the church parlors Wednesday evening.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met with Mrs. Carter Thursday afternoon.

Window glass is at a discount, as all the available quantity was smoked for observing the transit of Venus.

The Masons had an open installation of officers Tuesday evening. Music and good cheer made it a merry time.

The selectmen have been widening and otherwise improving that part of Main street east of the railroad bridge.

Mr. Forbes gave the last of a series of very interesting discourses on the life of Joseph, last Sunday evening.

The ladies of the Universalist society held a very successful fair in their church Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Misses Maud and May Powers were very agreeably surprised Monday evening by a party of their young friends.

The Congregational Sabbath school voted last Sunday to have a Christmas tree Christmas night, and a Sunday school concert Christmas eve.

The Methodists will have a three days' sale next week, commencing on Tuesday afternoon. They will offer numerous useful and fancy articles.

The musical association have succeeded so well in their rehearsals that they hope to be able to render the cantata of Belshazzar about Christmas time.

Rev. Mr. Saunderson and Mr. Forbes exchanged pulpits last Sunday. The very able sermon which Mr. Forbes preached Thanksgiving is to be printed, by request.

Mr. Tower, the painter, has rented the store formerly occupied by D. W. Shepard & Co., and will use it for a paint shop, as his present quarters are not ample enough.

A gentleman while getting off the cars at the depot the other day remarked, "How crowded your depot is! You need a new one badly." You are right, friend; keep on saying so, and we will all join in that good old tune, "So say we all of us."

All the schools except the high school closed Friday, after a term of satisfactory work. The teachers spend an hour a week in teaching drawing and writing respectively, and Miss Kingsley, of Westfield, instructs each week in music, so we see no reason why Warren youth will not receive a fair share of all the useful branches.

FOLLOWING the example of Governor-elect Pattison of Pennsylvania, Grover Cleveland of New York declines to accept any military escort on the day of his inauguration. Economy and simplicity is the watchword, and it is a good one. Will Gen. Butler fall into line?

CONGRESS met quietly on Monday, and on Tuesday Judge Kelley reported from the ways and means committee a bill to abolish all taxes on tobacco, evidently with the hope of preventing any reduction of the tariff, as this would cut off some $46,000,000 of revenue in a lump.

WE are glad to see that the President heartily approves the proposition to reduce letter postage to two cents. The government can afford it, and the reduction must come before long. Why can't this Congress see it, and do an immensely popular thing by passing a bill making the change at once?

STEPHEN W. DORSEY is out with a lengthy card defending himself from the charges of fraud in connection with the star route transactions. He tells a very plausible story, but omits entirely to explain why he did not tell his story and establish his innocence before the courts, as he had an opportunity for doing not long ago. He was very backward about coming forward at that time.

SPRINGFIELD elected Col. Henry M. Phillips, the Republican candidate, for mayor, on Tuesday, by a vote of 2148, to 1812 for Charles Marsh, the Democratic nominee. At Holyoke Mayor Crafts was re-elected by an eleventh-hour citizens' movement, having a plurality of 174 votes over his party opponent, J. E. Delaney, while Porter Underwood, the Republican candidate, received less than 200 votes. Both cities voted for license.

WHEN the New York Tribune put up its eight-story block a few years ago a good deal of fun was poked at the "tall tower." But time, elevators and high prices for land work unexpected changes. It is cheaper to build perpendicularly than horizontally in the metropolis, and the Tribune now has several imitators, while the new Wells building, just completed, has ten floors, and Cyrus W. Field proposes to erect a building with fifteen floors. What a chance for a lively earthquake!

THE Garfield board of audit has completed its work and made the following awards to the physicians who attended President Garfield: D. W. Bliss, $6500; D. Hayes Agnew, $5000; Frank H. Hamilton, $5000; Robert Reyburn, $4000; Silas A. Boynton, $4000; Susan A. Edson, $3000. Dr. Bliss wanted $25,000 for his services, and may apply to Congress for an extra allowance, though he would stand little chance of getting it, and may conclude to quietly accept the amount awarded him.

A large brick building at Northampton occupied by the Hampshire County Journal, the Nonotuck Pocket Book Co., and others, was burned with its contents Thursday night. Loss $30,000.

Anthony Trollope, the English novelist, died on Wednesday, aged 67 years. Louis Blanc, the French statesman, died the same day, at the age of 71.

Fifty-eight million dollars is the estimated value of finger rings of this country actually worn, and still there are people mean enough to go hacking and coughing because they do not want to invest 25 cents for a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, begin on Friday, Dec. 8, a great holiday book sale. They have books of every description; lots of them at half the usual prices. This is a rare chance to supply public and private libraries, and to get Christmas presents.

If your hair is coming out, or turning gray, do not murmur over a misfortune you can so easily avert. Ayer's Hair Vigor will remove the cause of your grief by restoring your hair to its natural color, and therewith your good looks and good nature.

I have used Simmons Liver Regulator in my extensive practice for the last four years, and cannot find its equal for bilious colic, dyspepsia, sick or nervous headache and constipation. Yours truly,
JAS. M. SHORT, M. D., Butlerville, Ark.

Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, are offering 250 pairs 11-4 blankets at $3.50, reduced from $5. They have reduced prices on blankets of every description.

As the holidays are coming you will want a good present. Nothing is more beautiful or fitting than a fine photograph, and no artist in the country excels in taste and finish Mr. C. L. Moore, opposite Court Square, Springfield. His instantaneous process secures natural likenesses, and his retouching artists work them up to perfection.

QUICK WORK.—The heart of a human being fills and empties itself about 75 times in a minute. To increase or retard this operation is too often prima facia evidence of some disorder and, generally speaking, disease. Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator will correct all disorders and cure all diseases of the heart. All druggists sell it for one dollar per bottle.

The Ash chamber sets of Maxfield's in variety and elegance and in low prices, exceed anything to be found in Springfield. Go to Maxfield's on Bridge street for them.

PERFECTION.—Herrick's Sugar Coated Vegetable Liver Pills are really "perfection," because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, sudorific and alterative at the same time. With these rare pills in your house you can do without salts, seidlitz powders, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna, and so on. You want none of these. Herrick's Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and what is better, may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman or child as well as the robust man. 4w—36

"HACKMETACK," a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cts. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Don't say "I cannot afford a piano," when you can get an upright piano at Stimpson's, 396 Main Street, Springfield, for $160, which is all right and a bargain.

UNITY OF ACTION, concord, sympathy and good fellowship are admirable traits in human character; but they will not heal our physical infirmities. Catarrh, for example, stubbornly resists their effects or influence. In fact this malady withstands all of its would-be destroyers, except Ely's Cream Balm. "Solitary and alone" this Balm stands as the only recognized and infallible specific for Catarrh. "For fifteen years," says J. B. Chase, St. Denis Hotel, B'wy and 11th Street, N. Y., "I have been greatly annoyed with a disgusting catarrh. My sense of smell, not to mention other troubles, became much impaired. A thorough use of Ely's Cream Balm has cured me of these troubles." It is not a liquid or snuff, and is easily applied. Only 50 cents a package. 2w36

THE SCOPE AND AIM OF THE JOURNAL.

During its nearly fifty years of existence THE JOURNAL has ministered to the tastes and wants of a constantly increasing constituency. As a distinctively New England newspaper in tone and spirit, in the scope of its intelligence and in the representation and championship of those interests in which the people of New England are most concerned, it challenges comparison with any other paper. The best of its success and popularity is the disposition of those who have once become subscribers, to continue so; and it is one of the most agreeable and encouraging facts to those who have it in charge that it is still a welcome visitor in many homes into which it has found entrance from its early issues. The last half century has witnessed a great many changes in newspaper methods and agencies. Steam, the telegraph and the cable have wrought great transformations, and newspaper enterprise now encircles the globe, presenting the reader of to-day with an epitome of yesterday's happenings in every part of the world. With all these changes and improvements The Journal has kept pace; it has added new features and has steadily enlarged its facilities; but through all changes it has retained those distinctive characteristics which have won and kept the regard of its readers.

THE SPECIAL QUALITIES.—The special aim of The Journal is to embrace within its thirty-six columns a sufficient account of all the events of the week at home and abroad to satisfy the needs of the average New England reader. Its presentation of news will be so ample and comprehensive that readers will be able to rely upon its accuracy, and to be sure that no matter of importance can escape their notice. Bearing in mind the needs of busy men and women, who desire to have the most information conveyed in the most compact form, it will aim at variety and breadth rather than expansion in any particular direction, and will endeavor to perform for its readers the important service of sifting and grouping those matters in which they are likely to feel an interest. Particular attention will be given to

NEW ENGLAND AFFAIRS.

The facilities afforded in this direction by the dispatches of the Associated Press are supplemented and extended by the services of a large number of special correspondents and reporters at the most important points, who will report matters of local interest, by telegraph and mail, making each weekly issue an epitome of New England news. Arrangements have been recently made for the further enlargement of these facilities.

AGRICULTURAL AFFAIRS

will receive, as heretofore, a large share of attention. The valuable and widely read contributions of the "Young Farmer," whose hints and suggestions have been a source of profit to hundreds of practical farmers, will be continued; and the markets for produce in Boston, and the condition of the crops and markets in all parts of the country will be reported.

The year before us, like the year which is now closing, promises to be one of

SPECIAL POLITICAL INTEREST.

It will witness the closing session of the present Congress, and the opening of the new one. Matters of grave public concern, such as the revision of the tariff, the adoption of new provisions for regulating the count of the electoral vote, the question of reforms in the civil service, and the question of extending national aid to education will be discussed in Congress; and their discussion, together with the more than usual interest attending the present relations of the great political parties, will draw general attention to Washington, and will make it desirable for the readers to have the fullest and freshest advices therefrom. The needs of the readers of the WEEKLY JOURNAL in this direction will be fully supplied by our correspondents, "Perley" and "Webb," and their assistants, whose special dispatches will be supplemented by the regular press dispatches and by "Perley's" letters, describing the social aspects of Washington life.

THE POLITICAL POSITION OF THE JOURNAL.—The Journal is a Republican newspaper; it believes in Republican principles, and does not regard the mission of the Republican party as ended. It is in sympathy with the most liberal and progressive tendencies in the party, and will lend its influence to the championship of those reforms which the best men of all parties are rapidly coming to regard as essential. The Journal is loyal to Republican principles, but it is not subservient to any dictation, and it will never hesitate to criticise measures and tendencies, whatever the party strength behind them, which it regards as harmful. To the discussion of all questions, political and other, which demand consideration, The Journal will bring candor, information and a readiness to give both sides a fair hearing. Moral and reformatory measures will be discussed with an intelligent sympathy, business matters will be regularly presented, and in general, the editorial columns will be varied, timely and progressive.

Events of interest as regards FOREIGN AFFAIRS will be reported in cable dispatches, and more fully represented and discussed in the very readable letters of Mr. Edward King, who is a recognized and widely quoted authority on contemporary affairs abroad. The SPECIAL FEATURES which have been so acceptable in the past will be continued during the coming year. What The Journal has been it will continue to be, every effort that is possible being made to secure for it the continued support of the reading and thinking men and women of New England.

Boston Semi-Weekly Journal,

Published on Tuesdays and Fridays, is a paper of especial value to persons engaged in commercial pursuits outside the large cities. DR. J. W. DEWEY,

(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)

Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,

Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at

THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,

WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

JAMES D. GILL,

8w33 SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions for authority to locate, construct, operate and maintain a branch or extension of its railroad from a point upon its present line in the town of Palmer, and thence running into or through the towns of Ludlow, Wilbraham, Chicopee, West Springfield, Westfield, Southwick, Russell, Granville, Blandford, Tolland, Sandisfield, Otis, Monterey, Great Barrington, Egremont, and the City of Holyoke, or any of them, to a point in the boundary line between said Commonwealth and the State of New York, or the State of Connecticut.

And your petitioner prays that the authority herein asked for may be granted to said Massachusetts Central Railroad Company, or to such new corporation as may be formed by the consolidation, for which authority is asked by a petition of said Company heretofore made, dated November 2, 1882; and it further prays that this application may be taken as in addition to said petition.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 23, 1882.

How to Kiss.

Cream and peaches once a week,
Kiss your girl on the right hand cheek;
Apples green and apples dried,
Kiss her on the other side.
—Ashland Review.

That evinces wretched taste;
Take your girl about the waist,
Lift her to her pink toe tips,
And print it squarely on her lips.
Frankfort Yeoman.

Seize the maiden in your arms,
Blushing with her tempting charms;
And it would, we think, be snugger,
Oft to kiss and tightly hug her.
Paris Citizen.

Take your girl in warm embrace,
Heart to heart, and face to face;
Eye to eye, and nose to nose,
Flippity flop, and away it goes!
Flemingburg Democrat.

MORAL COURAGE IN DAILY LIFE.

'Moral Courage' was printed in large letters and put as the caption of the following items, and placed in a conspicuous place on the door of a systematic merchant in New York, for constant reference, and furnished by him for publication:

Have the courage to do without that which you do not need, however much your eyes may covet it.

Have the courage to speak to a friend in a seedy coat, even though you are in company with a rich one, and richly attired.

Have the courage to speak your mind when it is necessary that you should do so, and hold your tongue when it is prudent that you should do so.

Have the courage to own that you are poor, and thus disarm poverty of its sting.

Have the courage to tell a man why you will not lend him your money.

Have the courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you have when you are convinced that he lacks principle—a friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not with his vices.

Have the courage to show your respect for honesty in whatever guise it appears, and your contempt for dishonesty and duplicity, by whomsoever exhibited.

Have the courage to wear your old clothes until you can pay for new ones.

Have the courage to prefer comfort and propriety to fashion in all things.

Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance, rather than to seek for knowledge under false pretenses.

Have the courage in providing an entertainment for your friends not to exceed your means.

Have the courage to insure the property in your possession and thereby pay your debts in full.

A BOSTON SCENE.

'Who is this well-dressed man with the sealskin overcoat, hat and gloves? He carries a gold-headed cane and is followed by a bull dog in a scarlet blanket. Do you know him?'

'Oh, yes; that is S—— the pugilist. Fine man. Hard hitter. Very popular. Always surrounded by a crowd of admiring friends, as you see him now. He is very well off; was given a benefit the other night that netted him $500.'

'Indeed! he is very fortunate.'

'Oh, yes, a very fortunate fellow; ranks high in his profession, you see.'

'Who is that white-headed, weary looking old man close behind the pugilist and his friends? Poor man, he seems thinly clad for this wintry weather. Do you know him?'

'Oh, yes; that is old Faithful, a country clergyman. Very learned man, they say. Been a preacher of the gospel all his life, but poor as a rat. He had a benefit, too, the other night.'

'Oh, indeed! Did it net him much?'

'I don't think it did. You see it was a sort of surprise party. His parishioners called upon him in a body, ate up everything there was in the house, and left him presents to the amount of sixty cents.'

What a vast proportion of our lives is spent in anxious and useless forebodings concerning the future—either our own or that of our near ones. Present joys, present blessings, slip by and we miss half their sweet flavor, and all for the want of faith in Him who provides for the tiniest insect in the sunbeams. Oh, when shall we learn the sweet trust in God that our little children teach us every day by their confiding faith in us? We, who are so mutable, so faulty, so irritable, so unjust; and He who is so watchful, so loving, so forgiving? Why cannot we, slipping our hands into His each day, walk trustingly over that day's appointed path, thorny or flowery, crooked or straight, knowing that evening will bring us sleep, peace and home?

The dried fruit business has grown rapidly in Tennessee. During the past few years Knoxville and Nashville have handled large quantities of dried fruit, and now some of the smaller towns in the State are developing a fine business in the same line. For example, two years ago hardly a pound of dried fruit was shipped from Chattanooga. This year the dealers in that city will handle in the neighborhood of 750,000 pounds.

Huxley says: 'There was a time when men walked on all fours.' The Lowell Citizen knocks the novelty out of the idea by telling him he did the same thing when he was young.

'O, George!' exclaimed a Boston girl, while gazing at the comet, 'how transcendently beautiful and rapturously precious it is; I should so love to study botany.'—Rochester Post-Express.

Charity commands us where we know no ill, to think well of it; but friendship that always goes a step higher, gives a man a peculiar right and claim to the good opinion of his friends.

A curious spring in St. Tammany parish, La., runs clear, cold water all day long, but at sunset goes suddenly dry, discharging no water until the sun again rises.

'Is this seat engaged, Miss?' asked a young swell of a bright-looking maiden on the train the other day. 'No, sir, but I am,' was the tart reply. The masher caved.

A Vermout debating society will tackle the question, 'Which is the most fun—to see a man try to thread a needle, or a woman try to drive a nail?'—Boston Post.

'Always pay as you go,' an old uncle said to his nephew. 'But, uncle, suppose I have nothing to pay with?' 'Then don't go.'

Parents who allow their children to grow up with scrofulous humors bursting from every pore are guilty of a great wrong. Think of them pointed out as branded with a loathsome disease, and you will readily procure them the Cuticura Remedies.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA

and CUTICURA SOAP externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c. Sold by all druggists.

Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, Mass.

CATARRH.

Sanford's Radical Cure.

A single dose instantly relieves the most violent sneezing or head colds, clerrs the head as by magic, stops watery discharges from the nose and eyes, prevents ringing noises in the head, cures nervous headache and subdues chills and fever. In chronic catarrh it cleanses the nasal passages of foul mucus, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing when affected, frees the head, throat and bronchial tubes of offensive matter, sweetens and purifies the breath, stops the cough and arrests the progress of catarrh toward consumption.

One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one package, of all druggists for $1. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Weeks & Potter, Boston.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manufacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only occasional application necessary. It is recomended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

FITS.—A leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.—From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their address and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to adress

DR. AB. MESEROLE, No. 96 John St., N. Y.

ALMOST AS BAD.

WHAT THE PERPLEXED PHYSICIANS DO IN CASES OF EMERGENCY.

"I'll tell you the honest truth," answered the doctor. "Bright's Disease bothers the medical men almost as badly as cancer does. Having passed a certain stage, both straight point to eternity. It may be unprofessional to let out the secret, but whenever a patient comes to me with Bright's Disease, or any kidney trouble acting like it, I tell him to put on BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER without delay."

The doctor spoke by the card. The Capcine goes right to the spot. If you can be helped, the Capcine will do it. Look out for frauds. Is the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster? If so, you are all right. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. Highest awards.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy that I will send two bottles free, together with a valuable treatise on this disease, to any sufferer. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of The Sun are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make The Weekly Sun the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

BANK BLOCK, PALMER.

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions for authority to locate, construct, operate and maintain a branch or extension of its railroad from a point upon its present line in the town of Palmer, and thence running into or through the towns of Ludlow, Wilbraham, Chicopee, West Springfield, Westfield, Southwick, Russell, Granville, Blandford, Tolland, Sandisfield, Otis, Monterey, Great Barrington, Egremont, and the City of Holyoke, or any of them, to a point in the boundary line between said Commonwealth and the State of New York, or the State of Connecticut.

And your petitioner prays that the authority herein asked for may be granted to said Massachusetts Central Railroad Company, or to such new corporation as may be formed by the consolidation, for which authority is asked by a petition of said Company heretofore made, dated November 2, 1882; and it further prays that this application may be taken as in addition to said petition.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 23, 1882.

TO PLEASE HER HUSBAND.

WERE THE WORDS OF A GOOD LADY, MRS. HAWKINS, WHO HAS LONG SUFFERED THE PAIN COMMON TO CHRONIC RHEUMATISM. A WOMAN'S PATIENCE AND FORTITUDE WELL SHOWN.

Your reporter found Mrs. Hawkins at 14 Exchange street, New Haven, Conn. "About four years ago," she said, "I was then a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y. I went over one morning to the Jersey City depot to see some friends off who were starting for the West. There was a strong draft of air in the depot, and in standing by the train talking to my friends I caught a severe cold. I had no more than reached my home again when I was taken with a sudden chill, and then fever set in. The outcome of all was that rheumatism settled all over me. I was entirely helpless. From this I have never recovered. You see my hands what a state they are in. Those are all chalky swellings, and my limbs are very bad. While I remained in Brooklyn I tried all sorts of remedies, but I could never gain any relief. My physician said it was no use. I grew very thin and lost all strength. Finally, after coming here, to gratify my husband, I began to use Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and my general health has been better than ever before. I am stronger, have an excellent appetite, which I did not have for a long time. It has helped my rheumatism, and with a thorough trial I am in hopes of recovering completely."

Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY has been successfully used by thousands. It will build up a system that has been run down by overwork. It is the thing for the student and literary man to have at hand, and should be in the home of every mechanic. FAVORITE REMEDY is economical, safe and pleasant. Buy it and try it. 4w35

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. INGALLS,

FINE JOB PRINTING AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

The Song of the School Girl.

With heavy and aching head,
With weary but sleepless brain,
A school girl sat in her room at night,
And thus gave voice to her pain:

It's study by day and night,
And it's study by night and by day,
Till a blur comes over my sight,
And my brain seems oozing away.

The studies are piled so high
That the weight is breaking me down;
I wish I had wings, and could fly
Away from the school and the town.

It's study and study at school,
And it's study and study up here,
And I shudder beneath the rule
That awaits the failure I fear.

All day and all night is my head
With figures and facts oppressed,
And at last when I crawl into bed
They haunt me and rob me of rest.

It's oh, for a romp and a run,
A game with a hoop or a ball!
And it's oh, to be out in the sun,
Away from percentage and all.

Perhaps I may marry some day,
If I ever get through with school life,
And what will my husband say,
To a nervous and fidgety wife.

It's study by day and by night,
And it's study by night and by day,
Oh, surely it cannot be right
To study and never to play.

"LITTLE QUICK EYES."

It was "Boxing night," and the Standard theatre, London, was crammed from pit to gallery with a merry crowd, who awaited expectantly the rise of the curtain upon the pantomine of 'Little Red Riding Hood, or the Fairy Slipper.' In a large room behind the scenes some 50 or more children were busy arraying themselves in pretty gauze dresses with silver wings attached, a stout, loud-voiced woman assisting them when necessary. As the first notes of the orchestra made themselves audible, the door opened, and a little girl of perhaps nine years entered hurriedly. On the woman catching sight of her, she exclaimed in a harsh voice:—

'What do you mean by coming so late? You ought to be dressed this very minute.'

'I could not help it; indeed I could not,' Mrs. Rogers. Mother had a bad turn to-night, and—and I couldn't get here before,' answered the child, while the color crept into her fair cheeks and tears glistened in her blue eyes. As fast as the numb fingers could move, the shabby dress and well-worn shoes, through which the frosty night air had stolen, chilling the small feet, were laid aside for fairy, cloud-like skirts and dainty satin slippers. As the children stood waiting for their cue at the wings, one of them said to the little girl who had been late:

'Did you have a pnddin' yesterday, Lizzie? We did. It was prime you bet. Mother says it ain't no Christmas without a puddin'.'

'No; we didn't have any,' slowly answered Lizzie. 'Mother was poorly, and father, he'd been drinkin', and we couldn't; but I found a bit of holly, and it looked real pretty when I hung it up, and a boy that lives in our street gave me half an orange; and mother says perhaps next Christmas, if I'm a good girl, we'll have a puddin'; but I wouldn't care about that if father wouldn't drink and—and scold mother so.'

Tears came in the child's eyes and dropped hot upon the white dress. But the next instant they were dashed aside, and she bounded upon the stage with her young companions, her face wreathed in smiles and her feet keeping quick time to the music.

In the transformation scene, little Lizzie formed the central figure of a group of fairies, suspended, apparently, in mid-air. A burst of applause greeted the wonderful change, not a little of it due to the sweet face of the child Lizzie, who made the dearest of little fairies, with her flaxen hair falling in rippling waves to her waist. All at once a frightened look came over the young face, her slight arms were raised with a quick gesture, and her lips moved, but not a sound issued from between them. The audience saw it, and a man's voice cried out, 'The child is faint! lower her down.'

The wild cry was taken up by the rest of the audience, and they shouted: 'She will fall! Shame! Lower her quick!'

The almost invisible wire which held the child vibrated violently, and throwing herself forward, she pointed up to the vast dome of the theatre, while her words before inaudible now rang out shrilly and clearly: 'No, no; I am not faint, save yourselves; the chandelier is falling!'

With one shuddering look upwards, the occupants of the center of the house hurried from their seats; and not an instant too soon, for the last person in danger had barely reached a place of safety when down came the sparkling glass to the floor, shattered into thousands of pieces, and literally crushing into atoms the vacant seats on which it fell. Women threw themselves on their knees, and strong men's cheeks blanched when they thought of their narrow escape. The manager tried to make himself heard, but his voice was drowned in cries of 'The child! the child! Let us see the little girl who saved all our lives!'

Bowing, the manager retired, to appear again with Lizzie by the hand, who drew shyly back as men pushed forward and sought to shake hands with her. Then from a back seat a voice called out:

'Hold her up. We cannot see her from here.'

The manager did as directed, and the cry went forth: 'God bless her! God bless the little girl!'

A working man, the marks of labor on his well-worn clothes, sprang upon the cushioned seat of a private box, and addressed the audience thus:

'Niver ye fear, mates, that God is goin' to forget the little 'un; but don't ye think it would be heartfelt loike if we was to take up a bit of a collection for the darling?'

As the applause which greeted this remark ceased, he picked up a tambourine from the orchestra and continued:

'Here, mates, I'll start it with half a crown, and jist bear in mind that if it had not been for yonder little 'un's quick eyes, there's many among ye who would have had no missus nor childer this night, and ye yerself might have been lying crushed under that rubbish there. Three cheers for Little Quick Eyes, and don't spare the pennies, lads.'

With a will the cheers rang out for Little Quick Eyes, as the man had impulsively named her, and the tambourine grew heavy with pennies and silver. Such a scene had never before been enacted in a theatre. People passed, unquestioned, from the street into the building, drawn thither by the unusual noise. Lizzie's drunken father heard the news in a public house close by, and suddenly becoming sobered thereby, he lifted his glass from the table and slowly drained its contents upon the floor, saying:

'My little Liz did that. Looker here, boys, ye all hear me say it, not a drop of liquor touches my lips again as long as I live; a girl like that is not going to have an old sot for a father.'

And he kept his word; for the next Christmas found them living very comfortably in a better part of the city, Lizzie's father being now employed as property man at the Standard theatre. Lizzie, or 'Little Quick Eyes,' as she was always called in the bills after that night, had a small speaking part in this year's pantomime. She was a great favorite with the public, and the manager, being a kind man, did not forget it in her salary. This Christmas there was a pudding and lots of nice presents, and the boy who had given Lizzie half of his orange was there, and he said it was 'the toppest Christmas' he had ever seen; and 'Little Quick Eyes' thought so too.

THAT BLESSED CHILD.

One of those naturally bright children who are always getting people into difficulties, was at a prayer meeting the other evening with his mother, when he asked aloud—

'Ma, say, ma, who was Dinah Moore.'

'Hush!' whispered his mother cautiously, 'it's a hymn.'

'No it ain't, ma,' continued the hopeful, 'it's a woman; say, who's going home to Dinah Moore?'

'Willie!' said his mother, in a ghastly voice, 'you are disturbing the meeting. It means going to heaven to die no more.'

'Dine no more! Oh! ma, don't they eat anything there? I don't want to go there if they don't have any dinners.'

His mother explained to him as well as she possibly could, and Willie sat still for a quarter of a minute, his bright eyes roving about the church. Then he asked in a stage whisper—

'Ma, is God out of town?'

'No!' answered the distracted woman, faintly.

'Then what is Mr. Kelly 'running' this meeting for, ma?' continued the sweet little child.

The choir sung him down, but as the meeting was closed with a moment of silent prayer, his gentle little voice was distinctly heard saying—

'Old Mrs. Jones's switch don't match her hair like yours does, ma!'—Investigator.

OLD-TIME SALARIES.

Between 1777 and 1784 the territory of Tennessee, (really a part of North Carolina) maintained a State government under the name of 'Franklyn.' In the old records—quoted once by Daniel Webster in a Congressional speech—stand the following curious statements of the way payments were made in a time when the people had no current money:

'Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Franklyn, that from the first day of January, 1779, the salaries of the officers of this Commonwealth be as follows, to-wit:

'His Excellency, the Governor, per annum, 1000 deer skins.

'His Honor, the Chief-Justice, 500 deer skins, or 500 raccoon skins.

The Treasurer of the State, 450 raccoon skins.

Clerk of the House of Commons, 200 raccoon skins.

'Members of Assembly, per diem, three raccoon skins.

'Entered into a law the 18th day of October, 1779, under the great seal of the State.

The well-worn burlesque of the 'leather medal' suggests a vague reference to the times when skins were the only money.

SAYINGS FROM THE TALMUD.

He gives much who gives a little with kindness.

It is better to lend without interest than to give alms.

He who is hospitable shall be himself God's guest.

He who wrongs his fellow-man commits a greater sin than he who robs a temple.

Pray for the good of the commonwealth, for without that men would devour one another.

Who deserves honor? He who honors humanity.

Let thy neighbor's honor be dearer than thine own.

In Palestine, they say that he who first becomes silent in a quarrel springs from a good family.

Make of wisdom neither a crown with which to adorn thyself, nor a spade with which to bury thyself.

Much have I learned from my teachers, more from my comrades, most of all from my pupils.

Who is rich? He who has a wife beautiful in character.

An old gentleman of this vicinity, who has got some way beyond the nineties, and is only a few per cent below the par which we all ought to reach before we render the final account, was discussing political and social questions with his grandson a day or two since. The old man and the young one differ on almost everything except poetry and eloquence and family affection. At the close of the discussion the elder said: 'I think I shall come round to your opinion, my boy, for I find I am getting into my second childhood.'

Charles V., after his abdication, amused himself in his retirement at St. Juste, by attempting to make a number of watches go exactly together. Being constantly foiled in this attempt, he exclaimed: 'What a fool I have been to neglect my own concerns, and to waste my whole life in a vain attempt to make all men think alike on matters of religion, when I cannot even make a few watches keep time together.'—Colton's Lacon.

A story is told of a woman in the rural districts who wanted to keep up appearances, who was often thwarted in this by her innocent and matter-of-fact daughter. One day when a visitor was present at the table the hostess said to her daughter, 'Where are all our knives?' 'Here they are, both of them,' was the astounding reply.

Mamma—'Why are you always beating your doll? That isn't nice.' Elsa—'Yes, it is. I must beat the doll, because I don't want papa to tell me, as he always tells you, that I am spoiling my children.'—Fliegende Blatter.

OVER-EATING.

Animals living in a state of nature do not over-eat themselves. They stop eating when they have got enough. There are no prize cattle on the prairies. It is the stalled ox, and the pig in his pen, deprived of exercise, that can be fattened into a diseased obesity. Horses escape this process because men do not to any great extent knowingly devour them. The hunter and racer are not overfed. All animals expected to do their work are carefully fed as to quality and quantity. If human beings were fed as wisely they would be as healthy. There are some good rules for feeding as to quantity. When our food is simple and natural in kind and quality and mode of preparation, there is little danger of eating too much. There is little danger, for example, of eating too many grapes, apples, pears or bananas. Salt, sugar, spices and luxurious cookery tempt to excess. With men, as with animals, a natural diet is self-limiting, and we are disposed to stop when we have got enough. The more artificial the food, the more elaborate and luxurious the feast, the more the liability to overload the stomach, overtask the digestive power and overweigh the forces of life. Simplicity of food is a condition of health, and promotes longevity. The quantity of food which enables a man to do his daily work without loss of weight is precisely what he requires. He supplies the daily waste—no more and no less. This quantity may vary a little with each individual, but every one can easily ascertain his own measure of requirement by reducing the quantity of daily food until he finds a balance of force and weight. It is my opinion that the average quantity of water-free aliment required, say by business and literary men, is twelve ounces. Men of great muscular activity may require 16 to 20 ounces. I have found myself in very good condition for sedentary work on 8 or 10 ounces. When any one is in good condition for his work and keeps his normal weight, he has food enough.

IGNORANT OF CHICAGO'S GREATNESS.

While the Park theater was burning several men in a hotel near by were talking about it. One was a Chicago man and he had a good deal to say. A New Yorker, who probably had not traveled much, was a listener. The Chicago man recalled the big fire out there.

'You remember the Chicago fire?' he said.

'No,' said the New Yorker, 'I never heard of it. Had a fire, eh? Did anyone put it out?'

'Did anyone put it out?'

'Yes? Got some engines, I suppose.'

'Why, sir, we've got the best fire de—'

'Oh! then it was put out. I'm glad. Hope no one lost anything.'

The Chicago man turned away, but pretty soon came back. A remark about the theater being flimsy led him to say:

'A theater like that would not be allowed in Chicago; no, sir, not be allowed.'

Then the New Yorker chipped in with:

'Have you really a theater in Chicago?'

'Have we a what?'

'A theater. You were speaking about the theaters. Do actors ever go out there?'

The Chicago man did not answer. He seemed to be getting riled. The innocent New Yorker spoke again:

'Would there be any chance to start a church in Chicago? I have a friend who feels that he was born to be a missionary, and he thinks that if he got into some new settlement—'

The western citizen was really getting mad. He squared himself and said:

'Sir, you and your friend may go to Halifax. If you ever come to Chicago—'

'Well, mebbe I will. I should like to see one of those new places. How do you get there? Any railroads?'

When the meeting adjourned the Chicago man looked as if he wanted to lick some one right away.

"HOW D'YOU DO?"

Most of us say 'Howdedo?' and think we have said, 'How do you do?' 'How are you?' is more elegant, perhaps; and 'Hope I see you well' is the habit of some people. Then we shake hands, and women sometimes kiss.

In olden times English speaking people said, 'Save you, sir,' or madam, and 'God save you;' and long ago men as well as women 'kissed for courtesy.' English and American men now consider such salutations as absurd between persons of their own sex.

Frenchmen, however, are not ashamed to kiss as they ask, 'How do you carry yourself?' and the Germans crush each other bear fashion, as they cry, 'How do you find yourself?'

The Italian gives both airy clasp and kiss, after he has flourished his fingers in the air and cried, 'How do you stand?' But the Dutchman's 'How do you fare?' is generally only followed by a clap on the shoulder.

When two Swedes fall into each other's arms and look over each other's shoulders they ask, 'How can you?' And the Polander who has lived in a land of sadness, inquires, 'Art thou gay?'

In Turkey people cross their arms, bow low and say, 'I will request of Allah that thy prosperity be increased.' And the Quaker of our land regards his approaching friend without smile or nod, and quietly remarks, 'How is thee?'

An Iowa paper has supplied a long-felt want by giving to the public an obituary notice that bears upon its face the stamp of honesty. It says: 'He gained his riches by loaning money and handling notes and mortgages, had a state-wide name for his litigation in various counties and in the supreme courts, was grasping and heartless in his transactions; he became divorced from his wife, and died without a friend.'

An Arkansas editor, in retiring from the editorial control of a newspaper, said: 'It is with a feeling of sadness that we retire from the active control of this paper, but we leave our journal with a gentleman who is abler than we are, financially, to handle it. This gentleman is well known in this community. He is the sheriff.'

There is nothing sometimes like hitting the nail on the head. At a recent fire in Ottoway some one sent a telegram to the owner who was in Boston, saying: "Premises all on fire; what shall we do?' The answer came promptly, 'Put it out.'

Doctor—'Well, Pat, have you taken the box of pills I sent you?' Pat—'Yes sir, be jabers, I have! but I don't feel any better yet; maybe the lid hasn't come off yet.'—London Judy.

MANY members of Congress are angry over President Arthur's allusion to the river and harbor bill in his message. That is all right—they know now something how the country at large has felt towards them for passing it.

ALBERT PALMER was elected mayor of Boston on Tuesday, by more than 2000 majority over Mayor Green. So "Poor Palmer" has his reward at last. The six cities which held elections on that day all voted in favor of license.

JOSEPH B. LOOMIS of Southwick was found guilty, at Springfield last week Friday, of the murder of David Levett of that city, at Agawam, on the night of Dec. 1, 1882, and was sentenced to be hanged on the 8th of next March.

A BILL reducing letter postage to two cents has been unanimously reported to the House by the post office committee, and the prospect is quite encouraging for its passage. The bill fixes Jan. 1, 1884, as the date for the change, which is certainly far enough away.

JUDGE LORD of the supreme court has resigned, and Governor Long has appointed Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., as his successor. The entire bench of the supreme court as it now stands is the work of Gov. Long, who has also appointed five judges of the superior court.

THREE years ago there were 989 women voters registered in Boston, but this year the number has fallen to 567. It is doubtless a fact that the women are coming to the conclusion that it is pretty "small potatoes" to vote for members of the school committee, and nothing else.

ACCORDING to the New York Herald, Gen. Butler says he is a Republican Governor, having been elected mainly by Republican votes. We can tell better about that as the new year advances, but we suspect that Gov. Butler will be first, last and always, Gen. Butler's Governor, whatever party flag he may profess to sail under.

The New York Tribune, whose prospectus appears in another column, is offering some excellent books as premiums to subscribers. The paper is good enough to take without any premium, but the books are offered in order to put standard works within reach of readers of moderate means. The Tribune is doing a useful work in this respect, though the service does not compare in value with that rendered by producing a strong and pure paper, complete in its news, entertaining in miscellany, and so clean that it can safely be put into any home, however fastidious, for perusal by every member of the family. The Semi-Weekly is specially adapted to a large class of readers too far from New York to depend on the daily edition, but who want the valuable foreign news letters, book reviews, editorials, scientific information, literary miscellany, and household hints for which the Tribune is famous. The Weekly is a good and strong paper for farmers. It was never so good as now, and both editions promise to be better this year than ever before.

In making up their list of periodicals for the new year, parents should not fail to include "Our Little Ones," for the youngest members of the family. It is published by the Russell Publishing Co. of Boston, and its price, $1.50 is small, indeed, compared with the comfort and delight each number will give the little ones.

FIRES.—London, Eng., had a $15,000,000 fire last week Thursday night.——Kilburn & Co.'s chair factory at Orange was burned last Saturday. Loss, $50,000.——The business portion of the city of Kingston, Jamaica, was destroyed by fire on Monday. The loss is placed at fifteen millions of dollars.——On Tuesday the Enterprise cotton mills at Manayunk, Pa., were burned; loss $75,000. There were no fire escapes, and 16 operatives were injured in escaping.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Remember that O. P. Allen has the best display of Holiday Goods ever shown in town.

"Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer." Settled at last. Immense stock of Holiday Goods. G. L. Hitchcock.

Milligan believes in advertising, as does he also in having a large stock of Slippers for presents during the holidays. Have you noticed the white weasel on exhibition in his window?

All coal bills must be paid on or before Jan. 1st, and at expiration of 30 days from date of bill 6 per cent interest will be charged hereafter.

J. F. Holbrook.

E. S. Brooks has the largest assortment of Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, Solid Silver and Plated Ware, of the latest styles, ever shown in Palmer. Just examine and be convinced for yourselves.

Christmas is near, and with it comes numerous blessings; but health is foremost among them, and can be preserved by the use of proper and wholesome food. Some change is needed. Rye Flour, Buckwheat Flour, Wheat Meal, Corn and Rye Meal always fresh at Weld & Longley's.

F. D. Barton, the Jeweler, has spared no pains to make his store the center of attraction for Holiday goods in his line. Having visited the market early in the season, he has brought together a stock that can only be found in a first-class jewelry establishment. In his large assortment of fine jewelry can be found many useful as well as ornamental goods for presents, such as Gold and Silver Watches, Chains, Pins, Bracelets, Ear-Drops, Cuff Buttons, Rings, Charms, &c., &c. His stock of Silverware is complete with the most desirable patterns. To all purchasers of Holiday Goods included in Watches, Clocks, fine Jewelry and Silverware, we would recommend an early call on F. D. Barton.

The Baptist church has been recently insured for $5000, this being the first insurance there has been on the edifice in a number of years.

To-day is the first of the eleven shortest days of the year, and until the 27th inst. each day will now be just nine hours and four minutes long.

Rev. Mr. Perry will begin a new course of Sunday evening lectures on "Topics of the Times." Subject to-morrow night, "The observance of Sunday."

In spite of the unfavorable weather, the ladies of the Universalist society had a good attendance at their festival Wednesday evening, and netted $78 from their entertainment.

The Parks heirs have sold the tract of land located between Park street and the road to the carpet factory, to A. J. and H. A. Northrop. The tract comprises some 12 or 13 acres.

The following pupils in the primary school were neither absent nor tardy, last term: Annie Allen, Minnie Allen, Scott French, Annie Fish, George Gilchrist, Eugene Lester, Harlie Randall.

Peter Clark was before the district court on Wednesday for drunkenness, and was sent in to the county boarding house to board out the fine and costs, amounting to $5.73, which he could not pay.

Miss Lillian Edgerton, the soprano singer at the Baptist church, has been presented with a handsome silver card receiver by members of the congregation, as a slight token of their appreciation of her services.

Next Saturday evening, Dec. 23d, is the date fixed upon for the presentation of "Hazel Kirke" at Wales Hall by the Madison Square Theatre Company. The play is a beautiful stage-picture, which all should see.

Dr. Warren expects to move to Worcester the middle of next week. His successor, Dr. G. H. Wilkins, has arrived, and may be found at Dr. Warren's office. F. L. Brooks, of Robinson & Brooks, has rented and will occupy the Doctor's house.

W. S. Brick has recently lettered the Weeks House barn on two sides, and has also lettered H. Lawrence's broom factory, and made two new signs for Mrs. Weeden. He is now putting over one hundred letters on the front and sides of W.N. Flynt & Co.'s store at Monson.

Charles Upham has bought the timber on C. E. Dewey's land east of the village, and will cut it off this winter. At the rate the denuding of our wooded hill sides has been progressing for a year or two, they will soon be as barren as a rock, and their beauty will be a thing of the past.

These scholars in the second intermediate school were neither absent nor tardy during the past term: Lula Holden, Effie Moffatt, Grace Lester, Molly Foley, Christa Park, Edna Stedman, Charlie Studley, Henry Holbrook, Willie Roach, Freddie Lacouline, and Edgar Duplessis.

"Muldoon's Picnic" will be on the boards at Wales Hall next Monday night, and judging from the reputation which it has acquired in the cities, it is a "roaring" comedy, with enough fun to the square inch to draw shouts of laughter from even the soberest mortal. See advertisement.

At the adjourned meeting of the Young Men's Library Association, on Monday evening, these officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, S. W. French; vice president, S. S. Taft; secretary, L. E. Chandler; treasurer, W. C. Dewey; librarian, W. H. Stowe; directors, O. P. Allen, S. S. Taft, W. C. Dewey, W. H. Stowe.

The boarders and employes at the Mansion House, with other friends, celebrated the birthday of Mrs. S. J. Stone, the landlady of the house, last Saturday night, by giving her a surprise party, and presenting her with an 8-day clock, a plate glass mirror, and several other articles, W. C. Crandall making a neat presentation speech in behalf of the party.

"I had a dream last night which I want to tell you about, and perhaps you can make an item out of it," was the remark he greeted us with on a cold morning this week. "I dreamed that I was running to catch a train down here, and just as I got on the platform of the new union depot which they were putting up ——" We were sorry to lose the item, but it was too awful to listen to farther.

Mizpah chapter, No. 23, Golden Rule Alliance, has elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: Judge, W. S. Ward; associate judge, H. Lawrence; advocate, Mrs. W. S. Ward; past judge, O. P. Allen; scribe, Mrs. G. F. Brown; collector, G. F. Brown; treasurer, E. J. Wood; chaplain, J. H. Haynes; guide, Chas. W. Robinson; warden, Mrs. H. Lawrence; sentry, S. Edgerton.

There will be a Christmas concert at the Universalist church on Christmas eve and the children of the Sunday school will have a free supper at the church Christmas night. There will also be an entertainment and probably a supper at the Congregational church, Christmas night, for the Sunday school children. The Baptist Sunday school voted last Sunday not to have any Christmas entertainment this year.

Now comes a season of the year
Which to the young man seems quite drear,
For Christmas-time will soon be here,
And well he knows 'twill cost him dear.

Now to the jeweler he hies,
Looks o'er gold bugs and butterflies,
And finally a present buys,
For he knows he's got to give her something that costs about $25, or she will mitten him, while ten to one he only gets a cardboard motto or a hat-band in return.

The announcement in another column that Whitmore & Clark's well-known minstrels are to appear at Wales Hall next Wednesday evening is doubtless sufficient of itself to insure a full house, for this is a popular troupe of artists. Everybody knows Hank White, that prince of Ethiopian delineators, and though his broken leg is not yet wholly sound his mouth is all there still, and he will be on hand as usual, aided by a crutch. Geo. M. Clark is also back among the burnt cork artists, and the Hennesey and Favor brothers, the Delmannings and other favorites will be found in their old places.

The annual meeting of the Palmer Carpet Co. was held on Wednesday, the old board of officers being re-elected, as follows: President, Geo. Robinson; treasurer, O. H. Sampson of Boston; clerk, A. Pinney; directors, O. H. Sampson, George Robinson, J. B. Shaw, H. P. Holden, A. J. Northrop. A dividend of 7 per cent was declared, making 13 per cent for the past year, which has been a very prosperous one with the company, the goods being sold as fast as they could be manufactured. After the meeting the stockholders took dinner at the Weeks House, by invitation of Treasurer Sampson.

Our advertisers are crowding us pretty sharply just now, and we must crave the indulgence of our readers for a week or two, while giving them such a short allowance of reading matter. Next week, however, we shall issue a generous supplement, with four solid pages of interesting Christmas reading matter; and in the meantime we advise all to carefully read what our advertisers have to say. This is the season when everybody is trying to decide what it is best to purchase for Christmas presents, and our wide-awake merchants call attention in our columns to some of the many attractive articles which are to be found on their counters and shelves, in a sufficient variety to satisfy every taste, as well as every purse.

The fellowship meeting at the Congregational church on Tuesday called together an unusually large delegation from the churches in Monson, Hampden, Longmeadow, Ludlow, Three Rivers and Thorndike. Rev. E. P. Root of Hampden presided. After singing and reading of scripture, Wm. R. Sessions of Hampden opened a discussion on the following topic: "How shall we lead Christians to decide practical questions on principle, instead of by impulse or passion." The time was well taken up, and most of the speakers thought it best to educate the people, and have them follow the teaching of Christ. Mr. Sessions said that the ministers put a layman on to open the discussion, for some purpose, but he did not know what, unless that the ministers might be told of their fault, in not educating the people on this subject. At 12.30 refreshments were served which had been provided by the ladies in the vestry. At 2 p. m. Rev. Mr. Byington of Monson opened a discussion of the question "How to bring more of the mind that was in Christ, into our lives." He was followed by many others, who decided that as Christ's mind was one of obedience, submission and humility, the best way to have more of his mind was to be obedient to His word, submissive to His spirit and humbly perform every duty for His honor, instead of selfish interests. The meeting was a very spirited one, and all expressed themselves as having enjoyed a good day. The next meeting will be in Longmeadow.

"Men and Events of Half a Century" is the comprehensive title of a book of nearly 400 pages recently published at Cleveland, O., by F. T. Wallace, Esq., late assistant city solicitor, and a former resident of Palmer. Mr. Wallace is a man of culture, wide reading, close observation and extensive acquaintance, and in this book he brings together some sixty short articles, personal reminiscences and notes on a wide variety of subjects. There are entertaining papers on Webster and Choate, Lafayette and the Heroes of 1812, William Lloyd Garrison, John A. Andrew, Wendell Phillips, Adelaide Phillips, and others no less prominent in American history, with some of interest more particularly to the citizens of his adopted city, though even his local papers are invested with no small interest for the general reader, for Mr. Wallace is a graceful and entertaining writer. The last, as well as the longest article in the book, is entitled "The Kidd Letter." The older citizens of Palmer will remember that some 34 years ago there was found in a rocky ledge on the farm of Samuel Shaw in this town, a sealed bottle containing a letter from the famous pirate, Robert Kidd, written in 1700, and telling where his treasure was buried. This article gives the letter in full, with an interesting account of its discovery, as well as of the search for the lost treasure, and a sketch of Kidd's career. The article is one to interest nearly every citizen of the town, and any one desiring the work can leave an order for it at Allen's drug store.

"I say, W——, call them up over at ——'s will you, see if Miss—— is at home, and if she will receive calls this afternoon?" he said to a clerk friend of his as he came into the store. W—— did so, but it was found that the lady was at her boarding house near by, and the phone was hung up while she was sent for. In comes one of the proprietors in a hurry, and going to the instrument proceeds to talk business with other parties. This is just finished when his call is rung, and he answers it, thinking perhaps more is to be said to him on the subject. "Hello," a feminine voice calls, and is replied to. "What is it?" comes again. "I'm here; what do you want?" he answers. "Want to talk to you; you called me didn't you?" "I think not; who are you?" "It's me, Minnie. Who are you?" He gave his name, which happened to be the same as that of the young man with whom she thought she was talking. "Didn't you call me?" she asked. "No." "They said you did." "Well, I didn't. Good-by." All this time the faces of the two young men were a "study in crimson," and the friend got so nervous he could hardly stand still, and he soon made himself scarce; the clerk had business at the other end of the establishment, and the other partner nearly fell off his chair trying not te "give the thing away." As the conversation ceased partner No. 1 turned around with a solemn look, but a twinkle in his eye, and says: "Perhaps it was not me they wanted over at ——'s." The interested ones finally made another attempt, this time with success, and soon after a young man might have been seen on his way to a neighboring town to make a call in which we hope everything was satisfactorily explained.

BONDSVILLE.

Santa Claus tells where his Bondsville headquarters are, in our advertising columns.

The Canterbury brothers have put up a house for John Hannifin, near his blacksmith shop.

Last summer John Carmody built and filled a silo, and for the last six weeks has been feeding from it. Thus far he feels perfectly satisfied with his experiment.

WARREN.

The high school closed this week.

The Universalists realized between two and three hundred dollars at their fair.

There was a union temperance meeting at the Methodist church Sunday evening.

The Methodist sale occupied four evenings and it is hoped realized a large sum towards paying their debt.

Mrs. Cleveland, teachers of the grammar school, has resigned. Miss Augusta Tyler, who has been teaching one of the village schools, has also resigned, and will go to Iowa to take a more private position with a limited number of pupils.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

The Collins Paper Company will run their manufacturing department on half time for several weeks, but the finishing department will run full time to finish up the stock on hand.

Services at Grace Chapel to-morrow as follows: Sunday school at 12.45 p. m. preaching by Rev. M. S. Howard at 2 p. m., and by Dr. Fox at 5 p. m. During the week prayer meetings Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7.30 o'clock.

There will be a Christmas gathering and tree, at Grace Chapel, Dec. 26th, and friend throughout the village are invited to come and bring their gifts, that they may be distributed from the tree. There will be exercises suitable to the occasion, and let all come and enjoy the glorious anniversary.

THORNDIKE.

The frame work of Captain Clark's new residence on Commercial street is up.

The sociable appointed for Wednesday evening was given up because of the weather.

The ladies' society of the Methodist church will meet at the parsonage next Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Baird A. Farr, the teacher who succeeds Mr. Woodard in the grammar school, comes from New York with a fine reputation as an instructor.

The young people of the Congregational parish are making preparations to give at some future time a drama entitled, "Honor Before Wealth."

A party of genial people visited Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Hastings and passed Thursday p. m. very pleasantly. The hostess prepared a fine repast, and treated her visitors in a manner becoming their character.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

Chas. Grise has moved his Oak street bakery into the next building, a new one just erected for him.

The ladies' benevolent sewing society have a fair at Wight's Hall next week Monday and Tuesday nights.

Ward eight of Springfield, which takes in this village, is without a representative in the aldermanic board this year.

The mills have now the finest cloth room in the State, having just fitted up the brick building which stands between the two mills, for a cloth room and cloth storehouse.

Hampden Council No. 618, American Legion of Honor, will hold a special meeting next week Friday night to elect officers for the ensuing year. The council proposes to have a public installation in January, and has chosen the following committee to carry out a very elaborate programme: J. H. Chandler, W. A. Twiss, J. E. Dickens, A. S. Packard, P. J. Carlsen.

THREE RIVERS.

An entertainment is to be given at the Baptist vestry next Tuesday evening by the young people of the Sunday school, consisting of charades, tableaux, dialogues, etc.

In spite of the snow storm of Wednesday, delegates from the various churches in the Westfield Baptist Association gathered with the Baptist church in Three Rivers and held a fellowship meeting both morning, afternoon and evening. Rev. Dr. Potter, of the State Street Baptist church, Springfield, led the morning session, and showed by the 51st psalm that the man there represented was not right with God, with the world, nor with himself, and earnestly asked each one to make a personal application of the truth, and see how they stood. Some found themselves confessing their shortcomings, while others prayed to see themselves as God saw them. Adjourned at 12 o'clock and partook of a bountiful collation prepared by the ladies in the vestry; reassembled at 2 o'clock in the audience room, and after being exhorted by Rev. Mr. Woodruff of Wales to advance in the same line of thought as presented in the morning, enjoyed what might well be called an old-fashioned prayer meeting. The meeting closed at 4 p. m., to be called together at 7. The people entertained were thanked for their presence by the friends who entertained them, and the meeting adjourned to be called together in Southwick, at their convenience. This church has taken a new lease of life, and is led in its heaven-born way by a faithful pastor, in whom there is much "Joy."

WEST WARREN.

Miss Belle Bowdoin sang at the Methodist fair in Warren last Wednesday evening.

Rev. G. A. Viets gave a rousing temperance lecture in concluding his sermon last Sunday morning.

Dr. J. P. Bixby has bought the Rockwell property on Chapel street, and will soon move into his new quarters.

The merchants are getting in their goods for the Christmas trade, and the show cases and windows are assuming their holiday attire.

The Methodist Sunday school will give a concert Christmas eve. They are also to have a tree Christmas night, with appropriate exercises.

Copies of Warner's Book of Two Thousand Dollar Prize Enigmas have been circulated through the village, and many are trying to solve the puzzles and gain the prizes.

The poster on a barn in the village, advertising a fertilizing preparation for sale, has been remarked as being a very appropriate sign, as persons are frequently seen coming from there thoroughly "fertilized."

Rev. H. W. Eldredge, of Turners Falls, gave the fifth lecture of the course in the Methodist church Tuesday evening, on "Cheerfulness versus Grumbling." It was pronounced by all that heard it, to be the best lecture in the course thus far. The next lecture has been postponed from the 19th until the 26th, and will be given by Rev. Henry J. Fox of Wilbraham, whose subject is, "Decision the Key to Character."

MONSON.

Holiday goods do muchly abound.

Julius Stewart has commenced the erection of another dwelling house on Pearl street.

The Monson Brass Band have reorganized with 14 pieces, and will furnish music for the skating rink in Central Hall.

Daniel G. Potter, executor of the will of Joshua Tracy, deceased, finds there are 28 heirs to the estate, located in about a dozen States in the Union.

Some parties recently found in the woods a partial outfit for the saloon business—jugs, bottles, tumblers, and the accompanying smell of extract of rye and tincture of molasses, together with a small quantity of apple juice.

The Monson Free Library is being patronized liberally, and the donation by Mrs. Lyon and Mrs. Dale of the funds and building is appreciated by the many who are furnished free the means of storing their minds with useful and valuable information.

The "Pocket Guide to the Leaders of Business" contains a partial list of the business and business men in town, and there is a grand opportunity in the JOURNAL for merchants and others to acquaint the public weekly with the branches they desire to present to the notice of purchasers.

The public schools commenced this week, and those scholars who have not been absent or tardy during the year will look forward to the close of the term to see their names on the roll of honor. Fifteen pupils in the South Monson intermediate school have been perfect in attendance during the past term; Annie Corcoran, Maggie Doyle, Mamie Hobbs, Mabel Knight, Joanna Leary, Mary Lukeman, Kate Lyons, Lizzie McGuire, Alice Moores, Lizzie Osborn, Bertha Thompson, Joseph Anderson, Clare King, Charlie Moffatt and Charlie Ricketts. Several others have only one mark.

CARD.—Again I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to the many kind and generous friends who have given me their aid and sympathy in this time of sorrow and affliction.

SUSAN C. HUNT.

Palmer, Mass., Dec. 13th, 1882.

"I move," said a delegate in a Virginia convention, "that our chairman take a dose of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, he is so hoarse that I cannot understand him." That gentleman had no doubt tried this wonderful medicine.

Look sharp—Estey organ, two full sets of reeds and all right, for only $36, at Stimpson's, 396 Main street, Springfield.

Stimpson, at 396 Main street, Springfield, offers a Woodward & Brown piano for $225, cost $450. All perfect. It is a big bargain.

Purge out the morbid humors of the blood by a dose or two of Ayer's Pills, and you will have clearer heads as well as healthier bodies.

Those parlor suites finished in plush, satin delyon and raw silk should be seen before you buy, we mean those just received at Maxfield's, Bridge street, Springfield.

Watches and Jewelry. First chance is best chance. Verbum sat. While others are "looking round" you go and select at D. F. Davison's, 35½ Main street, Springfield.

Morse, of the "Central Shoe Store," Springfield, has outstripped all his competitors on "Christmas Slippers," just as he has on rubbers, and no class or age or pocket has been forgotten.

When you have tried so-called remedies for dyspepsia, headache and biliousness, with no benefit, let your next trial be Simmons Liver Regulator. It has never failed in relieving and curing.

Peruvian Syrup cures dyspepsia, general debility, liver complaint, boils, humors, chronic diarrhœa, nervous affections, female complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood. 1y3

NOTHING is sure in this world but death, taxes, and the cure of a cough by using King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam. Trial size, 35 cents; large size, 75 cents. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m38

The name of gallant DeLong, commander of the ill-fated Jeannette, will pass into history as that of a hero. The pitiless cold and perpetual snows of Siberia just as certainly killed him, as heart disease will kill its victims—unless they use Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator. It is the only known specific for the malady.

STATISTICS prove that ten per cent of the deaths throughout New England are caused by consumption, and when we reflect that this terrible disease in its earliest stages is quickly cured by using King's Juniper Tar Cough Balsam, (costing only 35 cents) shall we condemn the sufferers for their negligence, or pity them for their ignorance? Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer, and D. F. Holden, Three Rivers. 1m38

As Christmas holidays approach, many are thinking of a proper present to give to their friends. We have visited one of the largest and finest watch and jewelry stores in Springfield. We refer to that of L. S. Stowe & Co. in Haynes Hotel building. We were surprised to see their very large stock of diamonds, watches, jewelry, silver and decorated goods. As they have more goods than room, they wish to close out a large number previous to moving into their new store, so they offer very low bargains in the next thirty days. It is a very fine chance for our readers to secure valuable presents at a discount.

"That is the loveliest chamber set I ever saw." "So it is. Where did you get it?" "I tried everywhere and at last found it at Burns' furniture store, Springfield. He has the finest selection I have seen. What fine taste his buyer must have! He always has the prettiest styles. He is selling this month 25 per cent off."

"What shall I get for a Christmas present?" "I don't know what you will get, but I have just bought the loveliest little writing desk for a lady at Burns' furniture store, Springfield. Come and see it." "It is a beauty." "Yes, and I got it at 25 per cent off, as he is selling that much lower this month."

The children of Israel were once fed by manna sent from heaven. This was an undoubted case of "God-send." The amelioration of human ills and ailments has been often undertaken and as often failed. Ely's Cream Balm, however, "has been weighed in the balance and not found wanting." It is a sovereign, speedy, certain and pleasant cure for catarrh and cold in the head. Thousands of persons have attested this fact. "Ely's Cream Balm is a God-send," writes Mrs. M. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 22d, 1882. "I had catarrh for three years, had tried nearly all the remedies but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely, and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me." This preparation is not a liquid or a snuff, and is easily applied. Can you, reader, afford to experiment with injurious irritants and injections when a pleasant cure is at hand? 2w38

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

PERFECTION.—Herrick's Sugar Coated Vegetable Liver Pills are really "perfection," because they are aperient, tonic, laxative, sudorific and alterative at the same time. With these rare pills in your house you can do without salts, seidlitz powders, castor oil, citrate of magnesia, senna and manna, and so on. You want none of these. Herrick's Pills are a substitute for the whole of them, and what is better, may be taken with safety and comfort by the most delicate woman or child as well as the robust man. 4w—36

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

Don't say "I cannot afford a piano," when you can get an upright piano at Stimpson's, 396 Main street, Springfield, for $160, which is all right and a bargain.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Strong, Clean, Enterprising.

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION AMONG THE BEST PEOPLE.

Rejoicing with its readers in the better times which reign throughout the country, THE TRIBUNE finds itself at the beginning of a new business year enjoying its own fair share of the prevalent prosperity and prepared to make all its several editions thoroughly complete, entertaining and valuable. The first aim of The Tribune is to be the best and foremost newspaper of America. It has its own telegraph line to Washington, it uses the cables freely, and it scours the world for news. It prints all that is useful. It tells what is worth it in a tail. The rest put into bright short paragraphs. Its contents are fresh, choice, varied and thoroughly unobjectionable in every respect. The Tribune has long enjoyed the largest circulation among the best people. It intends to let no rival usurp its place. The Tribune is the organ of no individual, of no faction or clique, and of no interest adverse to the public good. It knows no service other than that of the people.

The Tribune believes the well-being of the country will be best preserved by keeping its government in Republican hands. But it does not believe in ring rule, bossism or corruption in office. It has done hard work, and taken great risk, in efforts to purify the Republican party. It expects to continue in that course, wherever or whenever this may seem needful—not doubting that this is the true road to a worthy Republican success in 1884.

Every year The Tribune offers to subscribers a few premium books of marked and standard merit. The terms are usually so arranged that either the paper or the book is a gift to the subscriber.

A SPLENDID WORK FOR FAMILIES.

For 1883 The Tribune offers a new premium: Wood's Household Practice of Medicine, Hygiene and Surgery, 2 vols., 819 and 942 pp., profusely illustrated, bound in cloth, and sold by agents for the invariable price of $10. It is written by eminent physicians of New York and Philadelphia, and published by the well-known standard medical book house of William Wood & Co. Every possible topic relating to the structure and functions of the human body is explained in this work with text and picture. The book teaches how to regain health when lost, and how to take care of it when regained. It explains what to do in emergencies. It will save many a human life and many an hour of suffering and anxiety. In any ordinary family it will pay for itself in a month's time. The terms are:

Wood's Household Practice and the Weekly Tribune five years.....$10
Wood's Household Practice and the Semi-Weekly Tribune five years; or with ten copies of The Weekly one year.....$15
Wood's Household Practice and twenty copies of The Weekly one year.....$2[illegible]

A circular with full description of the work sent on application.

A CHANCE FOR ONE YEAR SUBSCRIBERS.

During the summer of 1882, The Tribune made the experiment of offering Ridpath's History of the United States. The book met with an unexpected welcome. The offer is continued one year. The book is a popular history of the United States, from the aboriginal time to the present day, coming down to inauguration of President Arthur. It is a large octave, 753 pages, the retail price is $3. We will send The Weekly Tribune one year, and the History for $3, which is only the price of the book. We will send The Semi-Weekly Tribune one year, and the History, for $4. In both cases we pay the postage.

AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA IN FIFTEEN VOLUMES.

The Tribune has resolved to continue the encyclopædia premium upon exactly the same terms as before.

The Library of Universal Knowledge embraces Chamber's Encyclopædia complete, contains extensive American additions, treating about 15,000 additional topics, adding to it over 25 per cent of the freshest and most valuable matter, the whole making 15 handsome octavo volumes averaging nearly 900 pages to the volume. We offer:

The Library of Universal Knowledge with the Weekly Tribune 5 years for $15.

With the Semi-Weekly Tribune 5 years $20.

With ten copies of The Weekly Tribune one year $19.

With twenty copies of The Weekly Tribune one year $29.

YOUNG'S BIBLE CONCORDANCE.

This famous work, containing 1,100 three-column pages, was originally published in England in October, 1879, and was sold at $15. We offer the Concordance and one copy of The Weekly Tribune five years or five copies one year $7; or with one copy of The Semi-Weekly Tribune five years, or five copies one year, or ten copies of The Weekly Tribune one year for $12.

AN UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.

The Tribune will send Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, or Worcester's Unabridged, to any one remitting $12 for the Dictionary and The Weekly Tribune for five years; or $17 for the Dictionary and the Semi Weekly Tribune for five years; $19 for the Dictionary and The Daily Tribune one year.

A PORTRAIT OF GARFIELD.

The Tribune will send to its regular readers a portrait of Garfield, or one of Mrs. Garfield, 22 by 28 inches in size, good for parlor or library, for 10 cents each; to those not subscribers, for 20 cents each.

Circulars describing The Tribune premiums more fully, and sample copies of the paper sent free on application. Address simply,

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—HAMPDEN SS. PROBATE COURT.—To the heirs-at-law and others interested in the estate of Thomas J. Gilligan, late of Wilbraham, in said county, deceased, Greeting:

Whereas, Lafayette M. Gilligan, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented to said court his petition for license to sell the whole of the real estate of said deceased, for the payment of debts and charges of administration, and for other reasons set forth in said petition,

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Springfield, in said county, on the first Tuesday of January next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said administrator is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week, three weeks successively, in the Palmer Journal, a newspaper printed at Palmer, the last publication to be two days at least before said court.

Witness, William S. Shurtleff, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

DR. J. W. DEWEY,

WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

The Beautiful Land of Nod.

Come cuddle your head on my shoulder, dear—
Your head like the golden rod—
And we will go sailing away from here
To the beautiful land of Nod;
Away from life's worry and hurry and flurry,
Away from earth's shadow and gloom,
We will float off together to a world of fair weather,
Where roses are always in bloom.

Just shut your eyes and fold your hands—
Your hands like the leaves of a rose—
And we will go sailing to those fair lands
That never an atlas shows.
On the north and west they are bounded by rest,
On the south and east by dreams;
'Tis the country ideal where nothing is real,
But everything only seems.

Just drop down the curtain of your dear eyes—
Your eyes like the bright blue bell—
And we will sail out under star-lit skies
To the land where the fairies dwell.
Down the river of sleep our bark shall sweep,
Till it reaches that magical isle
Which no man has seen, but where all have been,
And there will pause awhile.
I will croon you a song as we float along
To that shore that is blessed of God.
Then no! for that fair land, we're off for that rare land,
The beautiful land of Nod!

—Ella Wheeler.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

The Wide Awake for December, which commences the sixteenth volume of that popular magazine for young folks, is full of good things, giving a foretaste of the many attractions which will be regular features of every number throughout the year. The contents will be of such variety that every taste may be gratified and every need supplied. Especially for the boys will be "Health and Strength Papers," by Prof. Sargent of the Harvard College gymnasium, while Marion Harland will each month give the girls a lesson called "Cookery for Beginners," and will also answer by letter those of the young cooks who meet with difficulty. There will be six serials and many brilliant single number articles; also a continuation of the famous "Topics-of-the-Time Papers," and pleasant articles by Miss Minna Lovell for home evenings, merry-making, etc., while the whole aim and endeavor of the management will be to have the influence exerted by the Wide Awake on the side of morality and virtue, teaching that the Golden Rule is the best one to follow, and that duty, well done, will bring its sure reward. Publishers, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston; $2.50 a year.

Babyland is also published by D. Lothrop & Co., and is a jewel among the publications designed for the little ones. Printed in large, clear type, with syllables divided, even young readers can entertain themselves with the stories which are so prettily illustrated that the pictures teach lessons themselves to those who cannot read. Indeed, it seems to be exactly what it is claimed to be, "expressly for the babies." During the coming year there will be a picture alphabet, which will run as a little serial, and in each number will be one of a series of full page pictures, illustrating "What Black Eyes and Blue Eyes Saw in Foreign Lands." Only fifty cents a year.

Minstrel Songs, Old and New, is the title of a new collection of minstrel and plantation songs, published by Oliver Ditson & Co., of Boston; price, $2. "Old Boys" will be delighted to hear again "Susannah," "Carry me 'long," "Camptown Races," "Rosa Lee," "Dandy Jim," "Lucy Long," "Settin' on a Rail," and "Jim Crow." The newer nonsense favorites, such as "Golden Slippers," "The Bright Light," are here; also the greater part of Foster's melodies, of which Ditson & Co. are the publishers. "Old Folks at Home," and the like, need no introduction. Popular songs that are outside of the minstrel line are not forgotten. We find here "Mocking Bird," "Twinkling Stars," "Lily Dale," "The Old Home," and others. There are about one hundred songs, all provided with piano-forte accompaniment. Plenty of choruses are also given.

How to Use Florence Knitting Silk is the title of a neat pamphlet just issued by the Nonotuck Silk Company of Florence. It is a little gem in the way of hints to purchasers of knitting silk, and rules for making a large number of pretty laces, silk mittens, hose, purses, baby socks, etc., and will be sent to any address on receipt of two 3-cent stamps.

We have received from the Greenfield Gazette and Courier its annual almanac for 1883—a handsome and useful little volume which its subscribers will be sure to appreciate.

The Wheelman for December is at hand and a welcome guest, with its exterior and interesting contents. It promises well for the coming year in its contents, being attractive alike to the wheeling fraternity and the general reader. The present number opens with a breezy little story, "A Race for a Ribbon," followed by the "Bicycler's Song," and several other articles of special interest to wheelmen. The serial, "A Flying Dutchman," bids fair to be very entertaining; another serial, "A Shadow Love," will soon be commenced, and there are several short stories and sketches which will be found both amusing and interesting. There are also reports of the Philadelphia meet and the Cleveland races, a fine editorial department, a review of foreign news, the number ending with a fine collection of book notices. Taken as a whole, the Magazine seems to be a marked success in meeting the wants of those interested in bicycling.

The power of a first love was remarkably exhibited at Columbus, Ind., the other day. Mrs. Jennie Council, a handsome and wealthy young widow, took for a second husband a Mr. Griffin, an old acquaintance. After a happy wedding tour the couple returned to the home of the bride, but as she entered the parlor the first object that met her gaze was a full-length portrait of her former husband. The sight of the familiar and loved features so wrought upon her as to cause a complete revulsion of feeling toward her new husband. After brooding over her trouble for a day or two, she confessed all to her husband, declared she could never love him and besought him for the sake of both to leave her. She persisted in this, and an attorney was called in, who drew up a statement signed by both and forming an agreement to separate.

Some of the St. Louis blue bloods are so exercised over the rumor that the two children of a well-to-do widow have some negro blood in their veins, that they propose to make her prove in court that they are altogether white, before permitting them longer to attend school with their own offspring. There seems to be no evidence whatever that there is any negro blood in the family.

The reduction of the public debt for the five months ending Dec. 1 amounts to nearly sixty six millions, equal to a monthly average reduction of over thirteen millions. The aggregate of the public debt is $155,328,440 less than on December 1, 1881.

Josh Billings expresses the opinion that 'thare ain't but few kan stick a white handkerchief into the brest pocket of their overcoat without letting a little of it stick out—just by aksident.'

Parents who allow their children to grow up with scrofulous humors bursting from every pore are guilty of a great wrong. Think of them pointed out as branded with a loathsome disease, and you will readily procure them the Cuticura Remedies.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA SOAP externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c. Sold by all druggists.

Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, Mass.

CATARRH.

Sanford's Radical Cure.

A single dose instantly relieves the most violent sneezing or head colds, clerrs the head as by magic, stops watery discharges from the nose and eyes, prevents ringing noises in the head, cures nervous headache and subdues chills and fever. In chronic catarrh it cleanses the nasal passages of foul mucus, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing when affected, frees the head, throat and bronchial tubes of offensive matter, sweetens and purifies the breath, stops the cough and arrests the progress of catarrh toward consumption.

One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one package, of all druggists for $1. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Weeks & Potter, Boston.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its healing effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

FITS.—A leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.—From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their address and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to adress

DR. AB. MESEROLE, No. 96 John St., N. Y.

ALMOST AS BAD.

WHAT THE PERPLEXED PHYSICIANS DO IN CASES OF EMERGENCY.

"I'll tell you the honest truth," answered the doctor. "Bright's Disease bothers the medical men almost as badly as cancer does. Having passed a certain stage, both straight point to eternity. It may be unprof ssional to let out the secret, but whenever a patient comes to me with Bright's Disease, or any kidney trouble acting like it, I tell him to put on BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER without delay."

The doctor spoke by the card. The Capcine goes right to the spot. If you can be helped, the Capcine will do it. Look out for frauds. Is the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster? If so, you are all right. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. Highest awards.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy that I will send two bottles free, together with a valuable treatise on this disease, to any sufferer. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of The Sun are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make The Weekly Sun the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

DR. J. W. DEWEY,

(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)

Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,

Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at

THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,

WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

These presents are selected from a list of 100 different kinds, varying in value from 5 cents to $3.

E. J. WOOD.

BANK BLOCK, PALMER.

TO THE HONORABLE the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

The MASSACHUSETTS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully petitions for authority to locate, construct, operate and maintain a branch or extension of its railroad from a point upon its present line in the town of Palmer, and thence running into or through the towns of Ludlow, Wilbraham, Chicopee, West Springfield, Westfield, Southwick, Russell, Granville, Blandford, Tolland, Sandisfield, Otis, Monterey, Great Barrington, Egremont, and the City of Holyoke, or any of them, to a point in the boundary line between said Commonwealth and the State of New York, or the State of Connecticut.

And your petitioner prays that the authority herein asked for may be granted to said Massachusetts Central Railroad Company, or to such new corporation as may be formed by the consolidation, for which authority is asked by a petition of said Company heretofore made, dated November 2, 1882; and it further prays that this application may be taken as in addition to said petition.

And your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated Boston, November 23, 1882.

A GOOD ODD FELLOW.

MR. CUTLER, OF 21 LYONS STREET, NEW HAVEN, CONN.—HOW HE TAKES LIFE EASY NOW, AND HOW HE OBTAINED THE MEANS TO REGAIN HIS HEALTH.

Mr. Cutler, of 21 Lyons street, is a faithful Odd Fellow, and for forty years a member of Quinnipiac Lodge No. 1 (the oldest organization of its kind in the State of Conn.) He is a man much respected in New Haven. Your reporter found him at his pleasant home on Lyon street one afternoon taking life easy. "You see," he says, "I'm trying to make myself feel a little indisposed. I presume it's the lingering results of a Lodge dinner which I attended a while ago down at the beach. I have been, as many of my friends in New Haven know, a sufferer for years from indigestion and biliousness. When I have indulged in too hearty food I've had to suffer at times extremely. As a result I've had to place myself under my physician's care often, and I have taken a great many remedies, but I find after a thorough trial that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the most excellent medicine I have ever had knowledge of for any of the disorders above mentioned. It leaves no exhaustive effects, but rather strengthens and regulates the digestive organs in a charming manner. We keep it as a household medicine, and I have recommended it to my friends, for it is an excellent preparation."

Mr. Cutler is a man whose word can be depended upon. His testimony is but a re-echo of the words of thousands in New England who have received relief from the sole use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. 4w39

DARBYS

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

A HOUSEHOLD ARTICLE FOR UNIVERSAL FAMILY USE.

ERADICATES MALARIA.

For SCARLET and TYPHOID FEVERS, SALIVATION, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, SMALL POX, MEASLES, and all CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Persons waiting on the sick should use it freely. Scarlet Fever has never been known to spread where the Fluid was used. Yellow Fever has been cured with it AFTER BLACK VOMIT HAD TAKEN PLACE. The worst cases of Diphtheria yield to it.

Fevered and Sick Persons refreshed and Bed Sores prevented by bathing with Darbys Fluid.
Impure Air made harmless and purified.
For Sore Throat it is a sure cure.
Contagion destroyed.
For Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Piles, Chafings, etc.

The Best Christmas Gift.

"What shall I bring for a Christmas gift
To the friends I hold so dear?"
This is the thought that employs the mind
As "the holidays" draw near;
And we ponder well each special taste,
And strive with loving care
To portion our means to the wants and needs,
And give to each a share.

'Tis a cherished custom, sweet and old,
And kindly gifts we bring
Each year, to mark the day which brought
Our greatest gift—our King,
God's gift to man—His only Son,
To die that we might live;
What gifts brought He—this Child, who had
The Universe to give?

Sweet was the hymn the shepherds heard
Proclaiming a Saviour born,
While heaven and earth with music rang
On that first Christmas morn.
'Twas "Peace on earth, good will toward men,"
This was the gift He brought;
"Good will toward men,—forget, forgive,"
This, His life-lesson taught.

His every word a message of peace,
Then let us the lesson heed;
Forgive and forget, this Christmas day,
Each unkind word or deed;
For peace will follow, where good will reigns,
And none are so poor, or weak
But the kind, the truly-forgiving words
Are surely theirs to speak.

Have a token of love for each loving friend,
For the needy a helping hand,
And the true Christmas gift, good will to all,
Thus keeping His kind command.
So when the Master in triumph comes
And the journey of life is o'er,
"The measure ye mete shall be measured again,"
In joy forevermore.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

WHAT A LADY SAW IN A SUMMER TRIP OVER THE ROAD.

Correspondence of The JOURNAL.

We left Minneapolis on the last evening in July by the light of the moon, and before our beds were made up for the night we had run into a rain storm. The morning found it bright and clear, and we were in Fargo, D. T., for breakfast. This is a large, thriving place, of only ten years' growth, and is on the Red river of the North. Valley City is as pretty a place as we passed in Dakota. Stopped at Jamestown to dinner, another place of rapid growth, and one of a good deal of business. The scenery during the whole day was the same, level land and a station once in so often. We passed through some of the largest and best wheat farms of the country. One farm consists of seventy-five thousand acres, another of sixty thousand, and a number of forty or fifty thousand acres. We passed through as the grain was ripening, and as far as the eye could reach the land was yellow with grain.

We arrived at Bismarck for supper, and found a good-sized town, but more saloons than places of business, with a rough-looking set of men on the street. The bridge across the Missouri river was not completed, so our train was run upon a boat and transferred across the river. We had a lovely view of river and land from the pilot house. The river is very broad at this place, and the banks high and steep, and it did not seem possible that the ice from the river could have been carried up into Bismarck, two miles away, and do the damage it did, two years ago. The bridge was building, and the piers were finished. Our train was landed upon the west side of the river, and three miles from there we entered Mandan, a place built by the Northern Pacific Railroad, being the headquarters while at the end of the track, but as the work moves on the town comes to a standstill, and after a while grows slowly, like many another place on the road.

During the night we traveled very slowly, to see all the Bad Lands by daylight, so they told us. We were at Little Missouri for breakfast, and in the midst of that wonderful formation. Such strange sights in color and form our eyes never beheld on land before. There are no trees, only an occasional pine upon a butte. Bunches of sage brush, cactus, and yellow ripe grass, are all there is to be seen. In June the grass is green, and the cacti are in bloom, and it is said the ground is gorgeous in color. The earth seems to be hard and soft clay, and the soft washes out, leaving many strange forms. One looked much like an amphitheatre, one half in ruins; some like a sugar loaf inverted—many of this shape, both large and small; some sharp and pointed at the top, others flat, and some round. Many a one looked like the ruins of a temple or large public building. One had a dome upon the top, rows of pillars in front, and windows and doors in regular order, and at one side a mass of stone, as if a part of the building had fallen to decay. Some had the shape of hay stacks, both round and long ones. Some looked like they had been moulded in a huge cake tin, with scalloped edge and fluted sides, and inverted when turned out. All these shapes are mixed together, some large, and some small, some near and some far away, and were changing constantly all day long. The colors were red, vermillion, white, black, blue, light and dark yellow, and light and dark gray. They are in layers, all the colors being in one butte, and sometimes two or three times repeated. The black is coal, and there are large quantities, some mines being worked very extensively. The white is alkali, and in many places lies upon the ground thick and white as snow. The water is so full of it, that it cannot be drank, good water being very rare, until the Yellowstone river is reached. At Glendive, where we stopped for dinner the second day, the town is surrounded by high buttes. One of our party said 'he guessed he would walk out to the nearest one before the train started,' and asked how far it was. He was somewhat surprised when told it was two miles to the foot of the nearest one, for he did not take it to be a quarter of a mile out.

The heat was intense, the thermometer standing at 110° in the shade. That night we stopped at Miles City, as that was as far as the Pullman car went. The next morning we drove out to Fort Keogh, one of the nicest military posts in Montana. That afternoon we took the train as far as Forcythe, a town built mostly of tents. There were no accommodations for us, so we all slept in the car, as best we could. The next morning we took the train, and had the good luck to have an old immigrant car put on for us. It was very warm, 115° in the shade, and the wind as hot as if from a furnace. At 6 p. m. we were at the end of the track, and had twelve miles to ride by buckboard. After waiting an hour at the ferry, we had a very enjoyable drive, only the dust. That is so fine, and rises in such clouds, that it is very disagreeable. The dust on Palmer Main street, on a high windy day, is nothing in comparison to it. Billings is a new town, the first house being that of the headquarters, built in April last. There were then less than a hundred houses, and over three hundred tents. While we were there over three hundred houses were put up, and I never saw a place grow as rapidly. The weather was very warm when we first went there, being over 110° during the day, but the nights are cool. The heat is not felt there, as with us, not a case of sunstroke being heard of. We were at an elevation of three thousand feet above the sea level. Over a hundred miles to the west we could see the snow white mountains, and they did not look twenty miles from us. They were beautiful in the setting sun, bathed in gold and amber, each peak standing out by itself. Billings is two miles from the Yellowstone river, on a level plain. There are good farms there, and large crops are raised by irrigation. Their rainy season is in the spring, the summer hot and dry. Winters are not severe, for cattle live out on the plains without shelter, and eat the grass from under the snow. The grass is very sweet and nutritious, and cures upon the ground, standing, as well as to cut it.

We took a trip to Fort Custer, fifty-five miles from Billings, by buckboard one day. The fort is built upon a high bluff, between the Big Horn and Little Horn rivers. It has a very commanding outlook, and is a good fort. It has the largest parade ground of any fort out there. We drove out to the battlefield and monument. The monument is of granite, but is so brittle that the corners have been all knocked off by seekers after specimens. The monumeut is placed upon the spot where Gen. Custer fell, a sightly place, upon the top of a hill, overlooking the Little Horn river.

A party of eight of us left the fort, and went to the Black canon, in the Big Horn mountains in Wyoming. The canon is twenty miles long, about a quarter of a mile wide, and two thousand feet deep. The sides are in many places straight from top to bottom, and are covered with pine trees. The light is such that they look black even at midday. There is but one place to get into the canon, a narrow trail down one side, a distance of three miles from top to bottom. At half way down the path comes out of the pines, into the light, on a shelf of rock, where we could look up and down the canon, a grand view, and to the bottom, a thousand feet below us. The path is then zigzag, steep as a roof, with steps in the rock from twelve to eighteen inches high. The rock is broken and loose, and hard for a horse to keep his footing. All our tents, food and bedding had to be packed upon horses, and taken down on this trail, and we rode down, something a lady has not before done, without dismounting, so we were told. We had a lovely camp on the creek at the bottom of the canon, and enjoyed its solitude and grandeur for three days. The brook was clear, and water ice cold, and gave us an abundance of trout, which we much enjoyed. Such handsome fish, with speckled sides, and four pounds in weight, one seldom sees. The rocks were red, yellow, and gray. One mass of rock rose from bottom to top of the canon and looked like an immense cathedral with towers and spires. Another had a large sphinx face, and looking out from the pines on all sides were rocks of red and gray, that looked like old castles. For grand scenery, it excels anything we have ever seen before.

From the canon we returned to the fort, and from there to Billings, making 250 miles by buckboard, in one week. We remained in Billings until the track was laid thirty-five miles to the west of us, and went out one day on a construction train, passed Park City and Young's Point, to where the bluffs look like castles in the old country, so foreign travelers tell us. When we left for the east, for Minneapolis is in the east now, we took the Pullman car at the door, and came down in forty-eight hours, being half the time we went up in. It seemed good to get where there was green grass, and trees growing, and no dust to fly at every passing team, and we almost felt as though we had entered another world, although we had a very enjoyable and instructive trip. 'Not so goot as I vants. Every once in a vhiles he gets one of his honest spells and then we hardly makes oxpenses. You don't know how pad I feels ven Mose gets one of dose honest spells.'

Oscar Wilde says: 'Niagara Falls seemed to me to be simply a vast, unnecessary amount of water going the wrong way and then falling over unnecessary rocks.' We fear it is too late now to change it to please Oscar. To remove the unnecessary rocks and cause the water to run the other way would require a larger expenditure of money than the River and Harbor bill appropriated, but Congress may favorably consider the matter at its next session.—Norristown Herald.

It would be difficult to cite a more conclusive piece of evidence as to the value of sanitary improvements than that furnished by the recent reports from the town of Bilston, England. For 30 years the death rate had been between 31 and 32 per 1,000; but through the regulations of the health board, strictly carried out, and a scientific application of the sewage system, the death rate has been reduced one half, being at the present time but 16.1 per 1,000.

One of the hardest woods in existence is that of the desert ironwood tree, which grows in the dry washes along the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad. Its specific gravity is nearly the same as that of lignumvitæ, and it has a black heart so hard, when well seasoned, that it will turn the edge of an axe, and can scarcely be cut by a well-tempered saw. In burning it gives out an intense heat, and charcoal made from it is hardly second to anthracite.

The supply of ivory is diminishing so rapidly that the price has advanced in England from $15 to $20 per 100 pounds. Only 81 tons were offered at the last quarterly sale, against 122 tons in April of last year. The supply on hand is but little more than half that of last year. The prediction is made that the material will soon become so scarce that its use for piano keys, knife handles and fans will be reserved for the rich alone.

IT WAS HIS WIFE.

A noted music teacher of New York city relates the following incident from real life, which contains a moral worth recognition by wives.

Two years ago a card was brought into my music room, bearing the name of a well-known and fashionable married lady. When she was ushered in I was surprised to see so young looking a woman, though, to be sure, she is not yet forty, and a fair complexion and clear blue eyes made her look younger. She seemed a little embarrassed, but asked me to try her voice. I did so, and found it uncultivated, but it was singularly fresh and sweet; in quality it was a light soprano. I told her so, and her fair face flushed eagerly as she asked:

'Professor, could you teach me to sing?'

'Yes,' I replied, 'if you choose to apply yourself earnestly.'

'I will, and if you can manage it so that I need not be seen, and that no one knows of it, I will take a lesson every day.'

We made the best agreement we could, and the lady never failed to appear promptly at the hour. She was so anxious and so persevering that she made the most extraordinary progress, and when spring came her voice had so strengthened and developed as to be almost beyond recognition.

During the summer I heard nothing of her beyond mention in the society papers of her being at Saratoga. In the fall she called on me, and taking both my hands in hers, shook them earnestly as she said, 'Professor, I have come to thank you for making me the happiest woman alive.' She then told me that her husband, to whom she was deeply attached, was passionately fond of vocal music, and she had always regretted that she could not sing to him.

She had never cultivated her voice before marriage, and afterward the coming of children and the claims of society had prevented her attempting it; but the unlucky day came when Mr. R. made the acquaintance of a charming little widow with a charming voice, who was always ready to sing sweet songs to him, and he gradually fell into the way of spending many of his evenings with her.

At heart devoted to his wife, he was unconscious of his gradual neglect of her, and he would have been astonished had she resented his enjoyment of these musical tete-a-tetes. About the widow I am not prepared to speak. Mrs. R., like a nice woman, did not resent it, but undermined the enemy, as you will see. Her music lessons she kept a profound secret from her family. In the summer, they went, as usual, to Saratoga, and took posession of one of the pretty cottages at the United States Hotel.

The morning after their arrival the local papers contained a notice that the leading soprano of a popular church was ill with a throat affection, and the congregation was asked to make due allowance for the disabled choir. The next morning, Sunday, Mr. R., with two of the children, wended his way to the church of his belief, Mrs. R. having excused herself on the plea of a headache.

After the opening service, the minister announced that 'a lady from New York had kindly volunteered to sing in place of the sick soprano, and in consequence, the musical service would be the same as usual.' A few moments later a clear, sweet voice rang through the church, touching the hearts of the people, perhaps, even more through the exquisite expression with which the music had been rendered than the qualities of the voice itself.

Mr. R. was fascinated, delighted, and inwardly made comparisons between it and the witching widow, not very flattering to the latter. After the services were over he eagerly sought the minister to ascertain the name of the charming soprano, whose face he had not been able to see from his seat.

'Come with me, and I will introduce you,' said the minister, who knew Mr. R. by reputation. They entered the choir together, and the good man began, 'Miss Brown, permit me to introduce—' when he was interrupted by Mr. R. ejaculating, 'Great heavens! it is my wife!' And, place and company notwithstanding, he gave her a hearty embrace in his delight and surprise. To cut the story short, he fell in love with her all over again, the singing siren was forgotten, and I do not believe you can find a happier couple in this great city. To mark the occasion, Mr. R. gave his wife a magnificent set of diamonds, which she wears with a great deal of pride. All of which is true.

Mr. Whackem, an Austin teacher, was arrested not long since, and gave bond for an assault on one of his pupils. He was reviewing his classes, and when he came to this boy, whose name is Kosciusko Murphy, Jr., his pupil failed to answer the simplest question. He was particularly defective in definitions. 'You don't know the meaning of any of the English words. Are there any words in any other language of which you can give the definitions?' asked Mr. Whackem, sarcastically. 'Yes; I know the meaning of some Chinese words.' 'You do; do you?' remarked Whackem in a still more sarcastic manner. 'Do you know what the Chinese word for donkey is?' 'Yes.' 'What is it?' 'Whackem!' And Whackem took the hint and did whack him with profuse liberality.—Texas Siftings.

Mr. Isaacs and Mr. Blumenthal kept rival clothing stores on the Bowery, within a few doors of each other. Mr. Isaacs was always to be found with his head out of the door, soliciting custom from the verdant passer-by. Mr. Blumenthal objected to this shoddy manner of doing business, having found that the watchful Isaacs had captured several of his customers; and one day he went up to Isaacs and said: 'Look here, Mr. Isaacs, vy don't you keep your ugly face inside? You might petter get a jackass to stand py de door. He vould pe a big improvement.' 'Vy,' said Isaacs, 'I did try dot vonce, und all de people as dey pass by say to him: 'Good day, Mr. Blumenthal; I see you've moved.''—The Judge.

Mr. Peet, a rather diffident man, was unable to prevent himself from being introduced one evening to a fascinating young lady, who, misunderstanding his name, constantly addressed him as Mr. Peters, much to the gentleman's distress. Finally, summoning courage, he bashfully but earnestly remonstrated: 'Oh! don't call me Peters, call me Peet.' 'Ah, but I don't know you well enough, Mr. Peters,' said the young lady, blushing, as she playfully withdrew part way behind her fan. —Yale Record.

At the Alexandra Palace in London an American gentleman looked at some stereoscopic view of this country, and was somewhat surprised to find one labeled 'View of New York city from the Illinois shore."

THE House at Washington manifested a wonderfully virtuous disposition the other day, by voting against a holiday recess, and to fine members fifty dollars who absented themselves during Christmas week. Their virtue was short-lived, however. The temptation was too strong; the vote was reconsidered, and the usual recess will be taken.

THE United States Supreme Court has decided in the case of Gen. Curtis, that the law against political assessments is constitutional. Government officers will be a little more careful hereafter about levying or collecting "voluntary contributions," and the provisions of the law should be made to apply to congressional Jay Hubbells, as well as to those lower in the service.

STEPHEN W. DORSEY is publishing some of Garfield's confidential letters written to him, as secretary of the Republican National Committee, during the Presidential campaign of 1880, hoping thereby to set a back-fire which will save him in the star route prosecutions. But the breach of good faith shown in the publication of the letters is not calculated to inspire people with overmuch confidence in his moral rectitude.

GENERAL BUTLER has selected the following gentlemen as members of his official staff: Adjutant general, Colonel Samuel Dalton of Salem; assistant adjutant general, Colonel Isaac F. Kingsbury of Newton; judge advocate general, Hon. George F. Verry of Worcester; surgeon general, Dr. O. G. Cilley of Boston; aides-de-camp, Hon. A. C. Woodworth of Chicopee, A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree, John P. Sweeney of Lawrence and Harrison W. Hugeley of Boston.

THE Governor and council have decided that Protestant and Catholic children placed out from the State Primary and Reform schools shall be allowed to attend religious services at their own church as far as possible, and shall in no case be compelled to attend the services of other sects. We fear this is a mistake. In many cases it will result in keeping children away from all religious service and instruction. If the children are placed in suitable families to begin with, the question of their religious instruction should properly be left with their guardians.

The Congregational church held a business meeting Tuesday evening and voted unanimously to call Rev. P. Hunter of the Hartford Theological Seminary to the pastorate of the church. The parish will hold a meeting next week and will doubtless vote to unite with the church in its call to Mr. Hunter, whose preaching has taken a strong hold upon the hearts of his hearers in this place, in the two Sundays he has been before them.

The Palmer Dramatic Club has arranged with Atkinson's "Jollities" for the production of their new comic opera, "The Electric Spark," at Wales Hall next Wednesday evening. An exchange says of the opera: "There is nothing comparable to 'The Electric Spark,' and it cannot be described. It is the essence of fun through and through, the most comical absurdity ever produced here, and we cannot believe it has its equal elsewhere." The entertainment is guaranteed by the home club as first-class in every respect, and everybody should see it who would "laugh and grow fat."

James Cook, who was indicted for manslaughter in the killing of Mrs. John Stone of this place recently, got off pretty easily at the superior court in Springfield this week. The indictment for manslaughter was quashed by the district attorney, and Cook pleaded guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon, receiving a sentence of eighteen months in the house of correction. Cook is an old offender and an ugly one, and deserved a much severer punishment. In the case of Eber Blake, charged with stealing a horse from Mrs. Martha A. Beebe of Monson, the jury could not agree and were discharged.

In their annual report, the trustees of the State Primary School speak in a very complimentary manner of the condition of the buildings and inmates, and say that their cleanly habits and the judicious exercise which they take have combined to produce a marked improvement in their physique and general bearing. Punishment is rarely necessary, and the number of children who are intractable is said to be surprisingly small. The average number of inmates is 448, and the average cost per week is $2.21. The trustees recommend that $3000 be appropriated to pay the expense of boarding out children.

The JOURNAL is printed this week on a new $1200 cylinder press from the manufactory of J. H. Cranston, of Norwich, Ct. The Fairhaven press which has done service for the past ten years has not been up to the requirements of the office for some time, and a new press had become a necessity. We selected the Cranston after a careful comparison of the merits of different presses, and believe we have the best press to be found for the money. Last summer we made a large addition to our office facilities, by moving the newspaper composition, stock, etc., to the second floor and putting in an excellent variety of new job type, and now with the new press the JOURNAL office has exceptionally good facilities for the prompt and satisfactory execution of all classes of job work.

In making up your Christmas presents do not forget the children, nearly 500 in number, over on the hill at the State Primary School. A correspondent of the Republican says: "If some people who are giving freely of their abundance to children who are already surfeited with good things, could visit the Monson school, and its hospital especially, they would be only too glad to send a little sunshine there. Several paralyzed and crippled children are continual inmates of that department. Little Ellen and Arthur and Willie will never walk alone, and others are thus feeble and helpless with little to amuse them. A beautiful doll has been sent in for one of these children. Picture-books, blocks, soldiers and the unfailing delight 'Noah's Ark will brighten up their lives."

Cambridge Moulton, engineer on one of the freight trains between Palmer and Brattleboro, was quite severely injured at Brattleboro, Saturday afternoon. He was walking in the engine house when he fell into one of the pits, striking on a plank and receiving internal injuries which it was at first feared were very dangerous. He was brought to his home in this place and is now quite comfortable, but probably will not be able to resume work for several weeks. The same afternoon the locomotive "Osgood," which was drawing a special freight south, broke a parallel rod just above Leverett, smashing one side of the cab and throwing the engineer, James Flanagan, to the ground. He received quite a gash in his forehead, but was able to come through with his train.

He had got a telephone in at last, and as it was a new thing to him he had occasion to use it frequently, just to see that it did not get out of order; and when he could think of nothing else, would call up a merchant on the line, and something like the following would take place: "Hello." "Yes." "Do you hear me?" "Yes." "Well—um—What's the price of eggs?" "Thirty-five cents." "Telephone is a great institution, aint it?" "Yes." "Good-by." But soon he would long for some one to talk to, and the merchant would be compelled to go through the performance again. One day, after the thing had been sprung on him several times, he made up his mind he would get rid of the annoyance, and so had a volley all prepared for his tormentor the next time he called. And soon it came. He thought he knew who it was by the way they called, but to make sure he waited for the voice. It was the same old "Hello," and without any ceremony he went at it: "See here, do you know you are one of the biggest fools in this town? I know the telephone is a big thing, and am having a printed price-list got out—will send you one as soon as they are done. But until you have got something of more consequence than usual to say please give us a rest." He lost one good customer by it, for you could not make her think that he didn't know who he was talking to. Moral—Find out who's at the other end of the wire before you talk "sass."

LUDLOW.

Albert Fleebotte was killed by the cars at Ludlow Mills, last Saturday.

M. M. and Austin Moulton were arrested at Holyoke on Monday for robbing the house of J. O. Kendall of some $300, the day before.

THREE RIVERS.

The young people's exhibition at the Baptist vestry Tuesday evening was an enjoyable entertainment, and they did themselves credit in the rendering of some of the pieces, which were fully appreciated by the large audience present.

HAMPDEN.

The Lacowsic Woolen Co. is financially embarrassed, and Hinsdale Smith of Springfield, the principal creditor, has taken possession of the mill. The liabilities of the company are reported at from $150,000 to $200,000. The mill has given employment to about 125 hands, and produced 10,000 yards of cloth a month.

WALES.

The fine sleighing has been improved the past week.

The business outlook seems to be a little brighter, as there is some talk of the Beacon Manufacturing Company starting again soon.

It is rumored that F. C. Smith, late of Wales, willed most of his property to the churches and town, which will come to several thousand dollars.

The Baptist and Methodist societies both hold Christmas gatherings in their vestries on Monday evening. They also have Christmas concerts Sunday evening, which are expected to be very interesting.

BRIMFIELD.

There was a Christmas ball at the Brimfield House last evening, with music by Bacon's orchestra.

The sickness and death of the mother of Rev. Mr. Pierce has called him to her home in Maine, for the past few days.

The Hitchcock Free High School opened last week with ninety-one pupils, and more are expected. The school shows every sign of decided success.

Farmers are laying in their year's stock of ice. The ice is from nine to twelve inches thick, and most of those who have ice-houses have them filled already.

A party of about thirty sleigh-riders from Brookfield visited town Tuesday afternoon, and spent the evening in "tripping the light fantastic toe" at Munroe's hall, Webster Bros. furnishing the music.

THORNDIKE.

The Methodists are preparing for a Christmas tree and entertainment.

The public schools of the village will close next Monday for one day only.

There will be a sociable and a Christmas tree in the Congregational church Monday evening.

A party of friends spent an afternoon and evening very pleasantly with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stever Wednesday.

Rev. F. J. Nute of West Warren preached at the Congregational church last Sunday. To-morrow the pastor speaks on "Christ the Light and Salvation of the Gentiles."

The house, barn, and all the buildings belonging to Michael O'Slattery, living in the north part of the town, were entirely destroyed by fire Tuesday night, about nine o'clock. Twelve head of cattle and two horses perished. The origin of the fire is somewhat of a mystery. Loss, $1500; insured for $1000.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Mrs. Mary J. Bradway and family remove to Monson the coming week, where she has purchased a house and lot in the lower village.

Christmas tree Monday night. The people of the village are requested to send in their gifts to be distributed from the tree, by three o'clock Monday afternoon.

There will be a late train out from Springfield Tuesday night after the performance of the "Messiah," to accommodate those living in this town. About eighteen or twenty have already secured tickets.

The saloon in this village has of late become more offensive than ever, to all order-loving and law-abiding citizens, and it is high time the nuisance was obliterated. Let the people unite in a remonstrance to the selectmen, and show their purpose not to be imposed upon in such a flagrant manner, and some good will be accomplished in the premises.

WEST WARREN.

Horace W. Strickland has started for Louisberg, Neb.

A street scene Tuesday, was an ex-grocer giving an ex-postmaster a sleigh-ride in a child's sleigh.

The quantity of liquor that is being received in the village for Christmas celebrations is astonishing.

Mrs. John Kane recently had $75 stolen from her trunk, she thinks, by a man from Warren, who in some way obtained possession of her keys while she was in the mill.

If the persons living on Main street would deposit their coal ashes on the sidewalk, they would accommodate the public better than by throwing them into the middle of the street and spoiling the sleighing.

H. J. Stone, our accommodating post-office clerk, has taken a West Brookfield young lady as a partner in his joys and sorrows, and will occupy the tenement just vacated by Dr. Bixby. "Harry's" large circle of friends wish him much joy, and hope the Stones in his path through life may be sufficient in number to make an easy rest for him, when in his declining years.

WARREN.

Christmas trees at both churches to-night.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met with Mrs. Joshua Moody Thursday afternoon.

On Sunday evening there will be a Sabbath school concert by the children at the Congregational church.

Mr. S. L. Converse is building the third house on the new street running east of Southbridge street.

Charles Walker, who has been absent in Boston for a year past, is to return to Warren and make it his residence.

Although coasting has been forbidden, the young people avail themselves of the moonlight nights and keep it up till a late hour.

The widening and lowering of the road on Main street and Gould's hill has been finished for the winter, and has much improved that part of the village.

Wm. Cowles has leased the store occupied formerly by Mr. Shepard, and will open a furniture store, the owner of the store objecting to have Mr. Tower use it for a paint shop.

MONSON.

Good bred people—at Sherwin the baker's.

Christmas concert at the M. E. church to-morrow evening.

Christmas festivities at the M. E. church next Monday evening.

Asa Gates, of California, has been visiting relations in this locality.

D. G. Green has sold a dwelling house and about two acres of land to Dwight Lombard.

Martin L. Peck has been laid up for some days past, being partially benumbed and dizzy.

C. R. Dudley writes from Denver, Col., that he is well pleased with the business outlook there.

The icy sidewalks might be improved by putting sand on, but there is no city ordinance to that effect.

Mark Noble has put on two additions to his block, thus making more ample room for himself and tenants.

The skating rink will observe Christmas on Monday at Central Hall, with music by Monson Cornet Band.

E. D. Knowlton is canvassing for "Sunlight and Shadow" by John B. Gough, affording a nice holiday present for the household.

The selectmen have posted notices forbidding coasting, the same having been prohibited on certain streets by the town by-laws.

Rev. Dr. Eustis, of the Memorial church, Springfield, preached at the Congregational church last Sabbath by exchange with the pastor.

Business at the post office has greatly increased of late years, and Postmaster Norcross has a new assistant, being an addition to his family.

Mrs. Dollie Chaffee, 87, Mrs. Harriet Conant, 86, and Mrs. Mary Butler, 85, draw pensions from the government for services of their respective husbands in the war of 1812.

Willis, the clothier, has received a splendid assortment of gentlemen's furnishing goods, clothing, robes, etc., and the rush there denotes that many are to receive choice and valuable presents for the coming holidays.

While other towns are represented in the criminal court by culprits for misdemeanors, Monson seems to be free from much of the drunkenness and crime now so frequent, and our citizens are justly proud of the morals of this community.

"Atkinson's Jollities" give their new comic opera "Electric Spark" at Central Hall next Tuesday evening. The company have made tremendous hits wherever they have been thus far. They give the essence of fun through and through, comical absurdities unequaled by anything traveling in this locality.

The Congregational church has elected the following officers: Clerk, G. W. Andrews; treasurer, E. F. Morris; auditor, C. W. Holmes, Jr.; superintendent of Sunday school, C. W. Holmes, Jr.; secretary of Sunday school, Lyman Flynt. The church has contributed $1440 the past year for benevolent purposes. There have been 29 additions to its membership, 24 on profession of faith; 6 deaths, and 1 dismission by letter. Present membership, 273.

The City Bank of Rochester, N. Y., capital $200,000, closed its doors Wednesday. Its president, C. E. Upton, has misappropriated and lost $350,000 of its funds in oil speculations. The Second National Bank of Jefferson, Ohio, has also suspended payment, its cashier and assistant having lost largely of the bank's funds in speculations.

FIRES.—Newport, Ark., had a $250,000 blaze on Sunday. Six thousand bales of cotton were burned at Honey Grove, Texas, the same day.——There was a $600,000 fire at Toledo, last week Friday.

Waring Brothers, hat contractors at the Concord prison, have lost heavily through the stealing of valuable fur by the convicts. A junk dealer at Ayer and an ex-convict have been arrested.

The Washington monument has now 168 courses of stone and is 336 feet 5 7-8 inches high, or 2 1 2 inches higher than the top of the figure of America on the Capitol.

Last week's storm in Newfoundland was the worst one in fifty years.

The King of Denmark is truly a paternal monarch. Finding that during the recent severe weather the royal foot guards were suffering greatly from colds and coughs, this good old gentleman ordered a supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for them and now the sentries are happy.

Read the list of presents offered by Haynes & Co., Springfield, at their mark-down sale.

Strange that people will suffer with dull feelings and the blues when they can be so surely cured by simply taking a few doses of Simmons Liver Regulator.

THE BOSTON JOURNAL is advertised in another column—$6 per annum postage included—or two cents per copy. There will be no change in size or quality, and nothing cheap about it except its price.

"Did you know that Burns, of Springfield, is selling fine parlor and chamber sets at 25 per cent less than a month ago?" "No; is it true?" "Yes; he will do so for the next 30 days."

Santa Claus broke down the other day in front of D. F. Davison's jewelry store (354 Main street, Springfield), and that's where all the fine watches and jewelry went to. Just look at his show window and see if they didn't.

No one whose blood is impure can feel well. There is a weary, languid feeling, and often a sense of discouragement and despondency. Persons having this feeling of lassitude and depression should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify and vitalize the blood.

If you wish fine reliable goods without paying fancy prices, call on D. F. Davison, 354 Main St., Springfield, where you will find a complete assortment of watches, clocks, lace pins, sets, gent's scarf pins, a very large line of rings; also, solid silver ware, spoons, napkin rings, &c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria and Canker Mouth. For sale by O. P. Allen, Palmer.

The children of Israel were once fed by manna sent from heaven. This was an undoubted case of "God-send." The amelioration of human ills and ailments has been often undertaken and as often failed. Ely's Cream Balm, however, "has been weighed in the balance and not found wanting." It is a sovereign, speedy, certain and pleasant cure for catarrh and cold in the head. Thousands of persons have attested this fact. "Ely's Cream Balm is a God-send," writes Mrs. M. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 22d, 1882. "I had catarrh for three years, had tried nearly all the remedies but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely, and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me." This preparation is not a liquid or a snuff, and is easily applied. Can you, reader, afford to experiment with injurious irritants and injections when a pleasant cure is at hand? 2w38

The Christmas Guest.

OUR HOLIDAY SUPPLEMENT.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year—God Bless us, every one.—Tiny Tim.

A VISIT FROM ST. NICHOLAS.

'Twas the night before Christmas when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her 'kerchief and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap—
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon, on the breast of the new-fallen snow,
Gave a lustre of midday to objects below;
When, what to my wondering eye should appear,
But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name:
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On! Comet; on! Cupid; on! Donder and Blitzen—
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall!
Now, dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys—and St. Nicholas, too.
And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes, how they twinkled! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke, it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump—a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye, and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And, laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle,
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight:
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all, a good night!"

THE PROTESTED NOTE;

OR,

PETER KINKEL'S NEW YEAR CALLS.

BY FANNY FOSTER CLARK.

CHAPTER I.

"Peter Kinkel's country sausages! Peter Kinkel's cheese! Peter Kinkel's crackers! Everything warranted by Peter Kinkel!" These were but a few of the placards that adorned the tempting boxes and baskets of provisions that filled Peter Kinkel's shop on the corner of ——. Well, so many people used to buy things at Kinkel's that almost anybody will remember what avenue and street were made glorious by the red, white and blue woodwork of the "Great American Corner Grocer." As Peter's shop was scrupulously clean and cheerfully high-colored, so was the little man himself. He was this side of forty years old, and had a bald spot just shining through his crisp, dark hair, a florid skin, good, bright gray eyes, a plebian nose of no particular shape and a broad mouth. He was very short and pretty stout, considering that he was never idle, always on the jump, looking after his customers, looking after his clerks, drivers and porters. The shop was a busy place and sought out by epicures for the freshest and best of butter and cheese and the nicest of imported delicacies. The great secret of Kinkel's success—for he had landed in America fifteen years before without a dollar in his pocket or a word of English in his mouth—the great secret of his success was: "I looks after tings mineself." So, one bright winter morning, as he was "looking after tings," with his brisk air and his decent gray suit covered by a clean check apron, a young lady came into the shop. She was very plainly and inexpensively dressed, but her bright hair would stray out in little curling tendrils on her forehead, her eyes would melt and glisten—in short, she would be a very handsome woman in spite of all that dress could do or undo. She had a small basket on her arm, and pleasantly smiled as she asked:

"Have you any more of that very nice butter, Mr. Kinkel?"

Paul and Fritz, two clerks, not born in the Fatherland, but here in this country of irreverent and unbridled speech, had already nudged each other. Fritz whispered:

"When I'm a-standin' behind him I know if Miss Leclair's a-comin' by the way that bald spot blazes up."

Kinkel was red certainly, even redder than usual, and though he usually looked happy, "happy" hardly seemed to convey an idea of the beaming, exuberant, ecstatic satisfaction flaming out, so to speak, from every pore of his ruddy skin.

Miss Leclair laughed as she looked at him—it was a low, clear, pretty laugh she had—and again came that question about the very nice butter before he recovered presence of mind to answer.

"Ja—yes; oh, yes, Miss Leclair, I haf got lots more, very sheep too—only vorty cents; don't it?"

He lifted a heavy firkin on to the counter as if it had been a pot of jam, and tipping it gallantly, invited Miss Leclair: "Shust smell it." She leaned forward and made a little feint of doing so. By that time Kinkel had a great lump on the blade of a huge knife and pushing it toward Miss Leclair's mouth, he begged anxiously: "Shust taste how schveet it is."

She laughed again and answered: "Oh, I won't spoil that great piece of butter; I know it's nice."

"Spoil!" exclaimed Kinkel, "vy I don't care for dot biece of putter; I don't care for dwice so much." He balanced an enormous quantity on the knife blade to show his desperate liberality. Then he weighed out the quarter of a pound his customer wanted, wrapped it neatly in white paper and after an affectionate lingering over a perfect bow-knot in the tying, he laid it in Miss Leclair's little basket.

Just then a gentleman stepped from a carriage that was drawn up before the door, and coming to Miss Leclair said:

"I was going to ask if you would drive with me this afternoon. Seeing you come in here, I ventured to follow you."

He was a good-looking young fellow, rather offensively well dressed, perhaps; his voice too loud and high pitched, perhaps; his carriage of too late a fashion. On this avenue he wasn't known, but on Fifth avenue people whispered, as he passed: "That's Gordon, the rich broker."

"I hope you'll excuse me," he went on, watching Miss Leclair's face which had undergone a curious change. "I—I don't mean to intrude, but it's such a fine day for the Park. Won't you go?"

She was not like the woman who had laughed with Peter Kinkel over her quarter of a pound of butter. She looked at Mr. Gordon as Zenobia might have looked at some creature in the Roman mob, and answered him: "I'm very busy to-day. Thank you, but I can't go."

"But really, Miss Leclair, you are working too hard."

"Not at all."

"Yes you are. You're awfully clever and all that, and its awfully high-spirited of you to make your own living and not depend upon your friends, as so many Southern ladies have had to do since the war. There are so many friends, though, who'd be glad to do anything—that is, everything—to—to—take care of—of you."

"I'd prefer taking care of myself."

"Certainly, of course, yes, and capitally you do it, too. What are you writing now?"

"My usual work on the paper. An article every week."

"Clever, by Jove, clever."

Though Mr. Gordon was a very glib young man his vocabulary was always inadequate when he talked with Miss Leclair. Perhaps the feeling that his most conspicuous points—his wealth and social position—were no recommendation to her created some slight embarrassment. He felt, at any rate, that he had nothing which she coveted, while she had birth and breeding with which he was anxious to ally himself. So, for lack of phrases that could further his suit, he just inanely repeated, "Clever, by Jove."

She left him standing there and walked briskly down the street to where, in a cheap, little three-story brick house, she and her old Southern servant woman occupied a floor.

As Gordon slammed his carriage door Kinkel plunged his head between the covers of his order-book. Paul and Fritz knew this order-book always covered up his reveries after Miss Leclair had bought butter or eggs. Johnny, the store boy, knew it, too, and ate raisins openly.

At twelve o'clock sharp Kinkel went up stairs to dinner. He lived over the shop with his mother, who was just Kinkel himself in petticoats and twenty years older. So it's easily seen that Mrs. Kinkel was a nice, tidy, cheery old party. Although there were plenty of rooms, she had the dinner-table set just in front of the kitchen stove—the shiniest stove that ever was seen. The whole house was bright with gay wall-papers and furniture with wonderful and impossible flowers painted on every panel. As Peter entered, the mother began peasantly:

"Ach! Peter du bist"——

"Now, mutter," said Peter, "vat I teils you? You shust shpeak English. We is Americans, so must we always English shpeak—don't it?"

"Ach, Himmel! I shpeaks so pad."

"You shpeaks goot, mutter, und so do I," says Peter, beginning to eat his German soup, full of delicious cabbage and onions. That finished and some boiled beef, Peter said, folding his two red hands together on the white table-cloth and pensively looking down at them:

"Mutter, how you likes dot I gets married?"

"Married!" Mrs. Kinkel is as much shocked at first as any high "my lady" might be when the scion of the noble house speaks of matrimony.

"You see, mutter, I'm shust—in lofe."

Mrs. Kinkel can only echo "lofe?"

"Dot is true, mutter. She aint rich, she aint got no goot glothes, notings at all like your magenta silk, mutter; she can't puy no more nor quarter of a pound of putter at a dime. But she got a putiful face and a schveet schmile like a picture, and a voice vot aint like notings only ven der hand-organ blay 'Schveet Spirit Hear My Brayer.' She vorks hart, too, mutter; very hart, und—I—I lofe her."

"Peter," answered Mrs. Kinkel, with the tears in her honest eyes, "ven you lofes one goot, hart-vorking girl like dot, den you shust marry her, pring her here to me, und I lofe her too, straight off, putty queeck."

Peter grasped his mother's hand, and she came and kissed him; still he studied the table-cloth more than was natural to a man with a happy love affair.

"Vell, vat is der droubles?" asked the mother.

"Mutter, you see dot girl she aint like none o' dem girls vat I efer knows before. She's—vell I aint got no gustomers like her. Dem ladies vat come in garriages und order my putter for dem pig houses in Fifth avenue, she aint like dem. Dey speaks up loud and says: 'Kinkel, shust send round dem tings right away, quick;' but she—I tells you vat, I guess she's one of dem pig families vat got poor bei der South after der war. She one vat you call real high lady."

"Vell, Peter, ven she lofe you I don't care for any little dings like dat."

"I never knowed she like me so much; but to-day ven she talk mit mie real nice, a pig schwell feller in a garriage he ask her to go drive mit him. She shust looked at him like one of dem queens in the theatre vat always looks mad, like dey didn't vasn't goin' to stand der way tings was goin' on, she look awful mad und she say 'No: tank you, I am too busy.' But before she walk off she gif me a petle bleasant schmile."

"Ach!" cried Mrs. Kinkel, "I will gif her my magenta silk, poor tings. Vat kind of sewin' vork does she?"

"She don't do sewin' vork, she do writin' vork, mutter."

"Vat kinds of writins' vork?" and Mrs. Kinkel looked puzzled.

Peter looked puzzled too, but boldly explained: "Vat beoples calls articles; sometings vat dey puts into der papers. I don't know shust vat, but pooty hart vork und schmall pay."

"Ach! poor tings," exclaimed Mrs. Kinkel, crying audibly, "perhaps she got not der goot educations for de sewin' vork, and so she got ter fix dem articles. Poor tings!"

Peter wiped the kind old eyes with his own handkerchief and then he said:

"I got a putiful blan. I'm going to see her bei her house."

"Ja, but girls is pashfull," suggested Mrs. Kinkel.

"I know dat," and Peter looked the soul of delicacy, "but next week come New Year's Day ven dots der fashion to make dem calls; und of course she know I must be into der fashion. Und, mutter," he cast an eye into a small looking-glass, "mutter I shall go bei Stein, der tailor, und I shall say: 'Stein, no matter vot. dot cost, shust fix me up first-class for New Year's calls.'"

A week later one would have thought some beautiful corpse was laid out on the bed of a certain unoccupied room, so sacredly the place was closed, so often and so quietly Mrs. Kinkel stole in, folded back a snowy cloth and gazed down in a kind of awe upon——Peter's new suit. It was a glossy, black broadcloth swallow-tail and light lavender trousers. Peter himself had added, and they lay close by, a pair of green kid gloves, a bright purple cravat and red scarf pin, a hat that could rival Mrs. Kinkel's cooking stove in shining, a pair of patent-leather shoes equal to the hat, and a pair of large, light gaiters, equal to anything.

Mrs. Kinkel, after reverently closing the door, always came smiling into the kitchen and murmuring, "Peter will look shplendid!"

CHAPTER II.

"Tell yer what, honey, we isn't doin' right," said Miss Leclair's old servant, Aunt Hetty, as she brought in the waffles for breakfast on New Year's morning. "We isn't doin' right. Thar'll be folks a comin' ter call on us an' we'd oughter be ready for to see 'em."

"Oh, Hetty, nobody'll come."

"G'long, Miss Marian, g'long; yer knows yer got a heap o' friends sence yer come North. Put on yer long black frock, honey—do."

Presently Hetty in triumph brought in a bag full of fresh-cut flowers. When Miss Leclair read the card that lay within she sprang up like a school girl, pressed her face upon the dewy pillow of blossoms and declared there was never anything so lovely. Hetty chuckled softly to herself, and set about rubbing and dusting the furniture in the little front room. It was very pretty this little front room. A carefully chosen dark wall-paper represented the price of a good many newspaper columns. That was the only outlay Marian had made. When the fire was bright under the mantel-piece, which was cunningly draped, and when the flowers were put in some dainty vases, one might easily forget the cheap, common little house and the second-rate neighborhood. It was a "ladye's bower" in good old English.

Marian came in wearing a dress of black China crape, which had more of a history than should belong to a costume, but which clung to her slender shape lovingly and fell into soft, deep folds of drapery over which the guilty trail of plaiting and ruffling machines had never passed. She wore no jewelry (she owned none), but her white throat was bare and a piece of curious old lace was carried down to her bosom and fastened there with a few of the fresh, white rosebuds. Her bright hair, knotted loosely, was given a little freedom on the forehead. Her face was —— But how empty words are. Millais would have painted her if he had seen her and we would have stared at the picture and wondered if such a lovely woman really lived.

Before long a mountainous arrangement of flowers was handed in, with Gordon's compliments.

"It's too big for the room; take it away," was Miss Leclair's remark upon the offering.

Toward noon there were some callers—old Southern friends, and the editor who gave the short checks for the long columns.

Later, and just in a quiet hour when Marian was alone, a young man who had no carriage at the door and whose overcoat had seen a good many New Year's gave Hetty a familiar nod in passing and came into the small parlor with his face all beaming. By some strange coincidence Miss Leclair's face seemed very happy, too; and when he said joyfully, "You wear my roses!" she answered with an inflection that any man might interpret:

"Of course I wear them."

Mr. Ford evidently mistrusted his own judgment on reflection, because he talked in an abstracted way about all sorts of remote things.

"Are you painting anything new?" Miss Leclair asked.

"Yes; I paint, to tell you the truth, very much more than I sell."

Marian laughed merrily. "Oh, the arts are all alike; they don't pay—that is, in money. But then I don't care for money nor for anything compared to"——

"Compared to what—to lo"——

"To art, I was going to say." Miss Leclair suddenly found the room growing too warm. Perhaps that made her color so.

Mr. Ford's voice was low and he came very near to her to lay down a very plain axiom—"You know there's no art without the artist."

"Well?"

"Then by a process of logic" (the logic made his voice tremble) "you don't care for money nor for anything compared to—an artist. Is that true? Marian, is that true?"

How still she was, how pale, and what a lovely light in her eyes! Ah, if Millais could have caught that look for a picture!

"Mr. Gordon," old Hetty announced; and that triumph of matter over mind whose diamond studs proclaimed his balance at the bank, gave Miss Leclair a New Year's greeting and Mr. Ford a dangerous glance.

Others dropped in, shortly, until there were half a dozen in the room. Marian was over by the windows when the last caller entered. He stood against the door, which, with the most careful good manners, he closed behind him, and he looked about in the cheerful way that always proclaimed—Peter Kinkel. Peter was very red and very clean shaved and shiny. That corpse of a suit had come off the bed and was avenging the disturbance by refusing to look like anything but cerements—baggy, new and horrible. The purple cravat stared out like an evil eye from the glacial expanse of shirt-front. The green-gloved hands were spasmodically holding on to a vicious, slippery hat that wanted to lie on the floor. Lie on the floor it did in a moment, and after an unsuccessful lunge Peter gave it up and stood helpless and cheerful as before.

There was a silence. The men drew away toward Miss Leclair, and Peter's gaze wandered to her face. She was frowning and perplexed. The broad smile died off his lips, he stared about the room, at the walls, the hangings, the pictures, the flowers, and then back again to the slender figure of the young hostess. He might have been a petrification thousands of years old, so far as stony rigidity went, but he was purple and there was a pitiful constraint and distress in his honest face.

Mr. Gordon, in a low voice, asked of Miss Leclair:

"Who is it?"

"The grocer from the corner."

Mr. Gordon promptly stepped up to him and said: "See here, my man, you've made a blunder. There are no friends of yours here."

"Aber—but, ja, sir—yes, sir, I knows very goot dot lady." He smiled again and advanced a step. Meeting Marian's cold look he faltered, stammered, stepped back, fumbled under his arms for the hat that was on the floor, then turned pale—turned as pale with suppressed feeling as if he'd been a poet instead of a grocer; his lips trembled and so did those big, green-gloved hands.

"Come;" said Mr. Gordon, "be off." But Marian swiftly crossed the room, held out her white hand, laid it in one of those green gloves, and, in her gentlest, most cordial tones, she said: "You've come to wish me a happy New Year, Mr. Kinkel. I thank you."

Gordon drew back with a muttered exclamation; all the others whispered and wondered. For a few minutes she entertained only Kinkel. Gradually she made the talk more general, but she gave Kinkel pictures to look at, she showed Kinkel the flowers, and finally, consoled, but subdued and modified, Kinkel fumbled for the door-knob, while Marian herself arrested that shiny vagrant of a hat and put it safely into his hands.

"Peter," demanded Mrs. Kinkel, when he came home, "was she glad to see you?"

In silence and with much expenditure of main force Peter took off his gloves.

"Did she say you look shplendid, Peter?"

Slowly he answered: "She treat me putiful, very goot, shust like an angel, but"——

"Vat she tink of dem close, eh?"

"Mutter, I can't nefer tells you all about dot visit bei Miss Leclair. Eferytings is different as what you know about. Eferytings is different."

"Von't you calls again, Peter?"

"Mutter, you know my old cart-horse, Kaiser?"

"Ja, yes."

"Kaiser is one goot old cart-horse, und I gifes him apples somedimes und I speaks mit him bleasant. Vell, one day he lofe me so goot he walk right into der store. Ven he get in und kick ofer der baskets and all der putiful painted drawers und tings, Kaiser git awful scared und den he kick ofer more tings und feel more pad, und he vas glad ven he git out. Kaiser didn't pelongs in der shtore. He don't nefer dry dot again. I don't pelongs bei Miss Leclair. I don't nefer dry dot again."

A few days after Fritz brought the news: "I saw Miss Leclair buying butter at Smith's store." Then Fritz winked at Johnny, the boy, for Kinkel had sighed audibly.

CHAPTER III.

A dozen years later Kinkel was a retired merchant, a capitalist living, as the genteel society reporter hath it, "with an aged parent in his own palatial residence, situated in an elite quarter of upper tendom." Fritz, the irreverent, was a "smart" bill broker and often had dealings with his old employer in the way of buying and selling "paper."

One day Fritz had just closed a transaction with Kinkel, who sat in his library, which was rather an awe and a mystery to the owner himself, so magnificent and sombre was it in Spanish leather hangings and so thoroughly furnished with books that he couldn't read. The bill broker let fall from his portfolio a note, on the face of which appeared the words "ten thousand dollars."

"Ha! ha!" laughed Fritz, picking up the paper. I can't afford to lose that. A man has offered me $1,000 commission just to buy that note for him. I've had no end of trouble to get it. You see, the money was borrowed from a large picture-dealer by an artist who gave the note. Pictures were to be painted to cancel the debt in part. But the artist fell sick, his wife fell sick and his babies and—well, there was a deuce of a row. The picture-dealer got rid of the note to another man, and, phew! I've only just got hold of it."

"What's your customer's name?"

"Gordon. He's the rich broker."

"So! And who's dot feller vat made it?"

"Harrington Ford. He's a painter."

"Is he poor?"

"Yes; he's in a peck o' trouble."

"Vell, vat is Gordon goin' to do mit this note?"

"Don't know exactly, but I can guess. Ford can be pestered and harried out of his life by putting it into a lawyer's hands. Gordon's game is spite."

"Fritz," said Kinkel, I gifs you twelve hundred dollars commission ven you lets me puy dot note."

Fritz was betrayed against his business principles into an astonished look, but he conquered it instantly, and said: "I can tell Gordon I couldn't get it. All right, Mr. Kinkel. There's the note."

* * * * * * * *

It is New Year's Day in one of those homes of art known as "Studio Buildings." They are very much better for art than for the purpose of bringing up children—an occupation that has swallowed up a great deal of time in the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ford. There are five children scampering about the studio.

Marian Ford is not as beautiful as when she was a girl. A little daughter of four or five years has robbed Marian's hair of some of its brightness, and the gold is in the child's baby curls. A chubby boy has stolen that lovely oval from her cheek, and a small wailing cry from a cradle has, only a month ago, nearly been a death-knell for the mother. But there's a gentle brooding in her look, a perfect, self-renouncing tenderness that her husband, glancing up from his painting as she moves about, thinks better than the lost girlishness.

"Darling," he says, "I used to think I'd like to paint your beauty. Now it would be impossible." He leaned back in his chair and looked up at her in a worshiping fashion he had. "All the loveliness of heaven is in your face, my wife."

She smiled and touched him.

"Dear Marian, we are poor, we work hard; we've had sickness and sorrow. Do you regret what you said to me twelve years ago to-day?"

"I bless the hour, my love." She stooped and kissed him.

"Now you are well again, dear," and he speaks with courage, "and I am well. I think our affairs will go on better."

"Only there's that debt." She sighed deeply.

"Ah! yes; that's bad," and sighing too he turns back to his work with feverish energy.

There was a ring at the door. Marian opened it. A ruddy, well-dressed, middle-aged man looked at her intently for a few moments; then, without a word, handed her a sealed envelope and went away.

Mr. Ford opened it and asked excitedly: "Who brought this?"

"A stranger," his wife answered; "a stout man who stared at me."

"Marian, our money trouble is over. I can't guess what friend has done us this good office, but here's my note for $10,000 returned to us torn in pieces."

She laughed and cried, threw her arms around her husband's neck, kissed the children, and over the cradle told the mysterious good fortune in a mysterious, sweet jargon of baby-talk.

A Christmas Plum Pudding.

To be wholesome, a plum pudding must be well combined, well mixed, well cooked, served up hot, and eaten before the appetite is flagging. A good plum pudding is not indigestible, nourishing, strengthening, and, above all, comforting; it puts people in good temper and makes them feel happy. Do not make it too rich, too heavy, nor too sweet, nor too large, but be moderate in everything, forgetting nothing, and mixing it with your own hands. Only that plum pudding is lucky that is stirred by each member of the household.

Take one pound of best raisins, well stoned; one pound of currants, half a pound of Sultanas, half a pound of finely-chopped candied peel, one pound of best moist sugar, the rind of one lemon, grated; mix spice according to judgment; one ounce of powdered sweet almonds, grated nutmeg and ground cinnamon, a pinch of salt and a pinch of ground pepper. Prepare best white stale bread crumbs and rub it even, to your judgment in quantity; then add three tablespoons of fine-sifted flour. Chop as fine as possible three-quarters of a pound of best beef suet; add to bread and flour; also two good pinches of baking powder; mix well. Add groceries and mix well. Pour two tablespoons of best golden syrup over this mixture.

Beat up the yolks of six eggs well; the whites of three with white sugar, mix them with the pudding materials. Stir for ten minutes, till all is amalgamated. Add two glasses of sherry, if desired, mix sufficient to bring to a good moisture, but not sloppy. Butter a mould well; pour in pudding and place in steamer or in saucepan, so that the water reaches only half the height, and by no means immerse it, cover the pudding with clean paper and let steam for six hours at least. For sauce, take piece of best butter and melt; mix with half a spoon of best fine flour, mix well. Add sugar and vanilla flavoring and as much milk or cream as desired. Mix well in stirring till it is perfectly smooth.

The Outline of a Christmas Romance.

It was Christmas Eve.

Streets—brilliantly lit shop windows—toys—gay crowds—snow on the ground—everybody out—Christmas turkey.

Jane Allalone wandered alone—crowd—sweet, sad face, wistful eyes.

Five years before, James Goodygoody—Christmas Eve—betrothed to Jane—sailed away—India—ship lost—never heard of—foundered on coast of Africa.

Jane—held on to hope—never would marry—pined away—etc.

William Badybady—rich, corrupt, dissipated—mortgage on Jane's mother's house—foreclosure.

Away, villain! Rather poverty, crusts, etc. Turned out of doors—homeless.

Down by the dark river—Pier No. 8. She was about to take the fatal plunge. In fact, Jane Allalone did. But just then the ship, with James Goodygoody, which had not been lost at all, came sailing up to the dock, loaded to the water's edge with china, silk dresses and tea. Captain Goodygoody saw Jane struggling in the river. He fished her out with a boathook and hauled her on board.

"My Jane!"

"My James!"

The cook dried her at the galley stove. They were married on Christmas.

Christmas Thoughts from Dickens.

I will honor Christmas in my heart and try to keep it all the year.

Christmas is the only holiday in the year that brings the whole human family into common communion.

It is good to be children sometimes, and never better than at Christmas, when its mighty Founder was a child himself.

I have always thought of Christmas time as a good time; a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time.

The only time in the long calendar of the year when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut-up hearts freely.

Christmas is a time in which the memory of every remediable sorrow, wrong and trouble in the world around us should be active with us.

THINK OF IT.—Christmas is a delightful season in Christian lands, especially when the balance of presents and dinners are in one's favor, and the tin-horn crop among the children has been a failure. Very different is Christmas in heathen lands, where the uses of the stocking are unknown, and Christmas trees are hung with unfortunate travelers and unappreciated missionaries instead of glittering and showy presents. Think of Christmas in the region of the north pole, where the night lasts for six months, so that even the ablest of the Esquimaux can not distinguish Christmas eve from Thanksgiving night, nor Christmas morning from Washington's Birthday or Decoration Day!

"A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR—GOD BLESS US, EVERY ONE."—Tiny Tim.

AFTER CHRISTMAS.

Sleepy eyes are softly closing with this fading Christmas day;
Little dimpled hands are folded—little forms are tucked away!
Little feet all day so busy—now so exquisitely curled;
Mother thinks the group before her just the prettiest in the world!
Bertie, lying like a picture, in his dainty little bed,
With his "pretty Christmas playthings" close beside his curly head!
Books and pictures, tops and marbles, whistles, rocking-horse and drums—
Baby with her tiny stocking filled with choicest sugar-plums.
While sweet Minnie—precious darling! with her tumbled, sunny curls
Falling o'er her "pitty dolly," robed in satin, lace and pearls!
Each is equally the sweetest, and we love them all so well,
Which of them we hold the dearest it would puzzle us to tell.
From our darling, fair-haired Bertie (the dear firstling of our flock),
To the precious, helpless baby, hardly old enough to talk.
Oft the mother-heart will question: "were we called upon to choose,
Which of all the precious number we could best afford to lose?"
Though I hold life's richest treasures, mother-love can ne'er lose sight
Of the thousand sorrowing mothers who are left alone to-night.
Ah! how many hearts are bleeding! and what burning teardrops flow
For the loved that blest their fireside only one short year ago!
How my heart goes out in pity for the mother-hearts bereft—
Some have given one sweet darling—others have no baby left!
And my present joy is shaded with the sorrow that must be
When our first sweet lamb is taken—one from out our precious three!
And with all a tender mother's love and earnestness I pray:
"God in mercy spare our babies till another Christmas day."

BLAZER—HIS CHRISTMAS.

BY MARIE A. BILLINGS.

Tony and Blazer were brothers. Perhaps you never saw Tony, but I am certain that you knew Blazer. His business establishment was just off Broadway, on Canal Street. His stock-in-trade consisted of a box of blacking, with brushes, a pair of lusty lungs, and an infinitesimal amount of "cheek." Blazer paid particular attention to the feet of the world in general, consequently he could well be excused for paying but little regard to his own face in particular.

Tony took no part in the mercantile operations; he remained at home.

The "home" consisted of a garret, not over-spacious, either as to length, breadth or height, and furnished on the principle that "man wants but little here below."

Tony was a cripple. He had not always been a cripple; there was a time when he had run about as lusty and as impudent as Blazer.

"When wine is in wit is out." Sometimes that is not all that is out, either. Timothy Taylor—that's Tony and Blazer's father—came home one night with a large amount of spirits "in," and pretty near everything else "out." The evening repast was not such as pleased the critical taste of Mr. Taylor, hence the desire which arose in his mind to chastise Blazer.

Blazer objected, stoutly. There was nothing else handy to throw at the boy, and so the father flung Tony.

Tony didn't strike Blazer; he struck the foot of the stairs instead. It didn't kill him, though; it only broke his back.

The law stepped in here, and kindly assigned Mr. Taylor "quarters out of town"; the gentleman through whose means Tony's back was broken was also kindly let alone. He was licensed to do it. Tony and Blazer were let alone, too.

Neither cared, though: every morning Blazer said "good-by" to Tony, and, with a cheerful heart, went down to business. Every evening, if trade was brisk, he went home whistling merrily; if business had been very poor, he went home soberly and silent until he was about a block away; then he began to whistle as cheerily as upon prosperous nights. So Tony never knew the difference.

On this particular evening Blazer whistled all the way home. It was not alone that business had been brisk; it was not alone that it was Christmas Eve, either.

Christmas Eve means a great deal of happiness to some people, while to others it brings simply the spectacle of other people's happiness. Blazer had seen the time when he had stood up on the pavement and hated all the world for going by him with such smiling faces. But to-night—ah! to-night—it was all different, for Blazer had a secret.

I am almost tempted to tell you his secret. I am afraid, though, almost, that Blazer would be angry if I were to let you know that, snugly tucked away in an old tobacco bag, down in one corner of his ragged pocket, was, to him, a mine of wealth—an El Dorado—five dollars!

Five dollars!—I didn't mean to tell, but now it's out and can't be put back again—some in nickels, a few scattered quarters, and a great many coppers, but five dollars, nevertheless. How did he get it? I shall not tell you that. I might say how he had resolutely gone by the open theatre door—he who loved the lights and glitter as well as any who went in; I could hint how he had denied himself the pleasures of the five-cent restaurant, contented with a crust instead; I might let you know of the really Spartan fortitude with which—but no, I shall not say a word, for Blazer would not like it.

Five dollars! what will it not buy for Tony?

Such a dinner! such pies and turkey! Apples, too—red-cheeked big apples; oranges; oh, yes! Tony thinks so much of oranges—grapes, figs, candy! what will it not buy?

How his eyes sparkle—how merrily he runs up the stairs, to their great detriment and imminent danger to his own neck! how blithely he calls out, "Tony, old feller!"

He always calls this when he comes in, and Tony always opens his eyes and says "Blazer." Then Blazer bends down to the bed and says, "Old boy, how are yer?" And Tony smiles, always, and says, "All right, Blazer."

Something in Tony's voice to-night, and in his wan smile—such a pitiful little smile as it is!—arrests Blazer's laugh. He cannot tell why he stops so suddenly, nor why he comes up closer to Tony's bed and says, again:

"How are you, Tony?"

"Why, all right, Blazer," and Tony laughs.

Then Blazer laughs, too; his heart is light again.

The shadows creep up and fill the room. The two boys never have a light; they are expensive luxuries; but to-morrow night—here Blazer's eyes shine in the gloom.

Presently he speaks:

"Tony."

"Well, Blazer?"

"How would you like"—hesitatingly; he is so afraid Tony will suspect—"how would yer like to hang up yer stocking, jest fer fun, you know, Tony?"

"Oh!"—Tony's eyes grow bright in the gloom—"'twould be prime."

"Yer might pertend, you know, Tony; yer allers wor good at pertendin'."

Yes, Tony "allers wor good at pertendin'," poor Tony; it was pretty nearly all he ever had, the pretending.

"Yes"—Tony is quite excited. "Say, Blazer, yer could roll up some papers, couldn't yer? 'Twould be jolly to open em in the morning and make belief they wor presents."

"Yes, indeed"—how the boy is laughing to himself; he is so afraid Tony will see or hear him. "You can pin it onto yer pillar, Tony; I've got the stockin'."

Blazer produces it forthwith, and Tony's weak, thin hands hang it at the "pillow."

"Put in a big ball o' paper, Blazer," says Tony; "that'll be fur oranges and—oh, dear! I oughtn't ter tell myself"—with a little laugh, for Tony is in such good spirits.

As for Blazer, he is almost wild with excitement.

"Paper for oranges, indeed," he chuckles, inwardly, in the darkness. He is glad Tony cannot see his face.

After Tony is asleep he will go out and buy all these things. A popgun, too; he is sure Tony would like a popgun.

And Tony is asleep at last. Blazer, waiting patiently beside him, slips his hand from his grasp and rises. It is chilly in the room—very chilly; he wonders will Tony be cold. It is Christmas Eve, too; Tony ought to be warm to-night. After a pause he takes off the ragged coat he wears and carefully wraps it about Tony.

He laughs again as he looks at the stocking. He will not care for the cold. Then he goes to the door, but with his hand upon the latch he stops. It is the remembrance of the wan, pitiful smile that causes him to pause; he is not a lad given to sentimentality—oh, no—but to-night something seems to move him; he comes back through the darkness, and, bending, softly kisses Tony. Then he goes out, down the stairs, out into the crowded street, with a heart light as the garments he wears.

Christmas Eve! The bustle and hurry, the shops and windows, so full of pretty things—fairy worlds, almost. Christmas Eve, with the crowds of men and women—the Santa Clauses of every household. Christmas Eve, with the light and laughter, and the tinkling sleigh-bells, and the joy everywhere, the "good-will to men."

Blazer stands on the corner; he has the bag tightly grasped in his hand.

"Five dollars!" He cannot help saying it over and over; he does not think, either, that he is saying it aloud.

"Five dollars!" First the oranges, then the apples. There is an evil-looking face coming up quite close to Blazer; there is a wicked smile upon the face, but he does not see.

"Five dollars—then the popgun—oh!"

Blazer is jostled against the wall; there is only time for this cry; then he stands, empty-handed.

Yes, it is gone—all gone. For a moment he stands like one suddenly turned to stone, then, with a cry like that of a wild animal, he starts upon a mad run.

Jostling the people right and left, unheeding their imprecations, unmindful of threatening looks, he rushes straight into the arms of a burly policeman with a vise-like grip.

"Ah, ah! young man! Caught at last!" says "Bobby," and, "Hold him tight, policeman," cried another voice.

Dazed and bewildered, smarting under the sense of his own wrong, dimly conscious of this injustice, Blazer frantically kicks and twists, endeavoring to escape.

In vain. The chains that bound Prometheus were not stronger than these encircling arms.

"That's him," says some one, in a tone of triumph—"that's the little wretch who stole my money!"

"'Twas another feller!" cries Blazer, thinking only of his own.

The policeman laughs grimly. Blazer is marched off to the station-house. He is searched; it is short work—there is not much to search; no money. Well, but his excited accuser is positive. Blazer is shut up for the night.

He thinks of the stocking, the promised feast, the boy who lies dreaming of the morrow's "pertendin'." Alas! there will be not even that. Tony alone through all the night; Tony alone in the morning, waking up to find the stocking empty—poor, poor Tony! In the dim silence of the night the hot tears roll down the dirty face, and now and then a sob breaks the stillness.

Ten o'clock. Tony opens his eyes.

"Blazer"—it is very soft, only a whisper, but Blazer always hears—"Blazer!"

No answer. Tony lifts his head, only a very little, and tries to look through the darkness. Perhaps Blazer has gone out; he does not know how late it is.

In the darkness, Tony lies and thinks. He thinks of a great many things. He wonders how the streets look; he sees the children with their happy faces; he hears their merry laugh; he counts the stockings hanging by the chimney.

Eleven o'clock. Tony listens to the great bell. How it peals out over the city!—how it echoes and re-echoes through the vast darkness! The children are all asleep now, tucked snugly in bed. Tony shivers a little. He is cold; he wonders if his stocking were hanging up among those bright-colored ones if the good Santa Claus would fill it, too. He wonders then if Blazer has put in the paper balls; then he thinks where is Blazer. He lifts his head again—only a very little this time. He calls again, "Blazer!" How very weak his voice sounds, even to himself, and his head feels so queer! Oh, and it is so lonesome here, alone. Why don't Blazer come? A great sob rises in Tony's throat, but he shuts his eyes; he will not cry.

Such a strange idea comes to him here. He wonders—do they keep Christmas in heaven.

Twelve o'clock. Again the whisper—a faint whisper now—"Blazer!" Again the stillness.

Then there comes a great light, as if a hundred bonfires—no, not that kind of light—a great golden splendor—a dazzling radiance.

There is a tree—a great Christmas-tree. There are stars shining upon it. There is a river, too, flowing between it and the boy. There is a boat, and a face smiling upon him. He is not afraid.

"Blazer"—a very faint murmur—"I'm a-going across. I'm all right."

Silence again. The clock strikes one, and two, and three, four, five, six, but Tony does not lift his head again and whisper, "Blazer." He lies quite still, with the ragged coverlid drawn up over his face, and the thin hands crossed under it.

Christmas morning! Happiness, joy, "peace on earth."

Blazer stands and confronts the man who last night called him "thief." There is a quiet dignity about the boy—a dignity that the man has not.

"Colors seen by candle-light do not look the same by day." After a great deal of perplexity the man decides that Blazer is not the thief.

"You are discharged," says the officer; but the boy does not stir.

A man comes in and says, "Merry Christmas" to the gentleman. They shake hands and begin to chat.

"You may go," says the officer, tapping him on the shoulder. "You had a night's lodging, anyhow."

Blazer goes out slowly, his head bent down his eyes blind. He is thinking of Tony.

Go home? No, not yet. He cannot say "Merry Christmas" to Tony. He wanders aimlessly up the street. There is a church near, and upon the steps he seats himself.

The choir are singing within—the grand old Christmas hymn. Now the singing stops, the sermon has begun.

It is a beautiful sermon, all about charity and brotherly love. Many a hearer is enraptured; but Blazer does not hear it. There is an orange stand across the street. If he only had an orange—just one! He thinks of the empty stocking and Tony—poor Tony! The man's back is turned. If—— Blazer rises. He sits down suddenly; a hot wave of shame comes rushing over him. He was going to offer Tony an orange—a stolen orange—Tony!

Blazer, Arab, bootblack, gamin, has the old-fashioned idea of honor and honesty.

"Oh, Tony, I'd bring it if I could!"

It is a little despairing cry—a cry that comes to the ears of a man hurrying by. There is something touching in the cry. The man stops—comes back.

"Well, my man?"

Blazer looks up. He springs to his feet; it is the man who accused him of stealing his money. In the light of the morning the man looks different, too. It may be that he is a second scourge. He stops the boy.

"Come," he says, "tell me all about it."

And Blazer tells. There is a suspicious moisture in the man's eyes after the telling. He takes Blazer's hand and leads him away.

Half an hour later two forms enter the dirty court—Blazer, with eyes shining, and a man with a basket.

Such a marvelous basket!—such wonderful things that it contains!

"Bless me," pants the gentleman, as he climbs the rickety stairs, "we must get you out of this!"

Blazer opens the door and goes in. Silence, deathlike, answers. He goes over to the bed on tiptoe.

"Tony!" No answer. A great terror comes over Blazer. "Tony, old feller!"

No answer yet. A pause now. After a moment Blazer bends down, and with a hesitating hand removes the coverlid from the face. Silence, strange, sacred. In a momen Blazer lifts his head.

"There ain't any use," he says, a dry, hard sort of sob choking his voice; "he's had his Christmas a'ready."

Ah, yes, indeed! Tony had just "crossed over." He is "all right."

A Sad Christmas.

A room is opened up, at one end of which are half a dozen musicians playing loud selections of popular dance music. Around the room are tables, at which sit men and women and a few mere boys and girls drinking, shouting, laughing and applauding the dancers, who mimic the revels of notorious Parisian gardens.

Gilding and glittering mirrors and gaudy paint make the room bright. The music is noisy, the liquors fiery, and the associations of the worst. Language that none of these boys have ever heard in their homes is repeated by one and another, painted women outdoing the oldest and most hardened men in their vileness of utterances.

"Look at this boy."

Suddenly breaking away from his companions on the ball-room floor, a young lad walked rapidly and unsteadily into the open air. He was hardly twenty years old, handsome and refined in appearance, but flushed with liquor and showing lines of dissipation already on his boyish face. Intoxication showed in his walk and in the dishevelled, untidy appearance of his dress and his hair; but as he came into the clear starlight, and the fresh, cold night air struck his face, it seemed to recall his senses, and he looked upward with despair and remorse in his gaze. His thoughts were audible to the two who watched him, for the magic of Christmastide was spread over him by the saint.

"Yes, it is Christmas," thought the boy; "and in the old farm-house on the hill they are looking for me to-night; Mother is there praying for her oldest boy, little thinking of what I have come to. Father is there, as proud as he always was of me, and all the children are looking for the Christmas box I was to bring them; and Alice is looking for me, too, God help her. And I—what have I done? I dare not go, for I cannot leave my books for others to examine. This is my Christmas, and this is what I have come to by 'seeing life.' God help me, there is no hope unless I can win back what I have stolen."

A burst of song and discordant laughter, and the confused sound of glasses clinking and the ringing voices of young girls came through the half open door behind him, and he shuddered and turned away.

"This is what I have bartered my honor for," he muttered hoarsely, and he walked swiftly up the street to the next corner, and passing a policeman who stood on the sidewalk talking to a painted, gayly-dressed woman, he sprang up the steps of a brown stone house and rang the bell. An obsequious servant admitted him, after peeping through a hole in the door, and the boy passed into the parlor, where there were a dozen men playing faro.

"Give me two stacks of reds," said he, and without more words he joined the game.

He won and lost and won again; but Satan was dealing the cards and was not to be cheated of his stakes, and all he had was lost. Honor had gone before it. The unequal duel was over, and the boy reeled over to the sideboard and drank a glass of brandy. Who shall wonder that next morning his body is taken from the river to the Morgue?

The Christmas Clearing-House.

A well-known student of social science, who is at present one of the intellectual ornaments of Boston, has devised a plan for the regulation of Christmas gifts which seems to be perfectly satisfactory. He proposes that each person shall give away precisely the gifts which he or she wishes to receive, and that on the 1st of January there shall be a clearing-house established in each family, by means of which a general exchange of gifts shall be arranged. For example, A has a wife—B—and two sisters C and D. On Christmas he gives to his wife a box of cigars, to his sister C a new male overcoat, and to his sister D a new meerschaum pipe. His wife gives him a new bonnet, to one of her sisters a diamond ring, and to the other a sealskin coat, and in like manner C and D give to A and B and to each other whatever objects C and D particularly wish for. Each member of the family professes to be delighted with the gifts received, and the joy of the household is unfeigned. A week later the clearing-house is opened and a general exchange of gifts takes place. A receives back all that he has given to B, C, and D, and each of the latter similarly receives back her own gifts. The final result is that A possesses the cigars and pipes which he coveted, B has a bonnet, a sealskin sacque and a diamond ring, and C and D are equally well satisfied.

THE CHRISTMAS TIDES.

A Beautiful Piece of Word Painting.

It is now some eighteen hundred years since the world began to count its Christmas tides. If chronology had not blundered we might call the present by its actual numerical; but it is out by some three or four years in the annals of our Christian era. However, we are certainly verging fast toward the two thousandth anniversary of the birth of Christ. Far back in time, but near by familiarity, seems that epoch—that point which divides the past into ancient and modern. As long ago as stretched the ages of Assyrian and Egyptian dynasties—twice as long as the rule of Rome—and still the story is as "household" to us as the things which happened yesterday. Who can conjure up, at a word, its scenes? Jerusalem! Nazareth! the long file of camels striding over the dark desert by night, toward the solitary star glittering so suddenly and with such mystery to beckon their swarthy lords from the Orient hills! Who has not made from all the old and new masters his own picture of the wayside inn at Bethlehem? The crowding pilgrims, the patient cattle, the traffic, the dust, the tumult; and in the midst of all the Christ and His Hebrew mother! And how quietly we receive, on the strength of a story made for all times and peoples, "the adoration of the Wise Men."

We never wonder to find those grave and reverend seniors clad in early Italian or mediæval costume, presenting, on bended knee—a salutation unknown to the East—jewels and confections of the manufacture of the "streets of the jewelers" at Florence, or the Don Platz of Cologne. What, if under porticoes, which the Romans only built, horses are waiting which the Magi would not ride; and the Madonna smiles upon the wistful travelers in a Greek "peplus," her features and the features of her divine child profoundly European? What of all this? We are no more disconcerted than to know that the three wise men died and were buried at Aix-la-Chapelle. We listen to the tale like children, who hear an under-meaning in every word of their narrator's story. Beyond and behind it all is that eternal revelation, that ineffable message of love, which is the heart and soul of the religion which sprang from the manger and blossomed on the cross. World's wisdom falters in the presence of that truth which the best of us can only half comprehend. Tell it as ye will, Signori, the painters! Tell it as ye list, Monsignori, the preachers! At this season of Christmas we shall listen as to our children, who say that on the Christmas Eve the dark-eyed oxen talk together in the stall, and the bird who stained his breast red with chirping on the cross sings all the night long in the fir thicket. What might not be, indeed, in picture or reality, on the anniversary of the night when the shepherds tended their flocks by Jordan, when they heard, or seemed to hear, out of heaven that voice which frighted Pan from his Greek forests, and Apollo from his oracles? "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Divine ambassage!—august and awful utterance!—sounding down to all time and languages the diapason of the harmony of heaven and earth!

Christmas Time.

There are people that tell you, says Charles Dickens, that Christmas is not to them what it used to be; that each succeeding Christmas has found some cherished hope or happy prospect of the year before dimmed and passed away; that the present only seems to remind them of reduced circumstances and straightened incomes—of the feasts they once bestowed on hollow friends, and of the cold looks that meet them now, in adversity and misfortune. There are few men who have lived long enough in the world, who cannot call up such thoughts any day in the year.

Then do not select the merriest of the 365 for your doleful recollections, but draw your chair nearer the blazing fire—fill the glass and send round the song—and if your room be smaller than it was a dozen years ago, or if your glass be filled with reeking punch instead of sparkling wine, put a good face on the matter and empty it off-hand and fill another and troll off the old ditty you used to sing, and thank God it's no worse. Look on the merry faces of your children, if you have any, as they sit round the fire. One little seat may be empty; one slight form that gladdened the father's and roused the mother's pride to look up may not be there. Dwell not upon the past; think not that one short year ago the fair child now resolving into dust sat before you. Reflect upon your present blessings—of which every man has many—not upon your past misfortunes, of which all men have some. Fill your glass again with a merry face and contented heart. Our life on it, but your Christmas shall be merry, and your New Year a happy one.

Chrstmas Tree Cultivation.

Plant your tree in a small washtub, filled in with brickbats, or a bed of hard coal, or anything that is heavy and will keep it in place, and cover over the tub with a gayly-striped afghan, or a fur robe, or a flag, and upon this base many of the larger articles, such as books, desks, etc., can be arranged. The children can manufacture many beautiful decorations for the Christmas tree, in which they will take quite as much pleasure as if they were from the fancy shops. With a few sheets of gilt, blue, scarlet and silver paper cut into tiny strips four inches in length and half an inch in width, you can make long chains to entwine from bough to bough of the tree. With a bottle of mucilage paste the two ends of the strips together until half of them are made into rings; then make up some more by slipping one end through two rings and joining them together. Let the three rings become dry and then join them into four garlands. Suspend around the outer branches of the tree from top to bottom. Twenty yards will be needed to trim a large tree, twelve for a small one.

If you possess a broken looking-glass carry it to a glazier and have it cut into bits three inches by two. Paste a bit of brown paper over the back of the glass and bind the edges with strips of gilt or scarlet and blue papers. and paste a bit of ribbon or paper at the top to suspend them from the boughs. You cannot have too many tiny mirrors.

Little lace bags made of bobinet lace or wash illusion, by running them together with scarlet, blue, and gold colored worsteds, and using a bit of it for a string to draw them together, are also very pretty and desirable when filled with nuts, raisins, and sugar plums for the children.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS."

Ring, ring, ring, ye merry bells,
Ring your Christmas story,
"Peace on earth, good will to men,"
Give to Christ all glory.
Ring, ring out from steeples high,
Send your message to the sky.

Ring, ring, ring, ye Christmas bells,
Ring a kindly greeting
To all mankind, for on this day
Warm hearts and hands are meeting.
"Peace on earth, good will toward men,"
Ring it once, and once again!

Happy be the Christmas songs
Which our hearts are singing,
Keeping time to merry bells
From tower and steeple ringing.
"Merry Christmas!" through the land,
Love and peace go hand in hand.

FILLING THE STOCKINGS.

Pussy got into the house somehow, just as the least little streak of morning light was beginning to peep through the window curtains, and stole up stairs. She jumped upon the bed, and rubbed her cold nose against Lill's face, and wakened her.

Lill sprang up in bed, for it came to her like a flash, "It's Christmas day!"

"Bessie, wake up! Merry Christmas!" she cried, and in half a minute four little bare feet were pattering down stairs to the sitting-room, after the Christmas stockings.

They hadn't a doubt of finding them full. Santa Claus had never forgotten them yet.

You can imagine, then, their dismay when each little girl clasped a limp and empty stocking, with not so much as a sugar-plum to fill out the toe.

They ran to mamma's bedroom to pour out their complaints.

"Santa Claus forgot us!" cried Lill, with starting tears.

"He didn't bring us anything!" said Bessie, throwing herself across her mother's feet in an agony of grief.

"I think it's too bad!" said Lill.

"He's real mean. I'll never like him again!" said Bessie.

"Oh, go back to bed," said mamma. "You've got up too early. How do you expect Santa Claus can always get round before daylight? There are such numbers of little boys and girls, the wonder is that he gets round at all. He'd never forget you, I'm sure. Go back, and curl down in bed till it's really light. Then get up and dress yourselves nicely, before you come down, and you'll see what you'll see."

Rather disconsolate, the little girls went back to bed.

"You needn't feel so bad, Bessie Bradley. Haven't you found out more'n a hundred times, that mamma knows about things better'n we do?" said Lill.

"I ain't feelin' bad, any more'n you are! and Santa Claus is a comin' in 'bout nine or eight minutes," said Bessie.

While waiting for daylight they talked of the presents they hoped to have, and as soon as the sun peeped above the eastern horizon they were up, and putting on their clothes as quickly as possible, went down stairs.

There was nobody in the sitting-room. A fire was burning in the grate, and the stockings hung against the mantel, but they still looked limp.

They were not near enough to be sure they were empty, when a loud "Toot! toot! toot!" sounded from somewhere with a jingling of bells, and a tramping of feet.

"He's coming! Oh, Lill Bradley, old Santa's a coming!" said Bessie, clinging to her sister's skirts. Lill held her breath, and said nothing.

The door flew open, and in bounced Santa Claus, sure enough! He wore a very furry coat, and a red cap, high and pointed at the top, and bound with fur. His eyes were hidden behind great silver-rimmed spectacles, and his hair and beard were long, and white as snow.

Mamma came out of the bedroom just then, and Bessie and Lill sidled up to her, and caught each one of her hands, feeling half afraid of the queer, "jolly old elf," and then stood, silent and watching.

The great pack upon Santa's back didn't seem to be empty yet, and there was packages peeping out of every pocket, out of the breast of his coat, and even out of his sleeves. He seemed in a tearing hurry.

"Whew! Whew!" said he. "This is the first chance I've had to take breath since I started out last night. So many youngsters to visit this year! I thought I should never get round. Whew! how hot it is here. Well, let's see!"

He whirled the pack from his back, down on the rug, and began rummaging vigorously among the packages within it. "Only two stockings to fill here, and little ones at that. I've lots of presents left over."

He drew out a package, held his head on one side with a funny little grimace as he peeped into it, and then thrust it into Lill's red stocking.

"That's a doll, I know!" whispered Lill, squeezing her mother's hand.

A similar package went into Bessie's blue one. Then other, smaller packages, till the stockings would hold no more.

All the time he worked he kept jerking out funny little speeches about the children and their wants, as if he knew all about them.

Lill and Bess were in state of joyful excitement. Lill thought there was something familiar about the voice, or the motions, or something; she couldn't tell what.

"I believe I've seen him before! Else I dreamed I did! Else he's some like father!" she whispered.

Her mother laughed aloud at this. It made old Santa Claus look up from his work, and he seemed to espy the little group in the corner for the first time.

"Bless my stars!" he ejaculated, beginning to gather up hastily from the rug the parcels that had fallen out of his pack.

"Bless my stars and stripes! Folks mustn't see me about this business!"

He threw his pack over his back, and then putting his hands deep in his side pockets, drew them out full, and a shower of sugar-plums pelted the little girls, as he hurried out of the room.

Just as he was going he threw a big package at their mother, saying,—

"That's for the old lady, there! Came pretty near forgetting her!"

Lill knew the voice in which this was said, and cried out,—

"It's papa! It's papa!"

They sprang after him, and led him back into the room, in laughing triumph.

They took off the pointed cap and the blue spectacles. They brushed the flour from his eyebrows, and rubbed the red from his cheeks. They robbed him of the pillow that had made him look so "chubby and plump," and the gray wig and beard that made him look so venerable.

And when they came to examine the contents of the stockings they were more than ever delighted to have for a Santa Claus their own dear father.

ON CHRISTMAS DAY.—Let us assemble about the festive board on Christmas Day with joy and happiness. Let us enshrine the day in our memories and make it another star in our sky. While we enjoy the hospitality of our own home, let us remember those who are not blessed as we are.

UNDER THE SNOW.

A Short Christmas Story in Rhyme.

BY ROBERT COLLYER.

It was Christmas eve in the year fourteen,
And as ancient dalesmen used to tell,
The wildest winter they ever had seen.
With the snow lying deep on moor and fell.

When Wagoner John got out his team
Smiler and Whitefoot, Duke and Gray,
With the light in his eyes of a young man's dream,
As he thought of his wedding on New Year's Day.

To Ruth, the maid with the bonnie brown hair,
And eyes of the deepest, sunniest blue,
Modest and winsome and wondrous fair,
And true to her troth, for her heart was true.

"Thou's surely not going," shouted mine host.
"Thou'll be lost in the drift as sure as thou's born.
The lass winnot want to wed wi' a ghost.
And that's what thou'll be on Christmas morn.

"It's eleven long miles fra Skipton toon,
To Blueberg hooses and Washburn dale,
"Thou had better turn back and sit thee doon,
And comfort thy heart wi' a drop o' good ale."

Turn the swallows flying South,
Turn the vines against the sun,
Herds from rivers in the drouth,
Men must dare or nothing's done.

So what cares the lover for storm or drift,
Or peril of death on the haggard way,
He sings to himself like a lark in the lift,
And the joy in his heart turns December to May.

But the wind from the north brings a deadly chill,
Creeping into his heart, and the drifts are deep,
Where the thick of the storm strikes Blueberg hill,
He is weary and falls on a pleasant sleep.

And dreams he is walking by Washburn side,
Walking with Ruth on a summer's day,
Singing that song to his bonnie bride,
His own life forever and aye.

Now read me this riddle, how Ruth should hear
That song of a heart in the clutch of doom,
It stole on her ear, distinct and clear,
As if her lover was in the room.

And read me this riddle, how Ruth should know,
As she bounds to throw open the heavy door.
That her lover is lost in the drifting snow,
Dying or dead on the great wild moor.

"Help! help!" "Lost! lost!"
Rings through the night as she rushes away,
Stumbling, blinded and tempest-tossed,
Straight to the drift where her lover lay.

And swift they leap after her into the night,
Into the drifts by Blueberg hill.
Pullan, Ward, Robinson, each with his light,
To find her there, holding him, white and still.

"He was dead in the drift, then,'
I hear them say,
As I listen and wonder,
Forgetting to play,
Fifty years syne come Christmas Day.

"Nay, nay, they were wed," the dalesman cried.
"By Parson Carmalt on New Year's Day,
Bonnie Ruth were me great-great-grandsire's bride,
And Maister Frankland gave her away."

"But how did she find him under the snow?"
They cried with a laughter, touched with tears.
"Nay, lads," he said softly, "we never can know.
No, not if we live a hundred years."

There's a sight o' things gan
To the making o' man,
Then I rushed to my play
With a whoop and away,
Fifty years syne come Christmas Day.

THE CARD OF ST. NICK.

I never could exactly understand him; he has such a short, blunt way of saying things, that sometimes it seems as though he was really cross; but actions speak so much louder than words, that I know he must have one of the kindest of hearts in the world. I feel sometimes almost afraid to speak to him because of that bluff way of his; but I cannot always help it; at this time of year particularly, there are so many questions to ask about one thing and another, which no one can answer so well as St. Nick, that I try to get up courage and say a few words just to try his mood; and it often happens that I find out a good deal of what I wanted to know, and that he will even be led to talking about himself a little, and in a general way.

Of course any such personal remarks are always of more interest to me than anything else he could tell me, and when he warms in his genial hearty fashion to the recital of a story or the recollection of some jolly adventure, I wonder that I was ever afraid to approach him, and in listening to his voluntary information forget half of the childish questions I intended to ask.

I met him the other day at the corner of Washington street and Temple place, looking at some shawls exhibited in a window. I thought it might be a fortunate occurrence for me, as, possibly, I could induce him to look about in my company and give me some suggestions as to trifling purchases I had in mind, It would at least be no harm to ask him. 'Umph!" said he in reply to my persuasions. 'Go shopping with a woman? don't ask it!

"People have very strange notions in regard to my business," he continued. "Nowadays my duties are hardly what they used to be. I cannot give any such attention to details as I did when you were a child. I can only have a general oversight of matters, and give a hint now and then where I think it is needed. I cannot do in all things, just as I would like to; I am, at best, only an agent, and that is what people seem least of all to understand.

"You mustn't mind if I don't go with you; I shall be near at hand, and, I dare say, shall come across you a dozen times during the day. When you see me you will notice that I am busy in my own way. Very likely it appears to be a meddlesome way; but I make a point of obeying instructions, always, without regard to appearances. So excuse me now."

Saying this, St. Nick turned away after a tall, large man wearing a sealskin coat.

I am not in the habit of playing the spy, but in this instance my curiosity prompted me to follow him. He turned into a store, walking near behind the tall man, and as I had an errand in the same store, I considered it quite lawful for me to go in also.

As I entered, St. Nick had just tapped the sealskin coat on the shoulder, and the wearer, who was standing at the glove counter, turned around and greeted him with—

"Oh! ah! How d'ye do?"

"Isn't it rather early?" said St. Nick.

"Why, no," said the other; "sleighing is coming right along, you see. I think it looks like snow this morning."

"But the Christmas goods are hardly all in the market yet."

"Oh, yes, yes. Well, I'm not buying Christmas presents this morning. I'm looking for some driving gloves."

"Here is my card," said St. Nick, handing it to him. "I gave you one last year—same firm, same motto."

The man looked at the card, raised his eyebrows slightly, lowered them again, turned the card over quickly with his middle finger, gazed at the blank side for a moment in a very blank manner, while his mind digested the words on its face, then turning it back again, he gave it another short look, and finally glancing sideways at St. Nick, he smiled a very good-natured smile as both hands went into the pockets of his great coat, one of them carrying the card. "Eights, did you say?" inquired the glove clerk.

"Oh, never mind," said the man. "I'll make these answer." As he spoke he pulled from his pocket a pair of driving gloves that were rather worn. "I'll get 'em mended," said he.

"By the way, do you ever go to the theatre?" he asked the clerk.

"Yes, sometimes; I can't afford it very often."

"Perhaps you can use these. They're good seats. They were given to me, but I can't go." He handed two theatre tickets over the counter and with them the card St. Nick had given him, and then turning to the latter, who stood waiting, they walked arm-in-arm from the store.

I passed by the glove clerk as I went out. He was looking not at the tickets, but at the card of St. Nick, and I heard him say softly to himself—

"So it is; I'll give them to Charlie, he never has a chance."

St. Nick couldn't have gone far with the tall man, for I found him in the very next store I entered. He was standing behind two ladies, who seemed to be discussing some pretty silk neckerchiefs.

"You know she likes blue much better," said one.

"Yes, I know she does," said the other, "but it costs twenty-five cents more, and I can't afford it. I do wish I could decide which to get!"

"Get the blue one," said St. Nick. "You can afford it."

"I don't know about that. I feel kinder poor since I had the barn painted."

"Take a card," said St. Nick.

The lady took it.

"Oh, beg pardon; I didn't know it was you." Then, looking at the card again, "Well, I guess it's about so. Here, you! put up that blue neckerchief, and— Yes, put that red one in with it; her sister would like that. Here's the money. Do 'em up quick before I change my mind."

Her companion had been looking at the card, and exclaimed—

"That reminds me! I must finish those slippers. I had forgotten all about it. Where is the worsted counter?"

"Way back, on the right."

The ladies walked away toward the worsted counter, and St. Nick, laying a card on the counter they had left, turned his attention elsewhere. The clerk, looking at the card, pocketed it carelessly, remarking to a pale young fellow beside him—

"Suppose you come to dinner with me to-day, Frank; you haven't for a week."

I was rather curious about those small, white cards that St. Nick was giving about so freely, and following him toward the door, was just in time to see him make a dive through the crowd and collar a small boy, who was on the point of going into the street.

The child looked alarmed as he was pulled back into the store, but only for a minute.

"How much are your pencils?" St. Nick inquired.

The boy was selling pencils.

"Seven cents apiece—dollar a bunch; sell you half a bunch for fifty cents."

"I want a bunch. I keep my books with a lead pencil. Can you change this?"

"I'll get it changed for you in a second. Here, hold my stock for me."

"No, I can't wait. Take the bill and bring me the change any time before Christmas. Here's my card; study it up. I guess you're fly. There's the address in the corner. Tumble?"

St. Nick crowded card and bill into the little fellow's hand, snatched a bunch of pencils and tore out of the door, whistling and gesticulating violently at the driver of a stylish-looking coupe which was passing near the sidewalk.

"Yes," said the boy, examining the bill, "I tumble that you're luny and oughter be pulled in." Then he looked at the card. "Oh! I tumble again. Second thoughts is best. Good enough! I know the old duffer. I'll give Jimmy such a stockin' he'll think he's got a bone in his leg."

I was burning with a desire to know what was written on that card of St. Nick's, and I rushed out into the street to see what had become of the stylish coupe. It had come to a standstill a short distance up the street, and St. Nick was talking to the occupant. I saw him hand in a card and after a minute more the driver twisted about in his seat and looked down over the edge of his collar at the door. Then St. Nick backed onto the sidewalk, lifting his hat, and the coupe being turned around, came slowly by, allowing me to get a glimpse of a fair, sweet, ladylike face, surmounted by a perfectly lovely bonnet, that presently made its appearance at the window and brought the driver down from his perch. He opened the door in front of the store I had left, carefully holding an apple behind him as he did so.

Stepping to the sidewalk, my lady handed him the card of St. Nick and passed into the store.

The driver took a small preparatory bite from the rosy side of the apple, and then puzzled over the card. I watched him, and noticed that he didn't finish the apple, but gave it to the horse nearest him.

As St. Nick was walking toward me I made up my mind that I would get one of those cards that seemed to be a matter of so much interest to every one who looked at them. So I approached him and demanded one.

"I don't hand them to everybody," said he. "People who haven't much money and manufacture their Christmas presents with their own hands are the ones who get the most good out of the day. They understand all about it and don't need my cards; I give them where they are needed most. I gave that rascal a V. He's a smart tradesman, and by Christmas time he'll spell it with a double X. I know where every cent of it will go.

"Did you see that big man with a seal-skin coat? he's worth half a million. I have his word for a cart-load of presents and a big check beside. His heart is as big as his purse, but he's forgetful. I have to refresh his memory every year. And that lady in the coupe, she's got a mint of money; always trying to do good, but doesn't know how. She'd never get the right thing if I didn't write it all down for her."

St. Nick turned around after saying this, and looked anxiously across the street. I knew I should lose him in a minute, so I insisted on his giving me a card. I remembered that he had said that he was only an agent, and I was very anxious to know whose agent he was. I may not be able to give costly presents, but if there is any good in his card, I want it as much as any one. He saw I was in earnest and gave it to me, remarking, "Show it to your friends," and then ran across the street after an orange wagon. I am glad I took so much pains to get the card, for I think we are interested to know all we can about the motive which prompts this queer old gentleman to such an amount of disinterested labor and activity. I have turned it over and over, but this is every word I can find on the card of St. Nick: "It is more blessed to give than to receive.'—ST. NICK, AGENT."

A BABY born on Christmas is appropriately tyled a holler-day gift.

The Observance of the Day.

It is meet that once a year we should celebrate the greatest event in the history of mankind—the incarnation and birth of Jesus Christ. It matters little whether He were born December 25, or on some other day in some other month. It is the event we celebrate with gladness and thanksgiving, making it an occasion of "feasting and joy, and of sending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor." On Christmas Day the poor and the rich, the lofty and the lowly, the learned and the unlearned, may alike rejoice together, meeting around the cradle of the one Lord of all, who is brother to the lowliest, and brother to the mightiest, through whom we all say Our Father, which art in Heaven.

Remembering that He was poor, in His name we give gifts to the poor; remembering that He was "despised and rejected of men," we visit the outcast, the prisoner, and in His name bestow not gifts alone, but kindly words and sympathetic tears; remembering His dying prayer, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do," in His name we forgive as we pray to be forgiven in the petition He taught us. In so far as we can do all this and do it, are we privileged to call Him Brother, Savior, Friend.

In the midst of our festivities let us not forget or permit our children to forget the occasion of our festivities. And as the day we celebrate falls on Sabbath, we may have more than usual leisure to recall the circumstances which surrounded and heralded the advent of the Savior.

Many an eye will be dimmed with tears as loved ones are missed from the circle that gathers round the table, and voices that were music no longer join in the festive chorus. This common grief, which sooner or later comes to every heart, but binds us together in closer bands of sympathy and affection. Remembering the dead, we are tenderer and more considerate toward the living.

There may be among our readers those whose children are suffocated with gifts of every sort, and hence experience but little pleasure in receiving even the costliest presents. For such the delight of bestowing on less favored children what they can easily spare from their superfluity will give fresh zest to life. This pleasure in giving "grows by what it feeds on." The blessedness of giving never diminishes, though that of receiving may cease almost entirely.

There are certainly among our readers those whose children are not suffocated with gifts of every sort. Happier by far are these than the others. They have an appetite which makes plain food agreeable, they have wants that assert themselves before they are anticipated, they know the keenness of hunger and the keenness of gratification which comes only of hunger and its satisfaction.

There may be those among our readers on whom poverty has laid an iron hand, who cannot satisfy fully or even partially the demands of hunger and thirst, hunger for knowledge, thirst that can only be quenched by the waters of Castalia. The Hand that denies is often the loving Hand; is it not always the loving Hand? "He spared not His own Son?" and this was in love; the "joy that was set before Him" was ample reward for all the pain.

Divine must be the plan which meets and satisfies all the varied needs of the human race. In Christ each man finds his brother. He united and unites in Himself every condition of suffering and victorious humanity. With Him we can equally suffer and rejoice, and this in whatever circumstances we may be placed is cause for joy.

Christmas in Germany.

In German communities Christmas is the most strictly observed of all festivals. Every household prepares its "Weihnachts-baum," be it a lordly tree, from whose wide-spreading and garlanded branches hang trinkets, French bonbons, and ingenious clockwork toys; whose sturdy stem rises out of a little pyramid of cakes, crackers and hothouse flowers, and whose comely proportions are revealed by the light of a thousand star-like tapers; or be it but a humble little shrub boasting but a few kreutzers' worth of gingerbread and paper cuttings, lighted by but a tallow dip, and rising modestly out of the neck of an exhausted "schnaps" bottle. Poor, indeed, must be the "paterfamilias," and sadly desperate his financial prospects, who cannot scrape together the necessary pittance for his "Baum." He would sooner go without his tobacco than have to tell his wife and children that there could be no tree this year. The whole thing may seem trivial, and the pleasure with which even grown-up people join in what is nothing less than a household ceremony strikes one as childish; but there is much to be said for it. It serves to repair the almost worn-out family ties of many a household, and brings out the wholesomest and most worthy points in many natures one has up to then been accustomed to look upon as a compound of dissipation and selfishness. Christmas is, again, the recognized time for reconciliations, when old-standing quarrels and tiffs can be healed, and when either party can make the first advances without the unworthy fear of seeming servile.

Christmas Carols.

The singing of Christmas carols dates back to the very earliest ages of Christianity, when the bishops were accustomed to chant them to their assembled flocks. Other ancient practices belonging to the day, as, for instance, the hanging of the mistletoe, and the burning of the Yule log, have their origin in Pagan times, and are borrowed directly from the Druids and the Scandinavian rites in honor of the Norse god, Thor. The hauling in and burning of the Yule log was one of the most joyous Christmas ceremonies of feudal days, a time when old wrongs were forgotten, strife was laid aside and peace and plenty reigned throughout. Its praises are appropriately sung in some venerable verses found in the Sloane manuscripts, and supposed to belong to the time of Henry VI.:

Welcome be Thou, heavenly King
Welcome born on this morning,
Welcome for Whom we shall sing,
Welcome Yule.

Welcome be ye that are here,
Welcome all and make good cheer,
Welcome all another year,
Welcome Yule.

THE poor tramp never hangs up his stockings—he doesn't wear 'em.

What Is Christmas Like?

"What Christmas is like."

To the prosperous trader, whose counters groan under the goods he has heaped together for the holiday sale, it is one of the tributaries of his growing fortune. To the day laborer it is a dollar less for the next pay day and a smaller dinner for his little ones for the next week. To the happy maiden on Murray Hill it is an occasion for a fete—the day when the strong, true love of father and mother and friends, and it may be "a nearer one yet and a dearer," will find a sweet expression in gifts, and sweet and tender words. To the poor shop girl in her garret in the Five Points it is a cold, cheerless communion with the ghosts of other days. Without even the fire that warms her workroom, without her daily pittance, perhaps without her food, she sits, desolate, alone in the world, with no friend but her honor and no hope but heaven.

"What Christmas is like."

In the churches it is the festival of the year. With glad anthems and green decorations the day is made the brightest one on the calendar, as befits the day when the promise of redemption was made manifest in the flesh. In the saloons it is a day of gay revelry, when wine instead of whisky thickens the tongues and muddles the brains of fools. In the purlieus of the city it is the time when the memories of better days are drowned in the poor efforts at merrymaking, when the hopes that might be of better days to come are forgotten in such happiness as can be forced in the midst of squalor from the empty coffers and scant larders of dire poverty. In the homes where little children frolic and dream of Santa Claus it is the day of all days, when there are to be no tears, no lessons, nothing but good will and jollity. In the homes from which the little ones have been taken away it is an anniversary of sorrow.

"What Christmas is like."

It is a day of joys and sorrows, tears and happy laughter, loving hopes and tender heart-breaking memories; of plenty and privations, the keener because of the season; of solemn worship and of idle, wretched debauchery.

There is just one person who can tell all about what Christmas is like. The patron saint of the old Dutch city—whose name, once St. Nicholas, has been corrupted to Sain' Nich'las and to Santa Claus—knows it all, and at least once a year, at Xmastide, he visits the homes he has loved and cared for these last few centuries.

How to Cook the Christmas Turkey.

A lady who is reputed to always have "good roast turkey," wrote out the following: "Unless it is badly soiled, never soak, wash, or wet a turkey, as many do. Indeed washing injures any kind of meats and fish, except those kept in salt brine. Carefully draw the turkey, and wipe thoroughly inside and out with a dry towel. It will thus keep longer uncooked, and be better flavored. If it chances to be a tough one, steam it an hour or two, as needed, before baking. If one has not a steamer large enough, as few have, it may be done in a wash-boiler, supporting the bird above the water on a couple of inverted basins, or suspending it by strings from the handles. My family has learned to like plain stuffing rather than the highly-seasoned, rich, indigestible dressing so much in vogue. I use stale bread, chopped fine, just moistened with scalding water, not to a 'mush,' and add a little butter, salt, pepper, and, if desired, a small pinch of sweet marjoram or thyme; most like summer savory. After stuffing and sewing, fasten the wings and legs down closely with skewers or by tying with strings. Roast in the dripping pan without water. To keep the skin from scorching baste now and then with a little water seasoned with butter and salt. Bake through uniformly to a light brown, avoiding burning or hardening any part. A good oyster stuffing, when easily obtainable, is liked by many as follows: Drain off most of the liquor from the oysters, season with sufficient butter and pepper and roll them in cracker and bread crumbs. Fill the cavity of the turkey entirely with these."

Happier Times Than These.

In the good old days of yore, when the logs crackled, hissed and warmed at Yule, the poor were the special wards of the rich. In the great kitchens of the wealthy commoners of old England, holly and ivy, mistletoe and red berried boughs decked the walls and the rafters, while the logs roared and the flames leaped merrily and cheerily up the chimney and cast a ruddy glow on the rosy faces of the swains and buxom village lasses assembled 'neath the roof tree to celebrate in their own simple, sturdy and jubilant way the anniversary of the advent of Him who came to bring peace on earth and good will to all men. Then gentle and simple deemed it in no wise unfit to meet and mingle their laughter and tread a lively measure. The Squire led Phyllis, his lodge-keeper's daughter, forth in the country dance, he admiring and urbane, she blushing, coy and proud of the distinction thus conferred on her. Baron and boor met upon the common level of the earthen or sanded floor, and the rustic, with thews and sinews like a stag, held the dainty fingers of his liege lady in his brawny hand and could feel in his manly heart the pulsations of gratitude to the Messiah, who had come to teach the lofty and the lowly that they were the children of one Father; the subjects of one Eternal King. Then came the kissing, under the mistletoe bough and the wassail, in which men could pledge each other deeply without fear. Ah! this was in happier days than we live in—days when it was the custom of the great to think at least once a year of their less fortunate fellow-creatures.

Christmas Charity.

"Christmas comes but once a year," and when it does come those who have the means should give liberally to the poor and needy, so that the festive season shall not be one of unalloyed misery to those whose lines are not cast in pleasant places. Many worthy persons among us are suffering from want. They should be sought and their necessities relieved. The street beggars are not those who feel the woes of poverty most. The greatest sufferers try to hide their wretchedness from the world. Christmas should not find the honest poor without something for which to be thankful.

THE POOR AND RICH.—The same Saviour, whose birthday we celebrate, is the hope of the poor as well as the rich, and the day should bring a store of happiness to all.

TREED BY WOLVES.

A PIKE COUNTY CHRISTMAS SKETCH.

BY ED. MOTT.

"The circumstances I am about to tell didn't happen within my recollection. I got 'em clean cut from Uncle—I should say the late Mr. Peleg Underhill. Peleg didn't know them from personal recollection, either, as he hadn't fell heir to any grandfather at that time, and wasn't in that part of the country. Peleg's grandfather's name was Ezekiel Merryweather. At the age of twenty-two he was a young man living over on the head waters of the Little Bushkill.

"He was a romantic sort of a fellow. He scorned a life of toil, and chose the easy and luxurious existence that comes of living in a brush cabin and chasing the fleet-footed denizens of the dim-lit forest from ridge to ridge, and bringing home their hide and tallow. He was an original Pike County hunter, and was known to clear as high as fifty dollars some years with his gun and traps. Nobody knew where he came from, but he was extremely shy and modest.

"He had very black hair, and was tall and wiry, and all the girls in the backwoods were struck on him. The fellows were jealous because he was rolling up wealth so rapidly, and because he cut 'em all out at the stone frolics and husking bees. A family named Jobson had found their way from somewhere or other in Jersey to that part of the country, and settled near the Monroe County border. There was old Jobson and his wife and his daughter Melissa. Jobson had uncovered about an acre of earth on his tract, and built him a house, a barn, a wagon shed, a spring house, an observatory fifty feet high, and three miles of four-foot wall with the stone the acre yielded.

"According to the late Peleg Underhill, Melissa must have been a stunner. She was way up in all the accomplishments of the district, which ranged from twirling a flapjack to picking a panther out of a tree with the old man's flintlock rifle. The pastimes and pleasures of budding Pike County maidenhood in those days were few, and it were great reward for Melissa to get the promise from her mother that if she would pile so much stone wall while she was resting from pulling turnips she could 'shuck the hide off'n the next wolf that dad fotched in;' or if she cut and piled a sufficient quantity of stove wood before she went to work hoeing the 'taters, she might hold the pig at the next Christmas killin' while dad stuck it.

"It was one day in the fall of 1801 that Ezekiel Merryweather first struck the Jobson clearing and met Melissa. She was having a holiday, and enjoying it in shucking wolves. The wolf crop was good that season, and old Jobson's traps were generally full. Ezekiel fell in love with her at sight. She fell in love with him, too, and he got to taking in the Jobson clearing pretty regular on his hunting expeditions. Finally he asked her to marry him and she said she would. He laid the matter before her old man.

"'Wall, scarcely; you can't have M'liss,' said Jobson. 'No young squirt of a bushwhacker don't tie on to her if her dad knows it, an her dad's up to things what's goin' on 'round here pooty ginerly. When M'liss goes away from this paster lot it'll be with some gray-haired old fellow as knows what to treat her to. She don't splice to nobody but a gray-headed man, an' ye mout jest as well bait yer trap in some other swamp, Zek'el.'

"That was a great blow to the young people," continued the Sheriff. "Ezekiel struck into the woods and Melissa shucked wolves with a heavy heart. By and by Sim Smith of Pocono met Melissa. He was on the upper side of fifty, gray as a rat, and owned a farm. When he asked old Jobson for Melissa, Jobson said:

"'Ye've draw'd the proper bead the fust time, Sim. Ye've hit me plumb back o' the fore-shoulder. The gal's your'n.'

"Melissa hadn't anything to say in the matter, and the wedding was fixed for Christmas Eve. On that night the population of three townships was at Jobson's—sixteen people in all. Old 'Squire Morgan was there to tie the knot. Ezekiel Merryweather was the only absentee. It was a fine moonlight night and cold as Greenland. The wedding was to come off at nine o'clock. Every little while the howling of wolves could be heard on all sides of the clearing. That was nothing uncommon, though, and nobody thought anything of it. About eight o'clock the howling was more than usually loud and prolonged in one direction.

"'Wolves is hungry, to-night,' said old Jobson. 'They're closin' in on that deer pooty reg'lar, I reckon.'

"The howling came nearer and nearer.

"'Blamed if I don't think they're goin' to take that deer plumb through our turnip patch,' said Jobson. 'Well, let 'em go. We've got other business besides carin' for a passel o' ornery wolves to-night; hay, Sim?'

"The wolves came closer and closer. Their snarling could be heard in the house. But no one ever took the trouble to look out of a window. The howling, and barking, and snarling kept on, and the sound showed that the wolves were not moving. Melissa went to a window and looked out.

"'Why, dad,' said she 'them wolves has treed suthin' in our spring house. They're thick aroun' it, and some of 'em's goin' down the chimley.'

"'Sure enough,' says Jobson, 'they've druv suthin' inter the spring house, sartin. Wall, boys, take yer guns. We mowt as well go out an' stop this yer noise 'fore we perceed.'

"The men took their guns and went out. A round or two settled the business for the wolves outside, but there was a struggle going on inside the milk house. The door was forced open. By the light of the moon they saw a man, with his back to the wall, fighting four hungry wolves with nothing but his hunting knife. The floor was piled deep with dead wolves. The man was rescued and helped into the house. He was covered with blood, and his clothes were nearly all torn from him. It was Ezekiel Merryweather, but his black hair was as gray as a badger!

"'Zek'el!' said Melissa.

"'M'liss!' said Ezekiel.

"And they were locked in one another's arms. Then Ezekiel told how he had started to come to the wedding in spite of his feelings; how he was chased by wolves; how he fought them for two miles through the snow, and finally sought refuge in the spring house. The wolves clambered to the roof and let themselves down the chimney and closed in around him. The terror of the situation had turned his hair white, and he had been rescued just in time.

"In the midst of the excitement created by Ezekiel's story, Melissa said:

"'Dad, this yere the white-haired man I'm goin' to tie to. His hair's whiter than Sim's, by a powerful sight.'

"And old Jobson saw the point. The wedding came off at 9 o'clock, but Ezekiel was the bridegroom. The late Peleg Underhill used to say that he supposed that the Jobson clearing had a little the jolliest Christmas Eve that night that ever was known in this country."

Christmas is Coming.

Read this, ye wealthy bachelors, and remember that Christmas is coming, and don't let it be a cold day for—

The homes that are desolate,
Hearts that are sad—
Do something for some one,
Make somebody glad.

CHRISTMAS DAY.

BY NORA PERRY.

What 's this hurry, what 's this flurry,
All throughout the house to-day?
Everywhere a merry scurry,
Everywhere a sound of play.
Something, too, 's the matter, matter,
Out-of-doors as well as in,
For the bell goes clatter, clatter,
Every minute—such a din!

Everybody winking, blinking,
In a queer, mysterious way;
What on earth can they be thinking,
What on earth can be to pay?
Bobby peeping o'er the stair-way,
Bursts into a little shout;
Kitty, too, is in a fair way,
Where she hides, to giggle out.

As the bell goes cling-a-ling-ing
Every minute more and more,
And swift feet go springing, springing,
Through the hall-way to the door,
Where a glimpse of box and packet,
And a little rustle, rustle,
Makes such sight and sound and racket,—
Such a jolly bustle, bustle,—
That the youngsters in their places,
Hiding slyly out of sight,
All at once show shining faces,
All at once scream with delight

Go and ask them what's the matter,
What the fun outside and in—
What the meaning of the clatter,
What the bustle and the din.
Hear them, hear them laugh and shout then,
All together hear them say,
"Why, what have you been about, then,
Not to know it 's Christmas day?"

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

BY HELEN FORREST GRAVES

"Fine, old-fashioned Christmas weather!"

That was what Mr. Miggles, the tavern-keeper, called it, as he stood rubbing his hands before the blaze of the huge back-log, that had upheld the tallest pine in all the forests in Maine but a few brief months ago.

A philosopher might have gleaned valuable matter out of this fact, but Mr. Miggles was not a philosopher. He took heaven's gifts as they came, and did not puzzle his head as to their whys and wherefores; and he liked a cold wind and deep snow at Christmas, because it was good for business.

"Dreadful weather!" the stage-driver called it, as he sat, drifted up, on his box, like a polar bear in the midst of an avalanche; his head down, his withered hands so numb that he could hardly hold the reins, and the snow pricking and tingling round his face, like so many needles with patent points.

"Cruel weather!" as the Widow Pomeroy, who had no wood left, and whose barrel of meal was at the lowest possible ebb, phrased it. "Superb weather!" as Miss St. John, up at St. John Hall, who was "dying for a good old-fashioned coast down hill," declared.

People look at things through such different lenses.

The stage brought in three or four guests for the Red Owl Tavern that night—Mr. Jessup, the drummer, who, with his bag of samples, had intended to make his way to Warwick, the next post office town, but was belated by the violence of the storm; two ladies in the dress of some Christian Sisterhood, who were en route for the new hospital at Plumsboro'; and Peleg Pepper, who had been lumbering in New Hampshire, with a gang of other stalwart giants, and was now on his way to spend the Christmas week at his home, in the Maine wildernesses.

Mr. Pepper was a modern Hercules, in a faded and ragged great-coat, a red silk handkerchief, tied brigand-wise over his ears, and a hat that was an outrage to civilization, so worn, battered, and generally dilapidated was it. He hung back sheepishly from the circle around the fire.

"I ain't none of your fine folk, squire," said he, in reply to the landlord's hospitable entreaties. "I'm a backwoodsman, I be! I'd rather set in the back-kitchen along of the help, squire; no offense to you."

So honest Peleg was allowed to keep in the background.

Sister Serenica looked with uneasy glances at Sister Bertina.

"I hope it is all right," said she.

"But he has a villainous face," whispered Sister Bertina.

"There were highwaymen in the White Mountains last summer," suggested Sister Serenica.

"Oh, but this is such an out-of-the-way place," urged Sister Bertina; "and the landlord has a good, honest face."

"Very true," said Sister Serenica. "But the man may have confederates hid out in those hemlock woods. I'm a little uneasy about the hundred dollars we are to deliver to the head-nurse at the hospital."

"Dear, dear!" said Sister Bertina, with a little shudder, "I'm sorry you put the thing into my head, Serenica. Now you speak of it, he has a hangdog expression of countenance. And do you observe how he chuckles to himself every little while, as he sits out in that back-kitchen and stares at the fire? You may depend that it's because he thinks he has us at his mercy."

Mr. Jessup, the traveling salesman, did not exactly approve of the looks of the lumberman either.

"I hope, landlord," said he, rubbing his white, scented hands over the fire, "that our friend out there is all right."

"Eh?" said the Boniface. "Why shouldn't he be all right? He's one o' them New Hampshire lumber fellows, comin' home to spend Christmas. They often come this way."

"He looks rather shady to me," suggested Jessup.

The landlord, who did not understand city slang, stared.

The guests were all at supper—a savory supper it was, too, for the landlord's wife was the crack cook of the neighborhood—when, in rushed a snow-powdered vision from the outer world, panting and breathless.

"Have any of you seen anything of a little girl in a white plush dress and blue ribbons?" said he. "The squire's little grand daughter is lost!"

"Lost!" shrieked the landlady, with the coffee-pot in her hand.

"Lost!" cried all the company, in chorus. "A child lost! In such a storm as this! Among these lonely woods!"

"Only four years old," said the messenger, mutely accepting the glass of hot spiced ale which mine host made haste to hand him. "She ran out back of the wood, when the stage stopped to the squire's to leave the letter-bag, and she ain't been seen since. And Mrs. Sedley, she's in hysterics, and the squire's over toward Lindleyville, and all the men are gone in different directions to look for her."

"Well, I never!" said the landlord.

"Poor little dear!" said the landlady.

"Children are always in some scrape or other," said the drummer, who was a single man.

"We never know what tribulation is in store for us," said Sister Serenica, mildly.

"If we hear anything of the blessed child, we'll certainly let you know," said the landlady. "And Miggles will send the stablemen out, just as soon as the late mail is in."

But the messenger had scarcely disappeared when the housemaid came in and whispered to Mrs. Miggles, excitedly:

"Oh, missus, I've had such a turn!"

"A turn, you silly goose!" said the landlady, who tolerated no sentimental nonsense with her damsels-in-waiting. "What on earth do you mean?"

"Was it a child in a blue sash and a white frock as was lost?" said Delinda, wildly.

"Why, yes. Didn't you hear the man say so?"

"With blue eyes, and hair as yellow as buttercups?"

"Yes, yes!" cried Mrs. Miggles. "What of it?"

"Then, ma'am, it's been kidnapped!" said Delinda, with a hysterical whoop. "And that there cruel, flinty-hearted lumberman has got it in his room up stairs in a bo-o-ox!"

"What?" cried the landlady.

"Pretty dear! I saw her myself!" shrieked the maid. "Come and look, ma'am, if you don't believe my words."

And in five minutes Peleg Pepper, sitting dozing before the kitchen fire, with his shaggy cap pulled over his eyes, was seized by half a dozen pairs of hands.

"Eh?" he cried, starting out of his half-shaped dreams, and mechanically putting his hand on the pocket where, in the woods, he usually carried his revolver.

"Villain!" roared Miggles. "Wretch!" screamed Mrs. Miggles. "Fiend in human shape!" roared the damsel; while all the tavern-help joined in the general hue-and-cry.

"What's the matter?" said Peleg Pepper, "What has happened?"

"Bring the poor little innocent down at once," said Mrs. Miggles. "She's been drugged, or she'd never lie there so still and peaceable. Confess your crime, and p'raps the squire'll let you off easy! Though what could have put such a fiendish idea into your head, I'm sure I can't imagine!"

"Confess!" said Sister Serenica, mildly, "and clear your soul of this dark stain."

Peleg stared around him, with eyes of amazement.

"Be I in a lunatic asylum?" he demanded. "Because if I ain't, I'm blamed if I know what you all mean!"

* * * * * * * * *

Away in the snow-mantled cabin in the Maine wilderness, little Bessie Pepper was sound asleep in her home-manufactured crib, her curls as carefully tended as those of Squire Sedley's heiress-granddaughter, floating like spun gold on the pillow, her red yarn stockings duly suspended from a hook in the huge chimney-piece, her tiny dreams wandering through an enchanted land of toys and sweetmeats, while Mrs. Pepper went, ever and anon, to the window to peer out into the driving snow and tempest.

"What can have become of him?" she said to herself, with troubled eyes. "Because if he shouldn't come to-night, and Bess should wake up, to-morrow morning, and find her stockings empty—"

The possibility was too appalling! Mrs. Pepper dared not follow the distracting train of thought any further. And her heart sank as the old clock in the corner clanged eleven.

At that minute there was the sound of heavy footsteps stamping off the snow on the door-step—a soft tap at the door, and in walked Mr. Pepper himself, rubicund and smiling.

"Oh, Peleg!" cried his wife, as she felt herself enfolded in a bear-like hug, "whatever kept you so? Look at Pet's stockings, and me without so much as a popcorn-ball to put in them!"

"That's all right, old lady," said the lumberman, beamingly, as he deposited a parcel as big as Santa Claus' proverbial pack on the table. "But I tell you what, I came mighty near not coming at all. Look there! What should you call that?"

"Oh, Peleg!" cried the little woman, with a shriek of ecstasy, "it's a doll e'enamost as big as Pet herself! With a white frock, and a blue sash, and real yellow curls down over her shoulders. Well, I never!"

"Exactly," said the lumberman, with a broad smile overspreading his countenance. "Well, that doll came near being the cause of getting me arrested for kidnapping. Ha, ha, ha!"

"Peleg!" ejaculated Mrs. Pepper.

"As true as gospel! For I had it in a box in my room, a-layin' on the bed, at old Miggles' Red Owl Tavern, and there was a hue-and-cry about Squire Sedley's grandchild bein' missin', and the servant she caught a sight of the doll, and she squeaked out that it was the child hid away, and there was about a minute and a half as folks was ready to tear me to pieces promiscuous!"

"Oh, Peleg!" gasped the dismayed wife.

"Until they found the creetur was only wax, and some one come in and told them that the little lady had made her way safe down to a farm-house close by, and was eating her supper there at that very minute. So then I had to tell 'em the whole story, and all about Pet. And I vow if they didn't, every one of 'em, send her a dollar bill, to start a savings bank account for Christmas for her. And here it is—six dollars! I 'most wish they'd accuse me of kidnapping every night, if that's the way I get clear of it. Ha, ha, ha!"

So Pet was overjoyed with her doll, and Pet's mother with the prospect of a savings-bank book; and, altogether, it was just exactly what every one wanted it to be—a very merry Christmas!—Saturday Night.

Gayest and Gladdest.

This is the season when the world is gayest and gladdest—not that external nature's smile is brightest, but that the very air we breathe is bearing to us on its wings the grand old Message that unto all the world a child is born. Oh, wondrous Message, that can so enthral the ages! I acknowledge thy power. I salute thy source, for surely good must have been begotten of good. A strain that has preserved its purity through eighteen centuries of time, and been the glory and inspiration of humanity while dynasties and generations have crumbled to nothingness, asks more than Reason's gauge of me. The bird sings in my heart to-day, while cant and bigotry slink mute away. How poor and mean must that soul be which cannot expand beyond the narrow region of sectarianism when it knows the earth-wide reach of this compassionate Christmas message. I pity all such souls. To them the season brings little grace, I fear, and if there be children waiting on their love with what anguish and disappointment must they see only the cruel stone where they had asked for bread! Unhappy is the child across whose Christmas sky rolls a cloud so dark.—SIGNOR MAX.

DUE TO DICKENS.—Edmund Yates says:—"The American Christmas is purely due to Charles Dickens. When he invented or rather revived Christmas, the Americans took up the matter warmly. The celebration had long been made out in the States to be the festival of the winter solstice and a purely pagan affair. Dickens infused new life into it, and the Americans have taken Christmas at his estimate. Before that they had only three festivals—the Fourth of July, New Year and Thanksgiving. Christmas became the fourth and is now very popular among Americans, who delight in entertaining any Briton who may be among them."

THE CHILDREN'S WEEK.

BY JOHN BANVARD

Don't be alarmed at all the noise
You hear from laughing girls and boys,
From Christmas until New Year's day
Let children have their fullest sway;
Let them romp, and let them run,
Do anything to have some fun;
Let them healthy pleasures seek,
Of all the year, 'tis children's week.

Let them halloo, let them call,
And scamper up and down the hall;
Let them blow their whistles shrill,
And toot their trumpets when they will.
And let them run the parlors o'er,
Spread all their playthings on the floor;
Be, parents, to their failings meek,
Of all the year, 'tis children's week.

Yes, parents, mingle in their joys—
Return again to girls and boys,
Leave, fathers, business cares behind,
Enjoyment in the family find,
Forget the cares of business strife
With mother join the children's life,
And with your darlings pleasure seek;
Of all the year, 'tis children's week.

THE CLOSING YEAR.

Faster than petals fall on windy days
From ruined roses,
Hope after hope falls fluttering, and decays
Ere the year closes.

For little hopes, that open but to die,
And little pleasures,
Divide the long, sad year, that labors by,
Into short measures.

Yea, let them go; our day-lived hopes are not
The life we cherish;
Love lives till disappointments are forgot,
And sorrows perish.

On withered boughs, where still the old leaf clings,
New leaves come never;
And in the heart, where hope hangs faded, springs
No new endeavor.

The Frog's Christmas.

BY H. C. DODGE

(An Old Fable Revised.)

One Christmas Eve some foolish frogs
Thought kings for them should not be logs.

So they assembled in the town
And urged King Stork to wear the crown.

Alas! too soon these frogs were sick,
When down the chimney came St. Nick

And, for the little pollywogs,
He filled their Stork-King full of—frogs.

MORAL.

Those who'd escape these frogs' sad fate,
Should hang their stork-kings ere too late,

Or else there'll be in some abodes,
The stocking's only full of toe-ads.

And All Shall Sing.

And all the angels in Heaven shall sing,
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
And all the bells on earth shall ring,
On Christmas Day in the morning.

Then let us all rejoice amain,
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
Then let us all rejoice amain,
On Christmas Day in the morning.

Christmas Eve.

God bless the little stocking
All over the land to-night,
Hung in the choicest corners,
In the glow of crimson light!

The tiny, scarlet stocking,
With a hole in the heel and toe,
Worn by wonderful journeys
The darlings have to go.

The Mistletoe.

When winter nights grow long,
And winds without blow cold,
We sit in a ring round the warm wood fire,
And listen to stories old!
And we try to look grave (as maids should be)
When the men bring in bows of the laurel-tree,
Oh! the laurel, the evergreen tree!
The Poets have laurels, and why not we?

BARRY CORNWALL.

A Greeting.

Come, bring with a noise,
My merry, merry boys,
The Chrismas log to the firing;
While my good dame she
Bids ye all be free,
And eat to your heart's desiring.

A Present.

On Christmas day, in the morning,
My dear, I thought of you,
And I said, I have no better gift
Than a friend so dear and true;
A love that is mine to the end of time,
And will last my whole life through.

SARAH ORNE JEWETT.

Once a Year.

The old colored people of Virginia welcome Christmas time with the following song:—

"Apple cider, 'simmon beer,
Christmas comes but once a year."

The holiday season is always a jolly one for them.

A CHRISTMAS HINT.—"Oh, I'm real glad to see you, Cicely dear. I'm puzzled to know what to give Charles for a Christmas present." "Has he proposed yet?" "Why, no! What's that to do with a Christmas present?" "Oh, nothing. Only I'm having a plaster cast of my hand made for George. Perhaps he will take a hint, you know."

THE FAMILY JEWELS.

One snowy day when sister Pen was running the machine and I was making buttonholes—I always do the buttonholes—Pen said, as she finished the last seam of a pretty flannel dress—

"I'm thinking, Nettie, that I will not make you any Christmas present this year, but take the money I should spend for it and buy Abby a nice pair of blankets."

"I should enjoy that," I said, "more than any gift you could make me, and instead of my giving you a present I'll send a thick, warm rug; for I shiver when I think of those dear little children in that cold log house."

We thought it would be nice to have this box reach Abby about Christmas, and we would put in it some toys and books for the little ones, and so the first fine day we went to town to make our purchases, we went about a good deal, looking at blankets and carpets, for we felt as if it were Abby's money we were going to spend, and that we must spend it to the best advantage. Finally, we made our purchases satisfactorily, and then went to lunch.

That morning I had noticed that many ladies in the stores and on the streets wore those little star-shaped sparkling jet earrings that were so much in vogue a few years ago. I knew that they were inexpensive, and I thought how becoming a pair would be for Pen. I should like to make her some trifling gift Christmas morning, just to surprise her, and so I determined to slip off and get her a pair if I possibly could.

As we were eating our lunch I saw a lady sitting near us who wore a pair of the earrings.

"Pen," I said, calling her attention to the lady, "don't you think those black earrings are pretty?"

"Yes," said Pen, "I have seen such earrings a number of times this morning, and they are very pretty;" and after a little pause she went on in an absent-minded sort of a way, "Yes, they are certainly very pretty indeed."

I had found out that Pen liked the earrings. That was one point gained. As we rose from the table, I said, "I meant to have bought some stationery when we were in that book-store; you know we are nearly out of letter paper, and I will go back and get some. If you will pay at the desk and then sit down near the door and wait for me, I'll be back in a few minutes."

Pen cheerfully assented, and presently I was hurrying down the street. I got the stationery first, then went into a store where I saw some of the sparkling black brooches and earrings in a window. I asked for jet earrings, and a large tray containing different sizes and styles was placed before me.

"How much are these?" I asked, selecting a pair that I liked very well.

"One dollar, ma'am," said the young lady who was waiting on me.

Cheaper than I had thought. "Are they strong?" I asked.

"Oh, very strong," said the young lady touching her own as she spoke, I have since thought perhaps to ascertain if they were all there.

"I will take this pair," I said, and she put them up carefully in a little box, which I slipped into my pocket, and then I hurried back to the restaurant. Pen was not there, but she came in a minute later looking as if she had been hurrying.

"I thought I would go and look at some of the holiday goods in the windows," she said, forestalling any inquiry on my part. She asked me some careless question about the stationery, and then we went to the station and took the afternoon train home, feeling on the whole that we had had a very satisfactory day, and I was quite elated thinking of the pleasant little surprise I had planned for Pen.

It was a fortnight to Christmas then. Once or twice, when I knew that Pen was busy down-stairs, I took out the earrings and slipped them in my own ears, just to see how they would become Pen, of course; for we look very much alike, though Pen is some years older than I.

One day, just a week before Christmas, Pen had a sick headache. We had planned that afternoon to call on our friend Mrs. Arnold, who was going to Florida for the winter.

"Oh, dear!" said Pen; "I can't lift my head from the pillow. You'll have to go alone and say 'good-by' for me."

So, as Pen did not need anything except perfect quiet, I dressed to go out. Some imp put it into my head to wear those earrings. Pen would not see them. Mrs. Arnold always had the latest and newest things; but I knew she had nothing like them. She would be sure to admire them. I could give them to Pen all the same Christmas morning, and she would never know I had worn them unless I told her. I took the box from my own private drawer and went down stairs. I put the earrings in my ears before the sitting-room mirror, and after observing the effect sufficiently, I went out. Mrs. Arnold did notice them at once. She thought them very becoming, and she expressed her intention of getting a pair when she reached the city.

It was nearly dark as I approached home. I wondered if Pen would be still on the bed, or if she would be down-siairs. Possibly the latter; so I thought it wise to take the earrings out before I let myself in at the front door.

I put my hands up. Good heavens! One of them was gone. I felt of my scarf. I looked down at my skirt and dress, but I saw no earring. I went slowly down the steps and walked back all the way to Mrs. Arnold's, looking carefully for my lost jewel. I found no earring. It might have vanished from the face of the earth for aught I saw of it then or ever after. It was quite dark by the time I got home now with my one earring. Pen's headache was better. She was down-stairs and had tea ready. I ran up-stairs to put away my cloak and hat. I deposited the one solitary earring, a solitaire in truth, in the little box, and pushed it into the back corner of my drawer in a somewhat dazed condition.

Christmas dawned—a snowy, blustering morning. We loitered over our late breakfast, wondering if Abby had received our box, and talking of the weather and the church festival that would be held in the afternoon. As I moved back from the table, "Nettie," said Pen, I paused and looked at her.

"I thought," she said, "that I should like to give you some little thing this morning—" She hesitated, and then went on slowly, as if she hardly knew how to say what she intended to say, "some mere trifle, you know;" and she lifted from a receptacle below the table a single earring—that lost earring, as I immediately supposed.

"Why, Penelope Dillingham! where did you find it?" I exclaimed, in amazement.

"Find it!" echoed Pen, plaintively. "I did not find it. I bought it in Boston. I bought a pair of them to give you to-day—you know you told me you liked them, but I'm so sorry, I've broken the other. I took them out to look at them one day, when you were down-stairs, and then I heard you coming up, and in my hurry I accidentally let one fall on the marble top of the bureau," and it broke quite beyond repair." And she produced the box containing the broken bits, which corroborated her story.

I suddenly recalled the little walk that she had taken to look at the holiday goods in the windows. I saw its motives now.

"Wait a minute, Pen," I cried. I rushed up-stairs and got the little box containing my one earring.

"Here is your Christmas token," I said, re-entering the dining-room. Pen took the earring I extended and compared it with the one she already had. They were precisely alike.

"But, Nettie," she said, wonderingly.

I sat down and commenced to laugh. Pen looked at me, and looked at the earrings, and gradually the situation dawned on her, and she began to laugh.

"Where are the pieces of the other one," she asked finally.

"I'm sure I don't know," I gasped. And bit by bit I managed to tell my story. It seemed as if we never should get our work done that morning, we stopped so often to laugh.

"Whose are they, Nettie?" asked Pen, looking at the two I had placed side by side in one of the boxes.

"Yours, of course," I answered, promptly.

"No, indeed," said she, "they are yours."

We concluded, however, that it would be hardly safe to wear them, for they were too precious to lose or get broken. And they have reposed side by side on the soft pink wool in the little box ever since.

Every Christmas since then Pen and I have always given each other some valuable and acceptable gift, but on the whole I do not know that we have ever planned a surprise that gave us more pleasure than did those earrings. Certainly we never got half the fun out of any other Christmas gift that we did from them. And now you know all about our family jewels, and how we happen to be joint proprietors of the sparkling gems, and further, why we have no fears on the score of thieves. S. G. D.

Funny Holiday Presents.

For brothers there is no more acceptable present than arctic overshoes. If any lady has a young and handsome brother who is rather proud of his personal appearance let her buy him a pair of "arctics." She should remember that "arctics" cannot be too large, and, to avoid the possibility of a mistake, she had better get the largest pair she can find. If she personally appeals to her brother to wear the shoes for her sake, and begs him to let her know if they pinch his feet, she will do more than she imagines in the way of promoting harmony and strengthening fraternal affection.

It is the opinion of book publishers that books make the best presents. There is some degree of truth in this, but the books should be selected with great care. Ladies are for the most part unaware that a series of works of immense interest to thoughtful men has been published by the United States Government with the view of supplying the people with wholesome literature. This series is entitled "Patent Office Reports," and each volume is sold seperately. There are few presents that a thoughtful and cultured man would appreciate more thoroughly than one or two volumes of the Patent Office Series. There is nothing in these books that could do the slightest harm. They are free from infidelity, Mormonism, horses, or anything that could lead the weakest husband astray. When it is added that they are sold at a very low price their pre-eminent fitness for Christmas presents needs no further emphasis.

Of course, the most acceptable present that a man can make to his wife is a new bonnet. Many men, however, are afraid to buy bonnets on account of the cost. In point of fact, a bonnet can be bought ridiculously cheap at certain shops, and it is mere nonsense to pay fifty dollars to a fashionable bonnet-maker. If the astute husband goes to buy a beautiful bonnet trimmed with blue, red, green, and yellow ribbons, and ornamented with a large and beautiful chicken's wing, for a dollar and a half. Let him have a ticket marked $47 attached to this bonnet, and then present it to his wife with a neat little speech. She will be overwhelmed with delight, and will never for a moment doubt that the present was bought at a fashionable shop and cost forty-seven dollars. Indeed, her gratitude to her husband wil probably greatly astonish him. Gloves can also be bought very cheaply, and no one can tell them from the best kid gloves unless they examine them very closely. As for shoes, which are especially dear to the female heart, they can be had at a quarter of their cost elsewhere. The wife to whom half a dozen pairs of these beautiful shoes are given will, in most cases, be too deeply moved to be able to express her feelings in words.

A Christmas Legend.

A pretty German legend of the Christmas time is told in many of the cottage homes of that country, suggestive of kindly impulse and unselfishness. It relates how, on one Christmas Eve, when the night was dark and the snow was falling fast, Herman, the charcoal burner, drew his cloak tighter around him and approached his lonely hut in the woods, while the wind whistled fiercely through the trees of the Black Forest. He was poor and worked hard to support his little family, and many were his cares and his trials, which did not, however, permit his kind heart to forget the misfortunes of others. Before he reached the little hut, where he had toiled at his work through many a day, he, on this stormy night, heard a low, plaintive call, as of a child in distress. Guided by the sound, he groped about, and found a little one, alone, and shivering in the cold, scantily clad, near the door of his own hut.

In reply to the kind man's tender words of sympathy at finding the forsaken child where it must needs have perished of cold and hunger, the little one could utter no reply, but spoke with beseeching eyes the gratitude he felt for his deliverance, as the good man wrapped his cloak around his shivering limbs and carried him to his cottage home.

When he opened the door, he exclaimed, "Here, wife, is a guest to our Christmas Eve supper;" and he led the new-comer by his tiny hand to the blazing hearth-fire, where he soon regained the needful warmth and comfort.

"And welcome he is," said the wife. "Let him share with us the gifts which Christmas Eve has brought; in which children and all agreed.

The Christmas Celebration.

The birth of the little child in the Bethlehem stable—the greatest event in the history of modern civilization—will be observed in a becoming spirit throughout the country. The Christmas tree will be raised in millions of homes, the Christmas anthem chanted in tens of thousands of churches, and the whole world will bend in reverence as it hears again the great lesson of "On earth peace, good will toward men." Christmas is the great humanizing holiday of the year. It is the one white hour in the calendar, full of friendship and tenderness, fragrant with the incense and perfume of love and affection. We all go to Bethlehem on Christmas. The churches that quarrel, the nations that fight, the friends who are severed—all come together again under the holly and mistletoe. This is the one great lesson of the day. It is the holiday of the whole Christian world, when the song and the petition before every altar are the same—the canticle and the prayer of reverence and love and good will.

ST. NICHOLAS
FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

PARENTS who desire entertaining and wholesome reading for their children, and young folks who enjoy accounts of travel and adventure, historical incidents, stories, pictures, household amusement, and harmless fun, will find these in ST. NICHOLAS, which is recognized by the press and public of both England and America, as THE BEST AND FINEST MAGAZINE for children ever printed. The new volume, which begins with the November number, and opens with a colored frontispiece, will be much the finest ever issued, and the attention of all parents and all reading young folks is invited to the following partial list of attractions:

"THE TINKHAM BROTHERS' TIDE-MILL." A new serial story by J. T. Trowbridge, formerly editor of "Our Young Folks," and author of "The Jack Hazard Stories," etc.

"THE STORY OF VITEAU."—An historical novelette of girl and boy life in the 13th century. By Frank R. Stockton, formerly assistant editor of St. Nicholas, author of "Rudder Grange," etc.

"THE STORY OF ROBIN HOOD."—An account of the famous yeoman. By Maurice Thompson, author of "The Witchery of Archery."

"THE STORY OF THE FIELD OF THE CLOTH OF GOLD."—By E. S. Brooks. To be illustrated with many remarkable pictures.

"SWEPT AWAY."—A serial story of the Mississippi floods of 1882. By E. S. Ellis, author of "His Majesty, Myself," etc.

"ELIZABETH THOMPSON."—A biographical paper regarding this celebrated painter of battle-scenes. Illustrated with pictures prepared for St. Nicholas by Miss Thompson.

"WHERE WAS VILLIERS?"—A thrilling story of the Russo-Turkish war. By Archibald Forbes, war-correspondent.

"THE BOY AT THE WHITE HOUSE."—An account of the life of "Tad" Lincoln. By Noah Brooks, author of "The Boy Emigrants."

"COMEDIES FOR CHILDREN."—A fine series of juvenile plays. By E. S. Brooks, author of "The Land of Nod," etc., and including a Christmas Masque: "The False Sir Santa Claus." Prepared expressly for holiday times.

There will be short stories by Louisa M. Alcott, and many other well-known writers for young folks; papers on home duties and recreations, out-door sports, occupation and instructions for boys and girls, with popular features and departments.

Price, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Subscriptions should begin with the November number. The succeeding issue, "The Wonderful Christmas Number," will have also a colored frontispiece and many unusual attractions.

A Christmas Carol.

Come, let us sing with joyful lay
The glories of this natal day!
Sing of the Rising Star that came
To shed o'er man its brightest ray!

The herald came from the starry height
To sheperds tending flocks by night;
And spoke as never seer had done,
Of God, and His great gift, the Light.

While trembling shepherds gather near
The birthplace of their King, through fear,
A new song bursts upon the air,
From angel voices, high and clear:

"Let glory be to God on high,
And peace to all below the sky;
Let good will flow to every heart,
For man's Redemption now is nigh."

The Rising Star—whose brilliant ray
Outshines the solar light of day—
Impelled the Eastern sage to seek
The place where Christ, the young child lay.

The magi, prophets, angels, find
In Christ the hope of all mankind;
The Present with no Lord is dark,
Without Him, all the Future, blind.

But Juda's mite in Christ shall cease
To be. In Him the "small" increase
To "th' thousand." For of her has come
The Wonderful, the Prince of Peace.

Thus Bethlehem becomes the place
Where man is saved from that disgrace
Which he incurred in Paradise,
The cradle of the human race.

But since that hour when sacred strains
First came and went o'er Juda's plains,
Ages have passed; and yet in all
Mankind their echo still remains:

"Glory to God,"—the song is still—
"On earth be peace, to men good will,"
And may our lives good will inspire,
And thus a law of God fulfill.

DANIEL WEBSTER AND THE UNITED STATES PRESIDENCY.

It is not generally known,' said Thurlow Weed of New York, after a rubber of whist—for, though he could no longer make out the faces of his friends, he could still see the cards when placed in a good light—'It is not generally known how near Daniel Webster came to being president.'

'It is generally known,' I said, 'that he was a candidate for the Whig nomination five times,and missed it every time.'

'Yes,' he acquiesced, 'but he came a good deal nearer than that—a good deal nearer. I had always been one of his profound admirers, and wanted to see him president in 1840. But it was obvious to me during the winter that he couldn't get the nomination; that Harrison was leading. I went down to Washington early in the spring and called him into the cloak room. 'I think I shall be the Whig candidate,' he said. I expressed my doubt of it. 'Who will be, then?' he asked. 'It looks to me like Harrison,' I answered. He sneered at the idea. He naturally had but little respect for mere military men, and he exclaimed, 'It is impossible that a man so ignorant as he, and so lacking in every quality of a chief magistrate, can be nominated for such a place.' I told him it was simply a question of who could poll the most votes; and then I got him to sit down and look at my figures. They didn't convince him of course.

'Why don't you act as if you believed it yourself,'he said,'for you have chosen a Scott delegate from your own State.' 'That was to prevent the appointment of a Clay delegation,' I said 'and Clay cannot be elected if nominated. But Mr. Webster,' I went on,'I have not come to Washington to have you withdraw your name, but to ask you to accept the nomination for vice-president in case Harrison shall be elected for first place.' No, he wouldn't listen to such a proposal, and he refused with quite as much spirit as the occasion called for. So I came home, and Harrison was nominated, and John Tyler was made his vice, and by the death of Harrison, Tyler became president a month after his election. Webster saw the mistake he had made, and the next time I saw him—he was Tyler's secretary of State—he confessed it to me.'

'Well, curiously enough, that was not the last of his fatal mistakes. In 1848, the very same thing happened right over again. In 1844,Clay had been defeated and taken out of the way, and now Webster thought he could walk over the course. I saw that General Taylor was likely to be the man, for after the Mexican war there was a great furore over Taylor. During the spring before the nomination I went to Marshfield. 'Well, what do you think of it this time?' asked Mr. Webster, with a smile of security.

'I think this time,' I said, 'that Taylor will be the man.'

'He was astonished. It didn't look so to him. He thought it a very wild guess. 'Do you seriously think,' he asked, 'that such a man can be nominated?' I assured him that I thought it very probable. Taylor was then designated by those who did not admire him as an illiterate frontier colonel who hadn't voted for forty years. Webster seemed to sympathize with this view. He remembered his former mistake and smiled, and said at last he would consult his two best friends, George Ashmun of Massachusetts and Senator Wilson of New Hampshire, and do as they said.

'They were summoned, and came. I met them at Mr. Webster's and presented my figures. They were nonplussed at first, but finally came to my conclusion that Taylor's nomination was probable, and they joined me in advising Mr. Webster to be content with the second place if the first should prove beyond his reach. He reluctantly agreed to it, I was authorized to see the arrangements carried out. Just at this point his son, Fletcher, came home from town, and he ridiculed the scheme so energetically and so bitterly that his father returned to his original position and refused to have anything to do with my proposal. Well, the vice-presidency went begging. The name of Fillmore was suddenly sprung upon the convention and was put on the ticket. Taylor and he were elected; Taylor died in four months,and Fillmore became president, and Webster went down to Washington and served him as secretary of State, as he had similarly served the accidental Tyler! I think the pair of curious mishaps did a good deal to sour him, and, perhaps, helped to make him reckless in his personal habits.

A Parisian physician declares the following a certain cure for small-pox or scarlet fever: Sulphate of zinc, 1 grain; foxglove (digitalis) 1 grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar. Mix with two tablespoonfuls of water. Take a spoonful every hour. He declares the remedy unfailing. Its very simplicity has caused it to be overlooked.

Parents who allow their children to grow up with scrofulous humors bursting from every pore are guilty of a great wrong. Think of them pointed out as branded with a loathsome disease, and you will readily procure them the Cuticura Remedies.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c. Sold by all druggists.

ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

NOTHING SHORT OF UNMISTAKABLE BENEFITS

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick.

FITS.—A leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.—From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their address and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to adress

DR. AB. MESEROLE, No. 96 John St., N. Y.

ALMOST AS BAD.

WHAT THE PERPLEXED PHYSICIANS DO IN CASES OF EMERGENCY.

"I'll tell you the honest truth," answered the doctor. "Bright's Disease bothers the medical men almost as badly as cancer does. Having passed a certain stage, both straight point to eternity. It may be unprofessional to let out the secret, but whenever a patient comes to me with Bright's Disease, or any kidney trouble acting like it, I tell him to put on BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER without delay."

The doctor spoke by the card. The Capcine goes right to the spot. If you can be helped, the Capcine will do it. Look out for frauds. Is the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of the plaster? If so, you are all right. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. Highest awards.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy that I will send two bottles free, together with a valuable treatise on this disease, to any sufferer. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of The Sun are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make The Weekly Sun the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

DR. J. W. DEWEY,

(Formerly with the late Dr. S. S. FITCH,)

Of 17 Tremont St., BOSTON,

Physician for the treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, Female Complaints, and other Chronic Diseases, will be at

THE WEST BROOKFIELD HOUSE,

WEST BROOKFIELD,

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, and every alternate Wednesday thereafter; at the

HAMPSHIRE HOUSE, WARE,

THURSDAY, NOV. 9, and every Thursday thereafter.

CONSULTATION FREE.

DR. DEWEY has had a long term of experience in the treatment of chronic complaints, twelve years of which time he was associated with OLD DR. S. S. FITCH, who enjoyed a reputation of great renown throughout the United States and Canadas for his successful treatment of Consumption and kindred diseases. By strictly following the same system of treatment (founded by Dr. Fitch more than 50 years ago) Dr. Dewey has met with equally wonderful success as did his predecessor. There are many people now living at West Brookfield, Ware and surrounding towns who can bear witness to this fact.

The doctor cordially invites all persons suffering from long standing complaints to call and see him at either of the places above named, or at his office, 17 Tremont St., Boston, where he will receive patients every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

To those who are not able to call at either of the above named places, and it is not convenient to send some one who could give a correct description of the case, the doctor would say that a letter giving a history of the case with a full description of symptoms, addressed to him at West Brookfield, Ware, or at 17 Tremont St., Boston, will receive immediate attention. 32

A GOOD ODD FELLOW.

MR. CUTLER, OF 21 LYONS STREET, NEW HAVEN, CONN.—HOW HE TAKES LIFE EASY NOW, AND HOW HE OBTAINED THE MEANS TO REGAIN HIS HEALTH.

Mr. Cutler, of 21 Lyons street, is a faithful Odd Fellow, and for forty years a member of Quinnipiac Lodge No. 1 (the oldest organization of its kind in the State of Conn.) He is a man much respected in New Haven. Your reporter found him at his pleasant home on Lyon street one afternoon taking life easy. "You see," he says, "I'm trying to make myself feel a little indisposed. I presume it's the lingering results of a Lodge dinner which I attended a while ago down at the beach. I have been, as many of my friends in New Haven know, a sufferer for years from indigestion and biliousness. When I have indulged in too hearty food I've had to suffer at times extremely. As a result I've had to place myself under my physician's care often, and I have taken a great many remedies, but I find after a thorough trial that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the most excellent medicine I have ever had knowledge of for any of the disorders above mentioned. It leaves no exhaustive effects, but rather strengthens and regulates the digestive organs in a charming manner. We keep it as a household medicine, and I have recommended it to my friends, for it is an excellent preparation."

Mr. Cutler is a man whose word can be depended upon. His testimony is but a re-echo of the words of thousands in New England who have received relief from the sole use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. 4w39

DARBYS

Erysipelas cured.
Burns relieved instantly
Scars prevented.
Dysentery cured.
Wounds healed rapidly.
Scurvy cured.
An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, &c.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room. WM. E. SANFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

SCARLET FEVER CURED.

SMALL POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED.

A member of my family was taken sick with Small pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

DIPHTHERIA PREVENTED.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria.
A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.
Cholera prevented.
Ulcers purified and healed.
In cases of Death, it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS M. D., New York, says "I am convinced Prof Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant.

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, Nashville, Tenn.

I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. KUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

DARBYS FLUID is recommended by Hon. Alexander Stephens, of Georgia; Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., Church of the Strangers, New York; Jos. LeConte, Columbia, Prof., University, S. C. Rev. A. J. Battle, Prof., Mercer University; Rev. Geo. F. Pierce, Bishop M. E. Church.

INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME.

Perfectly harmless. Used internally or externally for man or beast.

The Fluid has been thoroughly tested, and we have abundant evidence that it has done everything here claimed. For fuller information get of your druggist a pamphlet, or send to the proprietors,

HEART DISEASE.

NOW! IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendenning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as DR. GRAVES HEART REGULATOR, and can be obtained at you druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. F. E. FINE JOB PRINTING AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

Have You Ever Thought?

Did you ever well consider,
As you journey on life's way,
Of the vast results impendent
On the things you do and say?
Have you ever learned the magic
Treasured in one little word,
Fitly spoken, wisely chosen,
How it into being stirred?

And a soul almost desponding,
New, fresh inspiration caught,
Grasped anew life's heavy burden,
By your bright example taught?
How a cold and icy nature,
Like a northern wintry blast,
Brings a blight where might be blossom,
Heaven's own blue is overcast?

Possibilities of greatness
May be crushed by ruthless hand?
Every aspiration withered,
Ere it ventures to expand?
And the grandeur of a lifetime
May be smothered in its bloom,
For the lack of proper culture,
And a genial, sunny home?

Then don't call these trifling matters,
These small, every-day affairs;
Words will eat as doth a canker,
Life at least hath many cares;
All our actions, words and manners,
With responsibilities are rife,
For in each a soul is hindered
Or advanced in higher life.

A NEW YEAR'S CALL.

'Good morning, Robert.'

'Good morning, John. Fine morning!'

'Splendid.'

Both were on their way to business, and meeting, had stopped for a moment's chat.

'Well, how did you leave our friend, Miss Haviland, last evening?'

'Oh, as well as usual, John.'

'Ah, old boy, I am afraid you are terribly struck in that quarter, hey?'

'Why, what do you mean?'

'Oh, that's all right, my boy,' replied John. 'You are not the first one who has done homage to the fair Miss Edith's beauty, I can assure you; but let me give you a piece of advice; don't get too deep in the mire of Miss Edith's affections.'

'Why, Miss Haviland and I have only been acquainted for the past three weeks,' exclaimed his friend.

'Exactly,' said John, 'and in that time you have spent upwards of a dozen evenings at her house. I tell you, Bob, it is beginning to be talked about.'

'Why under the sun can't people mind their own affairs? Whose business is it if I choose to spend my evenings there instead of at home?' asked the other.

'All very well, Robert; but are you not aware of the fact that Edith Haviland is an engaged woman?'

'Certainly not. You never mentioned the fact to me before.'

'I never dreamed of your drifting into your present course of proceeding, or I would have informed you sooner,' replied John.

'Is it not rather singular that Miss Haviland never alluded to it in my presence?' Robert asked.

'Well, yes,' said John, 'but nevertheless, she has been keeping company with Captain Dudley for some time past, and if I understand rightly the nuptials are to be celebrated directly after the holidays.'

'That is news to me, John; for judging from Miss Haviland's conduct, I never would have believed such a thing.'

'Ah, I thought as much. But here comes my coach, and I'll have to leave you. Take care of yourself, old boy. See you later.'

And so saying, John Ashland sprang on the steps of a passing car.

Just three weeks before Edith Haviland and Robert Emerson had met at a sociable, and he had escorted her home. Accepting her invitation to call upon her, he spent a very pleasant evening—so pleasant in fact, that he had taken the earliest opportunity to repeat the visit, and had been a frequent caller ever since. Miss Haviland had favorably impressed him at their first interview, and, judging from her actions, it was hard to credit what he had just heard. To be sure John Ashland knew her a great deal better than he did, for the two families were very intimate, and it was mainly due to this intimacy that he, being a friend of John's, was so well received by the Havilands on so short an acquaintance. Nevertheless the young lady had obtained such an exalted position in his estimation that he was half inclined to doubt what his friend had just told him, and attribute it to some mistake on his part.

'But, pshaw,' he argued, as he wended his way across town, after parting with his friend, 'what the deuce would Jack tell me anything like that for if it was not true? That is all nonsense; Jack has done me a favor, and I have barely escaped making a fool of myself.'

All day long at the office his thoughts were busy over it, and when he started for home that evening he had mentally resolved to cancel all future engagements with Miss Haviland and to thank Jack for his timely information.

John Ashland laughingly congratulated him on what he termed his lucky escape. Time wore on and the holidays approached. Robert Emerson had met Edith Haviland two or three times on the street, leaning on the arm of his friend John, and she had passed him with a bow, as cool and indifferent as his own. He wondered a little at seeing John with her so often. Where could Captain Dudley be keeping himself? He had a great desire to behold that gentleman, and see what sort of a looking individual he was, but although he heard him spoken of among his friends, he had never yet chanced to meet him.

New Year's arrived and Robert determined to take advantage of the privilege granted by the day and include Miss Haviland's name in his list of persons he intended to call on. It was about dusk when he sprang up the steps of the fine brown stone front owned by the Havilands, and rang the loud sounding gong. The door was immediately opened, and he was ushered into the parlor. The chandelier was lit, and directly beneath it, facing the door to welcome the caller, stood Edith, looking more beautiful than he had ever seen her. The other occupants of the room were his friend John Ashland, and a tall, fine looking man, whom he had never seen before. Both were seated in front of the grate engaged in conversation, and both rose as Edith and he approached.

'Mr. Emerson,' said Edith, 'allow me to introduce to you Captain Dudley. Captain Dudley, Mr. Emerson.'

'Happy to know you, sir,' remarked the captain, as they clasped hands.

'I suppose you two gentlemen require no introduction,' said Edith with a smile, glancing from John to his friend.

'It is altogether unnecessary, Miss Haviland, I can assure you,' laughed Robert, as he took the chair proffered by Miss Haviland, and seated himself before the cheerful fire burning in the grate. A lively conversation followed, and presently Captain Dudley rose, saying:

'As I have still a number of calls to make, you will have to excuse my seeming abruptness in leaving. By the by, Miss Haviland,' he added, turning to Edith, 'do you imagine our friend John would have any objection to leaving you in Mr. Emerson's company for a few moments while he takes a run over to the Crawfords with me?'

'Why, certainly not, Captain Dudley,' replied Edith. 'Mr. Ashland has no right whatever to make any objection to such an arrangement.'

'Of course not, captain,' cried Ashland, springing to his feet, embarrassment plainly expressed in every feature. Turning to Emerson, there was almost a perceptible sneer in his tone as he said:

'You, I presume, have no objection to my being absent?'

Robert, who had been a silent and mystified listener to the above bit of conversation, was stung by the lack of delicacy in this last remark of one whom he had always considered a friend, and arising he said:

'John Ashland, I came here to call on Miss Haviland, and such being the case, I fail to see how either your presence or absence concerns me.'

'There, there,' said Captain Dudley, 'I only ventured the suggestion; if it will cause the slightest unpleasantness, I beg—'

'Not the slightest, captain,' interrupted Ashland, leading the way to the door. 'I am at your service.'

Taking leave of Robert, the captain left the room followed by Edith.

Robert Emerson was puzzled and completely at a loss to account for the scene he had just witnessed. In the few moments he was left to himself he vainly strove to arrive at some definite conclusion; it was useless, and Edith's entrance cut short his conjectures.

'Your friend does not seem to be in an extraordinarily good humor to-day,' she remarked, seating herself opposite him.

'No, indeed,' he replied; 'I must confess he rather surprised me.' Wishing to change the subject, he added: 'But I think you are to be congratulated on your choice.'

'Choice? My choice? I am afraid that I do not exactly understand you, Mr. Emerson,' she replied, with a puzzled look.

'Pray, do not think me impertinent, but I referred to your choice of a husband, Captain Dudley.'

'Captain Dudley!' she exclaimed; 'you are laboring under a great mistake, Mr. Emerson, if you fancy that gentleman is any more than a friend of mine; but', she continued, 'I think I ought to congratulate you,' and her dainty slipper tapped the rug.

'Me! Well, really,' replied the astonished Robert, 'will you have the kindness to inform me how I am deserving of your congratulations?'

'Why, in your choice,' she hesitated, 'of a —a—wife, Miss Fenton.'

'Miss Carrie Fenton!' he exclaimed. 'By Jove! there is some terrible mistake here somewhere. I have never spoken three words to the lady in my life. Have you any objections to revealing the name of this interesting tale-bearer?'

'Mr. Ashland was the one who informed me of your engagement,' she said.

He got up, crossed over and took a seat near her. 'Miss Haviland,' he said, smilingly, 'excuse me, but this seems to be getting really amusing. John Ashland it was who first told me of your approaching marriage with Captain Dudley.'

'And that,' she said, pausing and looking down into the grate, 'and that is why you stopped visiting here so suddenly?'

'That is it precisely,' he replied.

The ticking of the small bronze timepiece on the mantel sounded clear and distinct in the stillness that followed. Both were occupied in their own thoughts for a few moments and neither moved nor spoke. He was the first to break the silence. Moving his chair close up to Edith's and resting his arm on the back of hers, in a quiet, firm voice, he said:

'Edith, if I may be permitted to address you thus, our acquaintance has been of short duration, and a declaration of my feelings toward you now must surely be regarded as premature; but, notwithstanding this fact, I cannot resist the temptation to tell you that, short as the time has been, I have learned to love you dearly and truly. During my former visits here I fancied my presence was not altogether disagreeable to you. Tell me,' he said, letting his arm drop from the back of her chair so as to encircle her waist, 'tell me—was I mistaken?'

Her head sank on his breast, and lowering his their lips met. He was not mistaken.

A ring at the door announced the family's return. Robert Emerson was heartily welcomed by all, and that evening was the happiest he had ever spent in his life, for when he bade Edith good-night it was as her accepted suitor.

John Ashland's little game, although well played, was beaten by a New Year's call.

A SAD PREDICAMENT.

It was in a drug store that this occurred. She was young, attractive and a music teacher; after purchasing perfumes and other articles, she sweetly asked:

'Have you any Rochelle salts?'

'Oh, yes,' replied the obliging young poison-compounder.

'Are they disagreeable to take?'

'By no means, if properly dissolved,' was the reply.

With a sweet, tender, set-'em-quick-or-die-on-the-spot glance at the young man and the soda fountain, she said:

'Please draw me a glass of soda—strawberry flavor.'

After absorbing the delicious beverage, the next remark from the angelic source was:—

'Delicious! How nice if the salts would only taste as well.'

The polite and obsequious youth, with a grin intended to run the thermometer of her affections up to 98 in the shade, replied:

'Why, I have already taken the liberty of adding a dose of salts.'

There was one withering look, a flounce of skirts, and the indignant ejaculation:

'Idiot! I wanted them for my mother.'

'If you want to be truly happy, my dear,' said one New York lady to another, 'you will have neither eyes nor ears when your husband comes home late from the club.' 'Yes, I know,' answered the other, wearily, 'but what am I to do with my nose?'—Philadelphia News.

A HIGHLANDER'S HONOR.

Two centuries ago, in the Highlands of Scotland, to ask for a receipt or a promissory note was a thorough insult. If parties had business matters to transact, they stepped into the air, fixed their eyes upon the heavens, and each repeated their obligation without a mortal witness. A mark was then carved upon some rock or tree near by as a remembrance of the contract. Such a thing as breach of contract was rarely met with, so highly did the people regard their honor. When the march of improvement brought the new mode of doing business, they were often pained by these innovations. An anecdote is handed down of a farmer who had been to the Lowlands and learned worldly wisdom. On returning to his native parish he had need of a small sum of money, and he made bold to ask a loan from a gentleman of means named Stuart. This was kindly granted, and Mr. Stuart counted out the gold. This done, the farmer wrote a receipt and handed it to Mr. Stuart.

'What is this, man?' cried Mr. Stuart, eyeing the slip of paper.

'It is a receipt, sir, binding me to give ye back the gold at the right time,' replied Sandy.

'Binding ye? Weel, my man, if ye canna trust yourself I'm sure I'll no' trust ye. Ye canna have my gold.' And gathering it up, he put it back in his desk and turned the key on it.

'But, sir, I might die,' replied the canny Scotchman, bringing up an argument in favor of his new wisdom, 'and perhaps my sons might refuse it to ye; but the bit of paper would compel them.'

'Compel them to sustain their dead father's honor,' cried the Celt. 'They'll need compelling to do right if this is the road ye're leading them. I'll neither trust ye nor them. Ye can gang elsewhere for money; but you will find nane in the parish that'll put more faith in a bit of paper than in a neighbor's word o' honor and his fear of God.'

CUTTING IT TOO SHORT.

Brevity is the soul of wit, but even brevity may become a bore. Just now it is the fashion, in New England, to rail at every man who demands your attention for a 'square talk,' public or private. The parson runs the risk of losing his pulpit who fancies that even St. Paul will keep his deacons good-natured after thirty minutes. A cultivated Boston audience bolts for the door five minutes before the expiration of the regulation hour, on the evening of the first appearance of Dr. Carpenter, one of the two or three most eminent scientific lecturers in the English tongue. The missionary, just home from the most moving experiences of a year, finds the conference laced up in a fifteen minutes' arrangement, and drives at the heart of the people beyond that at his peril. The curse of New England life, to-day, is this fearful intensity that insists on cutting everything fine and switching every fifteen minutes, at the risk of spiritual derailment or collision. It is destroying our capacity for the sober, ample, round-a-bout view of great things, and making life petty, captious, void of perspective,—a race through a snarl of short cuts and blind alleys, with only a dart across the noblest avenue, through a hurrying crowd, as insane as ourselves. Indeed, we sometimes fear that the average cultivated Yankee will decline heaven itself, on the ground that it is eternal.—Journal of Education.

Of the members of the once famous firm of Jay Cooke & Co., the New York Tribune furnishes the following information: 'Jay Cooke now has a considerable railroad and iron interest in the Cumberland Valley. His brother, Henry D. Cooke, who was the factor to bring Jay Cooke and Secretary Chase together, never recovered his financial status, however, and died at Georgetown, in sight of the foundations of a splendid home he had laid, which was never finished, and the materials of which have since been sold. The last time I saw Pitt Cooke, another of the brothers, he was back in Sandusky, where they all originated, striving to rise again by various minor enterprises, and I think he also died before his visions were realized.'

An officer of the 7th Cavalry Regiment at Fort Lincoln, Dakota, received a letter from a woman who owned a ranch near Mandana, which in substance read as follows: "Dear sir: My man, perhaps you know, is dead. I buried him Thursday. It is coming on spring now, and I am a lone woman with a big ranch and the Indians about. I don't mind the Indians, the red devils, but I have too much work for any woman to do. If you have any sergeant about to be mustered out, or a private if he is a good man, I would like to have you inform me about him. If he is a steady man, likes work and wants a good home I will marry him, if we think we can get along together. It's a good chance for any man. Please answer."

His wife had just returned from a tea party, and was wagging her tongue like a buzz saw, when he shut off further talk by quietly observing, 'There is a loquacity which tells nothing.' The next night he returned from lodge, laid his coat on the bed and flung himself over the back of a chair, when she turned on a perfect Niagara of chin by remarking, 'There is a silence which tells much.'—New Orleans Times.

The remark, 'There is a point where endurance ceases to be virtue,' was originally made by one of the old masters—one of the school-masters—when he sat down on a simple little contrivance invented by a bad pupil.

The weekly papers are just now full of editorials on the 'Duty of the Citizen.' The duty of the citizen is to put on his flannels at the first cold snap, and then he won't have pneumonia.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

It is the mission of the government to prevent as well as to punish crime. Let the State begin at the front door where the man goes in innocent, and not at the back door where he comes out guilty.—Anvil.

A Washoe jury was called on to try a man for stealing milk by drawing it at night from a neighbor's cow. They found a verdict of 'guilty of stealing milk in the first degree.'

Oscar Wilde is not going to be married this fall. He was engaged but the man went back on him.—Burlington Hawkeye.

'Will the coming man use both arms?' is asked. He doubtless will, if the coming woman is able to drive the horse.

LUCIUS W. POND, the Worcester forger and ex-senator, who was sentenced in January, 1876, to 15 years' imprisonment, was pardoned by Gov. Long on Christmas day, in response to the petition of many prominent citizens of Worcester and more than three-fourths of his creditors, who felt that he had been punished sufficiently.

THE North Adams Transcript, one of the cleanest and best of our weekly exchanges, has added a column to each of its pages—a pleasant evidence of deserved prosperity. The Transcript ought to be appreciated by the people of that town, as it unquestionably is, for its advertising pages show that the business men of that section find its columns the best method of reaching the public—a fact that is true of every well established and properly conducted newspaper.

LETTER FROM SPRINGFIELD.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 28th, 1882.

The closing week of a year is always a good one for taking off a balance sheet. In reviewing the events of the year, locally, we find much to be grateful for in the general prosperity of the people, in deliverance from great calamities, and salvation from pestilence and unusual mortality. We have had malaria in abundance, to be sure, and other diseases that have caused sickness and death, and in the commencement of the new year in many families will appear the vacant chair, and in our wood-lawn cemeteries new mounds have been raised; but this is only the record of preceding years, and will be of succeeding ones until the angel shall declare that time shall be no longer. Our manufacturing enterprises have been generally successful, laborers have had plenty of work at fair wages, and our merchants—especially those who advertise liberally in the JOURNAL—have reaped a fair harvest; and in general review there is much more of the good than bad to record. The comet paid us a flying visit the past season, and Venus made a successful transit; Gen. Butler was elected Governor, which was followed by a bountiful Thanksgiving and a merry Christmas. It is true, we have had bitter with the sweet, and deep shadows have been cast in the past twelve months; we have had a murder trial at the seat of justice, and a fellow mortal now lies in jail awaiting the execution of a sentence of death for brutally taking the life of a friend; and last week we heard the recital of a horrid crime committed in the God-fearing town of Palmer, which caused a shudder, and a sigh for more effective home missionary work. But we shall always have crime and brutality to tax our sympathies and arouse our indignation, while the wheat and tares grow together.

Our annual city election passed off tranquilly, and in a few weeks we shall probably know who has secured a victory, the lawless classes or the lovers of good order—both now claiming it. The mayor-elect was supported by those who go in for the largest license in everything bad, including those who sell and drink liquor; but his intimate friends claim that they did it of their own notion, and without any assurance or intimation that the nominee had any sympathy with their evil deeds; his character, so far as is apparent, would lead to the belief that the statement is true, and we shall have to wait developments to decide the bent of his leanings. It is understood that Marshal Rice, who has been a terror to evil doers since he has been at the head of the police department, will have to retire to meet the demand of the new mayor's friends; but that will not be proof positive that the law-breakers are to have their own way in future by any means; though if he appoints either of the two prominent candidates—Colonel Hamilton or Sheriff Bumstead—there will be lamentation among those now hoping for the best. I shall not be disappointed if Mayor Phillips appreciates the responsibility of the occasion, and gives the city a surprise by the nomination of a man for marshal that will not cause law-abiding citizens to hang their harps upon the willows.

The Legislature about to convene under the "gilded dome" will temporarily remove from among us four of our worthy citizens; but I presume their weight, transferred to the other end of the State, will cause no appreciable rising of terra-firma west of Palmer. Mr. John Olmsted, president of our street railway company, will naturally be the leading member of the city's delegation, though with the others he has had no experience in State legislation. He is a clear headed man, and will be a valuable member on important committees. If our new Governor has any offices to dispose of to the highest bidder, Auctioneer Beach—the only Democratic member of the delegation—will be the man to show them up to the best advantage. The senatorial proclivities of our delegation, so far as known, are: Messrs. Olmsted and Stebbins solid for Hoar; Beach for any one Governor Butler may designate; Arnold, first choice, Long, after that he is a Hoar man. Newell, of Longmeadow, who represents his own town and two wards of the city, will also be likely to vote for Hoar, though he is an admirer of Governor Long. He is a level-headed man, and will doubtless reason that a gentleman of Senator Hoar's ability and experience had better be retained, and especially since his favorite will be only better qualified for senatorial honors four years hence, when another vacancy occurs. No ballots of the city's delegation will be wasted on the Adams family.

The post-office thieving case made public last week reflects no great credit upon the management of the institution. Not that the postmaster was in any way responsible for the mischief, but the fact that he could not detect the leak without the aid of a government officer, shows a want of capacity, or adaptability, for the position. It is currently reported that his attention had been repeatedly called to the loss of money correspondence, but that it was not until complaints were made at Washington that any effort was made at the office to ascertain where the leak was. Why a postmaster cannot use decoy letters, if he has no other means of detecting roguery, as well as a government detective, is an unanswered question. This young man, it is said, was known to be spending money beyond his means, and it would have been only justice to the clerk to have called him to account months ago. This misfortune may prove the "last feather" in the case of our local official, as he has been on probation for several months past. But for the influence of worthy influential friends there would have been a vacancy for the president to fill long before this.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Weld & Longley, the Central street grocers, will be pleased to receive New Year's calls from all their old customers and as many new ones as may feel so disposed.

PALMER AND VICINITY.

Good-bye, 1882.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR to all our readers.

Whooping cough is prevailing somewhat.

Runners have given place to wheels for the nonce.

The trustees of the Savings Bank hold their quarterly meeting this forenoon.

We shall publish next week our annual review of the principal events of the year.

H. A. Bigelow has sold his livery stable business to F. N. Shepard, of Worcester.

Rev. Mr. Joy of Three Rivers preached at the Baptist church last Sunday afternoon.

George W. Lyman has sold his house on Pine street to George W. Ely of Wilbraham.

Anthon Larson was before the district court for drunkenness on Tuesday, and paid $5.83.

W. H. Hitchcock will reopen his skating rink in Wales Hall next week Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Northrop has filled his ice house at Three Rivers, and is now beginning work in this place.

The subject of Rev. E. A. Perry's Sunday evening discourse will be "Public Schools; what they ought to do."

Wm. T. Griswold had his right thumb split open by an ax at Tuesday morning's fire, and C. W. Johnson had a thumb sprained.

The Stanley Opera Co. will appear at Wales Hall next Wednesday evening in the opera "The Sleeping Queen," and the comic operetta "Betsy Baker."

Wm. Brooks, recently with J. H. Tuthill, has associated himself with James Healey on South Main street, and will carry on the carriage business in all its branches.

Rev. Mr. Worth of North Chester, Vt., is to preach at the Congregational church to-morrow. The pulpit was occupied last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Lyman of Belchertown.

M. Fox presented the children at the State Primary School with a case of oranges for their Christmas Day enjoyment. Several boxes of presents were also received from thoughtful friends in Springfield.

The remains of Rev. W. L. Gaylord of Chicopee passed through Palmer Thursday afternoon, in a special car provided by the New London Northern Railroad. The body was taken to Norwich Town, Ct., for burial.

A Christmas concert was held in the Methodist church, Four Corners, on Monday evening, with Christmas trees which were well loaded with gifts. A beautiful easy chair, two turkeys and other gifts were presented to the pastor.

The Christmas gatherings at the Congregational and Universalist churches Monday evening were very pleasant occasions, furnishing abundant enjoyment to all present. There were also some happy family gatherings in the village.

She was from one of the out "deestricts," but was bound to be in style, just the same, and so she wanted to be shown some "terra firma gloves and a Tom Shanty hat," with which to create a sensation at church on the following Sabbath.

John A. White, formerly of the firm of White, Hellyar & Co., who recently took a position in a Boston commission house, has removed to Southbridge, having with Thomas Blanchard bought out the large dry goods and millinery establishment of Irwin & Co.

Another "fortunate" fire. One of these days we shall very likely have one so sweeping and destructive that our citizens will arouse themselves and do something towards protecting the village from fire. Why not lock the barn before the horse is stolen?

"Hazel Kirke," that charming domestic drama, was presented in an admirable manner at Wales Hall last Saturday night by the Madison Square Theatre Co. The hall was well filled, the parts well taken, and many considered it the best company that has ever been in Palmer.

Oliver Laselle, who opened a barber shop in the Weeks House, has removed to the building on Church street, lately occupied by Hellyar & Willis as an insurance office, and will have in another chair, with a first-class city artist for an assistant. He will also put in a bath room, which has long been needed in the village.

The Congregational parish, at its meeting Thursday afternoon, voted unanimously to join with the church in calling Rev. Pleasant Hunter, of the Hartford Theological Seminary, to the pastorate of the church, with a salary of $1500 and the parsonage. David Knox, H. P. Holden and C. A. Brown were appointed a committee to unite with the church committee—J. B. Shaw, O. P. Allen and Dr. Wm. Holbrook—in extending the call to Mr. Hunter.

We venture to say that there is not another village in the State of the size of Palmer so absolutely devoid of every form of apparatus for extinguishing fires as is this place. Our barrenness in this respect is painfully apparent, and is not at all creditable to the public spirit of the community. What do our people say to the organization of a fire district, so that something may be done for protection from fire? We should be pleased to hear from our citizens and property holders on the subject.

The "Electric Spark" at Wales Hall Wednesday evening must have got loose and found its way down among the audience, judging from the manner in which they seemed to enjoy that absurd though laughable opera. Each actor was admirably chosen for his or her part, and kept the audience in a broad grin during the entire evening, Miss Florence Bate and James Dyer being especially good. Should the company visit us again they will be greeted with a full house, as they were Wednesday evening.

A messenger was sent to one of our village churches Monday evening with a package of confectionery and good things for the children's supper table, but by mistake left it at the wrong church. The ladies naturally supposed it was a gift from some anonymous friend, and gratefully placed it on the tables, where it served its full purpose in sweetening the mouths and souring the stomachs of the children. By and by a "tracer" arrived from the other church, explanations followed, and the remnants were hastily gathered together and sent to their intended destination.

The fire last Tuesday morning once more demonstrated the fact that Palmer really ought to be proud of her fire department, and of the efficient officers in charge of it. When the alarm was sounded the chief of the department, Wat. R. Pail, was immediately at the scene of action, and by his prompt measures the flames were kept from communicating to Mr. Dewey's large barn, which stood near. The first assistant, Win. Dow Sprinkler, should also come in for a share of the credit, as he did some excellent work, and although standing but a few feet from the burning building, the carriage house of Mr. Loomis was saved mainly through his exertions. The department is in need of some slight changes in its apparatus, but our citizens seem to feel that it is fully equal to our requirements in its present degree of efficiency.

Mrs. Ellen Duncan, whose fiendish maiming of her little step-son has aroused such a feeling of indignation in this place and wherever the story is known, was sentenced to ten years in the women's prison at Sherborn, on Tuesday, by Judge Blodgett of the superior court at Springfield. The judge pronounced it the most remarkable case in some respects he had ever heard of, being so diabolical that it suggested the question of the woman's sanity, though her appearance gave no evidence of mental unsoundness. The sentence is half the maximum term established by law, and the judge said that he made it five years less than two other judges of long experience would have done. Considering the atrocity of the crime and the fact that the child is likely to become an imbecile in consequence of it, the sentence is certainly none too severe.

The Boston & Albany Railroad brought out 44 passengers from Springfield Tuesday night, who had been to that city to enjoy the oratorio. Of this number 20 were from North Wilbraham and the balance from Palmer. We suppose all felt duly grateful for the rare opportunity accorded them of returning home the same night, even on a 15-miles-an-hour freight train, but it strikes us that the Boston & Albany can afford to treat its patrons a little more handsomely, and encourage more travel of this kind by bringing them through at least as respectably and quickly as it carries immigrants over its line—and it takes them through on express trains. But as it is now, people from this and neighboring towns who may desire to attend an entertainment in Springfield must labor considerably to secure even the delay of a regular freight train to bring them home. They are then expected to pay full first-class fare both ways for second-class accommodations on the return trip. Some railroads cultivate suburban travel of this kind by running special trains after entertainments, and even at times offering reduced rates for round-trip tickets. Why shouldn't the Boston & Albany do so?

C. E. Dewey's small barn, with the adjoining carriage and storehouse, was destroyed by fire about eight o'clock Tuesday morning, with some eight tons of hay, four harness and a number of farming tools. Mr. Dewey had an office in one corner of the stone building used for a carriage house, and had built a fire in the stove a short time before the discovery of the flames, which are supposed to have started from some defect in the chimney. Four Jersey calves in the barn were safely removed, with most of the other movable property. Loss in the vicinity of $1000. The buildings were insured for $500 in the Home and German American companies, the policies having been renewed last month for $300 less than the amount previously carried. The loss on hay, etc., was fully covered by insurance. Fortunately it was a still morning, and Mr. Dewey's large barn, near at hand, was saved without difficulty. J. S. Loomis's carriage house was also saved, though it must have gone but for the stone walls of the burning building near which it stood. Water pails, carriage and window-washing "squirters" were the only means at hand for subduing the flames, but these did good service in protecting the adjoining buildings.

WALES.

The Norfolk Jubilee Singers are to give a concert at the Baptist vestry next Wednesday evening.

THORNDIKE.

The foundation of Geo. Wilson's new block on Commercial street is nearly completed. Capt. Clark's new house on the same street is covered and will be by far the most imposing residence in the village.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts tendered his resignation last Sunday as pastor of the Congregational church, to take effect March 1. Next Sabbath a sermon will be preached on "Christ, the Day Spring from on High."

INDIAN ORCHARD.

Hampden council, American Legion of Honor, at a special meeting last week Friday night elected the following officers: Commander, W. A. Twiss; vice commander, J. R. Buell; orator, H. L. Hines; past commander, G. W. Miller; secretary, J. H. Chandler; collector, A. S. Packard; treasurer, C. E. Frost; chaplain, A. M. Richmond; guide, Walter Duncan; warden, Wm. Nield; sentry, Peter Carlson; medical examiner, Dr. S. F. Smith; representative to grand council, G.W. Miller; alternate, J. H. Chandler. A public installation will be held January 7.

WARREN.

The Congregational Sabbath school reorganize next Sabbath.

Miss Carrie Greene will teach in the 2nd primary school which Miss Tyler has resigned.

The young people gave a surprise party to Arthur Buxton of West Brookfield Wednesday evening.

The ladies of the Congregational church give a New Year's party and supper at the church parlors next Monday evening.

A surprise party at Mr. George Shumway' for Mr. Kingman, Christmas night, passed s very pleasantly, and was much enjoyed off those present. by

BRIMFIELD.

A barber's shop has lately been set up in the store-building opposite the post-office, and is open Wednesday afternoons and Saturdays.

Simmons & Mower's combination appeared at the town hall Thursday in the drama "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." Next Monday evening "The Original Norfolk Jubilee Singers" will give a concert at the same place.

Mr. Sanderson, pastor of the West Warren M. E. church, with some auxiliaries, is holding a series of meetings at the Little Rest school house. The citizens take a good interest, and the meetings promise good results.

Christmas was observed in the usual manner at the First church. A free supper was furnished for the primary part of the Sabbath school, and there were readings, declamations, music, etc. The Second church at the town hall gave a free supper to the children of the Sunday school, and furnished supper for a consideration for about 100. Both were well attended and all passed off pleasantly.

WILBRAHAM.

The Willing Workers meet with Miss Helen Beebe this afternoon.

The quarterly conference of the M. E. church was held on Tuesday evening at the Memorial church.

Rev. M. S. Howard lectured for the South Deerfield Congregationalists, Tuesday evening, on "Thirty Days in France and Italy."

The last of the entertainments in the lecture course of the Methodist Memorial church took place on Wednesday evening, and consisted of readings by Miss Marion Sterns and music by Miss Georgie Dewey.

The Farmers' club met with James Richards of Maple street, Wednesday evening. The next meeting, which will be the annual meeting for the choice of officers, will be held at the house of M. F. Beebe, Jan. 8th. The first Institute will be held at the Allis House Thursday, Jan. 11th. Subject, "Forage Crops." Speakers from abroad are expected.

Christmas was observed at the Congregational church by a special sermon Sabbath morning, by the pastor, a Christmas concert in the evening, and a tree Monday evening. The chapel was decorated with appropriate mottoes and evergreens, and a mock fireplace in one corner, down which Santa Claus came to distribute the fruit from the tree, after the interesting literary exercises of the evening.

BONDSVILLE.

There will be a watch-meeting at the M. E. church Sunday evening, commencing at eight o'clock and continuing till twelve. A variety of exercises may be expected.

W. C. McClallan of Springfield has completed his contract with the Boston Duck Co., amounting to some $80,000. The work includes the construction of the new canal, factory foundations, wheel pits, and overflow and tail race for the company's new cotton mill, which is to be 460 by 108 feet. The canal is 1500 feet long, and required 52,000 cubic yards of excavation and about 18,000 cubic yards of stone masonry. It averages 13 feet in depth.

The operatives in the main part of the mill showed, in a pleasant way, the good will they bore toward the overseers of their respective rooms by presenting each with a number of valuable Christmas presents. Orin Moore received from those in the spool room an easy chair and nice chandelier. Those in the spinning room gave John Carmody an easy chair, and a charm for his watch chain. H. D. Shaw, boss of the card room, was presented with a chandelier and a black wolf robe, and those in the two weave rooms united in making William O'Regan the possessor of a costly silver service.

The Christmas gathering at the Methodist church Monday evening was even more interesting than in former years. The entertainment consisted of singing, declamations, a charade in three acts and a dialogue entitled "Santa Claus," after which a curtain was withdrawn, bringing into view a heavily laden Christmas tree. To the surprise and delight of all this tree suddenly parted, disclosing in the center a child, clothed in white, pointing upward toward a bright star. After a few moments the tree slowly closed together again, and then came, to the younger portion at least, the most interesting part of all, the distribution of the presents. Judging from the happy faces all over the room, Santa Claus was very liberal this year.

THREE RIVERS.

H. A. Northrop is getting in his crop of ice.

C. H. Murdock has opened a store at the old stand of Heath & Shaw.

Wm. B. Fuller and wife from South Yarmouth have been here on a visit at Rev. Mr. Joy's the past week.

Although there has been but little snow, the coasting has been better than before for years, and the boys and girls have improved these moonlight evenings.

The new store which the Otis Co. are building for J. H. Thayer is up and will soon be finished. It is a good looking building and will make one of the best stores in the vicinity when completed.

Pretty cold weather for a basket picnic, and yet the experiment of having one in the winter months was tried by some of our young people recently. All seemed to enjoy it but the two young men who carried the baskets—but the particulars cannot be given at this time.

On Tuesday evening, the Sunday school of the Baptist church held their Christmas festival, consisting of devotional exercises, by the pastor, and a number of recitations by the scholars, interspersed with singing by the choir, which was interesting; but the great attraction of the evening was the Christmas tree, and supper following. From the former, the scholars, teachers and their friends generally received a large number of presents. The pastor and his wife were kindly remembered, receiving a number of choice gifts, among which was a pocket book containing quite a sum of money. The supper was well patronized, and the whole affair was a success, enjoyable and profitable.

Entertainments seem to be the order of the day. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was played in the Baptist vestry Monday evening, 18th, and the Union Sunday school gave a "jug breaking concert" on the same evening in the Union vestry, the exercises consisting of speaking, singing, breaking of jugs with which the children had been collecting money, and the selling at auction of the jugs not used. The total receipts were about $52. On Tuesday evening the young people of the Baptist Sunday school, assisted by the Misses Lottie and Lutie Atwood of Springfield, gave a very acceptable entertainment in the Baptist vestry. The Amherst College Glee Club also recently gave a concert to a full house in the Union church, which realized $30 for its treasury.

MONSON.

The assessors' valuation is in print and may be had of the town clerk.

A public installation of officers of Dayspring lodge F. & A. M. is talked of.

Atkinson's Jollities gave a tip-top entertainment to an appreciative audience.

D. G. Green has purchased of Dwight Lombard a farm of 165 acres in Willington, for $1500.

Levi C. Bates has ripe tomatoes which have budded, blossomed and ripened in the house this winter.

The original Norfolk Jubilee singers, a genuine slave band, give a sacred concert to-morrow (Sunday) evening at Central Hall.

Presiding Elder Fellows preached at the M. E. church last Sabbath morning and gave a short address to the children at the concert in the evening.

It is estimated that over $100,000 worth of new buildings have been completed during the past year, and $21,000 expended in additions and repairs.

W. H. Horton, who was injured in the eye some weeks ago, is able to be out in the streets, and Lester Hoar after a 4-weeks' vacation with a broken leg is so as to be around.

James Wiley, the champion checker player of the world, is expected to visit this locality in a few days, and amateurs then can note how it is done, as he will play a few games with local players.

An old-fashioned reunion occurred at the house of Mr. Timothy Feather last Saturday evening, when all the children (except one) and all of the grandchildren were at home, and around the Christmas tree they gathered to receive the bountiful supply of Christmas presents provided for each.

At Sherwin's bakery the Christmas tree was heavily laden with the good things that are there prepared, and the 400 loaves of frosted Christmas cake did not supply the demand. Calvin Keep recited an original Christmas carol, which added materially to the pleasantness of the occasion.

For the benefit of stock operators and others we quote that C. L. Stebbins has a large stock of cattle of various grades at ruling prices; Wm. Carroll has choice Jersey and Ayreshires; John Maguire shows a pair of workers that might bull the market. Bears are scarce, but bare meat is found at the several markets.

There is to be a grand masquerade skating rink at Central Hall next Thursday evening. The masqueraders are to have the floor until 8.45, then those who do not mask will have a chance to try the rollers until 9.45, after which there is to be a game of polo, which will no doubt be interesting. Keeney will provide masks for those who wish, and all lovers of the rollers are anticipating a grand time.

The Sunday school concert at the M. E. church last Sabbath evening was an interesting occasion, and the children and all concerned acted well their parts. On Monday evening the Christmas ship sailed into the vestry laden with many goodies and presents, ranging from a nice large easy chair to a bag of candy, and the recipients did not seem to care or discuss whether the ship had been obliged to pay tariff or duties but were well pleased with the exercises and the merry Christmas gathering.

Littell's Living Age for 1883, that standard weekly magazine, now nearly forty years old, continues to afford the most convenient means of keeping informed in the best literature of the day, and abreast with the work of the most eminent writers. It gives an amount of reading unequalled by any other periodical, and fills the place of many quarterly, monthly and weekly publications, the reader thus being enabled, at a small expenditure of time and money, to keep pace with the best thought and literature of the time. The prospectus in another column is worthy the attention of all who are selecting their periodicals for the new year.

The Springfield Union steadily improves with age. It is an excellent evening paper, furnishing the local and general news of the day in a concise and readable form, while its editorial department is vigorous, able and impartial, making it a desirable family paper. See its prospectus in another column.

Rev. Wm. L. Gaylord, pastor of the Third Congregational church, Chicopee, died of apoplexy on Tuesday.

Dost thou love life?—Then do not squander valuable time—for that is the stuff life is made of; but procure at once a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for your cough and be cured. Your druggist keeps it.

Persons prematurely gray can have their hair restored to its youthful beauty by using Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best article in the market.

Protection from Malaria. The preventive is the far-famed Southern remedy, Simmons Liver Regulator, a purely vegetable tonic, cathartic and alterative. It acts more promptly than calomel or quinine.

HOW A NEW HAMPSHIRE MAN LOST $50.—Mr. Charles T. Chapman, of Hopkinton, N. H., related his experience recently to a reporter. "I had," said he, "laid out $50 for medicine which never did me any good; had heart disease, and Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator was the only remedy I could find. I wouldn't be without it." This remedy is a certain cure for heart troubles.

A CITY OF REFUGE.—When you have any internal pain or ache; when you have a cough, a cold, or any bronchial trouble whatever; when you are suffering from rheumatism; when you are troubled with sour stomach, indigestion, or any affection of the vital organs, fly to RENNE'S PAIN KILLING MAGIC OIL as a City of Refuge. No other medicine that has ever been discovered is possessed of such healing—such miraculous powers. This preparation is as harmless as new milk, and as pure and aromatic as rose water. It is sold by all druggists and country merchants. 4w40

WEBSTER, the lexicographer, defines Catarrh to be "a discharge of fluid from the mucous membrane, especially of the nose, fauces, and bronchial passages, caused by a cold in the head." It is a disease common alike to all classes of society. Unlike an ordinary cold, it cannot be cured by family remedies, but it requires an antidote from the ranks of materia medica. The preparation so universally known under the name of Ely's Cream Balm is a sovereign, unfailing cure for Catarrh. It is a neat, pleasant, yet thoroughly efficacious remedy. "I have been troubled with Catarrh so badly," writes B. F. Leipsner, A. M., of Red Rank, N. J., "for several years that it seriously affected my voice. I tried various remedies without relief. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored and my head feels better than for years." 50 cents only. 2w40

THE UNION FOR 1883.

The best promise is performance. What THE UNION has done during the past year in presenting the news, local and general, in clear and intelligent form, with helpful and enlightening editorial comments when necessary, it will continue to do during the year to come. To this end the best efforts of its editor and a large and experienced force of assistants will be directed.

The Union believes in principles and in parties as representatives of principles. But while it adheres firmly to the political doctrines formulated and maintained by the Republican organization, it is not so partisan as to be able to see nothing wrong in its own party; it recognizes fully the faults and shortcomings of Republican leaders; it welcomes every advance toward a purer administration of public affairs, and is in sympathy with every proper effort to lift politics to a higher plane. While thus a Republican paper, the Union accords the right to differ, and means to treat its political opponents with fairness and due consideration.

The Union is by no means a party paper merely. Its telegraphic service is full and complete, covering all events of importance throughout the world. As a general newspaper it fairly claims to be unexcelled in New England by any evening journal outside of the very largest cities. The news of the day is carefully edited and attractively displayed. The Union has the full dispatches of the Associated Press, including daily stock and market reports from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, London and Liverpool, and from all centers of business activity.

Its local field is comprehensively covered by an efficient corps of correspondents, and its reports of home matters are full and complete. Excellent as this department has been, no pains will be spared to still further increase its efficiency. Paying special attention to the Connecticut valley and Western Massachusetts, it yet finds room for noting all important events in New England at large.

Not alone upon its standing as a consistent political journal, nor wholly upon its special news features, does the Union base its claim to appreciation. It devotes all the space it can command to carefully selected miscellany adapted to all tastes, and its household, religious, educational, women's, scientific, literary and other special departments, receive the closest attention in their preparation. Nothing that pertains to life and action is foreign to real journalism, and the Union will by every means in its power seek to maintain and advance the enviable rank it already has as a reliable and readable family journal.

The WEEKLY UNION, a broad sheet of 56 columns, is made up with special care to meet the varied wants of the thriving communities among whom it largely circulates. A full page of New England news every week commends it especially to New england people wherever they are, while its various departments touch on every phase of the world's life and form one of the completest weekly papers published, making the Union emphatically the favorite family paper, while the low price at which it is afforded brings it within the reach of every one.

TERMS OF THE UNION.

The DAILY UNION is two cents a copy, 12 cents a week, 50 cents a month, and $6 a year. Daily subscriptions in clubs are received at $5 per year. The WEEKLY UNION, which is published every Thursday morning, is $1.50 per year. Postmasters and others who may get up clubs will be liberally dealt with. Specimen copies sent to any address. Subscriptions are payable in advance.

WHY THE OLD MAN WEAKENED.

'But, papa—'

'Not another word,' said the person thus addressed, a tall, handsome man, in whose deep brown hair, a tinge of gray was just beginning to show. You know, my child,' he continued 'that nothing could give me more pain than refus ing any wish of yours, and that I am never so happy and free from care as when some act of mine has made your life brighter. But this request I cannot grant. A sealskin sacque with fur trimmings! By my halidom, you jest bravely—' and, turning hastily away, Dunstan Perkins stepped to the sideboard and took a drink. For an instant Lillian stood in the conservatory, looking steadily down at the heavy velvet carpet in which her shapely feet sunk deeply; but presently the spirit of desolate loneliness seemed to leave her, and, going quietly into an adjoining room, she began eating pie.

In a few moments her father came into the apartment. 'Perhaps I was rather harsh with you Lillian, he began.

But the girl interrupted him. 'Don't speak ot it again dear papa,' she said, 'because I know that you really have no money to spare. While I was mending your overcoat last evening I saw that note from Daisy, and I would not—'

'You saw the note?' asks Mr. Perkins in an agonised tone.

'Yes, papa; but you know I never—'

'How much will a sealskin sacque cost?'

'Three hundred dollars,' and as the girl spoke these words a baleful light shot from her eyes.

'You can have the money to-morrow,' he said, and went out of the room.

'I thought my darling papa would weaken,' said the girl, and lifting the fork slowly to her lips the last of the pie was gone.—Chicago Tribune.

Gen. Grant says in a recent letter relative to the Fitz John Porter case: "I commenced reading up this case with the conviction that Gen. Porter had been guilty, as found by the court, but came out of the investigation with a thorough conviction that I, and the public generally, had done him a fearful injustice, and entirely satisfied that any intelligent man or lawyer who will throw aside prejudice and examine the case as I have done will come to the same conclusion."

Rector (whose curate has lately left the parish), visiting old woman: 'Well, Betty, I expect you will miss Mr. Robinson a good deal?' Betty: 'Oh, yes, sir! He were a beautiful young man, sir!' Rector: 'Well, he was a very good man, Betty; but I don't know about his being exactly 'beautiful.'' Betty: 'Oh, he wern't much to look at in the face, I know, but lor, sir, his innards was lovely.'—Judy.

'Two Austin ladies were conversing about matters and things in general, when one of them, Mrs. Stuckup, asked: 'Haven't you got a brother in New Orleans who is a criminal lawyer?' 'Yes, he practices law, but he never defends any criminals unless they belong to the first families. He has to be satisfied with their social status before he will consent to take their cases.—Texas Siftings.

If you tell your troubles to God, you put them into the grave. They will never rise again when you have committed them to Him. If you roll your burden anywhere else, it will roll back again like the stone of Sisyphus.—Spurgeon.

It is said that the natural beauties of the Yellowstone Park are being defaced and destroyed by visitors. This comes of driving away the Indians, who were in the habit of scalping tourists.—Detroit Free Press.

A scientific writer asserts that the long current belief that the concentric rings of a tree are a record of its age, each ring representing a year's growth, is a mistake. A series of experiments have shown its falsity.

It is no small commendation to manage a little well. He is a good wagoner who can turn in a little room. To live well in abundance is the praise of the estate, not of the person.—Bishop Hall.

Some men make you feel as though the warm sun had just broken the clouds, while others make you feel that a sudden east wind with its arms full of cold fog had caught you with too thin clothing on.

An Iowa J. P. uses this formula: 'Them as this court has joined together let no man put asunder; but let little children come unto them, so help me God.'

A Missouri girl began canning tomatoes with nineteen warts on her hand and quit with never a one in sight. The tomato juice did the work.

A bride and groom stopped in Springfield recently and the latter, a fine-looking young man, registered, '—— —— and whife.'

Life, according to an Arabic proverb, consists of two parts—the past a dream, the future a hope.

Little Grace seeing the first falling snow of her third winter, said: 'Heaven is coming down on us.'

Little Hannah speaks of a stammerer as 'the man who had to say something before he could talk.'

Envy is a vice, which keeps no holiday but is always on the wheel working its own disquiet.

A little girl of four asked: 'Which is the most, a million, a hundred, or below zero?'

A noble part of every true life is to learn to undo what has been wrongly done.

We are never ruined by what we want, but by what we think we want.

The reward of doing one duty is the power to perform another.

Parents who allow their children to grow up with scrofulous humors bursting from every pore are guilty of a great wrong. Think of them pointed out as branded with a loathsome disease, and you will readily procure them the Cuticura Remedies.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of balsam and pine. Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. Complete treatment for $1.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT,

—THE—

NEW BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mr. Albert Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., troubled with bad humor on hands and neck, caused by lead poisoning. (He's a painter.) At times it would break out, crack open, and the skin separate from the flesh in large pieces, suffering great continual itching and stinging. Purchased your remedies; used Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and in less than three months effected a complete cure, and has not been troubled since. Corroborated by Bullard & Foster, Druggists, Keene, N. H.

MOTHER DIED FROM IT.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case salt rheum in this county. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

PSORIASIS.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Psoriasis or Leprosy, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent externally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap internally. The most wonderful case on record. Cure certified to before a justice of the peace and prominent citizens. All afflicted with itching and scaly diseases should send to us for this testimonial in full.

SALT RHEUM.

Those who have experienced the torments of Salt Rheum can appreciate the agony I endured for years, until cured by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. MRS. WM. PELLINGTON, Sharon, Wis.

CUTICURA

and CUTICURA SOAP externally and CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally will positively cure every species of Humor, from a Common Pimple to Scrofula. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cts.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c. Sold by all druggists.

Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston, Mass.

CATARRH.

Sanford's Radical Cure.

A single dose instantly relieves the most violent sneezing or head colds, clerrs the head as by magic, stops watery discharges from the nose and eyes, prevents ringing noises in the head, cures nervous headache and subdues chills and fever. In chronic catarrh it cleanses the nasal passages of foul mucus, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing when affected, frees the head, throat and bronchial tubes of offensive matter, sweetens and purifies the breath, stops the cough and arrests the progress of catarrh toward consumption.

One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one package, of all druggists for $1. Ask for Sanford's Radical Cure. Weeks & Potter, Boston.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AMONG OUR WILD INDIANS!

A true record of the author's Thirty-Three Years Personal Experience among our Indians. With an able introduction

BY GEN. SHERMAN

This work was at once subscribed for by President ARTHUR and entire cabinet, and by Gen. Sherman, Gen. Grant, Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Hancock, and thousands of Eminent Men. Gen. Grant says: "It is the best book on Indian Life ever written." Bishop Wiley (Methodist) says: "it is a book of immense value." It is the only authentic account of our Indians ever published, fully revealing their "inner life," secret doings, exploits, etc. It is replete with thrilling experiences of the author, and of famous Scouts, Trappers, Cow-boys, Miners, Border Ruffians, etc., vividly portraying Life in the Great West as it now is. 45d thousand in press. ADVANTAGES

—OF—

HORSFORD'S

BREAD PREPARATION

Over Ordinary Baking Powders.

FIRST.

IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn and wheat. Ordinary baking powders, cream tartar, yeast, etc., do not contain any nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

SECOND.

IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking powders lose strength after being opened.

THIRD

IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of packing obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking powder.

FOURTH.

IT IS RELIABLE, and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor, (Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge,) and the reputation of the manfacturers, (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.,) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

FIFTH.

IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent stronger than the common baking powders, and 30 per cent stronger than the best baking powder made.

The "Horsford Almanac and Cook Book" sent free upon application to the Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. 6m20-2rm

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checke , and a new growth will be produced in all c ses where the follices are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

NEUTRALIZED.

IN WHAT WAY A PREVALENT EVIL MAY BE SHORN OF ITS POWER TO HARM.

Malaria is a broad name for many diseases—all originanating in blood poisoning. Bilious fever, the typhus and typoid fevers and chills and fever are prominent members of the family. Malaria defies alike the builders, the plumbers and the physician. Despairing of ordinary treatment, the latter almost unanimously recommend BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER as the greatest anti-malarial specific of the age. These Plasters act upon the liver, spleen, bowels and kidneys.

Worn over the region of the liver, and upon the back over the kidneys, they ward off malaria like an armor. No other plasters do this.

When you purchase, satisfy yourself that the word CAPCINE is cut in the center of the plaster.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his righte. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The several editions of The Sun are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make The Weekly Sun the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

BOSTON, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, re-issues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you. Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.
